SPEAKER CANNON IS FLAYED BY BRISTOW IN SPEECH IN KANSAS

Other Standpat Congressmen Also Come in for Hard Raps.

"Smelter Trust" Interests Were Carefully Guarded in Tariff, He Says.

Tells of Fight Waged Over the Duties on Lead and Ore.

Manhattan, Kan., July 22.—Senator Joseph L. Bristow in a speech here last night charged Speaker Cannon and the "standpat" congressmen with manipulation of the lead schedules of the tariff bill in support of the "smelter trust," so called.

"A duty not measuring the difference in the cost of smelting at home and abroad as promised in the Republican platform, but from $2.50 to $6 higher than the entire cost of smelting in this country, was imposed on lead," the senator said. "This was done, not in the interest of protecting a struggling American industry, but in the interest of a monopoly, controlled by the Guggenheims, backed by the great Rockefeller financial interests.

Cannon and His Tour.

"Because I presume to object to this sort of thing Mr. Cannon calls me a Democrat, a demagogue, a lunatic and a pickpocket. Mr. Cannon, holding the office of speaker of the house, second in power and dignity in this government, has been routed over Kansas for a number of days denouncing the 'insurgents,' myself in particular. Instead of indulging in vituperation, why does not he give the reasons why he insisted upon ignoring the plain, specific declarations of the Republican national platform? Why did he stand by the senate in the interest of the Guggenheims?

"The duty on lead in ore, as the

WILL ORGANIZE FOR CAMPAIGN

Republican Candidates in North Dakota to Hold Meeting.

Fargo, N. D., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A call has been issued for a meeting of the Republican candidates in Fargo on July 28. It is for the purpose of organizing for the campaign and selecting the chairman of the state central committee. The call is signed jointly by E. C. Cooper, in charge of the stalwart campaign before the primaries, and J. M. Devine, chairman of the insurgent committee before the primaries.

There is no longer any question but that the entire old board of railroad commissioners has been renominated. Purcell ran close to Stutsman but lacked sufficient votes to win.

The complete count from all counties shows that the six condidates on the non-partisan judiciary ticket are Fisk, Anderson, Burke, Goss, Ellsworth and Cooley. The sixth place was in doubt for a long time, but Cooley beat Kneeshaw by less than 200. Justice Carmody, Kneeshaw and Rourke were defeated.

"ENEMY" IS DEMOLISHED

Targets in Artillery Practice Last Less Than Three Minutes.

Stories of Heroism Are Told Following Accident to Gun.

Fort Monroe, Va., July 22.—Although death had silenced one gun and eleven men were killed or fatally injured by the terrible explosion in the Derussy shore battery here during the target firing yesterday upon the imaginary hostile fleet which was passing up Hampton Roads to attack Washington, the battle continued until the enemy was sunk.

The practice, which was the most extensive ever attempted, was completed with flattering success to the coast artillery corps.

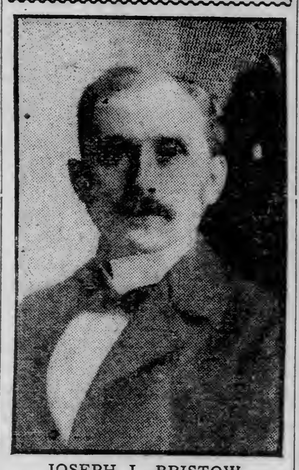

Within three minutes after the first gun had been fired the two cheesecloth targets, 30 by 60 feet, representing the vitals of battleships and towed 6,000 yards away, were a sorry sight. One was not worth shooting at, while the other was badly riddled. Firing was then at an end.

Knew of no Disaster.

The fatal result of the first attempt to discharge No. 1 gun of the Derussy battery of 12-inch guns was not known to the other batteries, scattered for nearly a mile along the shore, until after the conclusion of the firing. The men at the other two guns of the Derussy battery did know that an ac-

HOPE STRIKE WILL SPREAD

Some Grand Trunk Strikers Expect Engineers and Firemen to Quit.

United States Customs Officials May Interfere, It Is Said.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—Hope that the engineers and firemen will walk out in sympathy seems strong in the minds of the strikers here today. Crossing the river yesterday to Windsor, singly or in pairs, about two dozen men, alleged to have been strike-breakers, were stopped by the Canadian immigrant officials and deported on the charge of attempting to evade the alien labor law.

Peace Plan Fails.

Montreal, July 22.—The difficulties besetting the formulation of arbitration proposals satisfactory both to the Grand Trunk railway officials and the leaders of the striking conductors and trainmen occupied the government officials again today, following the prompt rejection last night by Vice-President Murdoch of the Order of Railway Trainmen of the minister of labor's latest suggestion. The rail-

FEWER FOODSTUFFS BEING EXPORTED

Report for Last Fiscal Year Is Made at Washington.

Washington, July 22.—Cotton, copper, illuminating oil, wheat—these articles, in the order named, formed the most important articles exported from the United States during the fiscal year just closed. The value of the cotton exported was $450,000,000, of the copper $83,500,000, of the illuminating oil $62,500,000, and of the wheat $47,000,000.

Other articles of export ranked in valve as follows:

Flour, lard, tobacco, lumber, upper leather, corn, bituminous coal and lubricating oil.

In nearly all of the articles of natural production there was a marked decline of the exports of 1910 as compared with previous years, while in certain manufactures the figures for the year are larger than for any previous year, and the total for all manufactures probably will exceed that of any earlier year.

Falling Off in Foodstuffs.

The bureau of statistics, which has given out these figures, has not yet completed the total value of the manufactures exported.

The falling off is most marked in corn, wheat flour and meats, wheat falling from $161,000,000 in 1892, the high year, to $47,000,000 in 1910; corn from $85,000,000 in 1900 to $25,500,000 in 1910; flour from $75,000,000 in 1893 to $46,500,000 in 1910; lard from $60,000,000 in 1906 to $43,000,000 in 1910; bacon from $46,000,00 in 1898 to $18,500,000 in 1910; fresh beef from $32,000,000 in 1901 to $7,750,000 in 1910; and cattle from $42,000,000 in 1904 to $12,000,000 last year.

CLEVELAND VOTING ON GRADE CROSSINGS.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 22.—This city is celebrating its 114th birthday today by voting on a $2,000,000 bond issue to abolish grade crossings and a $250,000 bond issue to build a tuberculosis hospital. A non-partisan campaign in favor of the issues was conducted.

MORMONS DRIVEN OUT

American Missionaries Are Deported By German Authorities.

Whole Congregation at Berlin Is Put Under Virtual Arrest.

Berlin, July 22.—Herr Dallwitz, Prussian minister of the interior, upon recommendation of the political police, has signed orders for the expulsion of twenty-one Mormon missionaries, most of whom are Americans or Englishmen, and they will be conducted to the frontier today.

The missionaries had assembled from various parts of Germany at the Mormon headquarters on the East side to meet Supt. McKay, an American, usually resident in Switzerland. They were holding a service when an agent of the political police, who was seated in the audience, rose and declared the gathering dissolved.

Arrested Whole Congregation.

At the moment several members of the criminal police appeared and virtually took the congregation into custody. The women were asked to leave the place and the men were examined as to their nationality. Those found to be German subjects were released while the others were requested to accompany the officers to the police presidency. There, after further examination, they were permitted to go to their lodgings to await the issuance of writs for their expulsion.

The status of the Mormons in Germany was taken up in exchanges be-

PUT INDIANS TO CITIZENSHIP TEST

Second Competency Commission Will Work on Oregon Reservation.

Washington, July 22.—To determine the extent to which the Indians on the Umatilla reservation in Oregon are capable of bearing the personal responsibilities of citizenship, the interior department has appointed a competency commission which will examine the three tribes on the reservation.

There are about 1,200 red men involved, belonging to the Cayuse, Umatilla or Walla Walla tribes. The report of the commission will indicate who are capable of managing their personal affairs entirely free of government control, those who are qualified in this respect under restrictions concerning the alienation of their lands, and those who are wholly incompetent and must be regarded as wards of the United States.

Second Such Commission.

This is the second competency commission to be appointed, the first operating among the Omaha Indians. The result of the experiment among the Nebraska Indians demonstrated, in the opinion of Indian officials, the wisdom of this means of determining the qualifications of the red men and ultimately it is expected all of the reservations will be likewise examined.

FIGHT IS ON IN OREGON

Eleven Hundred Republicans Organize to Fight Primary System.

Jay Bowerman Is Choice of "Assembly" for Governor.

Portland, Or., July 22.—Eleven hundred Republicans, self-styled the "assembly" and representing the faction of the Republican party in Oregon opposed to the selection of United States senators by the people under the "Oregon system," yesterday met here and recommended candidates for the Republican nomination as representatives to congress and for various state offices.

Acting Governor Jay Bowerman of Condon was recommended as candidate for governor and Congressmen W. C. Hawley and W. R. Ellis wert recommended for re-election.

The anti-assembly Republicans—the faction which favors the Oregon system of voting on senatorial candidates—are just as bitter and apparently just as ready to lock horns as the "assembly faction. It is admitted by both factions that on the result of the November election stands or falls the "Oregon system" in this state.

Say Primary is at Stake.

The opposition to the assembly is not and cannot be organized, for the anti-assembly Republicans are opposed

HEAD OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IS DEAD

Rev. Dr. Henry W. Rugg Succumbs to Complication of Diseases.

Providence, R. I., July 22.—Rev. Dr. Henry W. Rugg, grand master of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States and grand master of Masons of Rhode Island, died at his home here, late yesterday, of a complication of diseases. He was born in Framingham, Mass., Sept. 3, 1833.

Succeeded by Welish.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 22.—Col. William B. Melish of this city, deputy grand master, who by the death of Grand Master Rugg becomes the official head of the Grand Encampment, Knights Templar, issued the following announcement to the Templar order throughout the world:

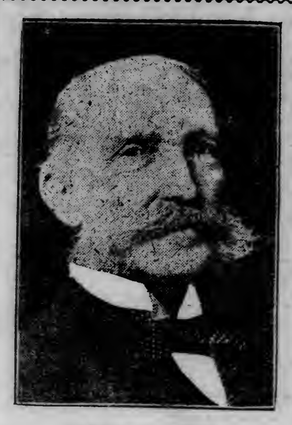

"In great sorrow I announce the death on July 21, at Providence, R. I., of the Most Eminent Grand Master of Knights Templar in the United States, the Reverend and Sir Knight Henry Warren Rugg. His funeral services will be held in Providence, R. I., on Monday, July 25, at 2 o'clock p. m., under Masonic auspices. His last wishes were that his illness or death should make no change in the program of the triennial conclave to be held at Chicago next month.

"God hurles His workmen, but He carries on His work.

"Acting Grand Master."

FIRE IN SECOND GROWTH TIMBER NEAR KNIFE RIVER

FLY DESTROYS POTATO BUGS

Brainerd Man Sends Two of Species to State Etomologist.

Brainerd, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lester Graham, a son of O. G. Graham, has discovered a species of fly with a penchant for killing potato bugs. The fly is a small, six-legged insect with gray spotted wings. It attacks the potato bugs before they have been cloined in their armor-like shells. The flies move in a swift, darting manner and attack the fat, helpless, greasy, little potato bugs by stabbing them in the sides and sucking their blood.

Two of these flies have been sent to the University of Minnesota for examination and classification in the hope that they can be propagated and distributed.

East Wind Drives Thick Clouds of Smoke Into the City.

No Rain Is Predicted for the Next Two Days.

Forecaster Richardson stated at noon today that there was little chance of any rains which would help the fire situation for two days at least.

Reports from Knife River at noon today stated that fires were sweeping a wide area of cutover land and young timber between the line of the Alger-Smith road and the Duluth & Iron Range. The fire was some distance from Knife River, and its extent could not be definitely learned, but huge clouds of smoke streamed out over Lake Superior early this morning, making navigation difficult, and when the northeast breeze sprung up later in the day, swept it into Duluth in sufficient quantities to make the hill-top invisible from the main part of the city.

Settlers, mindful of the devastation of two years ago, have plowed strips of land around their cottages, and have barrels of water on hand for fire-fighting purposes. Back firing has been resorted to in numerous instances.

No serious fires were reported by either the Duluth & Iron Range or the Duluth, Missabe & Northern roads today, though brush fires are visible at all sides along the right-of-way. Passengers arriving on the morning trains from Hibbing and other range points say that sparks of fire can be seen all through the woods and the smoke is oppressive. They expected to find better conditions in Duluth, but the smoke from fires to the east of the city rendered it almost as bad here.

The tract being burned over by the flames today does not represent great value in timber, it being mostly cutover land or bearing some young timber. The latter will doubtless be killed but the loss will not be anything like that caused by a sweeping forest fire through the tops of the big timber, which does incalculable damage. Lumbermen are praying that the easterly wind which sprang up this morning may bring a long soaking rain which would put the woods in safety for a month. Forecaster Richardson stated at 1 o'clock today that there was little outlook for any rain for a day or so at least, so probably relief cannot be expected in that quarter

PAY FINES TO GET FARM HANDS

Kentucky Farmers Get Men Out of Jail to Harvest Wheat.

Georgetown, Ky., July 22.—A novel method to save the wheat crop of Scott county was resorted to today when a number of farmers appeared before the county judge and paid the fines of ten prisoners in the jail in order to get help to harvest the crop.

In several instances the fines ran as high as $30. All of the prisoners went willingly.

Gideons in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—Gideons from all over the United States opened their national convention in Detroit today. The Gideons are 7,500 or more traveling men whose slogan is "A Bible in the Guest Room of Every Hotel."

SPOONER IN GREAT PERIL

Change in Direction of Wind Would Mean Its Destruction.

Two Girls Said to Have Lost Lives in Burning Woods.

Foley Mine Is Scene of Desperate Fight With the Element.

Baudette, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The forest fires around the village of Baudette have been checked.

The fires around Rainy River, Ont., swept directly against that town last night and there seemed little chance of saving it. The Canadian Northern had five engines pouring water on the flames at 2 o'clock this morning. The Baudette fire department was sent to the Canadian side on a special train and nearly all places of business were closed to let the men fight the fire. The Rat Portage and Rainy River Lumber companies closed their plants and sent their men to the fire line and at this writing it is hoped to save the town, as the fire appears to be checked at the railway right-of-way.

Smoke Almost Unbearable.

The smoke in the villages of Baudette and Spooner and the town of Rainy River is almost unbearable. At Spooner, about 100 men are fighting the flames. If the wind should change to the southeast it will be almost impossible to save the village.

Thousands of cords of pulpwood have

ALLEGED LEADER OF MOB CAUGHT

Joseph Bush Is Arrested and Taken Back to Newark, Ohio.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 22.—Joseph Bush, alleged leader of the mob which hanged Carl Etherington at Newark, Ohio, July 8, was arrested at Harper, a village near here, late last night, and rushed to the Newark jail today.

Bush had been in hiding at the home of a brother-in-law, Charles Huston, and was prepared to resist arrest. Police Chief Edward Faulder of this city, having led a posse to the house during the night, rushed into the room where Bush slept, flashed a light in his face, and covered him with a revolver. Charles Foster of Columbus and C. O. Burke of Newark were members of the posse, and took the prisoner to the scene of the lynching today.

PUT CHECK ON FLAMES

Conditions in Wisconsin Are Reported to Be Somewhat Better.

Shawano and Portage Counties Are Invaded By the Fires.

Wausau, Wis., July 22.—The fires at Galloway which made disastrous losses yesterday in that vicinity are reported today to be fairly under control. The flames are still extending for five miles east of Eldron to the Pike Lake village, and large crews of men are fighting the fires throughout the standing timber and logs, according to a conservative estimate today, is $500,000

The Jacob Mortensen Lumber company, which owns a large tract of standing timber near Galloway, has a large crew of men of its own fighting the fire. The Hatton Lumber company and the Moore & Galloway Lumber company are protecting their timber.

If Wind Keeps Down.

If the wind keeps down it is expected that the flames will soon be under control. The Wausau fire engine still is on duty at Galloway.

The New London fire engine, which was hemmed in by fire yesterday, is still in a precarious condition and all efforts to reach it failed up to this forenoon. The company also lost two or three lengths of fire hose.

In addition to the fire at Galloway,

PURSUED BY ILL FORTUNE

Three Calamities Strike Fred Ferris in Quick Succession.

Bank Fails, Hail Spoils Crops and His Store Burns.

Ill-fortune seems to "have it in" for Fred Ferris of Lakota, N. D., this year. The story of the bad luck that has afflicted him in the last few months is of considerable interest at the Head of the Lakes, where Mr. Ferris has relatives and many friends.

He has lived in North Dakota for twenty-eight years and has been fortunate in common with most of the citizens of that state in that period. He is the owner of two large farms near Lakota and in the town has a large store. This prosperity is the evidence of his past good fortune.

Some time ago a bank at Lakota was wrecked. The official held responsible for the collapse has just been sent to prison for a term of years. As a result of the banker's misdeeds and the wrecking of the bank Mr. Ferris lost a very tidy sum. Just how much is not stated, but it was more than a man would care to lose under any circumstances. The circumstances in this case were particularly galling, but Mr. Ferris pocketed the loss with equanimity and planned a vacation trip, which included a lake cruise and a stay with relatives and friends at the Head of the Lakes.

When Mr. Ferris and his wife landed here after their down lakes voyage, the first information the North Dakotan received from home was to the effect that hail had raided his two big farms and destroyed every bit of growing grain on his prairie acres. Philosophically, he said that, as he had been fortunate enough to escape a like misfortune for twenty-eight years, he would not now complain but would accept the happening as a reminder that his prosperity was deserving of a spirit of gratefulness in him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferris stayed on in Duluth and Superior, enjoying their visit to the utmost, when, the other day, he remarked to his host that he thought he'd better be starting home soon. He waited yet a little while, and then the telegraph suddenly brought the news that his big mercantile establishment had been burned to the ground, together with a number of other business houses in Lakota. As Lakota lacks a complete and modern fire department, insurance rates there are almost prohibitive and for that reason the stock was far from fully insured. Mr. Ferris' loss by the fire amounted to from $10,000 to $15,000.

That was the last straw. His vacation was brought to an abrupt end and he hurried home.

Fortunately, twenty-eight years of prosperity has so securely entrenched him behind barricades of material wealth that the repeated onslaughts of the forces of ill-luck will have no serious effect on his fortunes.

BROKEN LEG IS NOT HIS ONLY AFFLICTION

John G. Williams, the attorney who fell through a concealed hole in one of the hay barns at the Jean Duluth farm and broke his leg, is getting along nicely. He is at his summer cottage at the farm and receiving the best of attention from skilled nurses. His broken limb was placed in a plaster cast the first of the week and nature must do the rest. Many friends motor out and call on the invalid.

An alleged poet sent the following yesterday, concealed in a bunch of carnations:

Through the barn on business bent,
Farmer John on Sunday went;
There was a hole beneath the ray,
And it chanced to be in John G's way.

"Fine hay," says he; "in spite of heat,"
And with that he dropped some sixteen feet.

Down, down, he went; it seemed so far,
But he finally landed with an awful jar.

As the fall commenced, his brain grew tense,
"All over with me," said his second sense.
But it was not so; a fractured limb,
Was all that fate passed out to him.

"A neded rest," the doctor said
As he calmly tucked him into bed.
So Farmer John, with his leg in a sliver,
Watches the flow of the Lester river.

Prairie Chickens Plentiful.

Perham, Minn., July 22.—About every farmer in this vicinity reports prairie chickens plentiful this season. The spring was ideal for nesting and the hens have come off with large broods. There was no heavy rains to drown out the chicks and the weather has been favorable to them up to this time. Hunters are preparing for the sport on Sept. 5, and if some big kills are not made it will not be because the chickens are scarce.

VERDICT FOR THE COMPANY

William Strevel Fails to Get Damages From Car Company.

It required but a short time this morning for a jury in district court to determine that William Strevel is entitled to no damages from the Duluth Street Railway company for injuries claimed to have been received from the kick of a horse frightened at one of the company's gravel cars.

Strevel, who was formerly an employe of the car company, claimed that he was driving past the gravel car on Grand avenue and asked the men to stop unloading until he passed, the dust frightening his horse. He claims that they paid no attention to his request and that the horse became frightened and kicked him, breaking a rib and causing other injuries.

The men on the car testified that they did not see Strevel at the time, or at the place, he claims the accident occurred, and the contention of the company that he sustained his injuries, if any, somewhere else, was borne out by the verdict. Strevel asked for $5,205.

Thomas S. Wood represented the company. This is the second damage case that has been decided in district court this week, in favor of the street railway company.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "Raffles."

ADVANCE SALE FOR "RAFFLES" IS HEAVY.

The second matinee of the week's engagement of the Gus A. Forbes stock company in "Raffles" will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Lyceum, and the advance sale has been large. "Raffles" is proving the most popular bill yet given by Mr. Forbes and his company, and the advance sale for all of the final performances has been heavy. The play will be repeated tonight, tomorrow and Sunday night, and there will be Saturday and Sunday matinees.

"Raffles" is the play adapted from the stories of "The Amateur Cracksman," which were so widely read and enjoyed, and it is probably the most successful dramatization of a book hero that has ever been made. The role of the clever society thief, whose wonderful performances are the talk of all England, fits Mr. Forbes perfectly, and the play has been greatly enjoyed by the large audiences that have witnessed it this week.

CAUGHT IN MILWAUKEE.

numerous small fires have started in the southeastern portion of Marathon county, the western part of Shawano county and the northeastern portion of Portage county.

Conditions today are reported favorable and the towns are still safe, the fires having gone down perceptibly. There is almost no wind this afternoon and it is believed that there is no immediate danger. The towns of Irma, Gleason and Bloomville still are safe, but the fires continue to rage in those vicinities.

Maniwa, the town which was reported as burned, is safe. The loss is confined to a sawmill at Washburn siding, near Maniwa. The fire is sweeping in the forest east of there and considerable damage is being done.

Much Suffering Reported.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—A Journal special from Merrill, Wis., says:

All night long refugees from the burned town of Heinemann and the threatened villages of Gleason and Bloomville poured into the city. Descriptions of the suffering of many persons and families is unlike anything experienced in this section before. Most of the fleeing people are level-headed and are either waiting patiently for help from this city and surrounding villages or else setting off on foot or in wagons.

Homes here are being thrown open to the unfortunate inhabitants of the fire-swept vicinity twelve miles to the north. Many men are sending their families out of danger and will stay in the threatened villages to give what aid they can. Scores of men from Heinemann, their own homes in ashes, are turning their attention to saving Gleason and Bloomville.

Flames Near Negaunee.

Negaunee, Mich., July 22. — Forest fires last night reached the city limits and today Negaunee is enshrouded in a pall of smoke, although the fires abated some towards morning. Many homesteaders have lost their homes and their property is practically ruined.

The loss to lumber will be enormous. John Carlson, a homesteader living near here, was driven into Little lake by the fires last night, and with water up to his neck he stood all night and watched the flames wipe away his home and all his property. He is in a serious condition from long exposure.

Fires in Montana.

Missoula, Mont., July 22.—Forest fires are raging on the Cabinet forest reserve near St. Joe. Already a large acreage has been burned over. Last reports indicate dire need of assistance, as the flames are spreading.

An urgent call for assistance was received at the forestry offices from Nine Mile and the officials turned out to impress men into the fighting ranks. The employment offices have supplied all the men they can pick up and arrangements are being made to rush reinforcements to the scene of the fire.

Wind Carries Embers.

The fires at Heron and Thompson still are burning, and a new force of forty men has been dispatched to the scene. A high wind is carrying burning embers to the commercial timber territory.

The Northern Pacific railroad has every available man fighting the flames near its territory at Paradise. At Cedar Creek the flames have swept an area three square miles.

Other discouraging reports are reaching here from Rivulet, to which place forces had been dispatched yesterday.

At Henderson, in the Lolo forest, the fires are reported under control after a week of fighting.

Towns Not Heard From.

Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—The people of Sandon and Rosebery, in the Kootenay, have fled to the hills and telegraph communication is cut off. It is believed that these towns are wiped out. Rossland is still safe.

Sawmill Is Burned.

Golden, B. C., July 22.—The Columbia River Lumber company's sawmill was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $300,000.

BIG SHAKEUP FOR MARINES

No More Soft Snaps for Officers of the Corps.

Old Lines of Succession Are Wiped Out By Big Reform.

Washington, July 22.—The final adjustment of affairs in the marine corps navy regulations, approved by Presiwas made today by a change in the dent Taft, which completely breaks up the system by which staff officers of the corps have enjoyed long terms of duty at desks in Washington. The change comes as one of the results of the recent court-martial in which most of the staff officers were censured and the "life tenure" of officers in Washington condemned.

Heretofore the regulations have provided that the officers of the staff should be located here. President Taft now has approved a change to require them to do duty wherever they may be assigned by the commandant. Under the old regulations the adjutant and inspector took charge in the absence of the commandant. Hereafter the secretary of the navy will designate an officer to fill such a temporary vacancy.

Practically all the existing lines of succession are wiped out and the assignment of duty and the location of staff officers is left to the discretion of the commandant of the corps and the secretary of the navy.

MARINE NEWS

LUMBER FROM PACIFIC COAST

Heavier Movement of Sawmill Products in the Near Future.

Lumber from the Pacific coast is beginning to come to the Head of the Lakes for shipment down the lakes. Some of this lumber will enter into competition with the lumber of the northern part of the state, but for the most part the lumber that comes from the coast does not enter into competition with the lumber of the Northwest.

Lumber from Frazee, Minn., is also coming to the Head of the Lakes for lake shipment from here. Frazee is quite a distance from Duluth and it is very unusual that any lumber has come from that part of the state here for lake shipment.

While at the present time the lumber movement is normal, a trip around the harbor will soon show the large amount of lumber piled on the Alger-Smith docks awaiting shipment. It is stated here that if the lumber market would show a little more expansion there would be a very heavy movement from Duluth to Chicago and the Eastern ports.

The Hines interests, represented by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company, have also a very heavy cut of lumber ready for shipment in the near future, if the lumber market shows a little expansion. There is not a heavy demand for lumber charters.

However, with Pacific coast lumber coming here to go down the lakes, and the great amount of lumber ready to ship, it looks as if there will be a stronger demand for lumber charters this next month or two.

OLD BOAT CONDEMNED.

Steam Tug Formerly Owned By Ishpeming Out of Service.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A boat that was until recently owned by Dr. Hercules Meloche, formerly of this city, and sold by him to Lillian Lewis for $5,000, has been declared unfit for navigation. The craft was built in New York in 1865 as a steam tug. Later her machinery was removed and she became a tow barge, finally being converted back to a steam vessel. The boat was known as the Henry W. Johnson, and was used in both freight and passenger traffic between Detroit and ports on the lower Detroit river.

Strike Delays Boats.

Reports from Buffalo state that the strike on the Grand Trunk has resulted in the tie-up of boats on the Port Huron & Duluth Steamship company, the Northern Navigation company, which has an office here, and other inland lines, these boats holding over because they are unable to get their freight. It is pointed out that in the event of a continuance of the strike, boats are likely to be delayed in loading, and in some cases freight consigned for lake shipment, it is feared, will be held for a protracted spell.

DUNN MAY RUN FOR LEGISLATURE

Princeton Sage Says He Has Not Decided to Become Candidate.

The lobby of the St. Louis hotel reminded the observer somewhat of political convention days. Robert C. Dunn was there, and about him was a constantly changing, shifting group of Duluth and Northern Minnesota politicians. The Princeton man told stories, asked questions about old friends and acquaintances and matched each piece of information with a nugget dug from the mine of his own memory.

Mr. Dunn came to Duluth this morning with C. H. Warner of Aitkin, who is one of the most energetic boosters Northern Minnesota possesses. Both of the visitors have been persistently urged by friends in their respective districts to run for the legislature, but both have been reluctant to enter the race. It is conceded on all sides that if they should consent to serve, Northern Minnesota would profit greatly though the able and patriotic representation they would give their constituencies.

Mr. Dunn said he had not decided to file for the house. He admitted that his friends have been insistent in their pleas that he announce his candidacy but declined to say that he will accede to the request. It is understood, however, that he will probably decide he can do more good for Northern Minnesota as a member of the legislature than in any other capacity and therefore will make the run.

Mr. Warner, who recently issued a frank statement to the people of Aitkin and neighboring counties as to his attitude, which is one of reluctance to enter into a fight for the place, intimated that he may decide to offer himself as a candidate.

"If Mr. Dunn will consent to go to the legislature," said Mr. Warner "it is certain that St. Louis county's just deserts will be given it so far as Mr. Dunn can bring that result about."

And Mr. Dunn reciprocated in kind.

Capt. E. G. Stubley Explains Events That Led to Arrest.

Says Volunteers Refused to Assume Indebtedness He Had Contracted.

"My husband is guilty of no intentional wrongdoing," said Mrs. E. G. Stubley, wife of the former captain of the Volunteers of America who was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $25 from A. H. Comstock Dec. 8 last.

Later investigation in the case puts Stubley in a more favorable light than appeared at police headquarters yesterday afternoon. His arrest had all the earmarks of a rather prolonged sensation, but it seems to be straightening itself out.

The information and letters in the hands of the police apparently warranted the arrest of Stubley, but today he showed credentials which were good until May 1 and explained the letters which he had sent out since that time.

After Stubley had been arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon he explained the situation to Chief Troyer. He stated that the post in this city had been closed about May 1, and that previous to that time he had been a recognized official of the organization authorized to collect money. During the time that he was endeavoring to get the post on a firm footing he solicited funds from Duluth people, meeting with some success. He had credentials from Maj. Gen. E. Fielding of Chicago to that effect.

Mrs. Stubley said this morning that Stubley contracted debts of $300 to $400 before May 1 in the name of the volunteers, replying upon the promise of Gen. Fielding that he would help them out. She asserted that they had been with the volunteers about ten years, and that when they needed assistance they were turned down cold, being left to shift for themselves. The volunteers refused to pay the debts.

The letter in the possession of the police does not say anything about the post having been closed. But Stubley claims that the letters dated June 28 and July 12 contained these facts. His only purpose in sending out the letters, he says, was to raise sufficient funds to pay the debts contracted while he was with the organization.

The police state that since they came here the Stubleys have held no meetings, visited no needy families, preached no sermons or done any other work supposed to be within the province of such an organization. But it is admitted that if the facts are as stated Stubley cannot be held on the warrant on which he was arrested yesterday. Stubley says he held no meetings because his wife was taken ill shortly after his arrival and he had not been given assistance promised by the head of the volunteers.

The arrest was made after Chief Troyer had received a telegram from Gen. Fielding to the effect that the volunteers have no post in Duluth and that no one is authorized to collect funds in this city.

Stubley stated today that he felt that all debts ought to be settled after they had incurred them and that he obtained legal advice before the letters were sent out. He states that the last letter would appear in a different light if the first two were read.

Stubley is out on $150 bonds. His trial has been set for Aug. 1.

THINKS CRIPPEN IN BARCELONA

French Prefect Has Been Following Clues of the Alleged Murderer.

Perpignan, France, July 22.—M. Vignier, prefect of police of the department of Pyrenees-Orientales, said today he believed Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, sought by the London police because of the mysterious disappearance of his wife, Belle Elmore, had reached Barcelona, Spain.

The prefect, who is the permanent French delegate to the Republic of Andorra, over which France exercises certain rights of suzerainty, investigated following yesterday's report that Crippen had found refuge in the mountain fastnesses of Andorra. He satisfied himself that the suspect was not among the shepherd folk and that he had continued across the Spanish frontier, eventually arriving at Barcelona.

The traveler believed by the police to be Crippen dropped out of sight Monday when he left the train at a station between Vernet-les-Bains and Mont Louis. A report that a man answering the description of the doctor was seen at Puigcerda, Spain, Wednesday night, had developed into a tangible clew today.

HAS CHARMED LIFE.

Little Falls Man Falls From Forty-Foot Bridge and Lives.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. Davis, who claims to have come here from Little Falls, Minn., about a week ago, was picked up in a semi-conscious condition yesterday morning below the Northern Pacific railroad bridge, from which he had fallen sometime during the night. He was conveyed to the city hall and a physician was summoned. A thorough examination revealed the fact that he had escaped with no broken bones, although he was terribly bruised and internal injuries are not improbable.

Davis tumbled off the bridge, falling a distance of forty feet, landing on the hard surface of the ground below, just at the edge of the river, and that he was not killed outright is little short of a miracle. He was rendered unconscious, and lay in that state for the remainder of the night. Consciousness was just beginning to return when he was discovered early this morning.

The injured man is unable to tell how the accident happened. He claims to have been working at the sawmill in East Grand Forks for the past week, during which time he fell in does not know.

HAMMER TEAM SELECTED.

To Represent Copper Country in Coming Drilling Contest.

Calumet, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Becker hammer and drill team of Calumet will represent the Lake Superior copper district against the team being sent east from Butte by an Amalgamated officer to compete for the world's hammer and drill championship. The contest will take place in Calumet on July 30, at the Calumet & Hecla miners' picnic. More than $1,500 in prizes has been hung up by various parties, the whole amount to go to the three men of the one team winning the contest. There will be but two teams, the Butte and the Calumet. Calumet & Hecla officers are backing the local team and John D. Ryan backs the Butte team with $1,000.

President Frank H. Schumaker and Nick F. Kalser, secretary of the village of Red Jacket, have been named judges to preside over the hammer and drill contest.

SILENT THUNDERBOLTS.

Curious Facts About Storms—Sources of Terror and Damage.

Pearson's Weekly: In a general way we understand the theory of thunderstorms. As a matter of fact there is no phenomenon of nature not excepting even earthquakes, of which we know so little.

Man-made lightning—that is, electricity of the highest power which we can artificially produce—will act according to certain known laws. It will, for instance, travel along a conductor or metal.

But a flash of lightning will frequently leap from a well defined metal path and launch itself through the air or some adjacent object which is an infinitely poorer conductor.

This may be due to the almost inconceivable force of a flash of lightning. It is estimated that a flash of lightning a mile long represents a pressure of discharge equal to 3,000,000,000 volts.

As such a flash lasts only about the thousandth part of a second the energy dissipated by the discharge is equal to 300,000 horse-power. Put it in other words, if we could find some means of saving and using lightning we should be the richer by £200 for every flash.

Lightning is, as we know, usually accompanied by a peal of thunder, which is louder the nearer the hearer is to the point of the discharge, but this is not an invariable rule. There are cases on record of most destructive lightning flashes which were unaccompanied by sound.

Such a phenomenon occurred at Bradford some years ago. What is described as "a silent thunderbolt" fell in a graveyard, destroying one monument and smashing to atoms nearly seventy glass cases containing wreaths and flowers.

In the same summer Swanscombe, in Kent, was terrified by a freak of lightning. All of a sudden "a great mass of blue fire" swept along the street and next moment it was seen that the fine old parish church built nearly 700 years ago had been struck.

The building with all its fine old carved oak was soon a roaring furnace and only a part of the chancel was saved.

Scientists are still hopelessly at sea as to the cause of that peculiar phenomenon known as globe lightning. At Coventry some years ago, during a violent thunder storm, it passed along a street like a soap bubble built of blue fire and drifted into a shed, where it exploded, blowing the roof off the place.

At Reims, in France, a similar fireball came into a cobbler's shop through the open window. The solitary occupant of the place sat perfectly still, paralyzed with terror, while his fearful visitant hovered for several seconds overhead. Then it moved toward the fireplace and presently passed up the chimney.

Next moment there was an explosion like a shell bursting and the upper part of the chimney came crashing down.

Not long ago, Count G. Hamilton made a record of a similar freak of electricity. He was sitting at dinner at a house on Lake Wener in Sweden, when just ater a vivid flash of lightning a brilliant white ball appeared over the table and after ranging poised there for some seconds went off with a loud bang.

Fortunately it did no harm to any one, although it was quite close to several people. Those who saw it suggested it was like a ball of cold lightning.

In November, 1902, Sydney, Australia, was visited by a terrific dust storm, in the midst of which a perfect rain of electric fireballs began to fall. These set fire to a number of houses and a most appalling panic set in. A cry was raised that the end of the world was at hand and people rushed out of their houses into the ink black, dust deep streets.

The most amazing and terrifying displays of the power of lightning are seen on mountain tops. In 1890 a party were on the top of a mountain in the Caucasus when a huge violet ball, surrounded by vivid rays, struck a rock near by and exploded like a bomb burst it to atoms. One of the party was badly hurt.

THE STORK IN EUROPE.

Westminster Gazette: In the Baltic provinces and throughout Northern Germany and in Denmark the stork is met with everywhere during the summer months. While traveling the other day from Danzig to Marienberg I saw several in the fields and on nests upon buildings quite close to the railway. In Denmark, however, it is less numerous since the draining of the morasses was begun. It is still fairly common in Holland and Belgium, but in France, owing to its being persecuted and the fact of none of the original race surviving, it is seen only as a bird of passage. In Alsace and Lorraine its better treatment is rewarded by a certain number remaining during the summer to breed.

In passing through Savoy in April and in the early autumn it meets with heartless persecution, especially on its return toward the South, when the young birds are often much fatigued. It occurs generally throughout Turkey and is fairly common in Greece. It is met with occasionally in Central Italy and Sicily, and is plentiful in some parts of Andalusia.

It is believed that on one of their migrations which took place a little after the middle of the last century the white storks experienced some sort of catastrophe, as they returned in greatly reduced numbers, and ever since then they have been considerably less numerous than before. The periods of migration with the storks are very regular. They arrive in Central Europe generally between March 10 and 25 and prepare to depart at about the end of August, first congregating in large bands, which break up as the adult individuals come and collect the young together to conduct them southward. It appears that they migrate in large flocks, flying mostly by night.

The males and females, it is supposed, migrate separately, the former undoubtedly arriving about a week before the latter to take charge of the old nest or to settle on a favorable spot for nidification.

Wherever the stork is met with in Europe, excepting in parts where its occurrence is rare, where it meets with the common fate of rarity, it is protected. The peasants mostly hold it as sacred and consider it as a sort of protector or house god to the house on which it nests, and one will sometimes sell a nest to a neighbor to bring him luck, in which case the bird will discover the new situation of its nest and continue to occupy it. Often an old wheel or something else inviting is fixed on a roof to induce a stork to build. The nest itself is constructed of branches and twigs, neatly lined with grass, straw or any other material. It takes up much space and every year it is added to, so that the peasant upon the roof of whose house it rests is obliged sometimes, when the bird is absent, to remove a portion of it in order to lessen its weight.

OILING A KANSAS ROAD.

Sedan correspondence Kansas City Star: Some time ago a mile of country road south of the city was oiled under the direction of the Sedan Commercial club. Fifty dollars was paid for this and it was all raised by public subscription. The oil had to be hauled so far that the cost of hauling was almost equal to the price of the oil. Nevertheless the total cost of dragging the road and of soaking it in oil was only 85c.

The road was oiled in May and is yet in almost as good condition as it was when finished. It is well rounded up with good drainage and the oil has made it solid, something like asphalt pavement. The road is the talk of the farmers. They will go a mile or two out of their way just to use it in driving into Sedan.

If your "big think" just now is about clothes, you'll find "thought food" in plenty in the ads.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

All Democratic Roads Lead to Eveleth Tomorrow---Judge Jaques' Candidacy to Be Strengthened By That Meeting---Why County Option Talk Is Empty Elocution ---Koll, Culkin and Iverson---Among the Barkises.

Delegates from Duluth to the Democratic county convention at Eveleth tomorrow will leave this city on the Missabe train at 7:45 o'clock a. m. At least three autos will be in readiness at the city hall at 7:15 a. m. to take the members of the council and several city officials to the range town. Just how many will go by auto is not known, but it is probable that many of those who will be delegates and visitors will arrange auto parties for the occasion.

Heading For Eveleth

In view of the surprising turns that the set-pieces of political fireworks are making, interest in the convention is assuming unusual proportions and there is every likelihood that there will be a large attendance.

A number of prominent Republican politicians of the county have signified their intention to be present. Apparently they expect that something will be doing in the fireworks line and they are eager to see the wheels go 'round. Also, they are interested in what may be done about getting out candidates for the county offices.

The Democracy gathering at Eveleth tomorrow is certain to have a beneficial effect on the candidacy of Judge Alfred Jaques for congress, say men who have recently been over the ranges. Although the Republicans vigorously deny the statement, it is frequently declared that Representative Clarence B. Miller is in high favor among the range voters, and the prominence that will be given the Democratic candidate as one of the results of the convention cannot but increase his popularity in the country.

Jaques Boom Is Growing Fast.

And it is not only in St. Louis county that Judge Jaques' candidacy is being welcomed with increasing favor. Reports from other counties in the district are uniformly encouraging. The feeling against Mr. Miller is especially strong in Pine county, and the Hinckley Herald joins with other papers in that county in giving favorable publicity to the claims of Judge Jaques. The Herald says:

> Alfred Jaques, the candidate on the Democratic ticket against Clarence B. Miller, the present Republican congressman, is fast gaining friends in this county and Clarence, the valiant congressman who went to Washington to eat Joe Cannon up, will find a Jaques after him in the race who will look bigger than Cannon and his friends looked to him when he went to Washington and forget all about the people who sent him there to fight for them.

The Floodwood Broadaxe, which bases its support of Mr. Miller on his "highly efficient record"—the same record that is being savagely attacked by Republican progressives all through the district—regretfully but truthfully admits that "newspaper men of the Eighth congressional district can't resist the temptation to occasionally take a fall out of Congressman Miller for the stand taken by him in voting for Joe Cannon for speaker." The Broadaxe then proceeds to defend Mr. Miller for his violation of his pre-election pledge to fight to the last ditch against Cannonism, saying that the congressman's violation of that pledge is justified because "there was absolutely no other sane course to pursue." Just what sort of a hit this political doctrine will make with the people of the district it is easy to guess.

Nothing that Judge Jaques has begun his campaign, the Cambridge Independent Press says of him that "he is a pleasant gentleman to meet," but opines that he has "tackled a mighty big job." Judge Jaques' friends laugh when such remarks are thrust at them and say the judge never tackles anything but "mighty big jobs," and has a habit of finishing them up in workmanlike manner. "He promises to give the Republican nominee a good fight," is the comment of the Brainerd Tribune.

Just how little there is to the county option talk that has been flooding the state in connection with the probable action of the Democratic state convention is made clearly apparent by the sentiment revealed in Democratic primaries through the state. It is obvious that the larger centers of population will send delegations to the state convention which will be opposed to the principle of county option as a distinctively part issue, although there is reason to suppose that the delegates will be ready and anxious to assure the option people they will get a square deal from the Democrats, even though the party is overwhelmingly against the option program.

County Option And The Democrats.

When such counties as Goodhue and Polk, in widely separated parts of the state but supposed to be strongholds of the option forces, unmistakably turn down the option fad, it must be admitted that there is nothing real and substantial in the talk that has been current of late on this subject.

Indeed, many Democrats evince an inclination to "let it go at that." They are convinced that it is a waste of time and talk to discuss at all seriously the possibility of the party tying itself up with optionism.

Stearns county is Democratic territory, and that may explain why Alvah Eastman persists in calling himself a Republican—he likes to be in opposition. He's "agin" the government and the governor, but has resolved to say nothing more in public about opposing the governor. However, Mr. Eastman has a substitute for the foreswom fun that he had with the Republican gubernatorial nomination before it was made. Now that it is a realized fact, he supports the ticket, even though he can't resist the temptation to give it a jab now and then with his mahout's goad, which is called the St. Cloud Journal-Press.

"The St. Cloud Idea" and The Candidates.

In the absence of having the pleasuse of teasing less independent Republicans into a rage, he has taken to the pleasant pastime of exchanging sallies in the Journal-Press with the editor of the Daily Times of that city, who is C. F. Macdonald, a Democrat and a live one.

Here is a sample of the interchange of ideas that continually enlivens the editorial pages of the St. Cloud contemporaries:

> Journal Press: Just think of the fun we are going to have with our venerable and esteemed contemporary when he is forced to support John Lind for governor on a county option platform.
> Daily Times: Just think of the fun we are now having in witnessing the contortions with which our young (?) and esteemed contemporary swallows the "Ed Smith-Dar Reese-Billy Hamm candidate" for governor ("who cannot be elected"), and the county option candidate for lieutenant governor, whom the "triple alliance" are determined to defeat. It sure is mighty funny!
> Journal Press: The rumor that the venerable and esteemed editor of the St. Cloud Times is to be the leader of the county optionist forces at the Democratic convention lacks official sanction. Nothing will be said about this until after the Democratic county convention, as there is a somewhat general belief that Stearns county Democrats are not all unanimous for the dry plank—and the agitation of this story of the alleged leadership of Brother Macdonald of the county option forces might involve him a la Frank Eddy's fix. However, if necessary, Warren Freeman will be glad to help Mac out—way out.
> Daily Times: Who is the Republican candidate for governor, anyway? Is it Eberhart or Ed Smith? The fire of the opposition seems to be directed against the latter.—Princeton Union (Rep.)
> There is no question as to who is running. The disturbing thing is who will be governor.—Fergus Falls Journal (Rep.)
> We call especial attention to the fact that the two journals above are both Republican. Their editors, Hon. R. C. Dunn and Hon. Elmer E. Adams, are among the state's ablest journalists. In this campaign the voters should well consider the pungent remark of Mr. Adams: "The disturbing thing is 'Who will be governor?'"

M. N. Koll, who contributes articles to the Cass Lake Times at times, and who is in Duluth on a business mission that, like all his missions, has to do with the development of the latent resources of Northern Minnesota, has an entertaining article in the current number of the Times. In the first, second and all other places, let it be borne in mind that Mr. Koll has no over-weaning love for the Hon. Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor. This fact is more or less related to the state auditor's administration of the laws bearing on the sale of state lands in the region where Koll's heart is imbedded in the fertile earth.

Koll of The Kollum Knew About It All The Time

Mr. Koll contends that it is a mistaken notion to hold to the opinion, more or less sincerely held in certain parts of the state, that the steel corporation defeated the ambition of Justice Lewis to win renomination; also that it is inexact to say that the bar association of the Eleventh judicial district was primarily responsible for the candidacy of Judge Dibell.

This is the entertaining theory set forth by Mr. Koll:

> I may have been wrong in my guess prior to the convention, but I did tell several friends of mine that I believed then and I believe now that the reason for Judge Dibell's candidacy can be explained very nicely when it is considered that, for a while, Iverson was doing some pretty hard figuring to get the Duluth delegation. W. E. Culkin, who, by Iverson's pleasure, was the attorney for the state in the Koochiching county swamp land cases against settlers, naturally was anxious to get things in such shape that he could use St. Louis county and its friends as trading stock in the convention so he could use them in favor of Iverson at the proper time.
> What nicer solution to the difficulty of getting delegates could offer itself than to spring such a name as Judge Dibell's for the nomination for associate justice of the supreme court. All the attorneys who knew him would easily be in favor of such a man for such a position. They were all enthusiastic when it was suggested.
> Naturally before St. Louis county knew it, it had two candidates in the field, and in the natural course of events it would be looking for trades. Sam Iverson had the trading stock and the rest is history. Quite naturally Iverson's trading stock would be most desirable to trade for, because it came from a different section of the state. Thus we see that St. Louis county has been forced, without its consent, into a very disagreeable position. By breaking into St. Louis county Iverson easily broke the Northern Minnesota "delegate" opposition, for many counties went as did St. Louis county, and the scheme which Iverson and Culkin had nicely figured out worked to perfection, and put Sam Iverson one step nearer to the goal of his ambition, to-wit: United States senatorship.
> Northern Minnesota people and particularly the attorneys will remember very nicely that the fight for Judge Dibell was led by William E. Culkin, as the literature which was sent out on behalf of the attorneys was usually headed with his (Culkin's) name.

The re-publication of Mr. Koll's article is not made with any intention of or disposition to support his theory. Indeed, the theory is no more than theory, lacking in probability even from the point of view of those who may lack knowledge at first hand of the beginnings of the Dibell candidacy. In quarters where these beginnings are of familiar knowledge, the Koll theory will be received with broad smiles.

Oscar M. Quigley of Westbrook, Cottonwood county, has filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative in congress from the Second district, now represented by Winfield Scott Hammond. He says he will run on a free trade platform, but he doesn't explain why he wants Mr. Hammond to defeat him.

The Virginia Enterprise has no doubt about the re-election of M. C. Palmer as register of deeds of St. Louis county. Says the Enterprise:

> In this issue will be found the formal announcement of M. C. Palmer, candidate for renomination and re-election as register of deeds. Mr. Palmer has proven a courteous and exemplary official, and as yet has no avowed opponent for the nomination. It is probable he will be given a clear right-of-way at the primaries, and should the Democrats put an opposing candidate in the field it need not worry him. He might have to slack up to whistle for the crossing; that's all.

W. J. Peet of Wilkin county has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative, and Francis H. Mathew of the same county, who espouses county option and the Crookston platform, also invites the Republicans to support him for the honor.

• • •

R. C. Dunn of Mille Lacs, Frank White of Sherburne and G. G. Goodwin of Isanti counties for the house and C. J. Swanson of Anoka for the senate is the ticket in the Forty-fifth district, according to the Anoka Herald. There are other possibilities, but these are classed as desirable probabilities.

C. J. Wright is mentioned as the probable Republican nominee for the state senate against Ole Sageng in the Fiftieth district. He was a member of the house two years ago. Johnson, Adams and Putnam, who were the district's three other members then, have filed for renomination. George F. Freeman of Woodside is expected to join them before the primaries. C. L. Alexander and M. O. Carr of Pelican Rapids also are mentioned as prospective entrants.

• • •

T. E. Cashman of Owatonna, the only county option Democrat in the senate during the last session, is a candidate for renomination and re-election in the Eighth district, which is Steele county. Apparently his renomination is conceded, and he will be opposed in the general election by Samuel H. Rask of Blooming Prairie, who is a Republican anti-optionist.

J. N. Johnson of Canby, who is touted as the county option candidate for speaker of the next house, has announced his candidacy for re-election. His district is said to be so permeated with Republican option sentiment that he will find it little trouble to "come back" to the house. He presided over the March county option convention.

With H. M. Olson and P. G. Sjoblom as his opponents for the nomination, Manley Fosseen of Minneapolis has filed for re-nomination and re-election to the senate from the Forty-second district. He's a county optionist.

• • •

S. B. Duea of Pipestone will oppose E. H. Canfield of Luverne in the Sixteenth legislative district for the senatorship held by Canfield in the last legislature, when Duea was a house member. The rivals represent the two counties, Rock and Pipestone, that are included in the district.

Aeroplane Tires.

The demand for special tires for aeroplanes has grown so large in the last year that at least one big tire concern has made the providing of such tires a branch of the business and is finding a ready sale for the product. Insure good health and a cheerful disposition during the summer days by the daily use of a good malt tonic such as Golden Grain Belt beer. It is refreshing and does away with that tired-out and fatigued feeling. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

SANDSTONE W. C. T. U. ELECTS NEW OFFICERS.

Hammond, secretary; Miss Margaret Lindley, recording secretary and Mrs. Harry Madicon, treasurer. It was also decided to hold an ice cream social next Monday evening, July 25, on the lawn surrounding the village hall. The ladies are endeavoring to increase the membership to 100 before the new year, five having been added at this meeting.

JOLIET MAN FOR PASTOR

Dr. Robert Yost Is Chosen By First Presbyterian Congregation.

He Will Come to Duluth Some Time in August.

At a meeting of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church last evening, held at the church, and attended by about 100 members of the congregation, Dr. Robert Yost, of Joliet, Ill., was unanimously chosen for the position of pastor of the church to succeed Rev. Campbell Coyle, who left last November.

Dr. Yost preached before the congregation here on July 3 and made a very great impression. The members of the committee on the pastorate went to St. Paul some time ago when he was preaching in the House of Hope church there for Dr. Swearingfon, the regular pastor, and were deeply impressed. They also were greatly interested in Dr. Yost's talk before the St. Paul Y. M. C. A., in the afternoon.

Dr. Yost has made a great success of his church in Joliet, where he had some difficult problems to handle. The population of the city is largely composed of factory workers and it was necessary to interest the young men in the church. Dr. Yost did this by establishing a complete gmynasium there, with a competent man in charge, but in doing so avoided the common mistake of subordinating the church to the social side of the life there. This feature of his work was highly regarded by the committee here.

At the last general assembly at Atlantic City, Dr. Yost was appointed on the judicial committee of which W. D. Edson of this city, was also a member and he was introduced to the Duluth congregation through Judge Edson. He is a man of about 40 years of age and has a wife and one child, a boy of 7. Mrs. Yost is an ardent church worker and has been an invaluable assistence to her husband in his work.

The church here has been without a pastor since November last, the pulpit being filled by various men, some of them candidates and others who were not. Dr. Robinson of McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, and Dr. Cochrane of the Presbyterian board of education at Philadelphia, are among the strong speakers who have appeared in the local pulpit.

The members of the church are very glad to have secured so able a man as Dr. Yost and are tired of a continued change of pastors. Dr. Yost has signified his intention of accepting the call and will arrive in Duluth some time during the month of August with his wife and son.

The committee who had charge of the search for a pastor are: F. B. House, W. C. Agnew, E. T. Buxton, A. C. Volk, W. D. Edson, K. C. Hoxie, W. C. Winton and Fred. White.

CAPT. CAMPBELL SCALPED REDSKIN

Death of Famous River Man Who Figured in Historic Custer Massacre.

Fort Benton, Mont., July 22.—Capt. David Campbell for many years a well-known navigator on the Missouri river is dead at Sioux City, Iowa, aged 84. Capt. Campbell served on many steamboats and navigated practically all the waters of the Mississippi valley from New Orleans to the head of navigation on the Missouri and the Yellowstone rivers.

During the Civil war he ran on boats from Sioux City to Fort Benton.

In Custer Massacre.

He was a pilot with Capt. Grand Marsh of the Far West on the Yellowstone river during the summer of 1876 in the employ of the government during the famous encounter with the Sioux Indians.

Capt. Marsh and Capt. Campbell took regular shifts at the wheel, making a record breaking run from the Big Horn river down to Fort Lincoln, opposite Bismarck. The Far West soon returned to the scene of active warfare, and at the mouth of the Powder river Capt. Campbell had one of the most exciting experiences of his life. A large amount of grain was to be moved from there to one of the forts farther up river, and while the cargo was being taken on board the captain went, with two scouts, Brockmeyer and Morgan, to locate a band of Indians who had fired on them earlier in the day, but which was repulsed by the soldiers, who were carried to guard the steamboat and the crew.

Running Fight With Indians.

When about a mile down the river the captain and scouts discovered seven well mounted and armed Indians running in from the hills to cut them off from the boat. A running fight was carried on for some distance. Brockmeyer's horse being the slowest, left him considerably behind the others, and then, to make a bad position worse the animal fell with his rider just when the men on the boat, being attracted by the firing, started to the rescue. The Indians had halted, but on seeing Brockmeyer unhorsed, a more venturesome member of the band dashed forward and shot him before he had time to protect himself or his friends knew of the accident.

Shoots Indian From Horse.

When Capt. Campbell, who was nearest Brockmeyer, heard the shot he dismounted and, resting his rifle over the saddle, took deliberate aim and shot the Indian, seeing him fall headlong from his horse. The other Indians turned for the timber as fast as they could go and soon were out of rifle range and lost to view. Brockmeyer was carried to the boat mortally wounded, and died in a few hours. The Indian method of scalping their foes had become prevalent among the soldiers of that territory and the temptation was too great for Capt. Campbell to let such a chance pass, so he took his hunting knife and removed the scalp of the Indian and retained it for many years as a trophy of his first real fight with the red men.

THEATER IS ABOUT DONE

Duluth's New Orpheum Will Be Turned Over Next Week.

It Is One of Handsomest of the Northwest Playhouses.

The work on Duluth's new vaudeville theater for the Orpheum circuit is nearly completed, and it will probably be turned over to the proprietors about Aug. 1. The finishing touches are being put on the floors today and the seats will be installed next week.

All of the scenery for the first performance, which will probably be given the second week in August, has arrived and the big flies are in place on the stage. The steel fire curtain is in place, but the handsome $600 velvet plush curtain has not arrived yet.

The theater is thoroughly up to date in every respect. The orchestra will be placed in a deep pit in front of the stage and the foot light grooves are perfectly straight instead of curved as in the older type of theater, giving more space. The seating capacity will be about 1,600, 450 on the parquet floor, 475 in the balcony and the remainder in the two galleries. The proscenium opening is thirty feet wide and twenty-four feet in height. The arch above the proscenium panel is fifty-two feet from the stage and the big arch on the outer edge of the sounding board is sixty-eight feet up.

The decorations are by Mandel Brothers of Chicago and are remarkably fine. Charles Holloway of Chicago is the artist. The proscenrum panel picture is entitled the Dawn of the Past," and is typical of the site of Duluth before the white man came. A couple of great moose tower in the foreground, while in the distance an Indian in a birch canoe is seen. The great pines, with the rosy dawn showing through the trunks, form the background. The walls are decorated with conventional women's figures with wreathes of flowers. The great sounding board above the stage is adorned with roses.

A novel feature of the new theater will be a handsomely furnished lounging room on the second, or as the theater men call it nowadays, the mezzanine floor. This room will be furnished in Elizabethan style with heavy upholstered furniture, and will have the walls adorned with pictures of knights and ladies of that period. A huge fireplace occupies one end of the room.

The fire protection afforded the patrons is the most complete of any of the local theaters, and each floor is provided with wide fire-proof passages to the fire escapes. The lobby of the theater which is in stone, will be decorated with heavy gold ornaments of Greek design.

Gust H. Karlstein, who is the supervisor of the building, said this morning that the structure would not be completed by July 25 as the contract called for, but would be ready to be turned over within a few days after that date.

WINONA IN DARKNESS FROM UNIQUE OCCURRENCE.

Winona, Minn., July 22.—Winona was without power and light Wednesday night for over half an hour because a small speed boat scooted down the river near the levee wall, throwing high waves and cutting the electric light plant out of its water supply. The experience is but another evidence of the peculiar situations which arise because of the extremely low stage of the river at Winona.

BIG BOG BURNING NEAR PRINCETON

Terrific Fire Raging in Peat Formation, Defying Fire Fighters.

Princeton, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A terrific fire has been raging in the Big Bog, about twelve miles northeast of Princeton, since the latter part of last week and scores of men and teams have been constantly engaged night and day in combating the fiery demon. The bog, which is located mainly in the town of Dalbo, Isanti county, is of a peat formation and was originally covered with a heavy growth of mixed timber, mostly tamarack. The long-continued drought has rendered the peat as inflammable as tinder and the dense growth of rank grass and brush, together with the old slashings furnish ready fuel for the flames.

The bog or swamp covers several sections and is a desolate place, but on the east, south and west are located the best farming lands to be found in Mille Lacs and Isanti counties. Since Sunday scores of men have been constantly engaged in keeping the fire from spreading and getting it under control, but despite their efforts the greater part of sections 9, 17, 18, 19 and 30 in Dalbo township has been burned over.

HAY PRICES ARE HIGH.

Ishpeming Dealers Paying $24 Per Ton at Present.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the Ishpeming hay merchants are having difficulty getting all the hay they need to supply their trade. The better quality hay is now worth $24 on the cars here. This is the highest price that has prevailed in a long time. The hay crop was almost a complete failure in parts of Wisconsin, and there was not enough grown in the Upper Peninsula for the farmers' own use.

Carpets can be both cleaned and freshened up by going over them once a week with a broom dipped in hot water that has a little turpentine in it.

HOUGHTON WOMAN HELD.

Bound Over on Charge of Procuring Girls in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nettie Jenkins of Houghton, Mich., an alleged procuress, waived examination when arraigned before a United States commissioner her and was held to the federal grand jury. She furnished bonds.

ACTIVITIES DUE TO GOLD

Abundance of New Gold Causes Promotion of Many Enterprises.

Railways, Mines and Public Service Companies Favorite Investments.

New York, July 22.—Railways, mines and municipal public service securities are today the favorite investment not only of the people of the United States but of those of England, France and Germany.

The investments made by the people of these four great nations comprise fully nine-tenths of the entire investments of the world, outside of the capital invested in real estate.

The railway securities, of course, lead the list in the total amount of investments, and whether the railways are in Europe, Asia, Africa or America does not seem to matter to the investors as far as hopes of valuable returns are concerned, for capital can be obtained in Europe for railways in any country in the world, provided the terms of investment are made acceptable to those who furnish the money.

Mexico, which thirty years was a country almost without credit for any enterprise, is today a favorite field for the investors of all the countries named above, and during the past twelve months French, English and German capitalists are vieing with each other as to the purchase of realty, of national and municipal securities and as to control of manufacturing and mining enterprises there.

Egypt, South Africa, Chile, Argentine, Brazil, all are attracting European capital in their development by scores of millions of dollars annually, while in China it is well known there has been a play of diplomacy for many months by the governments of all the leading powers in order to advance the interests of the international syndicates which are striving for the railway promotions of that country.

It is Africa which is today furnishing the world the greatest supply of gold of all the continents, and it is this African gold which is enabling the development of the resources of South America and of Asia, and in due course of time, and that time will arrive within the next ten, or, at farthest, twenty, years South America and Asia will each turn out for the use of the world from their own mines sums of gold that will equal the present output of Africa.

Activities Due to Gold.

The present activities in business of the United States and other nations of the world would be impossible if it were not for the stimulating and sustaining power of the nearly $600,000,000 of new gold dug out of the earth during this present year of 1910. Depression that is but temporary and local would become chronic and general if it were not for the vast sums of new money furnished from the gold mines of all the continents.

The panic of 1907 would have lasted, as did those of 1873 and 1893, for five years instead of five months if it had not been for the $400,000,000 in new gold dug during the year 1908 and taken into the currency of the world, effectually eliminating any fear of financial disaster.

It is the huge sum of nearly $2,000,000 in new gold for each business day of the world at this writing that is keeping panic away from the centers of finance today, and that is banishing poverty from the door of millions of workingmen in Europe and America.

The constantly increasing sums of money available for the inauguration of new enterprises and additional development of enterprises already well established form the mainspring of the machinery of modern business, and it is their power exerted in unaccountable ways and felt in every community on the face of the globe that is making the present time the most progressive era the world has ever witnessed.

The flood of new money stirs the old reservoirs to their depths and sets the whole mass of capital in the world in motion and activity.

The activity of capital calls for the employment of myriads of men in every quarter of the world, and from the dullest laborer in the fields, the most isolated miner on the mountain top, the most ignorant gatherer of rubber in African jungle or South American and Asian forest to the highest trained railway manager, the most ingenious inventor, the most learned scientist and the finest master of statecraft and diplomacy the influence of this quickening of business forces, this stimulation of both physical and mental powers, is plainly to be seen.

Future Seems Secure.

Railways, mines and public service securities will continue favorites with the investors for years to come and the pushing forward of such business affairs makes manufacturing safe and profitable.

Add then manufacturing interests in good shape, and combined with the others in a system of constant operation and steady development, the advantages to the masses of the people are not only secured through vastly improved facilities in country and city life, but their prosperity is assured through the constant employment offered by soundly based and promptly paying enterprises.

The railways of the world can secure all the capital needed for practical operations and for solidly based development and honest promotion.

James J. Hill, with his broad mind and wide knowledge of railway matters, and buttressed by his splendidly successful business career, would not have the slightest difficulty in securing all the cash needed to carry out the great plan of extension and development of United States railway development which he so distinctly outlined some months ago.

The investors of both Europe and of America have full faith and confidence in all our leading railway magnates and managers.

The managers and magnates are much closer to the investors now than they were in former years, and through recent state and national legislation they are also much closer to the business men of the nation and the masses of the people.

The business men of the country and the masses of the people, those who furnish the freights and do the traveling both far and near, never took so much interest in transportation affairs as they are doing today.

They never realized as they do today how closely their own receipts and expenditures are allied with railway charges on freight and passenger traffic, and it is but very lately they have understood the immense interest every individual has in not only the prosperity of the railways, but in their careful management, so they will contribute to the prosperity of the country while guaranteed reasonable earnings upon the capital invested in their own enterprises.

High Standard Attained.

The co-operation of the railway companies, the national and state governments and the people in the work of securing the very best transportation facilities possible in the United States cannot fail to result in the establishment of the very highest standards in every branch of railroad affairs.

From the first meeting of the incorporators, under present or proposed legislation, there will be a publicity hitherto unknown, and that publicity will maintain in all and every subsequent proceeding or transaction of the railway company.

This taking of the patrons of the roads into the confidence of the railway magnates, or this taking of the railway magnates int othe control and confidence of the patrons of the roads, whichever way one wishes to state the case, must inevitably result in the closest and most systematic co-operation.

Development of the railway systems of the United States is the one assured fact for the coming decade.

The public necessity has been well stated by Mr. Hill and other leading railway authorities. The public service corporations of the United States, which include the railways, have a patronage which is the most profitable in the world, as the public service corporation earnings constantly demonstrate.

The patrons have no desire to injure or destroy the efficiency of their public service corporations. They expect them to secure reasonable returns upon their capital. It is a situation that should be met with cheerfulness and optimism by the railway managers, for their investors' interests are today far more secure from invasion, wrong and injury than ever before in the history of railroading in the United States.

POLK COUNTY TO VOTE ON DIVISION NEXT FALL.

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—After nearly two years of waiting, residents of Polk county, Minn., are to have the opportunity of voting on the question of a division of their territory into two counties. Governor Eberhart issued a proclamation this morning directing that the question be submitted to the voters of Polk county at the general election next November.

PLAN BUREAU OF RAILWAY ECONOMICS.

Chicago, July 21.—Plans for the establishment of a bureau of railway economics at Washington, D. C., by the railroads of the country are announced here. The purpose of the new bureau is the collection and diffusion of correct information in regard to railroad rates, the relation these rates bear to the cost of commodities, and discussion of matters of general interest in the transportation field.

The railroads believe the work of this bureau will result in a better understanding between the public, the shippers and the railroads and that many difficulties will not only be lessened, but removed, by the light thrown upon the transportation situation.

ALIMONY ORDERED PAID.

New York, July 22.—Broughton Brandenberg, magazine writer, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, who is awaiting examination tomorrow on a charge of passing a worthless check for $50, on the complaint of Hugh Logan, Jr., was arraigned before Magistrate Herbert in the Yorkville court on a charge of abandonment made by his wife, Valine Brandenberg of 1380 Broadway.

After an examination in which Brandenberg acted as his own lawyer, cross-examining his wife for about one hour, the magistrate ordered him to pay his wife $5 a week and to furnish a bond as a guarantee of the payments, in default of which he was to go to Blackwell's Island for six months. Brandenberg failed to produce a bondsman and was held.

Mr. Brandenberg said that $5 would not pay for the drinks he buys for his affinity.

SUIT AGAINST BISHOP.

Dismissed, But Costello Learns of His Wife's Whereabouts.

Mobile, Ala., July 22.—The habeas corpus case instituted by Patrick T. Costello for his wife, Jennie, against Bishop Edward Pallen and others of Mobile was dismissed in court here. Costello being forced to pay cost of proceedings. He had the satisfaction, however, to have witnesses state that she is at Winchester, Miss., and it is believed that he went to that place immediately after adjournment of court.

STICKING TO MOURNING

King George Says Public May Discard the Trappings of Woe.

Many Hanging on the Fringe of Society Still Wear Black.

London, July 22.—Contrary to the wishes of the king and the royal family that portion of society which has nothing whatever to do with the court set, is determined to wear the trappings of woe for the late king as long as the royal entourage wears it. Scores of those on the fringe of society are wearing unrelieved black with the sole object of impressing on the world at large that they are in the royal set though they would not think of gowning themselves in such somber raiment for their own relatives who had joined the majority; for Englishwomen, as a rule, loathe having compelled to don black and they lighten it on the first decent opportunity.

King George has intimated distinctly that he has no objection to people, not actually in the royal set, entertaining and giving dances, but not one will do so. Of course, military men cannot attend dances, but there are other men and if hostesses wanted to give dances they could do so.

The duchess of Roxburghe got deadly dull in London and a week or two ago she and the duke, with a party of friends they are entertaining, went off to Norway to fish. Her grace is expert with her rod and has developed a passion for fishing. She learned under the tuition of the princess royal (the duchess of Fife) and very soon outrivaled her teacher.

"London has been perfectly insufferable," Lady Granard recently told a friend. The countess has even more than her countrywomen's big portion of nervous energy and she has to be amused and in "perpetual motion" if she is to be happy. She has been enjoying herself selecting the decorations for the exquisite suite of rooms which are to be the nurseries of her small daughter at Forbes House. The day nursery is in blue and white, the walls tempered in the former color. Curtains and blinds trimmed with Irish lace will embellish it in due course. The tiny bath is of marble with silver fittings.

The Deacon Family.

There is no doubt about it, the Deacon family are unconventional. They love startling people and setting them talking. The elopement romance regarding Dorothy Deacon and Prince Albert Radziwill was, I am told, a yarn which got into circulation because of remarks made by the fair Dorothy herself, who happened to say to someone that she thought it must be the greatest fun in the world for two people who loved each other to run away; she only wished that Gretna Green still existed, and so on. I have not yet seen the bride, but from all accounts she is far prettier than her sister Gladys, who has broken more hearts than any American woman who ever set foot on these shores. Dorothy is far better known in Paris society than here. Her mother, now Mrs. Baldwin, has a charming apartment in the Rue de la Calle, wherein foregather at her receptions numbers of Americans and foreign nobility. In her little girl dresses Dorothy looks about 16 years old. She has been quite the rage since she made her debut and has had nearly as many offers as Gladys. As Princess Albert Radziwill she will be a very great lady. The prince has a home in Paris and an historic family seat in Poland, which is renowned in the country's records. In olden days things were conducted on a scale of rare magnificence at this picturesque stronghold and the philanthropy and the hospitality of the prince's ancestors are a matter of history. The Polish family hate the Russians, though openly they are diplomatic enough to say nothing about it. In fact, they are now on quite friendly terms with the imperial family, and one day, no doubt, the new American princess will find herself received with open arms by that most dignified and exclusive of sovereigns, the czarina, who will not find it wise to snub anyone who has married into the house of Radziwill. The bride has been given the most wonderful historic jewels of barbaric splendor by her fiance. They are still in their old picturesque settings—a trifle too heavy and massive for modern taste—but the prince refuses to have them reset. One of the strings of pearls is five yards long and is said to be the finest in Europe, the coloring and the matching being unique.

Crown Prince Smitten.

The crown prince of Germany has sent Dorothy Deacon a photograph of himself in a jeweled frame for a wedding present. He still, no doubt, has memories of the days when he was willing to relinquish his rights to rule the fatherland for the love of Gladys Deacon. Most people remember the romantic story. It took place at Blenheim when the duke and duchess of Marlborough entertained a great house party to meet the kaiser's heir. Among the guests was Gladys Deacon, who was in those days a fast friend of the duchess. The second night he was at the palace he requested his hostess to allow him to take the beautiful American girl in to dinner. Everyone at the table on the occasion realized that his imperial highness was head over ears in love—in fact, he made no attempt to disguise the fact. Miss Deacon herself, however, gave him no encouragement; on the contrary, she was most dignified and distant, but her friends suggested that the prince really did make an impression on her, and that is why she has not married, so far.

Helped the Hotelkeeper.

Lord and Lady Maidstone have been paying the price of fame once or twice since their marriage. Motoring through Wales they stopped for a few days at Llandrindod Wells, whereupon the management promptly announced far and wide the advent of the interesting couple. The result was that in twenty-four hours the house was crammed from basement to garret. The bride and bridegroom had their own suite of rooms, and never appeared at all in the public apartments, and some of the guests protested that the management was boasting of the presence of distinguished company which did not exist, and made a great fuss. When Lady Maidstone heard of it she came down in one of her lovely trousseau dinner gowns and dined, with her husband in the public dining room, later writing her name and some kindly remarks in the visitors' book. And so the various guests who had come from far and near were convinced that the lovely American bride was there in the flesh after all.

BRITISH ROMANCE REVEALED IN WILL

Aged Barrister Married for Years Without Relatives' Knowledge.

London, July 22.—In sharp contrast to divorce court bickerings stands an Old World romance revealed in an interesting human document, the will of Arthur J. Munby, a London barrister and poet, who recently died, 81 years old.

He left about $130,000 and his will reveals that he was not a bachelor, as his relatives and the world at large supposed, but that many years ago he married his cook, Hannah Cullwick, who, he says in his will, "has been for forty-five years and upward beloved by me with a pure and honorable love, and not otherwise, and she, the said Hannah, had during all that time been as faithful and loving and devoted to me as ever woman was to man, and whereas after vainly trying to explain this state of things to my father I married the said Hannah "she being then in my service) publicly in the presence of all her kindred who could be got together at the parish church at Clerkenwell, in the county of Middlesex, on Jan. 14, 1873.

"And whereas there is no issue of the said marriage, and whereas, notwithstanding her said marriage, the said Hannah has always refused and still refuses to have the position which, as my wife, she might and could have had, and has always insisted and still insists on being my servant as well as my wife, her one grievance being that she cannot be my only servant; and whereas, owing chiefly to this noble and unselfish resolve of hers, I have never been able to make known my said marriage to my family or to the world at large, and the same is known only to her kindred and three of my most intimate college friends."

Mrs. Munby disliked London and preferred to live in the country, and her husband spent as much time as possible with her. She refused all presents, cared for neither jewelry nor social recognitions, would take nothing but her wages, $25 a month, and would wear nothing but the regulation English hired girl's cap and gown. Out of her pay she had saved $1,000, which she gave to her husband to do with as he thought best for her.

The couple worshipped each other. Mrs. Munby died a few months before her husband. There were no children, and her tombstone at Shifnal records that beneath it lies: "The body of Hannah, the beloved wife and servant of Arthur Joseph Munby, and concludes the pure and honorable love of thirty-seven years."

COW IS OF MORE VALUE THAN A CHILD

According to the Way the Law Works in France.

Paris, July 22.—The question of France's depopulation continues to inspire the pens of patriotic writers in the French press. "Is a cow or a child worth more in France?" asks Clement Vautel in the Matin, and in furnishing the answer he reveals a feature of rural life in France which might have been elaborated by a Zola.

Take, he says, a village which he names in Auvergne. Fifteen children have died of diphtheria there within a short space of time. The village is fourteen miles from the nearest town, where a doctor is to be had. So the doctor charges $8 a visit.

The peasants are poor; they call the doctor only in cases of extreme urgency, mostly when it is too late. But suppose a peasant has a cow which he suspects has got tuberculosis, what happens?

He gives notice to the village burgomaster, the latter passes it on to the prefect, and the prefect orders the veterinary surgeon of the nearest town to examine the animal. What does the peasant have to pay? Not a cent. The veterinarian draws his fixed $6 a visit from the state.

What is even better, if the cow has to be destroyed, the farmer gets a compensation, sometimes exceeding the value of the beast. "To save a diseased cow," the writer exclaims, "the official machine works at full speed. But to save a French child not a dollar is sacrificed!"

MIGHT TRY TOE-WEIGHTS.

Long Island Lawyer Who Has a Pacing Cat.

New York, July 22.—David Meldon, of Jamaica, L. I., a lawyer, has a pacing cat that was born on March 17 last.

The reason the cat has adopted a pacing gait instead of running is the the disposition of its toes. Cats normally have five toes on each foot. Meldon's cat has seven toes on the left fore foot and six on the right, five toes on the left hind foot and six on the right. Its owner has been unable to understand just why it cannot run, but has a theory.

He believes that its thirteen front toes too greatly outweigh its hind toes, and that, as the toes on the right and left feet do not correspond, the entire animal is thrown out of its gait when it tries to run.

GEORGIA FARMER

Shelled an Auto That Scared His Horse—Ruined the Car.

Waycross, Ga., July 22.—Angered because an automobile scared his horse and caused the animal to break his buggy, Stephen Jeffords, prominent farmer, drew two revolvers and emptied them into the car. The twelve bullets literally cut the upper part of the car to pieces, and several bullets passed through the clothing of the occupants.

After Jeffords began shooting J. B. Baldwin, A. H. Miller and Jesse Strickland, business men of Waycross, threw themselves on the floor of the car to escape the bullets.

The car was practicaly ruined, and the occupants escaped death by a miracle. Jeffords says he is tired of his horses being scared by reckless auto drivers.

HAS EYE TO BUSINESS

Amusing Story of Clergyman Who Was Out for the Cash.

What It Costs to Get Married in Dear Old Lunnon.

London, July 22.—Some of the fashionable weddings that have taken place lately would seem to indicate that the people concerned were anxious to see how much money could be spent on the affair. This would apply to members of the smart set on both sides of the Atlantic, but when we descend to ordinary, everyday folk, conditions are different. When an American boy and girl wish to get spliced, and want no fuss made, it is a very simple matter. They just trot down to the nearest clergyman or magistrate, ask to be married, and he does it right away. In England it is much more complicated. The most usual form of marriage is by banns. Notice is given to the clergyman of the church where the young couple desire to get married, the announcement is given out three Sundays running before the wedding day, and for this the bridegroom pays the clerk 50 cents. If neither of the parties lives in this parish, one or other of them must do so for three weeks before the ceremony takes place, but this condition is often filled by the bridegroom taking a room and putting a stick or bag in it for the required time.

Of course, you have to pay the clergyman something for performing the ceremony for you, and the legal fee is $1.25, with 50 cents to the clerk, and a further 50 cents for a copy of the certificate of marriage, but each clergyman asks what he chooses, and some of them place their services rather high, as the following incident will show.

Loquacious Clergyman.

Recently a young couple who live in the suburbs desired to get married at one of the churches in The Strand, in London, as this was a convenient center for all their friends, and also near Charing Cross station, from which they were starting for Paris immediately after the ceremony. It was to be a quiet affair, no bridesmaids, no bouquets, no carringes, no red carpet, etc. So one fine morning the bride's father started off to find the incumbent of one of these London churches, an individual with a double-barreled loquacity as well. After a great effort, the father got him to talk about the wedding, and finally inquired the fee.

"The fee would be $26," said his reverence. "And, of course, you would like some music? We supply that, and it would be $5." The father was about to say something, when the padre broke in again:

"And you would like some red carpet put down, I suppose? We supply that for $5."

"Oh," began the man out of whose pocket the money was to come for all this, when—

"And, if it's a wet day, you would require an awning," continued the clergyman. "We supply the awning, and the fee would be $5."

"Yes," gasped the father, casting about in his mind for a way of escape, when the other went on:

"Louie" was Willing.

"And, of course, you would have some flowers. My daughter always does the flowers, and I'm sure she would be delighted to do them for you." Before the astonished father could reply, the clergyman rang the bell and requested the servant who answered it to ask "Miss Louie" to step in. "Miss Louie" duly arrived, and expressed herself enchanted at the prospect of doing the flowers for the wedding.

"And what do you think it would cost, dear," asked her father, "Do you suppose you could do it for $25."

As this last straw was laid on the poor victim's back, he roused himself and managed to stammer that he must consult his daughter before making final arrangements, and made for the door trusting to escape. But the clergyman had reserved a parting shot. Taking up a small-paper-covered book from the table he said:

"This is a small book on the history of the church. I am sure your daughter will like to read all about it as she is thinking of being married there."

"Thank you, I'll give it to her," said the innocent man.

"That'll be 25 cents," said his reverence, and the unfortunate father placed the money on the table and fled for his life. Needless to say, the marriage did not take place at his church.

CAN TAX GRAIN IN ELEVATORS

Right of Wisconsin Cities Ruled On By State Commission.

Manitowoc, Wis., July 22.—Grain companies owning elevators in the state can be taxed upon grain in elevators at the time the city assessments are made, says a ruling of the state tax commission in response to appeal from this city. The Western Elevator company, which operates three large elevators here, was taxed on grain, a $10,000 assessment, and objected on the grounds that the grain was in transit and not the property of the company, which was merely the agent. The city board of review refused to remit the assessment and the tax commission holds that the company must pay the tax.

SCIENCE OF SCARPOLOGY.

How to Tell Man's Characteristics, Disposition and Habits.

Paris, July 22.—Those who have hitherto been interested in analyzing the down-at-heel condition of a section of their fellow creatures may be pleased to hear that they have been dabbling in a science distinguished by the name of scarpology, of which Dr. Garrier of Basle, Switzerland, is the chief exponent. It is the art of knowing men and women by the examination of their footwear.

Criminal investigators, as well as others, who wish to read character accurately cannot afford to disregard scarpology, says the doctor. Given a pair of shoes worn by their owner for at least two months, and he can tell the character, disposition and habits of the wearer. By careful practice one may in a few minutes gauge a man at his worth simply by glancing at his feet.

Roughly speaking, the chief indications of character lie in the manner and proportion in which the soles and the heels are worn out. Beware of the man who wears out of the toe and external edge of the sole simultaneously, says Dr. Garrie. He will almost invariably turn out a crook. It is up to the crooks now to disguise their feet.

HELIGOLAND IS WELL FORTIFIED

Is Now the Keystone of the German Coast Defenses.

London, July 22.—On July 1 Heligoland, by royal enactment, became fully incorporated with the kingdom of Prussia and subject to all Prussian laws and regulations. Few foreigners visit the island, and though it is generally known that the Germans have been strengthening its fortifications, very few persons have an adequate conception of the military and naval value to Germany the island now represents.

Twenty years ago Germany acquired possession of it from England in exchange for Zanzibar and Witu, the British East Africa of today. On the occasion of its formal restoration to Germany the kaiser, standing on the island, prophesied that it was destined to become a maritime bulwark, a support for German fishermen, a base for German ships of war, a protection of the German ocean against every foe who might venture to show himself upon its waters.

The prophecy, like many of the kaiser's prophecies, has come true. Today Heligoland—to spell it as the Germans do—is a splendidly fortified island, the Gibraltar of the North sea and the keystone of the German coast defenses. At one time there was some apprehension that the wearing action of the sea might in time seriously diminish the utility of the island for defensive purposes, but the apprehensions have been dissipated by the construction of huge granite walls along the southwestern side, where the waves threatened most to undermine the cliffs.

High up on the cliffs are the fortifications of today, with their formidable batteries in emplacement hewn out of the solid rock and out of sight of attacking guns. Today the passage of hostile fleet would be extremely difficult, for the Heiligoland batteries have a range of ten miles and the harbors of the island have been rendered available for warships and torpedo boats.

TRY THIS DINNER

Dried Split Pea Soup.

Put two quarts of water, one pint of soaked split peas, a quarter of a pound of salt pork and a pound of beef cut in small bits in a saucepan. Season with salt and pepper, celery salt, curry powder, marjoram or savory. Let this boil slowly for two hours or more. Press through a colander. Fry stale bread in butter till it is brown and put in tureen, then pour the soup over. Serve at once.

Fish—Salmon Cream.

Remove the bones, skin and oil from a can of salmon. Rub or pound to a smooth paste and add a dozen almonds, blanched and chopped fine, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of white pepper. Mix gradually the unbeaten whites of three eggs, then very carefully stir in a half pint of cream whipped stiff. Pour into molds and stand them in a baking pan of boiling water and let them cook thirty minutes in the oven. Turn out on a heated platter and serve with Spanish sauce.

Spanish Sauce.

One pint of tomatoes, one clove of garlic chopped fine, one dozen stuffed olives cut fine, one tablespoon of butter, one desert spoon of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, dash of paprika, one-quarter teaspoon ground cloves. Cook in double boiler.

Vegetables—Stewed Cucumbers.

Peel two large cucumbers and cut into eight parts lengthwise. Remove all seeds. Place in saucepan with one slice of onion, one stalk of celery, one bay leaf, salt and pepper and a cup of stock. Boil until tender. Blend two tablespoons of butter with one of flour and add slowly one cup of milk. Drain the cucumbers, place in a hot dish and cover with the sauce.

Dessert—Rum Pixlets.

Take one-half cupful of sugar, yolks of two eggs well beaten, three tablespoons of Jamaica rum, one cupful of pecans chopped fine. Mix the above well together and place in tart tins already lined with whipped cream likewise flavored with rum.

KITCHEN LORE

Braised Ox Tail.

Wash an oxtail and divide it into four-inch lengths. Melt an ounce of dripping in a stewpan, and fry the pieces of tail till nicely browned.

Peel and cut into slices three carrots, a turnip and an onion, and lay in the bottom of the stewpan; cover with a quarter of a pound of bacon cut in slices, and the pieces of tail. Pour over one pint of stock and braise very slowly for three hours.

Arrange the meat on a dish, thicken and flavor the gravy, and pour over. Garnish with strips of cauliflower and some chopped pickle.

Fromage Rolls.

To make these successfully one must have a loaf of fresh bread while it is still warm. Cut a fresh, warm loaf in as thin slices as possible, using a very sharp knife.

Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, and work until smooth; season with salt and pepper.

Spread bread evenly with mixture, remove crusts, and roll each slice separately. Toast and serve while still hot.

Delicious Breakfast Dish.

Savory scrambled eggs make a delicious breakfast dish. Beat up three eggs, add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, half a teaspoonful of minced onion, two tablespoonfuls of milk, pepper and salt to taste.

Melt a piece of butter the size of a walnut, then pour in the egg mixture, and stir over the fire till it thickens; then serve on squares of buttered toast.

Potato Pancakes.

Grate six large potatoes into a colander and strain off the water. Add two eggs, a little finely-chopped parsley and onions season to taste; beat and mix all up together. Make into small patties, about a tablespoon to each patty. Fry in boiling fat until well browned, and serve up immediately.

THE EVENING STORY

A WRONG SET RIGHT

By Constance Sutcliffe.

Cora Wynyard sat alone. Tomorrow she would leave for Paris, on the way to Italy, Egypt, anywhere. Today the case in the divorce court had been decided against her, and she had done nothing, nothing to bring on herself its condemnation or that of any other. Without lay the city, which was no longer her world. Within was the apathy of utter despair.

Life lay in mystery before her. She hardly knew if she could claim the name she had hitherto borne, and she found herself wondering idly if she had a right to take away the portrait of her husband, which had hung above her writing table since he placed it there when he brought her home five years ago.

If only Mark were here he would tell me what to do, she thought. Then she gave a little harsh laugh at the grim absurdity of the idea. As her laugh jarred through the room, a door opened and Cora turned around with a startled look, a look almost of fear. The greater part of the place was in darkness, as the lights were grouped together at one end, and the portiere of olive velvet which hung before the entrance to the saloon beyond looked gloomy and sombre as though secrets lay behind.

It was only Alice Meredith, her sister-in-law. "I would not be refused, Cora," she said, "though they tried to keep me out," and seating herself on the couch she passed her arm around the unyielding form.

"I have come to stay, tonight at least," she went on as Cora made no reply.

"You cannot stay; there is no dinner," said Cora, looking at her with dull eyes. "I told them that I needed none, and the soup and coffee they brought up here are cold."

"And you have eaten nothing," said her relative reproachfully. "After that long, terrible afternoon, you have eaten nothing."

"Why did you come?" said the other in the same low, hard voice. "I did not want you. I want nothing from any of you."

"I could not bear to think of you here alone," began Mrs. Meredith.

"How did you know I should be alone?" said Cora, interrupting her. "They would not have believed it, those men who talked of me in that place."

"Cora," said the other entreatingly, as she tried to draw her into her embrace, "will you not trust me? Will you not explain the whole thing, for I know it can be explained?"

Mrs. Meredith had come from the West two days before, just in time to hear the conclusion of the case of Wynyard vs. Wynyard and Nugent. A case, as she would have said, which was noted for the imbecility of the prosecution, and the iniquitous summing up of the lawyers for the husband.

The papers in general spoke of the proceedings otherwise, but they did not understand as Mrs. Meredith understood, the uncompromising severity of her brother's nature, that impatience and thoughtlessness of that of Hal Nugent, Cora's cousin, who was, unhappily, her co-respondent too, and the weak and cowardice of Mrs. Wynyard which ever led her to prefer the possible disasters of the future to the passing discomforts of the present.

There had been practically no defense; few witnesses had been called.

That evening Mrs. Meredith took her brother to task.

"You know what a coward poor Cora has always been," Mrs. Meredith said in her calm, judicial tones. "You know that if she believed you would come into her room with the gloomy look and harsh tones you put on when you are annoyed with her, she would fly from it. And you know what a morbid dread she has of solitude. I believe she would have ridden to Richmond with a street sweeper, when she felt desolate and unhappy, rather than have ridden alone."

"She will be lonely enough now," said Wynyard shortly.

"And by that very admission, do you not almost exonerate her from blame?" said Mrs. Meredith eagerly. "Lonely! You know well she will be lonely, as you also know she will be alone."

But before her brother could reply, a voice they both knew was heard in the hall asking for Mrs. Wynyard.

There was a slight pause. The attendant was evidently embarrassed, and at last said he would go up and inquire if she were at home.

"It does not matter, I will announce myself, as Mrs. Wynyard is in the drawing-room," and Hal Nugent's step was heard crossing the hall and ascending the staircase.

This complication was unexpected, and Alice Meredith glanced in discomfiture at her brother.

Even at that moment she could not help feeling a gleam of amusement she saw on Wynyard's face. Neither disgust nor indignation was present there, merely a blank look of unmixed wonder.

"He never believed Cora cared for that man," she said triumphantly within herself. Then she resolved on a bold expedient. It was win all or lose all now, as she was aware.

"Mark," she whispered, "come with me," and taking his hand in hers, she passed quickly from the room.

"What do you mean? What are you doing?" Wynyard muttered angrily as she half dragged him towards the staircase. "Let go, Alice; it is a degradation for me to remain another moment under this roof."

"Give her one chance, I implore you," urged Mrs. Meredith; "for poor Cora's sake, for the sake of your own repentant future, give her one chance."

And the two passed to the corridor above and entered the inner drawing-room by the door which Alice had left open on her exit half an hour before. The heavy portiers were still parted slightly as she drew her reluctant brother forward, and taking her stand by him, she laid her hand on his shoulder, ready, if need be, to check any sudden movement of advance or retreat on his part.

Cora, in the dark gown bordered with fur, that she had worn in court that day, sat in the same stony attitude with which she had listened to the vain arguments of her sister-in-law. Before her, leaning against the mantelpiece, stood Hal Nugent, the cause of the trouble.

He was as handsome, as sunny-faced a young fellow as one might care to see, smart and well-groomed.

"I was determined to see you, Cora," he said, while those two looked through the aperture at his flushed boyish face. "I thought you might be leaving tomorrow, and I was bound to have a word with you before you went. Do you know, I think it has been a great mistake, you refusing to see me all this time. I don't see what we could have done as things have turned out; still we ought not to have let those villains have it all their way."

Cort Wynyard looked up at him somberly, but made no reply.

Her silence seemed to discompose the young man before her, and he played with the things on the chimney piece for a minute or two before he went on.

"Those fellows in court have put us both in the deuce of a hole, I'm afraid. I don't know if you have looked on it in that light, but we ought to make up our minds as to what's best to be done," he said at last. "I suppose we ought to have known better. Being a man, I suppose I ought to have understood what they'd say it all meant; but, by George! I never guessed that there'd be a story made out such as that they told me over there. The thing is now, what are we to do?" He ganced once more at the silent woman before him. Still the woman uttered no word, and with a visible effort, Nugent at last took his place by her side and laid his hand on hers.

"I think you know what I want, Cora dear,' he said. "I will do my best to make you happy and try to make you forget all that has passed. Then, later on, not just yet, of course, but as soon as we can, I want you to promise to marry me."

Cora Wynyard leaped to her feet.

"Hal, Hal," she cried, "how dare you! I marry! I—I the wife of Mark Wynyard."

In discomfiture the boy began again.

"Yes, Cora dear, I know that, but you see from today you won't be his wife any more, and * * * and in a year from now, of course you know, you may marry any man you please."

Cora looked at him for a moment, then she drew back her head, and put her hands to her face with an hysterical sob.

"Oh, Mark, Mark!" she cried, wildly, "don't let them say that I am not your wife! I am your wife till death do us part. Mark, Mark, never let them say again that I do not belong to you any more!"

And in response to her cry, her husband came striding across the floor toward her.

"Leave this house, sir!" said he to the scapegoat, and as, with the unmerited shame of a scoundrel baffled in his designs, Hal Nugent passed out on to the corridor, Wynyard banged the door behind him and went back into the room.

GOOD MANNERS IN CHURCH

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

Do we need some reminder as to good manners in church? Perhaps. Our conscience may exonerate us from ill manners there, or if we are honest we may regretfully own that we are often derelict in the house of God.

Being the house of God, reverence to the place is of the first importance. In a mosque devout Moslems do not step with sandaled feet. "Put off thy shoes from thy feet," said the voice that spoke to Moses from the burning bush, "for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Orientals take off the shoes. Western Christians keep on shoes but remove their hats—that is, men do—on entering a sanctuary.

Whispering, giggling and talking of the week's engagements in the church proper is an ill-bred thing. The demeanor becoming God's house is silent and quiet.

If one would be well-bred, one must take pains never to be late at church. If late, stand at the door until prayer or scripture reading is finished. Take whatever seat the usher provides with a simple bow of thanks.

If seated in a pew, courteously make room for a stranger.

Do not fidget or move about in a pew and never stare about at the congregation.

Keep your eyes constantly on the minister. If you fancy his sermon tedious do not show this in your manner. It is the height of incivility to look at a watch during the sermon.

Always bow the head and close the eyes during prayer.

Pay close attention to the notices.

Never put on an overcoat or wrap during the singing of the Doxology.

Never rush hurriedly out of church after the benediction.

Never eat lozenges or peppermints in church.

Do not fan violently and create a current to chill the back of your neighbor's neck.

Avoid conspicuous costumes and picture hats in church. The appropriate dress for church is very plain and simple.

Go quietly out after a church service: never criticise the pastor.

Do not go to church unprovided for the collection.

In walking home take pains not to dissipate the impression of the sacred service by silly laughing and jesting.

Be attentive to old people in the house of God. If there is a Sunday school, or a Christian Endeavor society, or missionary association, give it your cordial support.

Do not criticise the minister's wife or expect too much from his family.

WOMAN AND THE HAT

By POLLY PAGET.

You may take it as a general rule that, if a woman's hat looks crooked, it is on straight.

This tendency to assume an angle is one of the peculiarities of feminine headgear. For the man who wishes to avoid suspicion there is only one mode of wearing the hat, and that way is to place it on the head in a firm and uncompromising horizontal position.

To wear it at the back of the head is tantamount to advertising oneself an irresponsibly hilarious nature.

To wear it tipped over the eyes is widely looked on as demonstrating a shifty and criminal disposition; while, to wear the hat at the side of the head is an open invitation to be considered "fast" and "sporty."

But none of these limitations govern the angle of a woman's hat, and so, from time to time, she rings changes in its position.

Sometimes fashion decrees that she shall wear it well over the forehead, making a sort of eye-shade of it; sometimes she wears it so far back on her head that it seems in the very act of slipping off.

Sometimes it has a strong list to starboard, as it were. At other seasons it droops heavily to the left. If, by any chance, a woman inadvertently puts her hat on straight, you will notice that at the very first mirror she comes to, she gives it a surreptitious poke with her finger to put it at an angle.

NURSERY LORE

Scientific Care of Children.

The bringing up of children has reached a scientific stage during the present century, and in well-conducted households this item receives the most careful attention.

So vastly essential is the care which all devoted mothers now realize their little ones require, that one often wonders how the last generation survived without the strict attention.

Children in those days were allowed simply to grow up, and do the best for themselves, yet mothers are enlightened upon the subject, medical men take an especial interest in everything connected with child life, and every year fresh improvements tend to lighten the struggle of existence, which will grow also more difficult as years go on, when all strength will be needed to enable them to fight successfully in the battle of life from the cradle to the grave.

Be Firm and Just.

Whatever you think proper to grant a child, let it be granted at the first word, without entreaty or prayer, and, above all, without making conditions. Grant it with pleasure, refuse with reluctance, but let your refusal be irrevocable; let no importunity shake your resolution; let the word "no," when once pronounced, be a wall of brass, which a child, after he has tried his strength against it half a dozen times, shall never more endeavor to shake.

RHYME AND REASON

By FRANK L. STANTON.

Bloomers in Billville.

The women folks of Billville have got another craze—
They're ridin' roun' on bicycles an'
blockin' all the ways;
They say it makes 'em healthy, an'
they're gein' for it strong
An' the men are bakin' biscuits an'
cussin' all day long.

Bicycles an' bloomers—
Never saw the like!
Never is no tellin'
Where lightnin's going to strike.

The women folks of Billville have got the bloomers right;
They're spinnin' down the big road an'
goin' out of sight;
They're done with foreign missions—
church fairs are goin' wrong,
An' the men are mindin' babies an'
cussin' all day long.

Bicycles and bloomers—
Gittin' wuss and wuss,
Lord knows whar we'll git to
Before they're done with us!

The women folks of Billville—they're goin' with a will;
They're racin' with the railroad trains
an' climbin' every hill;
They've got the reddest bloomers—
their bicycles are strong,
An' the men wear Mother Hubbards, an' cuss the whole day long.

Bicycles an' bloomers
All the men are "goners."
Don't know what we're comin' to,
(Lord have mercy on us!)

Word From Br'er Williams.

Time waits for no man, an' it knows it would be late gittin' to whar he gwine.

Trouble 'bout havin' treasures in heaven is dat folks expect Providence ter pay 'um interest on it.

Satan would 'a' been in heaven today ef he hadn't been lak some er de rest of us—unable to stand Prosperity.

"I never did 'grudge President Taft a good 'possum dinner," said Brother Dickey. "Dat ain't wnar my complaina comes in. What is worryin' me is de fact dat people all over de country is tryin' ter imitate him in de 'possum-eatin' business, which makes a scarcity o' in de very country whar he wus raise an' bo'n. De nigger is willin' fer de white man ter have de turkey, but by de verdict o' Providence 'possum is his special meat!"

DINING ROOM IMPORTANT

By HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD

It has been far too customary, among those of us who have not unlimited bank accounts, to look upon the dining room as a mere place to go and eat in and get out of as soon thereafter as possible.

But the dining room is the one place where, morning, noon and night, all the family come together, and are obliged to do so, at the same time. Certainly such a place as that should be made as attractive as any in the house. Besides, it is the place where the burden of hospitality is dispensed, and certainly there should be nothing there to suggest to the receivers of that hospitality and poverty or pinching, any fancy that the table is differently served in their absence, any teasing hint that the family disturbs its equanimity on their account.

Thus the dining room should really be as sumptuous a room as it is possible to make it; here the rich color and the gilding should be lavished; here should be displayed all the painted china and frosted silver and other objects of kindred luxury in possession, something less being paid for the pianoforte that something more may be paid for the buffet, and here should be warmth and light and all reminders of comfort and cheer.

And if the young mistress of the house once looks after these matters with a view to finding the reason for all things, these hints may light her on the way to still further discovery of how to make house and home delightful. Still, a country house can be made as attractive as it needs to be with chintz and wicker-work, leaving all these splendors for the town house that is so much more occupied.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

CLOUDY

This weather gives rise to one oft-repeated question. It is asked in wailing tones by farmer, banker, butcher, baker and everybody else who has the prosperity of the country at heart—"Isn't it going to rain?" Not for thirty six hours, at least, says the weather man. Yesterday was beautiful and today is another ideal summer day, though the air is filled with smoke from the numerous brush fires burning in the vicinity of the city.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today and Duluth was recovering from the effect of the big storm.

The sun rose this morning at 4:35 and it will set at 7:53, giving fifteen hours and eighteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours the disturbance central over Albert caused light local showers in the southern portions of that province and Saskatchewan, and over Washington, Western Montana, Southwestern Colorado, Kansas and South Dakota, besides a continuance of warm weather in the Northwest, the Rocky mountains and Southwestern states. The Eastern Canada depression caused scattered showers over the Middle Lake region, the St. Lawrence valley and Northern New England. Further and copious rains fell over Florida. Areas of high barometric pressure overlie South Atlantic and North Pacific districts. Indications favor a continuance of the present weather conditions in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes: Light to moderate variable winds; generally fair weather except unsettled and showers in Southern Michigan tonight or Saturday.

Chicago, July 22.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan — Fair tonight and Saturday.

Wisconsin — Unsettled but generally fair tonight and Saturday.

Minnesota and South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in central portion tonight.

Montana — Generally fair weather, except probably showers in extreme northwest portion tonight or Saturday.

Iowa—Unsettled, but generally fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature.

FIGHT IS ON IN OREGON

to the principle of party assemblages whose object is to suggest candidates for nomination. They contend that the assembly is in reality an attempt to return to the old convention method of nominating a ticket and that its real purpose is the destruction of the direct primary. There are, nevertheless, already sufficient anti-assembly candidates for nomination in the field to insure practically complete anti-assembly primary tickets throughout the state.

Against "Oregon System."

While openly asserting that it has for its main object the slaughter of the "Oregon system," the "assembly" faction also contends that its second important purpose is to suggest for nomination suitable candidates for office—in other words, to invite men of ability to accept nomination for office. They deny they are opposed to the direct primary system, but claim to be its best friends.

MORMONS DRIVEN OUT

tween the foreign office and the American embassy in 1903, when the government took the position that the teachings of the missionaries were subversive of morality. It was then arranged with the Mormon superintendent, through the American embassy, that all Mormon missionaries should withdraw from the country within a month, transferring the Middle European headquarters from Berlin to Switzerland.

Disregarded the Arrangement.

Subsequently 140 foreign leaders departed, leaving the German societies, with a total membership of 8,000, in the care of German pastors. The authorities say that in recent years the Mormons have disregarded the understanding of 1903, and from time ot time individual missionaries have been apprehended and expelled. In such instances they have not applied to the American embassy for relief nor made a protest against their expulsion.

cident had occurred, but they kept on firing at the imaginary enemy in the channel three or four miles away just as if it were in fact a hostile fleet endeavoring to pass through to attack Washington or Baltimore.

Officers who witnessed the test say the practice demonstrated that a fleet attempting to pass the fort could not have lived five minutes in such a fire as was poured into the towed targets.

Hear Stories of Heroism.

Washington, July 22.—Stories of valor and sacrifice in time of suffering and confusion were detailed to General Wood, chief of staff of the army, and other officials of the war department today upon the return to Washington of officers, who yesterday witnessed the explosion of a big gun in the first minute of battle practice at Fortress Monroe, which resulted in eleven deaths. These personal reports were augmented by further telegraphic reports from Lieut. Col. C. P. Townsley of the coast artillery corps, the commandant of the fort. Lieuts. Vandeusen and Hawes were commended.

Carried Powder Away.

Capt. Prentice reached the emplacement first, and before looking into the extent of the damage, pushed his way through the smoke and sparks and carried out a bag of powder. He then was joined by Hawes and the two completed the task of averting a further explosion.

During the time Lieut Vandeusen lay crumpled beneath the gun, his leg crumpled in two places, he was suffering agonies, but when his brother officers sought to remove him he would not permit them to touch him.

"See to the men first," he ordered; and, propped up against the gun carriage, he aided in directing the work of the rescue party and the surgeons.

Showed Great Courage.

Corporal Humphreys and Sergeant Brinkley, a gun pointer, also distinguished themselves. The former's head, body and arms were filled with pieces of flying concrete that had been blown from the emplacement when the explosion came. In spite of his painful wounds, he rushed to his wounded comrades and extinguished their burning clothing.

Hanging by One Arm.

Sergeant Brinkley was close to the breech when it blew out. He was hurled over the right standard, and when he regained consciousness found himself hanging by one arm from the railing of the sighting platform. Although severely bruised and suffering from the shock, Brinkley declined to go to the hospital or permit the surgeons to examine him until after they had assisted in the work of rescue.

tariff bill passed the house was $30 a ton. The duty on pig lead, or lead bullion, was the same. The bill came to the senate and was referred to the committee on finance, of which Mr. Aldrich is chairman, and was reported back with the duty on pig lead increased from $30 to $42.50 a ton, making a difference of $12.50 between the lead in the ore and the lead bullion.

Cost of Smelting.

Therefore, according to the Republican national platform and our campaign pledges, $12.50 a ton should measure the difference in the cost of smelting lead in the United States and in our competing countries.

"Edward B. Rush, general manager of the American Smelting & Refining company, an organization which controls 90 per cent of the lead smelters of the United States, testified before the ways and means committee of the house that the entire cost of reducing lead from ore to bullion, from actual figures, ranged from $5.55 to $10.05 a ton No witness before the ways and means committee gave as the entire cost of smelting a greater figure than $10 a ton.

Amount of the Tariff.

"A most vigorous effort was made in the senate to reduce the duties of the senate bill back to those provided in the house measure, but without effect. To protect our struggling American industries, a duty not measuring the difference in the cost of smelting at home and abroad, but a duty of from $2.50 to $6 a ton more than the entire cost of smelting at home was imposed been burned and about twenty settlers' cabins are in ashes.

It is reported that two little girls living in the Rainy River district wandered into the forest and were burned to death.

Losses Run to Millions.

Mine Center, Ont., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forest fires throughout the Rainy Lake region and the Upper Seine river localities are something unprecedented, and if rain does not come soon the damage will be fearful. Already losses in timber, mining property and settlers' improvements runs into millions.

It is much more easy to say where fire is not than where it is. For over a month Mine Center has been in danger from the flames. At one time they came right to the edge of the village, but were fought back after ten days and nights' hard work. Over 100 men were thus engaged. The Mine Center Lumber company had sixty men engaged in protecting its plant on Turtle lake, and the Canadian Northern railway brought in gangs of men from other points to aid in the fight.

Not Yet Out of Danger.

The place is not yet out of danger for a passing locomotive may throw a spark at any time that will start a blaze. On every side, timber fires are blazing fiercely and the sun is obscured by the smoke. The people are worn out, discouraged and very depressed over the situation.

A very destructive fire has swept through the pulpwood concession owned by the Mackenzie & Mann interests, near here.

At the time of the greatest danger here a sweep of flames wiped out buildings, hoists and machinery plants on several of the gold mines south of Bad Vermilion lake. Although the machinery plant at the Golden Star mine was removed some years ago, the late raid of the flames wiped out the shafthouse and about $4,000 worth of good camp buildings.

Mine Sites Swept.

The camp house, shaft house and engine house at the Randol mine were entirely destroyed. The engine house covered a hoist and boiler.

The camp buildings, engine and boiler and shafthouse at the Golden Crescent were burned. The Cuckoo mine also was swept by the fire. Everything at the Ferguson mine was wiped out, including shaft houses, a good boiler and several camp buildings.

The Lucky Coon was saved. A. M. Robertson lives on the property and his house, barns, yards and gardens were protected sufficiently to keep off the flames. But he and his wife have pumped and carried water night and day for a month, and packed up bedding and personal effects a dozen times.

Within the past few days fire has broken out in a swamp near Mr. Robertson's barns and is burning fiercely. Help has been sent out to him and his aged wife and hope is strong that the flames can be held back. The last word from there, however, was that the machinery plant at the Manhattan mine was in serious danger, with no one to protect it

Burning at Foley Mine.

A raging furnace of fire has ranged on and around the Foley mine. For ten days Capt. Hosking and a gang of fire fighters have contended with the flames night and day. At times the men were almost ready to fall in their tracks, but they have taken a new grip on themselves and held back the consuming enemy. Many days the wind has blown a perfect gale and the embers made it very difficult to protect property.

The first damage done was the burning of the engine house at Shaft No. 5. This building had just been repaired and was a source of great pride to Capt. Hosking and his helpers. While they were engaged in repair work at the north shaft, fire came as if out of the clear sky. By the time the men saw the flames and reached the spot, the roof was falling in. The engine and boiler were ruined, probably but by heroic efforts the shaft house and big blacksmith shop were saved.

Few Days of Hope.

For a few days after that the danger was greatly lessened, about the only work necessary being that of guarding the shaft houses. Finally, however, a fierce fire broke out several miles to the westward and swept steadily to the Foley. One day it was held back by an easterly wind. The next day a gentle wind from the south pushed it toward the big machinery plant on the property.

Men were sent out to do backfiring. The wind kept rising; finally, a stray cinder, borne through the air for nearly a quarter of a mile, lodged near an old barn on the shore of Shoal lake, about ten rods west of the big stamp mill.

An ascending column of dark smoke attracted the men's attention and they reached the stamp mill just in time to attack flames in the grass and the smaller buildings, that were kindled from flying embers from the old barn, which burned and roared like a monster furnace.

Made Remarkable Fight.

A remarkable fight was put up by the worn-out but determined men. Each man was compelled to attack fires that broke out simultaneously in different spots. Heat, smoke and flames so blinded and weakened the men that time and again they were compelled to rush into Shoal lake and submerge themselves before returning to the attack.

It was a terrible hour. At one time the big reduction plant was not worth 15 cents. Twice the big building began to blaze, but the incipient flames were seen and extinguished.

The heavy grass on the west side burned nearly to the mill building before the fire was brought under control. On the east side and the south side the fire caught in grass and rubbish and burned almost into the building. Twice fire broke out in the roof of the storehouse and an old assay office on the east side of the building.

All that afternoon men carried water and poured it on the smouldering fires in old stumps, moss and the very roots under the ground. There was no time to eat, and men who had worked all day at high pressure were compelled to stand guard all night in wet clothing, and constantly to carry water from the lake. The night air was cold and the exposure was severe.

Saved Big Stamp Mill.

Later fires broke out fiercely in several other places, but by hard work and good luck no buildings were burned after that terrible day. Fifty thousand dollars' worth of machinery and the big stamp mill were saved on that part of the property, as well as the camp buildings.

The most serious damage was the loss of the hoisting engine at the south shaft, damage to rails and air pipe along an old tramway, and the burning of a very good house at the time the stamp mill was in greatest danger. Almost the entire 191 acres of land in the property have been swept by the fire, and men are kept constantly engaged in fighting fires in old stumps, moss in the rocks, and underground fires in swampy places.

Fires Underground.

Fires crawl up a swampy place, and falling trees whose roots have been burned are the first evidence of the fact. In one depression where an animal ordinarily sinks down when crossing, the ground is as dry as a bone to a depth of five feet, and an underground fire is slowly eating through it.

John L. Morrison, president of the Foley company, was here for a week lighting the fire, but has returned to Duluth. Secretary Hoffman will remain a few days longer to aid Capt. Hosking and his force of white men and Indians in protecting the pioneer mine of the Lower Seine river region.

The property west of the Foley mine, belonging to J. C. and R. M. Hunter of Duluth, has burned entirely over and very closely.

Fires are raging on the south side of Shoal lake. Hardly a quarter section will escape in all the region from the north arm of Rainy Lake and on the east for miles and miles on either side of the Canadian Northern railroad.

At Banning, thirty miles east of here, the Edward Hines Lumber company owns 200,000 feet of the finest pine in Western Ontario. A fire has swept through the center of that tract and is burning yet on one corner. Other companies own pine limits tributary to Banning. If all the pine burned around Banning is logged this winter, dozens and dozens of camps will be required and fully 5,000 lumberjacks. George Gamble of Duluth is now at Banning in the interests of the Edward Hines Lumber company.

Just the other night, a big muskeg fire greatly alarmed Fort Frances, and nothing but an old, well-traveled road kept the devouring element from eating its way into the residential section.

Where or when this great conflagration between Lake of the Woods and Port Arthur will end, no one even tries to guess. What the damage will be no man dare estimate at this time. It will, in fact, be almost beyond estimate.

The most serious damage was the loss of the hoisting engine at the south shaft, damage to rails and air pipe along an old tramway, and the burning of a very good house at the time the stamp mill was in greatest danger. Almost the entire 191 acres of land in the property have been swept by the fire, and men are kept constantly engaged in fighting fires in old stumps, moss in the rocks, and underground fires in swampy places.

road officials continued their endeavors to set in motion the wheels of their freight system, while the strikers apparently were as confident as ever of winning their case.

A new feature of interest in the situation was the possibility of action by United States customs officials to effect forwarding of bonded freight from the United States now tied up at numerous points on the Grand Trunk lines.

Peace on Canadian Pacific.

Montreal, July 22.—All probability that the conductors and trainmen of the Canadian Pacific railway would strike was removed last night, when a definite agreement was reached between the company and the men, Messrs. Leonard and McTier, representing the company, and Vice President Murdock and a companion representing the men.

The gist of the discussion is that the standard rate of pay for the territory east of Chicago is recognized by the company. The men have gained about 90 per cent of their demands. The new schedule will be retroactive to May 1.

THE CHARLTON CASE.

Porter Charlton, the American who murdered his wife and threw her body into Lake Como, is being held in custody by the state of New Jersey pending a report by a lunacy commission and also awaiting action by the state department at Washington regarding the application of Italy for his extradition to that country for trial.

It is said that the state department is delaying action in this case, with a view of forcing Italy to enter into an agreement to hereafter turn over to this country Italians who flee to Italy after committing crime in the United States. While it is a sound contention that Italians should be handed over to the American authorities for trial on charges of crimes committed on this side of the Atlantic, it is manifestly improper that advantage should be taken of the Charlton case to force Italy to enter into such an agreement. The Italian Constitution, it is understood, forbids the government to deliver up Italians for trial in another country, and until a change has been made in its Constitution Italy cannot make any promise that would be binding. The best the Italian government could do at present would be to agree that it would recommend such a change in the Constitution.

But such a promise should not be forced—even if it were possible—by refusing to hand over Porter Charlton for trial in Italy for the murder of his wife. Because Italy is committing a wrong by declining to hand over Italians accused of crime in this country is no reason why we should commit another wrong. Charlton should be placed on trial for the brutal murder of his wife. While Italy has requested his extradition, the only concern of that country is to see justice done and it would probably be perfectly satisfied to be freed from the trouble and expense of the trial. Charlton cannot be tried in the United States for a crime committed in Italy. Therefore, if the state department imposes as a condition of his extradition an agreement by Italy to extradite Italians similarly accused, it is evident that Charlton will go free. The proper thing to do is to hand over Charlton to the Italian authorities and then see that he receives a fair trial.

Charlton may be insane, but that is a question that should be passed upon after he has been extradited and arraigned before a properly constituted tribunal. Let the state department send him to Italy for trial. This will show our good faith in demanding a mutual interchange of persons accused of serious crimes. Then the way will be cleared to impress upon the Italian government the necessity of such changes in the Italian laws as will hereafter prevent the escape of criminals from justice.

DIRECT ELECTION OF SENATORS.

A New York newspaper has been interviewing the members of the United States senate on the question of direct election of senators, and it found thirty-three senators for it, fourteen frankly against it, and fifteen non-committal. Fifteen were absent when the poll was taken. Of the fourteen senators who were not afraid to express their opposition to this extension of popular government, ten are "regular" Republicans and four are Bourbon Democrats.

This poll is interesting, but it is neither important nor conclusive. It is not a question whether the senators desire direct election, but whether the people desire it. This is not a move in the interests of senatorial aspirations, but in the interests of the people's aspirations for closer control of their government, and for a greater manifestation of government by and for the people. That is why it is not particularly important how the senators feel about it.

The poll is not conclusive because it is notorious that there are senators who favor direct election openly, because they know their talk rings pleasantly in the ears of the voters of their state, but who oppose it secretly.

The people need not fear what is done in the open in Washington. They do need to fear what is done in secret. The fate of a measure providing for direct election of senators does not depend on how senators talk about it for publication, but on what they do with it in the committee rooms.

The house of representatives has passed several times a measure providing for a constitutional amendment making senators elective by the people. These measures invariably have been sent to the proper committee in the senate, and that has been the end of them.

So it isn't important at all whether every senator talks in favor of direct election of senators, or against it.

What counts is whether the people want it, and whether their demand for it is strong enough to force a few more state legislatures to call upon congress to summon a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the constitution so as to provide for it.

Nearly enough states have demanded a constitutional convention now. When two or three more make the demand, congress has no option under the constitution but to call the convention.

There isn't much use bothering to ask congress to submit such an amendment. It won't do it. It wouldn't do it if every member of the senate had gone on record in favor of it. Going on record in favor of it is one thing; getting it out of the committee is another. It is easy enough to get senators to go on record in favor of it. It is impossible to get the senate to adopt it.

Let a few more states demand that congress call a constitutional convention. In that way only is it possible to have direct election of senators.

WHERE'S THE HARM?

The New York Sun thinks it has one on Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield. It believes it has caught them in the making of incendiary utterances of which they will be ashamed when they know they have been caught.

The Sun prints the quotations "in the convenient and attractive form of the horizontal parallel," and says that half of them are taken from speeches made by Messrs. Pinchot and Garfield, and half "directly and literally from the national platform of the Socialist party either in 1904 or 1908."

Says the Sun: "The source of these extracts from the teachings of Messrs. Garfield and Pinchot and from the authoritative code of avowed Socialism is not indicated except in the first instance. The doctrines are more or less mixed in the arrangement herewith. Who can distinguish them? Who can say which belong to the 'Progressivism of 1910' and to the organized Socialism of 1904 and 1908? The lingo is the same."

Here are the quotations:

The Progressive movement is a fight for the preservation of self-government and political liberty.

We make our appeal to the American people as the defender and preserver of the idea of liberty and self-government.

Our state and national legislatures have become the mere agencies of propertied interests.

The people of the United States believe that as a whole the senate and the house no longer represent the voters by whom they are elected, but the special interests by whom they are controlled.

The special interests are now in control of public affairs.

Our American institutions came into the world in the name of freedom; they have been seized upon by the capitalist class as the means of rooting out the idea of freedom.

The overshadowing question before the American people today is this: Shall the nation govern itself or shall the interests run this country?

Without looking it up, we should guess that the second, third and sixth paragraphs are from the Socialist platforms, and the first, fourth, fifth and seventh from the Garfield-Pinchot utterances.

But what difference does it make who said them? What counts is whether they are true or not. If they are true, they are worth taking to heart, no matter who said them. If they are false, they should be controverted, no matter who said them.

But in point of fact every statement of the seven is absolutely true. As to any declaration in the list it is safe to say that if Garfield and Pinchot said it, why, good for Garfield and Pinchot; and if the Socialists said it, why, good for the Socialists.

The American people, it is to be hoped, are not judging the truth with regard solely to its source. Truth is truth, no matter who says it; and truth is none the less truth because a Socialist said it, and no more true because a Republican said it.

BUY IT IN DULUTH.

Many Duluth people are taking their vacations at this season of the year. Some are traveling to other cities even though they experience the discomfort of climates that cannot be compared with that of Duluth. But they want a change from the ordinary routine of life, and probably it is a good thing that they should have it. New sights and new experiences will prove a diversion that will be restful and pleasurable.

There may be some who will endeavor to get back part of their expenses by buying clothing, furniture, jewelry, etc., in the cities that they visit, assuming that they can purchase them at lower prices than they can get them in Duluth and thus be able to make a saving. This is an erroneous idea. Hurried purchases, made with little inspection, generally turn out badly, and are expensive in the end, even though the first price may appear lower than is asked at home. The Duluth dealer is always here and cannot afford to misrepresent his goods, while the customer of an outside merchant is often deceived by an inferior article that looks equally good. It is a safe assertion that any article can be purchased as cheaply in Duluth as in any other city, the quality being the same. Therefore every Duluthian should buy at home and keep the money in circulation here.

When you buy it in Duluth you are doing it for Duluth and yourself.

Wickersham and Nagel are about to start for Alaska, and now a volcano has broken out there. Queer what stirrers up of excitement the members of Taft's official family have proved to be.

When you come to think of the amount of political talk Theodore Roosevelt has kept bottled up inside him all this time, you mustn't be surprised to hear some day that he has an awful stomach-ache.

The question is, will Roosevelt nominate President Taft to succeed him as ex-president with the same earnestness that he showed in nominating Secretary Taft to succeed him as president?

When the Japanese government said nice things about Secretary Dickinson, the president cabled his thanks to the mikado. When Taft finds somebody praising one of his official family he just can't help but be surprised into something like that.

James J. Hill's prediction that the time is rapidly approaching when this country will cease to export foodstuffs, owing to the increased consumption at home, is strengthened by statistics for the past fiscal year. The falling off in corn, wheat, flour and meats is marked, wheat alone showing a decrease from $161,000,000 in 1892 to $47,000,000 in 1910.

Mayor Seidel of Milwaukee has an excellent plan for keeping the streets of Milwaukee clean. He suggests rewards of some kind for children who aid to the greatest extent in removing litter from the streets, alleys or vacant lots. At the same time he would vest the "white wing" squad with power to make arrests for violation of the health ordinance. Both are good ideas, but it would be necessary to use care in the selection of "white wings" of good judgment.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

BAR THE CIRCUS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am with the merchants in their stand against circuses appearing in Duluth on Saturday. Saturday is the busy day of the week for the merchants; I understand that about 40 per cent of their total sales of the year are made on Saturday afternoons. The duty of the city is first to its merchants who pay taxes, and their rights should be respected.

Circuses are an institution that hold a false position in the estimation of people. They come to the city, pay $100 or so for a license, pick off several thousand dollars and leave the city without anybody being the better for it.

They damage business enough by appearing here on week days and taking the money that should go into the channels of trade, without appearing on Saturday, the big business day of the week. R. L. JONES.

Duluth, July 21.

Literary Tastes of the Poor.

Leslie's: The "five best sellers" may interest Fifth avenue, but on New York's East Side the English classics are the greater attraction. In the first place, the East side reads more than other sections do. There were more applications for the privilege of taking out books from the circulation departments of the five East side branches of the New York public library last year than in any eight of the other thirty-eight branches. Not only does the East side read, but it is choice in what it reads. New ephemeral novels get little attention; but Dickens, Thackeray and Scott are worn threadbare in the tenement districts. Shakespeare and the Bible are prime favorites. Among juveniles, fairy stories lead here, as they do everywhere else, but the Bible ranks among the five most popular books in the children's department.

"O, Ever Thus From Childhood's Hour."

"How sweetly," said the trembling maid,
Of her own gentle voice afraid,
So long had they in silence stood,
Looking upon that tranquil flood—
"How sweetly does the moonbeam smile
Tonight! upon yon leafy isle!
Oft in my fancy's wanderings,
I've wished that little isle had wings,
And we, within its fairy bow'rs,
Were wafted off to seas unknown,
Where not a pulse should beat but ours,
And we might live, love, die alone!
Far from the cruel and the cold—
Where the bright eyes of angels only
Should come around us, to behold
A paradise so pure and lonely.
Would this be world enough for thee?"
Playful she turned, that he might see
The passing smile her cheeks put on;
But when she marked how mournfully
His eyes met hers, that smile was gone;
And bursting into heartfelt tears,
"Yes, yes," she cried, "My hourly fears,
My dreams have boded all too right—
We part—forever—part tonight!
I knew, I know it could not last—
'Twas bright, 'twas heavenly, but 'tis past!

"O, ever thus from childhood's hour,
I've seen my fondest hopes decay;
I never loved a tree or flow'r,
But 'twas the first to fade away,
I never nursed a dear gazelle,
To glad me with its soft black eye,
But when it came to know me well,
And love me, it was sure to die!
Now, too—the joy most like divine
Of all I ever dreamt or knew;
To see thee, hear thee—call thee mine—
O, misery! must I lose that too?
Yet go—on peril's brink we meet—
Those frightful rocks—that treach'rous sea—
No, never come again—though sweet,
Though heaven, it may be death to thee.

Farewell—and blessings on thy way,
Where'er thou goest, beloved stranger!
Better to sit and watch that ray,
And think thee safe, though far away,
Than have thee near me and in danger."
—Thomas Moore.

The Commercial Traveler.

Moody's Magazine: Nothing puts him to confusion. Nothing can come, ultimately, that he has not expected or imagined; and is not prepared for. His propelling force, on whatever route or conveyance he takes, is the determination to make sales, and secure orders. Like the politician returning home from Washington to his constituents, he has also his "fences" to look after once in a while, and to keep in repair.

He must know how his last transaction was liked—what there may be that his clients have not been satisfied with, and what has best pleased them. Or, if any "undermining" rival has been on his territory with better propositions than his are, and with a promise of impossible "rainbows" in the horizon. He is ready—or holds himself so—to make good anything that has gone wrong with his clients, through his agency.

It is indeed the certainty his clients feel that this will be done that makes him, in a very large sense, about as true a promoter and representative of their business as he is of the one that he directly represents.

It is a relief to them to know that they can confide implicitly in this unwritten guaranty that, in whatever they do with him, they will suffer no loss—except where some neglect or carelessness of their own, or some conflagration or flood which human power or foresight could not prevent, inflicts it.

In some instances that I have been conversant with, that reliance which a patient puts forth in relation to his physician is not greater or more fundamental than that of this traveler's customers in him. The salesman who has gained this trust with a fair number of dealers needs for his own welfare no other guaranty of success.

Enough Said.

Minneapolis Journal: In a killing at Duluth in which the automobile turned over three times with the occupants underneath and otherwise, the telegraphic dispatch states that the car was moving at a pace of sixty miles per hour. That explains.

In Spite of It.

Pittsburg Press: The wife of a new member of congress was much distressed by the unexpected appearance of an old sweetheart of her daughter—a big, good-natured son of the West, though of a rather crude exterior.

"Alice," said the mother one day, "I don't understand how you can put up with Jim, now that you've been associating with so many fine young men in the East. I should think he would grate on you. Don't you find him a little rough?"

"Yes, ma," answered Alice, blushing. "And yet Jim tells me that he shaves every day!"

The Guide: A Parable.

Twentieth Century Magazine: "You may all go to hell," said the monopolist. "I'm not in business for my health."

"I'm only a poor devil," said the laborer, "and I'll go home."

"What for?" laughed the shabby girl who had lost her work. "I'll go on the street."

"I can't leave my children," said the scrubwoman. "They are starving to death, but I must watch them even if I can't feed them."

"To hell?" said the farmer, whose mortgage had just been foreclosed. "Not so far as that! I'm bound for an East side slum."

"O! hell?" said the man-about-town. "I don't need to go to hell, I carry it around in my clothes."

"Is it any worse than this world?" scoffed the business man. "I'll buy it for a curiosity."

But one man said he was going to hell anyhow; would the monopolist show him the way?

"Yes," said the monopolist; "follow me."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Governor and "Benefits."

St. Cloud Times: What benefit has Minnesota derived by electing a Democrat for governor?—Anoka Union (Rep.)

The "benefit" which comes to a commonwealth from having as its governors men who rank as the peers of any executives in the entire union of states. What benefit has Minnesota ever derived from electing the many mediocre Republican governors who have been chosen in past years? Give us something hard, "Granny."

Sample of Republicanism.

Red Wing Free Press: Well, a good ticket on a rotten platform is better than a rotten ticket on a good platform.—Cannon Falls Ledger.

Now there's a sample of Republicanism for you. How can a false scale register correct weight?

"Big, Brave, Honest Taft!"

Manahga Journal: Col. Roosevelt is playing politics now as he has been doing for years, but as a man he is not knee high to President Taft and should they both live another decade our big, brave, honest president will outrank the slayer of big game not only as a statesman, but as a diplomat and a man among men.

Bede's "Clever" Joke.

Zumbrota News: About the silliest thing we have seen in print is credited to J. Adam Bede, who says it is a good thing there is a crop shortage, as it will allow the railroads to get caught up with their work. Some people will think that is one of his clever jokes.

Compliments the Colonel.

Buffalo Journal: The Cannon Falls Beacon pays Roosevelt the best compliment yet. It suggests that the passage of bills which were a demand of the party platform may have been due to the fact that Roosevelt was coming home. That might have helped some, too.

Women and the Census.

Pine River Sentinel: The women this year at least cannot be credited with having a monopoly on padding. The Montana census takers have shown themselves past masters at the part.

Tawney's Dear Friend.

Winona Independent: Joseph G. Cannon—Tawney's dear friend—announces that he will be willing to serve as speaker of the house again if a Republican caucus should nominate him. Doesn't Mr. Cannon know that Mr. Tawney has been making political capital out of the remote possibility that Tawney might be elected speaker of the next house? It was very thoughtless of Cannon to make the statement, because Tawney's friends have worked the "home pride" racket to good advantage in certain points.

Case of Stevens and Nye.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Mr. Stevens is another example of the peculiar effect, before noted in Mr. Tawney, of evidences of preferment at the hands of the old standpat guard. Mr. Stevens was spoken of as a possible candidate for speaker, and he comes home with soft words for a tariff law that is an insult to the intelligence of the people he represents. We have heard much of the advantage of sending good men to congress and keeping them there; but it is plain to be seen that this plan is not without its faults. Minnesota has learned of late years that sending good men to congress invites the betrayal of their interest into the hands of protected monopoly, as in the cases of McCleary and Tawney and now of Nye and Stevens. All strong men are, by reason of their strength, attractive to the agents of special interests, the Aldriches and Cannons. The Beacon would be pleased to see such men as these representing the people of Minnesota in congress, but it is obvious that this cannot be; they are not strong enough—or at least they think they are not—to stand alone or together, and fight the battles of the people, and thus force their way into prominence; so they fall to the lure of the bosses and become mere able doers of the will of the interests as interpreted by the bosses.

To Oyster Bay.

(Apologies to Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay.")

In old Sagamore's dominion lookin' eastward to the sea,
Teddy Roosevelt sits a-wonderin' what the outcome's goin' to be.
An' the breezes seem to whisper an' the village bells they say,
"Come you back, you politicians, come you back to Oyster Bay."

Come you back to Oyster Bay,
Teddy's summons to obey;
Can't you hear the colonel chucklin'?
Can't you guess what he will say?
See 'em fairly swarm today,
Candidates and interviewers linin' up in bold array.

There is Beveridge an' Carter, Fish and Sheffield, Foulke an' Bass,
Not a bloomin' man a-tellin' if he's ridin' on a pass;
Not a bloomin' man a-hintin' of the thoughts within his mind;
Not a cloomin' man a-talkin' when the colonel's left behind.

On the road to Oyster Bay,
Wonderin' what T. R. will say;
Somethin' doin' every minute of their brief but busy stay;
On the road to Oyster Bay,
Comin' back a-feelin' gay,
Givin' Col. Ted some pointers for the comin' dizzy fray.

He's a-learnin' just exactly how the situation stands;
Keepin' mum to the reporters an' ignorin' their demands;
He is findin' what was doin' all the time he was away;
That's the reason they are flockin' on the road to Oyster Bay.

On the road to Oyster Bay,
Teddy's summons to obey;
Goin' down by train an' auto just to hear what he will say,
On the road to Oyster Bay
Legislators daily stray.
Oh, the dust is thick an' heavy on the road to Oyster Bay!

Seven-Day Work.

In coming out openly and vigorously for a six-day working schedule for the men in the trade and putting the issue squarely before his fellow iron and steel makers of the country, Mr. W. B. Dickson, first vice president of the United States Steel corporation, "has made a far-reaching contribution to industrial statesmanship in this country," says The Survey.

At the first annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, he said, "As you are aware, the United States Steel corporation has recently taken some advanced steps in matters vitally affecting the relations between our various companies and their employes; namely, the reduction of seven-day labor to a minimum, the establishment of a system of accident and accidental death relief, and the establishment of a pension system.

"In considering the first named, i. e., the question of a seven-day week, we were, of course, met at the outset by the difficulty of adjusting a six-day week to the operations which are necessarily continuous and which are generally so recognized, even by the most radical opponents of the seven-day week. This refers particularly to such departments as the blast furnaces. The corporation has not yet been able to devise a practical working system by which the men employed at these continuous operations can be given one day off in seven, and the purpose of the paper is to invite the co-operation of other companies operating blast furnaces with a view to devising some workable plan.

"It is my own deliberate judgment, after a period of almost thirty years' continuous connection with the industry, the early part of which was passed in manual labor in the mills, that the present conditions, which necessitate the employment of the same individual workmen twelve hours a day for seven days a week, are a reproach to our great industry and should not in this enlightened age be longer tolerated."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

The second summer meeting of the Twin City Jockey club opened at the state fair track today and will last until Aug. 2. There will be five races each day, or a total of fifty for the meeting. The attendance today is fully 25,000.

The Republican county convention was held this afternoon at the city council chamber. Among the delegates were such old wheel horses as John McKinley, J. B. Sutphin, Alex Fraser, H. C. Kendall, James Dingwall, Miron Bunnell, D. J. Sinclair, Louis Rietz and Monroe Nichols. W. G. Joerns was elected chairman and J. B. Cotton secretary. The talk seemed to indicate that a majority of the delegates were favorable to E. G. Swanstrom if he decided to become a candidate for a state office, but some wanted a delegation sent to St. Paul that would work for J. P. Johnson for state treasurer. Messrs. Armstrong, Boyd, Sutphin and Beck were appointed a committee to select delegates to the state and congresional conventions, and they reported the following list of delegates: To the state convention—D. A. Dodge, H. C. Kendall, F. B. Daugherty, J. B. Sutphin, George Spencer, John Owens, Fred Barrett, C. O. Shipman, O. O. Wald, L. S. Thomas, Hary Armstrong and S. A. Sieverts. To the congressional convention—Monroe Nichols, Alex Fraser, Ole Olson, E. L. Fisher, J. B. Sutphin, John Pengilly, W. H. Frazer, John Owens, George Mallory, J. O. Hancock, W. W. Butchart and H. C. Helm.

The state supreme court has decided in the case of Mary Rakowsky vs. the City of Duluth, that the municipal authrorities of the city have power to change the grade lines theretofore established and fixed by the authorities of its predecessor, the village of Duluth. The case grew out of the changing of the grade on Superior street at Fourth avenue east.

When Fancy Smashes Against Fact

I have read the remarks of the worthy John D.,
And he says many things that are nothing but truth;
He voiced quite a lot that's familiar to me,
That has clung to my mind since the days of my youth.
It is well, I agree, to be patient and calm,
And reflect on the ills that one does not endure;
And I do not deny that such thoughts are a balm—
But I wish to remark that it's h——l to be poor.

In thus stating the case I've no trace of desire
To be rude in my language; I am not profane;
I am calm as an oyster and void of all fire—
For I learned long ago that to rage is in vain.
I am pleased when I read of philanthropists wise
Who are telling the world what is poverty's cure—
But I notice each leaves quite a lot when he dies,
And I beg to repeat it is h——l to be poor.

Canny Andy, the Scot, tells the young man to save—
But the butcher, the baker and grocer and all
Keep his nose to the grindstone and give it a shave
That is rapidly rasping off skin, bones and all.
Though I truly delight to sit resting and read
What a vampire is Fortune, with glittering lure,
And I shudder at knowledge of grasping and greed—
Still, I beg to observe that it's h——l to be poor.

When the preacher gets up and begins with a text
That assures me the beggar found Abraham's breast,
I am soothed, I am cheered, I am wholly unvexed
And convinced that all things are designed for the best.
As I plod to my work I stand meekly and wait
While an auto whirls by, starting off on a tour,
And my heart has no feeling of envy or hate—
But I say to myself that it's h——l to be poor.

Now, I may be quite wrong, but each morn when I pray
(Just a gentle appeal as befitting my lot),
I implore: "Let no plutocrat tell me today
To rejoice that a fortune to fret me I've not."
I am versed in the perils and dangers of wealth,
And I know that hard work does make one a boor;
There's a blessing, I know, in contentment and health—
Yet, I'm ready to prove that it's h——l to be poor.

—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Life.

Sure Cure.

Life: Once upon a time there was a man who was sensitive.

If he wore the wrong gloves at a wedding breakfast, and found it out afterward, he brooded over the matter for weeks.

If he made an after-dinner speech, and some one remarked that they had heard a better one, it worried him so that he couldn't eat.

If he tried to do some public good, and the local paper came out and insinuated that he was a grafter, he wore himself out trying to show what his motives really had been.

If a public servant insulted him, he used up days in getting even by taking his case up to the heads of the corporation.

If a friend was absent-minded and treated him carelessly, he imagined there was something wrong between them and laid awake from 2 until 5 in the morning, thinking up some plan to get even.

He was a collector of grievances. Nothing was too small for him to pass by.

People began to avoid him. They were afraid he would resent whatever they did because they hadn't treated him any better.

Thus he went from bad to worse.

One day, however, he woke up to his condition. He knew that something was wrong. And so he consulted a certain philosopher. The philosopher plied him with questions, thought for awhile, and then whispered something in his ear.

"That or nothing," said the philosopher.

Several years afterward the man was met by a friend.

"As I remember you," said the friend, "you were an impossible sort of creature. Always brooding. Always wondering why every one was so unjust to you."

"Yes," said the man.

"But now everyone likes you."

"Do they?" said the man, absently, starting to move along.

"Certainly. Tell me, how did you manage it—how did you recover?"

"Easy enough," said the man. "I consulted a philosopher."

"And what did he advise you to do?"

"He advised me to marry an extravagant woman. Since then I have been so busy that I haven't had time to resent anything."

Hunter and Hunted.

London Telegraph: A near-sighted sportsman strolled into a little hotel on the shores of Loch Carron, and complaining, said: "Just seen a seal, shot at it three times, and missed it each time."

At dinner, an hour later, he sat next to a tourist who had a bandage round his head.

"Had an accident?" asked the sportsman.

"Accident!" growled the other. "Attempted murder, you mean. I was having a bath about an hour ago, when some lunatic with a gun fired at me three times from the shore and shot part of my ear off. I don't know why such animals are allowed out without a license."

Then silence reigned supreme.

A Strasburg Society.

London Daily News: Talking of stairs reminds us, by a sequence of ideas which all who have ever been in Strasburg will understand, of the cathedral in that town and of a society which has just been formed there. Its name is quite a good one; it is called the Strasburgersmunsterthurmalletagesinodermehre malebestelgungsvereln; that is to say, the Strasburgcathedraltowereverydayoneormoretimes ascensionunion.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

New York Sun: Summer Boarder—Why wasn't the postcard delivered. Wasn't the address perfectly plain?

Postmaster—Yes; the address was plain enough, but I couldn't understand the rest of it.

Town and Country: Briggs—I see now they have a company to operate a line of flying machines across the English channel

Griggs—That's a good idea. Let's hope that some day we will have a line across Broadway.

Catholic Standard: "Then," said the reporter, "I'll say several pretty songs were rendered by Miss Packer."

"Oh, gracious no!" replied the hostess, "you must'n't say 'rendered.' You see her father made all his money in lard."

Philadelphia Bulletin: "I suppose you talk dialect to amuse the summer boarders?"

"I used to," answered Farmer Haw, "but not now. I call the farmhouse a bungalow in this year's prospectus and everything will be on a high-brow plane."

University of Michigan Gargoyle: Reporter—I understand your patient is dead.

Doctor—Yes. The operation was very successful, but she died of the shock.

Tit-Bits: "Mrs. Naggett," said the doctor, "your husband needs a rest. He must go to Hastings for three months."

"Oh, splendid!" she exclaimed. "I'll be delighted to go there."

"Very good. You go there for three months after he comes back. That will give him six months' rest."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Do you suppose," asked the stranger in Washington, "it would be possible for me to see the president?"

"Easiest thing in the world," replied the man who lived there. "Go over to the Union depot and wait around a while. He will either be starting away or getting back from somewhere."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There's too much about age in insurance policies for women to want any of them.

The sublimest impudence in the world is man's feeling of superiority over woman.

Love is good enough to get married on, to stay married ordinary commodities are needed.

A man can take pride in the way he's too liberal to hang onto his money to pay his debts with.

When a girl says she wants to learn to swim it's a sign she says it to the man she wants to teach her.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Successful air navigation means fly time twelve months in the year.

Anyway, the man in jail is safe from automobiles and grade crossings.

Though the proper study of mankind is man, the popular study is woman.

Some women can let out a lot of high-flown talk and make it sound like real language.

Automobile owners may have money to burn, but judging from the odor it must be more or less tainted.

If a young man would ascertain just how he stands with a maid he should make love to a widow in her presence.

A Bargain That Attracts Jews.

Life: It is known that Jews are acquisitive and not disposed to leave unacquired things that may be had and are worth having. That is intelligent of them. It is noticed, for example, that our newcomer Jews have observed that one of the best bargains offered here is education, and that they take with both hands all they can get. So much as is free they snatch at, and what is for sale they buy if they can, getting the most they possibly can for the money.

In this peculiarity they offer an example by which our young Gentile citizens might do well to profit.

Accommodating.

Success Magazine: Up to the night clerk's desk goes Abe Perimutter, a Chicago traveling man.

"I wonder," he says, "could you find me somebody to play a game of pinocle for an hour or two tonight?"

"Why," says the clerk, "I guess so," and he runs his eye over the register and selects Mr. Gutwillig. Before long Mr. Gutwillig is found and introduced to the pinocle-hungry Perimutter, and a game is arranged.

"How did you know I played pinocle?" asked Mr. Gutwillig of the clerk.

"Oh, I—" begins the clerk. Just then emerges from the bar a young man triple plied with wine. He staggers up to the desk and says:

"Shay, I wanna fight! D'yr hear? I'm lookin' f'r a scrap!"

"Boy, page Mr. Kelly and Mr. O'Brien."

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

is not an experiment. Six years ago it opened its doors with a modest plea in behalf of its aims and its methods, and the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college and to higher institutions of learning amply justify the claims it then made in its behalf, and its past successes will only stimulate its staff to higher efforts.

It admits boys and girls, and covers the field from the primary grades to college. Its teachers are specially trained for the work and, except in the primary grades, are men. Its course of study is broad and elastic, and besides the regular studies includes Manual Training, Experimental Science, Music and Drawing.

It has satisfied others; it will satisfy you.

MAKES IT EASIER TO IMPORT LUMBER

Treasury Department Takes Restrictions Off Canadian Shipments.

Washington, July 22.—Following conferences with Canadian officials by an expert sent from the treasury to Toronto, Acting Secretary Andrew has ordered the removal of impracticable restrictions on lumber imported into the United States in railway cars from Canada.

Beginning July 30 next the customs officials will discontinue requiring tally sheets or specifications of number of pieces of each size of lumber, laden on each railway car to be filed on entry. It was found virtually impossible to furnish such tally sheets, and hereafter the custom officers will insist upon only the commercial description and kind of lumber, number of pieces and aggregate number of feet in each car.

Trapped in Bed By Flames.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 22.—Trapped in bed with her 1-week-old baby, Mrs. Grace Wilson was burned to death yesterday afternoon. RHODE ISLAND WILL NOT GAIN IN CONGRESS.

Washington, July 22.—Gratifying as is the increase in the population of Rhode Island as shown by the census returns, the first given out for a state, the little commonwealth will be disappointed in any ambition she may have entertained to add to her representation in congress. The increase amounted to more than 118,000, but this is not sufficient to insure an additional representative. Thus for at least ten years more the state will be compelled to get on with two members, as it has been compelled to do since the apportionment under the first national census in 1890.

FIVE NEGROES KILLED BY SOUTHERN DEPUTY.

Elliot, Miss., July 22.—Five negroes were killed and two others were mortally wounded yesterday when the seven, taking issue with Deputy Sheriff Sid Cauley, who was trying to take them into custody on a minor charge, advanced on the officer with farm implements as weapons and with the avowed intention of "cutting him down." As Cauley and two citizens, deputized to assist him, approached, the negroes ceased their work in the field and seizing pitchforks, made for the deputy. Cauley then opened fire with two revolvers.

MR. R. E. BARNARD

Speaks Up For Electro-Radio. Now Permanent at Suite 810, Alworth Building.

After being treated by several of the leading specialists for supposed to be la grippe, Mr. R. E. Barnard, the well known justice of the peace, had about given up in despair of ever receiving any benefits.

Hearing about the great results accomplished at the Electro-Radio Institute he decided to make one more effort to regain his depreciating health.

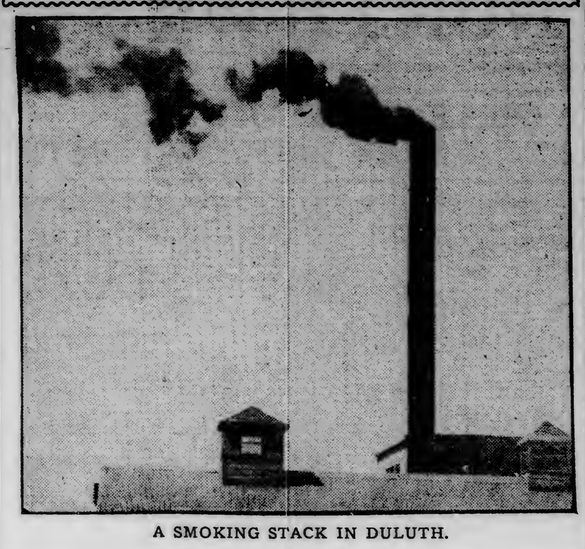

After a thorough examination by the experts, his trouble was found to be that of an enlarged liver and malaria.

For the first week he noticed little or no difference but to his surprise he began to notice a change for the better a few days ago. Yesterday Mr. Barnard made the following statement: "My friends claim they are beginning to see a remarkable change in my health; everyone who meets me remarks how well I am looking. This is remarkable as I realize that I had a serious malady, and if I continue to improve like I have it is only a question of time that I will once again be in perfect health. I am going to send my friends to you Doctors as I am convinced that your treatment is far beyond the ordinary."

The examination continues to be free this week and by acting quickly you may learn of a really special and extraordinary offer, an offer to be withdrawn permanently very soon as it is quite outside of the company's financial plans.

The hours are from 9 to 12, 2 to 4 and 7 to 8. 810 Alworth building.

BRITONS SAY IT IS SCANDAL

Pillsbury-Washburn Company Affairs Discussed By Directors.

London, July 22.—At a meeting of the directors of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company, Limited, yesterday, the report and accounts for the year were presented and passed after a stormy session. R. H. Glynn, chairman of the board, who presided at the meeting referred to the appalling loss of "$4,000,000," as shown by the report, saying "it was due partly to gross disobedience and partly to methods which can hardly be called by any other name than irregular. The question of restitution proceedings will have to be carefully considered."

John MacDonald Henderson, member of the house of commons, declared that he was prepared to find the money in his own pocket to probe to the end a situation which Director Cloutter characterized as "one of the greatest company scandals of modern times."

The Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company of Minneapolis went into the hands of a receiver on Aug. 8, 1908, application being made to the federal district court in that city by certain stockholders. It was said at the time that the action was taken for the purpose of reorganization and denial was made that the company was in any serious financial embarrassment. C. S. Pillsbury, A. C. Loring and A. C. Cobb were named receivers.

A scheme of reorganization was adopted in 1909 and has since been carried out, under which the claims of unsecured creditors, amounting to about $5,200,000, have been settled. Under this scheme the mills, trade marks and goodwill have been leased to an operating company formed in the United States with a capital of $2,000,000.

ENGLISH RAILWAY STRIKE IS OVER

Men Accept Company's Terms and Return to Work.

New Castle, Eng., July 22.—The strike of 12,000 employes of the Northeastern Railway ended last night as suddenly as it began on last Monday night. The men accepted the terms offered by the company and the night shifts commenced work at once. The day shifts reported for duty this morning.

The collapse of the strike followed quickly on the announcement that the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants had refused to recognize and finance the fight against the Northeastern company. As this society is one of the strongest labor organizations in England, it was at once predicted that the Northeastern strikers would be unable to carry their points without its support.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HERALD CUP IS AWARDED

Grand Forks Firm Wins Trophy Put Up By Duluth Newspaper.

Much Interest in Forty-Eight Hour Butter-Making Contest Resulted.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth Herald cup offered in the forty-eight hour butter contest at the state fair was awarded last night to Hart Bros., of Grand Forks. This was a new feature at the North Dakota fair and was watched with deep interest. The cow winning was a pure breed Jersey and the average attained was fairly satisfactory.

Tonight will bring to a close one of themost successful fairs that has ever been held in Grand forks. With the general crop conditions taken into consideration, the attendance records were most remarkable, the average attendance for four days being the very best that has ever been experienced. Exhibits, too, have been a great deal better than anticipated, every department showing up very fine.

Many Farmers Attend.

One of the best features of the attendance was the fact that a majority of those on the grounds were farmers —the men whom the bad weather conditions have hit the hardest. The fact that they come out to attend fairs and enjoy themselves is evidence of the fact that a single crop failture, or partial failure, is not sufficient to cause them to shed unnecessary tears and they are quickly forgetting their troubles. It also evidences the fact that they are in a prosperous condition and ready to meet a short season without difficulties.

The aeroplane flights by Arch Hoxsey, operating a Wright bi-plane, were easily the feature of the fair in an amusement way and they served to draw many thousands of the visitors. This was the day on which the last flight was made, Hoxsey making his trip for exhibition purposes and later raced against an automobile for five miles.

Splendid weather has prevailed throughout the fair and that fact has served to add greatly to the success that it achieved. Roads in every direction are in good shape and scores of automobile parties resulted, coming from all sections of the northeastern part of the state and from points in northwestern Minnesota.

LOFTY PULPWOOD CONVEYOR FROM WHICH FORMER DULUTH WOMAN JUMPED TO DEATH

ONE OF INTERNATIONAL FALLS SIGHTS.

International Falls, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is the immense pulpwood conveyor at the big paper mill here, from the top of which Helga Alsaker, formerly of Duluth, jumped to her death on the night of July 4, and from which Stella Norton was turned away on the night of the 11th, following which she committed suicide by jumping into the river.

The elevation is 120 feet. The conveyor is used for the handling of the pulpwood, it being first sawed into proper lengths for reduction in the wood preparing room and then shot into the conveyor for piling. The structure is of steel, and can be adjusted to any desired angle or swung to whatever position on a circle it may be wanted. Immense piles can thus be stored in the yards at a point convenient to the mill.

PAVING COMPANY WINS CONTENTION

North Dakota City Warrants Must Specify Date to Be Retired.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a decision handed down by Judge C. F. Templeton the claim of the Bithulithic Paving company, a North Dakota city, in issuing warrants for public improvement work must specify the date at which the warrant is to be retired, was knocked out. The company contended that when the city reserved the right to retire the warrants at any time it chose to do so it operated against the disposal of the warrants. The city claimed to have the right to retire the warrants at any time and that view is held by the court. It affects all cities in North Dakota operating under the city charter.

The new arrangement will bring to this city approximately 250 high salaried employes. The work of making the change will begin at once and its general outline will be as accomplished fact by Oct. 1. In order to permit the company to carry out its plans the city has formally vacated three principal streets .

The paving cutters and stone cutters will fall in line and parade the streets, play baseball, association football, have a tug-of-war and other amusements to make the day an interesting one to themselves and the citizens as well. Some prominent labor speakers will be selected to address the throng, and floats representing their trades and showing how the rough stone is being worked into ornamental stone, will be shown on floats in the parade. A big day is anticipated for Sept 5.

ST. PAUL COAST SERVICE.

Delay in Getting Equipment Postpones Starting Through Trains.

Winona, Minn., July 22.—Through passenger train service between St. Paul and Seattle, on the coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, probably will not be inaugurated before Sept. 15, according to E. D. Sewell, vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, who passed Winona Wednesday en route from Chicago to St. Paul.

"No definite announcement can now be made when the service will be started," said Mr. Sewell. "The only thing keeping us waiting is the equipment. BOOMLETS FOR OFFICE

That Are Certain to Wither Under the Fall Frost.

New Yorkers Aroused Over Attack on Their Fire Chief.

New York, July 22.—More silly-season politics are today being played in this city than have ever before bewildered the sun-broiled brains of its people. Proximity to Oyster Bay as well as to the torrid orb of the sun seems to have hatched whole broods of booms and party policies in the heated imagination of the summer crowd. Scores of candidates, whose names no one will be able to remember by September, are today basking in boomlets for office that float easily in the superheated atmosphere. Whole parties are now created and rearranged about every rumor from the Roosevelt retreat that filters through the fans. Never has New York been so stirred over this annual crop of summer political plants, that are sure to wither and blow away at the first touch of fall frost.

Fire Flurry.

Shocked at the mere question of top-notch efficiency in their fire department, New Yorkers are today rallying to organize the most searching inquisition that has ever probed the official depths of the force. Upon a young aristocrat who, as the new commissioner, has undertaken to allow the veteran Chief Croker to be tried on charges, the brunt of this popular investigation is sure to fall. When Rhinelander Waldo was touring Fifth avenue in a gilded baby carriage, the head fire fighter, whom he now seeks to question, was taking a man's part in directing the onslaughts of the flame-eating force. For over a score of years Croker has led the red shirts here with the confidence of every man, woman and child in town. It is not considered likely that this record will be forgotten, although New York will insist upon a full and free explanation of the disturbing causes in the present demoralization of its fire force.

Fight Fans.

With thousands of colored folk swarming about Jack Johnson at every step he takes about town, and scores of returning sports talking over the fall of Jeffries, this city is today buzzing with pugilistic interest. No one is apparently taking seriously the attempted crusade against showing the pictures of the fight here, and nothing in the behavior of blacks or whites over the triumphant entry of Johnson has indicated any chance of race riots on this account. In answer to the outcry of certain professional reformers, the fight fans have offered to leave the decision on showing the films to a certain Col. Roosevelt down at Oyster Bay. Some scouts from Sagamore Hill are whispering that more pugilism than politics was talked in those parts for days after the Reno fight.

Befriending Birds.

To hear of the results of the recent international congress for bird protection at Berlin and to honor the American delegate, who has given the best years of his life in the cause of this country's wild life, leading ornithologists, zoologists and conservationists have today assembled in this city. As a tribute to William Dutcher's leadership of the National Association of Audubon societies, these men have already collected some $7,000 toward a fund to be devoted to bird protection in the name of his deceased daughter. Roosevelt, Pinchot and many other exponents of conservation have today added their endorsement to this work of saving the country's bird resources, which Dutcher has pushed with all his might through a long lifetime with the support of hundreds of co-workers throughout the land.

Seashore Slumbers.

Shunning their baking roofs, walls and beds, thousands of New Yorkers are sleeping on the sands of the outlying seashore each night of this torrid week. By sundown the pilgrimage to the coast begins and at sunrise troops of the open-air sleepers return to their work in town. While every park in town is carpeted thick with outdoor slumberers, the beaches seem to give most relief to the sweltering crowds.

AWFUL BOTCH OF JUSTICE SHOWN

Man Admits Murdering Children Whose Father Was Punished for Crime.

Tours, France, July 22.—A ragpicker named Joseph has confessed to the assassination, April 21, 1901, of five children of a farmer name Briere in the vicinity of Chartres. The father of the children was found guilty of the murders and sentenced to life imprisonment. He died in prison.

The trial of Briere attracted the attention of the whole of France. Four of his daughters, aged respectively 14, 11, 5 and 4, and his son, 7 years old, were found in bed one morning stabbed and beaten to death. The farmer was arrested and charged by the police with the crime.

Police Found Motive.

According to a theory advanced by the police to provide a motive for the crime, Briere, who owned a small farm near Cereancez, wished to marry a woman of considerable wealth. Circumstantial evidence led to the conviction that the farmer, considering his family an encumbrance, murdered his five children in order to carry out his wishes.

Briere stoutly maintained his innocence throughout the trial and declared that two tramps entered the house during his absence and killed the children. He added that he returned while the murderers were robbing the place and that they attacked him and left him for dead. During the trial the judge got down from the bench and gave loud expression to his opinion of the guilt of the prisoner, while the spectators yelled with fury:

"Kill him! Kill him!"

Defended by Daughter.

A pathetic incident of the trial occurred when Briere's surviving daughter, who the police declared escaped the fate of the other children by not responding to Briere's invitation to go to see him, went on the witness stand, sobbingly protested that her father was innocent and begged the court to restore him to her.

DREAMED HE WAS CALLED

To Repair Wires and Snyder Took a Fatal Jump.

Springfield, Ohio, July 22.—Grover Snyder, a foreman of the Springfield Light, Heat & Power company, walked out of a third-story window at the Commercial hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning, sustaining fatal injuries. For three nights Snyder had been called at the above hour to go to work on account of trouble with the wires, and the supposition is that he was dreaming of being called again when he took the tumble.

JERRY IS SOME SLEEPER.

Had Ear Cut Off By Car and Did Not Awaken.

Kittanning, Penn., July 22.—Jerry Smeltzer of Vandergrift went to sleep on a street car track, using the rail as a pillow. A car fender struck him on the head, cutting off his right ear.

The impact of the fender did not even disturb the sleep of Smeltzer.

The crew thought he was dead and placed him on the car. Smeltzer awoke and was angry when he placed his hand to the right side of his head and discovered his ear was missing.

"Where is my ear?" demanded Smeltzer.

"I couldn't find it," replied the conductor.

Smeltzer wanted to get off and look for his ear, but the car crew insisted that he come to Kittanning for treatment.

Aside from losing his ear, Smeltzer was not injured.

TRUST DISSOLVED

By Death of Mary Niedringhaus—Children Get $7,000,000.

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—By the death of Mrs. Mary Neidringhaus, at Jamestown, R. I., the $7,000,000 estate of her husband, William F. Niedringhaus, reverts to her four sons and six daughters, to be divided among them. William F. Niedringhaus died July 13, 1908, leaving his estate in trust, which his widow's death dissolved. He founded Granite City, Ill., as an industrial community, and his estate consists chiefly of stock in the National Enameling and Stamping company and real estate there and here.

GARTER SNAKES USED

In Ohio to Kill Potato Bugs—Are Useful Otherwise.

Cadiz, Ohio, July 22.—A new use for snakes was discovered on the farm of Hon. Samuel K. McLaughlin of near Adena, a few miles east of Cadiz, by Charles Albright, a farmer. He saw a garden snake coiled about a potato plant near him, and killed it.

He was surprised in a few moments to see another snake coiled about the top of a plant in another row, and, being curious to know what the snakes could be doing in such a position, he watched for a few moments, and was rewarded by seeing the snake gather the potato bugs from all over the plant and eat them with an apparent relish. He allowed this snake to have its freedom, and he says there would be work for quite a little army of these reptiles in his potato field.

Many farmers refuse to allow snakes of any kind found in this section to be killed, as they declare they destroy hundreds of field mice, rats, and even ground squirrels, that are such a pest to farmers in destroying grain of different kinds at different seasons of the year.

But Father Swears He Is Too Young to Marry.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 22.—It is not the father of the bride who is going to prosecute some one for perjury in making an affidavit as to her age to get a license in this story, but the father of the groom, and, too, notwithstanding that the groom not only has been making his own living for several years, but has prospered as a business man.

Leo Clatfelter, owner of a meat market, wanted to be married to Miss Eva McCullough, but he found that his father had warned county clerks in Vigo and adjacent counties against issuing a license. Then he got a brother of Miss McCulloch to make an affidavit, not that Miss McCulloch was of legal age, but that he, Leo Clatfelter, was 21. He was just past 18 as a matter of fact, but he had done a man's work for a number of years.

Father Clatfelter says "the boy is too young," and, moreover, "this is the first girl he ever had."

WOMAN FINED FOR SELLING MINORS CIGARETTES.

Laurium, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—For selling tobacco and cigarettes to minors, Mrs. Anna Johnson of the Florida location, a suburb of Laurium, was convicted and fined heavily in a local police court this week. The woman paid the fine rather than go to jail. A very strict campaign against the selling of tobacco and liquor to minors has been started here.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT MALARIAL POISONING

Malaria is a systemic blood poison, a disease which gradually destroys the richness and nourishing elements of the blood. When the malarial poison begins to absorb the rich, red corpuscles of the circulation we see pale, sallow complexions, and a general impairment of health. But Malaria means more than this, and as the blood becomes weaker from the poison, the appetite fails, digestion is disturbed, chills and slight fever are frequent, and in aggravated cases boils and eruptions, liver spots, and even abscesses break out on the flesh. To sum it all up, Malaria means blood poverty, and the only way to cure the trouble is to enrich and purify the blood. Nothing is equal to S. S. S. as a blood purifier and it is specially adapted to the cure of malarial troubles, because it contains no harmful minerals, and while ridding the blood of the malarial poison, S. S. S. builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effects. If you are suffering with malaria, begin the use of S. S. S. at once, and by cleansing the blood, rid yourself of this wasting disease. Book on the Blood and any medical advice free to all. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

If You Are Fat and Hot Read This Article

There is no necessity of fat people suffering as they do. Most fat people are so good-natured they do not care how they look or how they get along during the hot weather. As a matter of fact there is a natural fat reducer that in the past several years has been demonstrating that it will reduce fat and not tear down the body or leave big, flabby rolls of skin and wrinkles. This method is the famous Marmola prescription, which is now prepared in tablet form to meet the demands of fat people in the summer and to enable them at all times to take their fat reducer after each meal. One of these little tablets taken after a meal turns that meal into good food for the blood and stops all fat-producing elements from going into the system. Marmola Tablets has an army of men and women who testify to its success, and you would tire reading what they say of its triumphs. Marmola tablets not only stop producing fat in the body but they reduce flesh at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and do nothing but assist nature to give to the body the nourishment it requires. They are sold at all drug stores, price 75 cents, or you may write The Marmola Company, 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Some Concessions Made in Produce Prices to Move Stocks.

Early Running of Cattle Has Effect on Meat Prices.

Eggs declined this week, cheese was easier and butter held firm. Most varieties of meats slumped on account of the heavy marketing of cattle. Fruit and vegetables enjoyed a broad outlet, peaches taking the lead in the former trade. The demand for produce failed to expand in proportion to the supplies, however, and many concessions were made to move stock.

After holding firm at 20c for several weeks, eggs declined to 19c. Receipts have not been as heavy as earlier in the summer but there was little demand for storage purposes and the hot weather restricted consumption and affected the quality of arrivals. Lighter supplies were ample for the requirements of the trade.

All grades of butter held firm and prices did not change. Buyers for immediate consumption took hold sparingly on account of the warm weather and because they looked for reductions in prices. As the week closed the market is stronger. The consumptive demand has been fair. There is little surplus at any time as storage people are taking care of supplies not taken by retailers and out-of-town people. Creameries are having little difficulty in disposing of their surplus grades of the better sort to cold storage interests.

American makes of cheese were inclined to be weak. Fancy full cream lost ½c a pound from 17c. Block Swiss declined from 21c to 20c. Otherwise there were no changes in prices, although the undertone to the cheese market was weak. There has been no surplus on the market on account of the activity of cold storage people, but the consumptive demand has contracted. Rains in the latter part of last week and the fore part of this week were believed to have been beneficial to pastures in the cheese-making districts. The precipitation, it is said, will result in an unusually large production of cheese. Dealers do not believe there will be any surplus stock, however.

Potatoe prices experienced sharp changes. Old potatoes advanced from 40c to 50c a bu and new potatoes declined from $1.10 to $1 a bu. Buyers have been particular about quality and have turned to the bulk or sack offerings when barreled stock did not hold the class of potatoes which they sought. New Potatoes are coming in more heavily and supplies of old potatoes are not pressing on the market. The outlook for the new crop in this state is fair.

Green vegetables are slightly cheaper, with a few exceptions. Hot weather has not favored a heavy consumption of many varieties, and the demand was lighter than in the preceding week, while suplies were larger. Extreme heat affected supplies in transit, and so much poor stock was received that sellers frequently had to make special concessions to attract buyers. This was especially true of tomatoes. Many of the arrivals were green, and instead of ripening after reaching the market, the tomatoes showed spots and decayed before they could be sold. Cabbage receipts were heavier and prices were easy. Beans sold slowly and dry onions were especially soft.

In the fruit trade peaches took the lead early in the week and held it. The market was overrun with supplies of Elberta peaches, but the consumptive demand increased in proportion and dealers had no trouble in moving stocks. The quality was excellent and the public took hold rapidly at moderate prices. Watermelons were firm in price, but there was a ready demand for all offerings. Canteloupes also sold briskly, and the supply of fancy Californias and Arizonas was kept well cleaned up. Pineapples were in liberal supply and the demand was moderately active. The market for apples was fair. Green apples met with a fair demand. Prices were relatively high. Lemons were offered more freely and prices were easier. Oranges had a moderate sale. Berries were in large supply and met with a fairly active demand at easy prices for nearly all varieties.

Dried fruits are higher and the cost of peaches and prunes to retailers has been advanced. The new prices are based on Pacific coast conditions. An enormous demand for this season of the year has practically cleaned up the California packers of the 1909 crop of peaches and prunes. Second hands hold the available stock, which is exceedingly light. New peaches will not come into the local market before August and prunes are not expected to be on the market in large quantities before October.

The olive crop is short and the best grades of olives have recently advanced in price. There is some question in the minds of jobbers as to whether there will be any cheap teas this season. The opening prices of the new first crop teas of last year were lower than the prices of second crop teas.

Reports bear out the claims of shortage in the pea crop in Wisconsin and Michigan, the leading producers. Weather conditions at the close of the growing seasons were more favorable, but there is no doubt that a large shortage in the crop exists and that prices next winter for canned goods will be much higher than at present.

The shortage in tomatoes will be fully 20 per cent. In corn futures the market is getting into a stronger position especially on Maine style. The majority of packers have withdrawn from the market on future corn. The packers have sold heavily on future corn and the disposition is to wait until the season is well under way before accepting further business. Packers were well cleaned up at this time last year and many jobbers were holding round lots for which they obtained a good profit on their investment. This year jobbers are practically sold up and retailers have less than their usual supply. Indications point to a reduced pack.

Owing to the dry weather and failure of the ranges the run of cattle to packing centers is extremely large. For the time being this condition provides a plentiful supply of meat at easier prices. Mutton declined this week from 10@11c to 8½@9½c. Pork loins declined from 13½@14c to 13@13½c. Veal slumped from 10@11c to 9@11c. Lamb was reduced to 13@14c from 14@15c. Lard declined ½c a pound from 14c.

The poultry market is practically bare of dressed offerings.

CHANCE FOR BOOKKEEPERS.

Four Thousand Will Be Needed in Postal Savings Banks.

Washington, July 22.—This city will have one of the first fifty experimental postal savings banks to be established under the postal savings bank bill. The committee of government officials believes that one of the banks should be directly under the eye of the postmaster general so that the committee may keep in constant touch with its operation.

According to the estimates of the committee, each postoffice in the country will have to keep an average of two ledgers, which will necessitate the keeping of from 5,000 to 100,000 ledgers and the employment of about 4,000 bookkeepers.

Applications for postal savings banks have been received by the postoffice department from 240 postmasters in thirty-six different states. Banks to the number of 535 in forty-four different states have applied to the department for designations as postal bank depositories.

Calumet, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The automobile trip planned by Calumet, Houghton and Hancock people to Chicago and Milwaukee by way of Watersmeet, Wis., will likely be postponed until fall because of the reports of forest fires in the vicinity of Watersmeet along the roads to be traversed. The route for the trip has been mapped out. It is likely that from three to a half dozen machines will carry the party when it leaves here.

PRIZES FOR CHILDREN

For Keeping Streets Clean Is Mayor Seidel's Plan.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—Prizes for children in connection with keeping the streets of Milwaukee clean and the elevation of the "White Wings" giving trustworthy ones power of arrest for violations of health ordinances, are among the recommendations embraced in a special message of Mayor Emil Seidel, which he will have printed and sent to every member of the common council at once.

"The place to begin with is the children," says the mayor. "The boy and girl can be an auxiliary to our street cleaning force. Let us reward the child that aids to the greatest extent in removing litter from the streets, alleys, or vacant lots."

As prizes, he suggests monthly outings, picnics, a souvenir medal or other recognition.

WILL MAKE LO HUSTLE FOR HIS OWN SUPPORT.

Washington, July 22.—In pursuance of its aim to raise the Indian to the same plane of independence occupied by his compeers of other races, the bureau of Indian affairs will materially decrease the rations to be distributed among the red men this year. The rations, it is said, will be confined largely to aged and indigent Indians.

The Indian bureau believes that in decreasing the rations so far as possible it is lending a helping hand to the Indian in his combat for self-support.

In the sixth Hughes issued two passes, which, with an error, two singles and a two-base hit, netted five runs, all the scores made by the locals. Duluth's run was scored in the seventh on a base on balls, a double by Holstrom and Kohl's sacrifice.

SERIES WITH SUPERIOR TO OPEN

Fans Planning to Attend Saturday's Game Between Sox and Grumblers.

Tomorrow morning the rejuvenated White Sox will return from a road trip that has been the most successful yet made by the Duluth aggregation the present season. The fans will be glad to welcome the boys home, for there is widespread feeling through the city that Duluth has a team that will climb to the first division in the pennant race, and also a team that will be a credit to the city.

With Kohl added to the infield and Hughes to the staff of pitchers, the Sox have a team that will compare favorably with any team in the league. Darby is confident that he will finish the season higher than Superior. He communicated this belief in a letter to J. J. Desmond, and the new owners of the team will render every assistance to the harp in the execution of this laudable ambition.

A large number of fans are planning to go to Superior tomorrow and boost for the Sox. There is a genuine interest felt in the welfare of the team, and with the better showing of the boys, and the belief that Duluth is going to land in the first division, there is a desire to stick by the Sox.

The next three games will be played in Superior, the Sox calling them to their own ballwick for a series of games that it is believed will place the Sox on the heels of Winona and Wausau. Winona is slumping badly at the present time. A spurt on the part of the Sox will enable them to pass the Pirates. Then it should be a fight between Duluth, Wausau and Superior for second and third places.

SEMI-FINALS TODAY.

Waidner-Graves and Armstrong-Gardner Playing for Title.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—The semi-final round in singles in the Northwestern Tennis championship tournament is being played today at Lake Minnetonka, with L. H. Waidner of Chicago and W. C. Graves of St. Paul and Joseph Armstrong of St. Paul and P. F. Gardner of Chicago matched. The finals will be played tomorrow and the winner will become champion, as M. F. McLaughlin, last year's champion, will not return to defend his title.

Waidner defeated Ray Bronson of Sioux Falls, S. D., yesterday 6-0, 6-3. Gardner and Armstrong both winning their matches in the fourth round.

Wrestler Goes West.

Carl Nelson, the local middleweight wrestler has left for a trip to Montana. The Duluth boy may decide to make his future home in the West.

Ball Players Acquitted.

Elmira, N. Y., July 22.—The four ball players, members of the Elmira state league club, who were arrested last Sunday, charged with violating the law in playing ball on Sunday, were acquitted yesterday.

May Fight in Ball Park.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 22.—Harry Edwards of this city is trying to arrange a six-round bout between Al Kaufman and Sam Langford at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, Aug. 10. A few details to make the match binding are lacking, but Edwards hopes to close negotiations.

CREWS SENT ON TIME ROW

Junior Eight Makes Fast Trial Over Regular Course.

Bantams Also Set Good Mark ---Michaud Appears as Coxswain.

Both the junior eight and the bantam four went over the course in time rows last evening. The water was far from favorable, and in both cases the time is considered good under the circumstances. The eight made the fastest time of the season, which, considering the fact that the men had new and slippery oars, and that the water was rough, is considered the most encouraging feat of the past two weeks.

Time rows for the eight will probably be held tonight and tomorrow afternoon. A work out will also be taken here Monday afternoon and probably Tuesday morning. This week will conclude the hardest work of the season, as next week will be chiefly devoted to keeping the men on edge and putting the finishing touches on the form, stroke and rhythm of the boat.

As yet the coaches are not satisfied that the men in the boat have pushed themselves to the limit of their endurance. Last evening, for instance, Coach L'Estrange and Murray Peyton, following the eight in the launch, expressed the opinion after the time trial that, had the men slugged it in the last quarter mile of the course, the time trial would have been the most satisfactory in years.

As it is the coaches are a trifle more satisfied with the work of the eight. They believe the power is in the boat, and every effort will be made to get the crew under the eight-minute mark before it leaves for Kenora, Tuesday evening.

Ted Mapp was out with the bantams last night, changing places with Talboys and coming back over the course with the men. He fits in the boat nicely, to all appearances, and seems to have the endurance. If any changes should be made in the bantams, Mapp will be ready to fill any of the four places.

Walker may be rowed in the eight, and should he be taken out of the bantams, Mapp may be asked to go into the four.

It is expected that the second eight will be out tonight and tomorrow night. The second eight has rendered valuable assistance the present week, and with the final workouts between the two eights tonight and tomorrow night, the first crew will be primed for the final preparation period that will come the first four days of next week.

The men in the boat have a confidence that may be characterized as quiet and sure, rather than boastful and out-bound on a firm determination to win. Every man in the boat knows that he will be called upon to punish himself in the race of a week from today as he has never punished himself before. The men are being steeled to this fact every evening.

Not once the present season has the crew rowed itself completely out. This is what the crew will be called to do at Kenora. The men know this fact, and it is very doubtful if ever a crew went out from Duluth with more quiet determination to row to the very limit of endurance than is possessed by the present junior eight.

As a man who has followed rowing for years remarked last evening:

"When a man puts his legs down as hard as he can every stroke for the 300 odd strokes that make the race, you can really bet he will be rowed out at the finish."

The drive is what the coaches are after. It is the hard and unrelenting drive that wins races. A man may be tired and his body rebel against the grueling, punishing effort he is exacting of it, yet the true oarsman shows his stripe when he grits his teeth and gives all he has during the last stretches of the race.

That is what the Duluth crew is expected to show. Coach L'Estrange has left no doubt in the minds of any of the men. The members of the crew know their duty and here it is believed that if Duluth fails to win it will be because the men fail to come up to the standard that is expected of them in this very regard.

Last night Little Artie Michaud was placed at coxswain in the first eight. He coxed the senior eight in the great race at St. Paul last season. He has the fight and dash and spirit and it is believed that he can get the work out of the men.

CLOSE FINISHES AT GRAND RAPIDS

Jones-Geers' Horse Takes 2:06 Pace After Hard Race.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 22.—There were no "sure things" in the third day's racing of the Grand Rapids harness meet and extra heats and sharp finishes were the rule.

The Jones-Geers entry, Walter W., took the $5,000 Comstock stake for the 2:06 pace, but only after a hard pace. Snow, who was up behind Walter W., brought him safely under the wire in the first heat, but the gelding, after leading well around in both the second and third heats, tired badly in the stretch and finished in the rear. Walter W. came back strong in the fourth heat, making the best time of the day, 2:04 3-4, and won in a hard drive. Walter Hal pushed him to the wire in the fifth, but the Geers' horse won under the whip. The 2:21 pace furnished the most exciting racing of the day, the finishes of the first four heats being of the nose and nose variety.

After Hal Pointer and Nathan B. had each won a heat, Walter Boy showed the speed and captured the next race in the next three heats.

Alice Roosevelt, favorite in the 2:11 trot, took the first heat handily, but in the second was forced to yield to Vitos' great burst of speed. Vitos raced her hard in the third heat, but was driven off his feet at the final turn, breaking so badly he was distanced. Alice Roosevelt then had no further trouble.

In the 2:16 trot Sable Maid had things pretty much her own way. Argot Hal broke down while warming up for the first heat and was withdrawn.

Reiger Falls Back.

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—Pitcher Elmer Reiger was released to the St. Paul American association by the St. Louis Nationals yesterday.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

There are many surprised fans in this 'ere town, over the fact that the Detroit Tigers are not able to keep within shouting distance of Connie Mack's Athletics.

Because Detroit is a marine city, and likewise because Duluth is also very much in love with the lake commerce business, these two cities have something akin, or many things that both seem to snare in common. For that reason there are many people in this city who are widely acquainted in Detroit. There are not a few people here who make an annual trip to Detroit. Many of these people are boosters for the Detroit Tigers.

These people have come to believe that the Jennings' crew had a mortgage on the pennant in the American league. All along they have said that there was nothing to the race. When the Tigers were in the ruck, these people stated that it was only a temporary slump. They stuck to their original opinion until very recently, when they have come to the conclusion that, perhaps after all, there was some chance of the Detroit team losing the flag.

Who can tell? The Tigers might go out at the present time and cop the bunting. They look almost out of the race, but the Jennings' pupils have a great way of finishing strong. But to even the most loyal friends of the Tigers it looks as if the Athletics have the best show for the gonfalon. Mack's men have played great ball all season and in addition to the great pace his team is going at, Mack has the very best pitching staff in the American league.

It does look awfully hard to beat the Athletics, and even the staunch friends of the Detroit team in this city are beginning at last to admit that there is some team in the American league aside from the Tigers, that has a show for the calico.

That is it—we got so we used to winning. Detroit has won three in a row. Chicago won three in a row. Pittsburg came along and won for three consecutive years, and then were beaten out of the flag on the fourth trial. If the Tigers should happen to win the present year they would beat all records for modern baseball achievement. But we have gotten so we have to see it to believe it, that we rather shy at the impertinent thought that any other team has the least right to look with covetous eyes upon the flag.

It looks very much as if the Tigers will be lucky the present season to finish second or third. New York and the Boston Speed Boys are going awfully fast. Their pitchers are working better than the men Jennings had in reserve to form mound work. It really looks as if the mighty have fallen; that the Tigers have slackened their stride and are getting weary of the race.

An Excess of Frenzy.

In these days of nervous excitement and fads, we are given to much that seems illogical in the light of many other glaring inconsistencies. We rush under one banner of reform, forgetting that there are many other fields of conflict where our pent up energies might be well employed.

For instance, Bill, we have this rush to oust the strenuous prize fighter from the gathering of the lucre. If many had their way, the prize fighter with the ear of rounded lump, would be chased from the land and the fight would be a thing of the barbarous past.

Now this may be all right in its ways and then, again, it may not. Right at the present time in this large country of ours, there are many things worse than prizefighting. The institution of prizefighting may not be the most refined in the world, but few of the burlies ever hurt each other, for they have not sufficient brains or nerves to imagine they are hurt. Two well trained brutes hammering each other. The result is generally very harmless.

But turn to some of the reforms that the people who are always ready to yelp might accomplish, if they were really sincere in their march to the battle of uplift.

The wretched condition of child labor in the South might be pointed out. Here is a field of reform, great and possessing wonderful possibilities. Do you suppose for a minute that it is one hundredth as bad to have two well fed and husky and healthy brutes pound one another for a large fortune, as it is to allow thousands of underfed, sickly and weak children laboring through the long hour of a dragging day?

Well, it isn't. Very few people will stand up for prizefighting. Though at that, when a fight is pulled off, you can generally find the best men of the community at the ringside—if the fight is a good one. It isn't the question of the ethical standing of the prizefight as an institution; rather, it is a question as to why a great many people who never even saw a prizefight should want it stopped, when there are so many other things, much worse and involving countless more harm and injury to countless more people, should be glossed over by the loudly-yelling reformers.

We have many faults of the state and nation to correct. There are defects of our laws that are annually sapping the young strength of the nation; making children old before their time; grinding in abject and hopeless toil many who would be benefitted by a little intelligence upon the part of the law.

Yet here we have a great hue and cry against prizefighting. Stop the game, if it is so radically wrong such a menance against the moral fiber of the nation. There are other wrongs, however, that strike at the very heart of the nation's health and very being, and the loud denunciators of the game of fisticuffs might find an ample field here for their excess of frenzied energy.

Fighters to France.

Just as the owners of running horses are looking to Mexico and Cuba for fields of prospective development in the bang tail game, so are the fighters holding the hope that France, the home of that famous lightweight, Napoleon Bonaparte, who met all comers and held the championship of Europe for quite a few years, will be the scene of the big fights of the future.

There is a great interest in the game in the gay city of Paris. For these few years back the praises of the boulevards have run with the sound of the name of one Sam McVey, a negro who resembles more closely a gorilla than a human being. In France, it would seem, the uglier and more ferocious looking the fighter, the nearer he is held to the ideal type.

If the big fights are to be held in France, second-class fighters of the McVey type will be driven from the pedestal of hero worship. The pioneers of the game will slowly be forced to take their proper station with the American influx of greedy coin chasers.

And talking of fighters, Adrienne, did it ever occur to you who was the greatest fighter of history? If you are Irish, you will answer John L. Sullivan, "Yours truly, always on the level."

But we don't mean Sullivan. There was Caesar, Al the Great, Lightweight Napoleon, Old Man Hannibal, who was open to meet all comers and who always carried the battle to his opponent. Looking over the records of these men with careful scrutiny, it will be observed that Al the Great was the shiftiest on his feet and could cover the most territory. Caesar kept boring in constantly, and had an uppercut which he used at close quarters, that was a beauty.

Little Napoleon was a fighter on the order of Kid Lavigne. He never knew when he was beaten. He wasn't really knocked out at Waterloo; his seconds threw up the sponge. Those who bet that he was not knocked out, win. Hannibal was a grizzled veteran who never wasted a punch. He was clever at sneaking one over on the enemy. He was crafty and fought much on the order of Robert J. Fitzsimmons, another famous general.

Taking the records of Al, Bony, Caesar and Hanny, after impartial consideration of their fighting qualifications, we would say that Nap Bonaparte had the most science and a wonderful punch for a man of his stature. He was clever on the hit and getaway, and when he had an opponent going, kept boring in and throwing in heavy rights and lefts.

Al the Great was undoubtedly the fastest, and Caesar had probably the heaviest punch; but, all things considered, it is believed that Kid Napoleon could have cleaned the bunch, for his ring generalship was pre-eminent.

CRACK GOLFERS ARE GATHERING

All-Western Tournament at Minnikahda Club Promises Fine Play.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—With the arrivals in Minneapolis yesterday of a number of golfers who will compete in the Western Amateur championship next week, the links of the Minnikanda club, where the tournament is to be held, took on something of the animated appearance that will mark them for the next ten days.

Among yesterday's arrivals were Robert A. Gardner Albert Seckle, Addison Stillwell, Paul Hunter, Kenneth Edwards and others of Chicago; Harry Allen of St. Louis, Clarence Stanley and several other Indiana golfers and a number of Wisconsin's best players.

The exact make-up of the teams which will compete tomorrow in the Olympic cup contest has not yet been determined in all instances. It is believed, however, that in addition to the Minnesota, Wisconsin, trans-Mississippi and Iowa teams, there will also be teams representing Illinois and Colorado, the veteran Walter Fairbanks to head the latter.

The earlier arrivals spent yesterday in trying out the course, pronouncing it extremely fast, although dried by the hot weather. Kenneth Edwards made a 72 yesterday, bogie being 80.

BEMIDJI SUNDAY SPORTS.

Racing Matinee and Ball Game Are to Be Given.

Bemidji, Minn., June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A strong card of sports will be offered Sunday, when there will be a horse racing matinee and a baseball game at the driving park.

The Bemidji horses which have participated in the two other matinees, will again be entered, and in addition it is expected that some fast ones from St. Cloud will also be entered. The owners of several good pacing horses intended having their animals here for the races last Sunday, but missed connections. It is their intention to be present next Sunday.

There will be a free-for-all, a 2:35 trot or pace, and possibly a 2:25 trot or pace.

The Cass Lake baseball team will play the Bemidji team at the conclusion of the races, and it is expected that the game will be a good one. The Cass Lakers have been putting up a great article of ball since they secured their college pitcher, Schmidt, who recently held the Colored Gophers to a score of 1 to 1. The Cass Lake players defeated Bemidji recently, but the locals will try and get even by taking Sunday's game.

M'GRAW IN FIGHT.

Gives Pitcher Raymond Black Eye in Encounter On Field.

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—Pitcher Arthur Raymond and Manager McGraw, of the New York nationals, clashed here this afternoon and the pitcher is suffering from a discolored optic as a result. When he reported at the ball park his condition displeased McGraw, who ordered him to remove his uniform.

Raymond refused and a mixup was precipitated by McGraw, from which Raymond emerged second best. Later he removed his uniform and left the club house.

Invincibles Clip Eagles.

The Invincibles defeated the Eagles by the score of 20 to 6. The winners played good ball throughout, the errors of the Eagles contributing to the high score of the Invincibles. Page and Bonda were in the points for the winners; Farrel, Jones and Walker being the battery for the Eagles.

Sullivan to Train Men.

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—Frank Sullivan of Chicago has been appointed swimming instructor for the Missouri Athletic club. He will train the contestants for the ten-mile river swim to be held Labor day. His contract is for one year.

PROGRAM AT BOAT CLUB

Every Department of Club Represented in Events for Saturday.

Sailing, Rowing, Canoe and Motor Boat Races Are Scheduled.

BOAT CLUB SPORT PROGRAM.

War canoe race between girls' crews.
Twenty-foot motor boat race.
Thirty-two-foot sailing race in Joseph B. Cotton cup series.
Start of the 28-foot race for Commercial club cup.
Rowing race between first and second eights.
Swimming and diving exhibitions in front of clubhouse.

Tomorrow afternoon the Duluth Boat club will stage the biggest and most attractive sport program of the present season. The program has been rounded out to include events in each of the departments of the club, and it is expected that the largest crowd that has ever assembled at the club will witness the various events of tomorrow.

One of the most interesting and novel of the events will be the race between the two war canoes, each manned, or girled, rather, by crews of sixteen girls. For the past few years this race has been an annual feature of the club, and it has attracted unusual interest. Both crews have been practicing hard and the race promises to be one for medals.

It is perfectly needless to mention that both crews are determined to win. Club pins will be presented to each member of the winning crew, so that aside from the distinction of beating the other crew, there will be the pins to think of.

The protest of "Bill" Jones, captain of the Fritz, Jr., over the result of the motor boat race last Saturday in the 20-foot class, has resulted in the ordering of the race to be recontested tomorrow. The race will be for ten miles, and promises to be equally as exciting as the race of last Saturday. The Evelyn D, the La Belle Julie and the Fritz, Jr., three boats that were closely contesting every foot of the race a week ago, will all be in the race tomorrow.

In the sailing department of the club two very interesting events have been arranged. The Allegro and the Minotaur will contest for the Joseph B. Cotton cup in the thirty-two class, while the twenty-eight-foot class boats the first of the Commercial club cup series will be sailed.

The last opportunity to see the two eights in action will be tomorrow afternoon. A race has been arranged between the two eights over the mile and a half course. The second eight will not go the entire distance, but will pick the first eight up down the course. The first eight leaves for Kenora Tuesday evening.

Swimming and diving contests have been arranged, and these aquatic events will be held in front of the club house. Tennis games will also be played during the afternoon, so that the program will be one holding an interest for everyone attending the club.

TWO RECORDS SMASHED.

Oldfield and Kerscher Lower Marks for Half-Mile Track.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 22.—At the annual meeting of the Auto club of this city yesterday afternoon at Shattuck park, Barney Oldfield lowered his mile record on a half mile track of 1:06¼ to 1:06 flat. Ben Kerscher of New York established a world's two-mile record of 2:24 for a half-mile track.

John Dana narrowly escaped being killed in a race when the car in which he was riding crashed through the fence at the track. He sustained serious injuries.

Indians Sign Helding.

John Helding has been signed by the Red Wing club. Thomas has been let out by the Indians, so that Helding will be kept behind the bat. While Helding failed to play the best ball in the world for the Sox, he may prove a valuable man for the Indians, as he possesses a good baseball head.

BUSY TIME FOR TAFT

President's Vacation Taking On Some Marks of Strenuosity.

Rescue of Capsized Indians Is Only Excitement So Far.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 22.—President Taft's vacation cruise is becoming strenuous. He did not get back aboard the Mayflower until well past midnight, but he was ashore again at 8 this morning, playing a double round on the nine-hole golf course at Kebo Valley.

After the morning of golf was to come the speaking at noon to the townspeople, followed by a ten-mile coach ride to Mrs. Mark Hanna's home at Seal Harbor for luncheon. The dinner engagement for the Taft party tonight is with Mrs. Charlemagne Tower, two miles from Seal Harbor.

The president's stay at Bar Harbor proper ended with his engagement to say a few words to the permanent residents on the village green.

The Mayflower, with Mrs. Taft and other members of the party on board, sailed this morning for Seal Harbor. Following the luncheon at Mrs. Hanna's the yacht will drop down to the lower place and anchor for the night.

Will Go to Bangor.

Tomorrow morning the Mayflower will take the party to Mount Desert ferry, where a special train will be waiting to convey the president to Bangor, where he will arrive at noon for a stay of two hours. Mrs. Taft and the other women will stop at Ellsworth to await Mr. Taft's return late in the afternoon, as the guests of Senator Hale.

Some idea of how the Taft party has been entertained here may be gained from the fact that breakfast has been the only meal served in the presidential dining salon since the yacht anchored on Wednesday. Even little Charlie Taft has been constantly on the go with a lot of boy chums he found in the summer colony here.

Charlie beat the older folks back on board last night by little more than an hour. He had to call "Mayflower, ahoy!" several times down on the lonely yacht club landing before he finally got a small boat to take him off to the ship.

President Got Wet.

The president and Mrs. Taft and their cruising companions got quite a wetting last night in a thunderstorm that broke during their nine-mile drive back from Jordon Pond, where a late supper had been served. The night was cold and blustery throughout, but no one in the party seemed to mind the adverse weather conditions.

The only exciting incident of the president's cruise thus far was the rescue of two Indians who capsized their canoe while the Mayflower was at anchor in Passamoquoddy bay. They had paddled out to have a close look at the president's big white yacht, and to have a better look the Indians stood up. A moment later there was a splash. Boats were quickly lowered and the Indians were hauled out little the worse for their wetting.

Col. Thompson furnished a bail bond for $5,000 and was released.

J. Anderson, charged with forging and passing a number of worthless checks on Superior business men had his case adjourned for another week, when it was called in police court yesterday. Unable as yet to secure bail, he is in the county jail.

OUR GREATEST BALLAD WRITER.

"But one American writer of popular songs who made a business of writing songs for a living has ever succeeded in striking a chord that continues to vibrate irrespective of the passing of years," says the Taylor-Trotwood Magazine. That writer was Stephen Collins Foster.

"He has been in his grave for more than forty-five years, but 'Old Black Joe,' 'Old Uncle Ned' and the 'Old Folks at Home' appear to be immortal. These, like 'My Old Kentucky Home,' 'Hard Times Come Again No More,' 'We Are Coming, Father Abraham,' and at least a score of others by the same author have become true folk songs—a part of the thought, sentiment and life of the people.

"Foster was born near Pittsburg July 4, 1826, and made his first attempt at composition just thirteen years later. When he was only 16 he published the song 'Open Thy Lattice, Love.' Returning to Pittsburg after a few years in Cincinnati, he fell in with a musical club, and one night sang a song of his own composition, 'Louisiana Belle,' for the entertainment of the club members. Its success in the clubroom was so great that the author next produced some of the songs he had composed while in Cincinnati, among them being 'Uncle Ned' and 'O Susanna.'

"These were communicated by word of mouth throughout the city and became general favorites. Encouraged by the measure of local success, he published 'Uncle Ned' in 1847, but received nothing for it. 'O Susanna' was published soon afterward, and for it the author was paid $100.

"The check received for 'O Susanna' caused him to embark upon the rather precarious vocation of song writer, and for a time his productions were turned out with astonishing rapidity, meeting with a sale that at that period was unparalleled. Of the 'Old Folks at Home' 300,000 copies were sold, from which the author received $15,000 in commissions.

"Many think that this was the most popular song that has ever been written, and it is just as popular today as it was before it lost its novelty. Many of the songs were translated into all the languages of Europe and some of those of Asia and Africa.

"The last three years of his life were spent in New York, where he died in 1864. 'Old Folks at Home' was sung as his coffin was lowered into the grave."

FAVOR LINE TO PROCTOR

West Duluth Commercial Club to Discuss Road to Suburb.

Line Will Probably Be Built If Grade Is Suitable.

That 25 per cent of the working population of Proctor would move to West Duluth, providing street car service was installed between the two places is the opinion of several Proctor people, according to J. J. Frey of the West Duluth Commercial club.

The matter of extending street cars to Proctor will come in for considerable discussion this evening at the West Duluth Commercial club's smoker, which has been tendered in honor of the members of the Proctor organization.

About twenty-five members of the Proctor club will be in attendance, according to President Peyton. Proctor people have long agitated for street car service to the city, and it is presumed that this will be the all-absorbing topic at the gathering this evening.

Herbert Warren, general manager of the Duluth Street Railway company, has stated that providing a suitable grade can be obtained on the new Proctor road, which the city proposes to build within a year, street car service to the suburb will only be a matter of time.

According to Mr. Frey, who is a member of the Commercial club committee on the new road, the steepest grade that the street car company would have to encounter would be slightly over 5 per cent. This is 2 per cent less than the grade now on the Fifty-seventh avenue line.

The proposed extension of the car line would be from the end of the Fifty-seventh avenue west car line. That it would be a profitable investment for the street car company is argued by members of both clubs.

At its meeting this evening the club will probably appoint three delegates to the conservation congress at St. Paul, which will be held in the near future.

INCLINE THREATENED.

Ties Take Fire From Flames in Brush on Keene Creek.

Brush fires burning along Keene creek and the hillside at West Duluth for a time threatened the trestle work of the Bay View Heights incline road yesterday.

On several occasions, employes who were running the cars, were obliged to stop traffic and put out fires in ties. On one trip yesterday afternoon, the car stopped twice for this purpose.

The fires along the roadbed are being carefully watched today and every effort will be made to prevent a serious conflagration which may tie up traffic on the line.

A year ago yesterday, the road bed of the incline road was ruined and the tracks washed away by the cloudburst, which wrought much havoc in this vicinity.

PART OF STOLEN PROPERTY IS FOUND.

What may prove to be a valuable clue in the solution of the mystery surrounding the theft of a purse belonging to Madame Rock, a Central avenue milliner, Wednesday, came to the police this morning, when a small pocketbook, which had been left inside the purse, was recovered.

The purse, itself, which was taken from the home of Mrs. George L. Kreidler, 232 Central avenue, while both women were alone in the apartments, has not been recovered. In the small pocketbook there was $51 and a number of valuable receipts and papers. When found, the money was missing but the papers and receipts were left intact.

Lester McIntyre, 7 years old, who lives with an aunt in the Hewitt block, Grand avenue, found the small pocketbook between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues on Grand, this morning. The police were notified and the find was identified as the property of Mrs. Rock.

The police are still working on the matter.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HORSE DIES AFTER EXERCISING.

Taken suddenly ill with acute indigestion yesterday morning after exercising, a valuable horse belonging to No. 8 fire company died last evening, despite the efforts of a veterinary surgeon to save the animal.

The horse is valued at $350 and was used on the fire engine, John T. Black. It was replaced this morning by an animal from headquarters station. The shortage will have to be provided for by an appropriation from the council.

POLICEMEN SEND INDIAN BOY HOME.

Pete Smith, a 16-year-old Indian boy, on his way home to Fosston, Minn., from his school at Pipestone, Minn., who was stranded in Duluth and picked up last evening by Officer Brouillette on Central avenue, will be sent home by the West Duluth police at their expense.

Lieut. Charles E. Wilcox this afternoon raised enough money among the patrolmen to cover the expense. This evening he will be put on a train bound for home. The boy claims that he had his transportation but lost it.

WITNESS GETS INTO TROUBLE BY TESTIMONY.

Louis Vukosav, saloon keeper at 5602 Raleigh street got himself in trouble when he tried to show that the actions of a fellow countryman, charged with shooting at a policeman, were excusable.

Following his explanation in district court that Anthony Djikaloyic was so drunk that he did not know what he was doing, when he fired at Officer Anderson, about three weeks ago, Vukosav was arrested last evening.

He was charged with selling liquor to an intoxicated person. As a witness, Vukosav is said to have admitted to County Attorney Norton that he had sold Djikaloyic liquor on June 28, when the latter was in an intoxicated condition.

This morning, Vukosav was arraigned in police court and was fined $25 and costs.

No Interest in Shows.

West Duluth people are not very enthusiastic over the coming of Campbell Bros. circus tomorrow and but little interest is shown among citizens in the western end of the city, where the shows will be held. The season's interest was apparently satisfied a short time ago, when Ringling Bros. circus appeared in this city.

Jumping on Trains.

Complaints have come to the West Duluth police from Agent W. H. Sweat of the Northern Pacific at West Duluth that boys are again falling into the habit of jumping on moving trains in the vicinity of the Central avenue station. The police are on the lookout and if any are caught, they will be dealt with severely.

ROYALTY IN THE COUNTRY.

Queen Alexandra's Daily Life at Sandringham—Her Taste in Books.

Queen Alexandria at Sandringham even when guests are at the hall, spends the life of an ordinary English chatelaine. Rising early she partakes of a simple breakfast, says the Gentlewoman, and then, accompanied by Miss Charlotte Knollys, visits her dogs at the kennels and looks after her flowers and fruit in the gardens, whose beauty owe as much to her taste as does the interior of the house at Sandringham.

Before luncheon the queen goes over her correspondence—it is always very large—with Miss Knollys, and whatever letter she can she does answer herself. To her guests she never appears before luncheon, as her time is too fully occupied. Letters again fill her afternoons—sometimes; and then the genial Saandringham tea follows, when besides cake and tea, sandwiches, even soups, ham and eggs, and all sorts of good things are discussed, and the men have the choice of partaking of whiskys and sodas.

The queen presides over one tea table and Princess Victoria over another and the children of the prince and princess of Wales come over from York lodge to enliven the party. The parrots are usually made to go through their antics at this time, and there is one in particular which does not cease to draw corks and yell "God save the Queen!"

After dinner, which by the way, Dr. Ott does not allow the king nowadays to partake of later than 8 o'clock instead of at a quarter to 9, as of yore, music is discussed by the ladies, and the king goes off to the bridge room at an early stage of the evening. He will sit up very late over the bridge, and with his wonderful constitution he never gets either tired or cross over the game.

Lately the queen has taken a liking to bridge and plays quite well. It is a principle with her and the king never to allow any unmarried girl under their roof to play cards for money.

The queen has always been a great reader and her taste in books is individual and most delicate. She avoids the problem novel and prefers books that deal with serious topics and especially works that have made history. Stories that deal with the simple annals of the poor attract her and even an old book like "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is much appreciated by Queen Alexandra.

Years ago the then princess of Wales asked a friend to procure for her a copy of "Jinx's Baby," that indictment of so-called charity. "John Inglesant" is said to be one of our queen's favorite novels and she has always had a great liking for Miss Charlotte Yonge's old world productions. Indeed "The Heir of Redclyffe" was one of the books that she read in her girlish days in Denmark. Hans Andersen's fairy tales were also in high favor, especially "The Little Match Girl" and "The Swineherd."

Then Queen Alexandra has a great love for poetry, especially for the works of British poets. Some of Shelley's verses please her, but the late Lord Tennyson's poems are perhaps her chief favorites. Like many other ardent book lovers she considers that a good book deserves fine raiment, and she, like King Edward, has done much to revive the old art of bookbinding, and in this relation it is worthy of note that the artistic group of women bookbinders have received many commissions from her. The queen has a most ornate book plate the ownership of which is indicated by the one word "Alexandra."

RUSH OF MOTOR ORDERS.

Practically without exception all of the manufacturers of motors suitable for automobile use are swamped with orders and are unable to accept an immense amount of business which is offered them. One of the big carriage companies in Indiana which had made almost all arrangements for building automobiles for the coming year was amazed to find that engines are well night unobtainable where early contracts have not been made.

When the company's representative, in an effort to secure a supply of engines from a concern which produces them in enormous quantities, laid down a certified check for $15,000 as a deposit, says the Motor World, he was laughed at and the check was tossed back at him with the explanation that the factory had engine orders which would tax its capacity for the next two years and that positively not another order could be accepted.

A few of the engine producers have raised their prices to fancy heights and still are turning away business. The demand for two cylinder engines suitable for use in motor buggies is particularly strong, because of the rush of buggy and carriage concerns into the field. The inability of the engine makers to increase their output sufficiently to meet the flood of new customers is making it necessary for many of the latter to abandon their automobile manufacturing plans for the present.

LAST CHANCE FOR EXPLORERS.

"I have had the idea for some time past," writes Camille Flammarion in the Strand, "of sinking a shaft into the earth for the express purpose of scientific exploration, descending as far below the surface as the utmost resources of modern science would permit.

"The first result would be to obtain an inexhaustible source of heat, which might be distributed and applied to industrial purposes. According to the most authentic estimates the boiling point will be found at a depth of about two miles.

"Without doubt we should also discover springs of hot water, like those which were found during the construction of the Simplon tunnel in 1903, with a temperature of 48 to 53 deg. centigrade. We should also come upon subterranean rivers and cascades which might be employed as a motive power.

"The second result would be the exploration of this unknown world itself. Who knows what curiosities of geology and palaeontology might be revealed by this investigation into these dark abysses of the earth? What mines of iron, of copper, of precious metals, such as gold, platinum, silver, radium and of elements hitherto unknown and unsuspected?

"This idea has been forcibly recalled to my attention in consequence of the recent earthquakes and the extremely contradictory opinions of geologists upon the interior state of the globe. Is this globe liquid or solid? From the most ancient times scientific men have considered the problem under all its bearings without having succeeded in lighting upon any satisfactory solution.

"The railway tunnels which pierce the mountains have done no more than traverse the inequalities of the crust of the earth. The deepest shaft which penetrates the earth was constructed between 1893 and 1902 at Paruschowitz, near Rybnik, and is about a mile and a quarter in depth—scarcely more than an insignificant scratch upon the surface of our globe."

A NOVELTY.

"Poor Clyde Fitch," said a young playwright sadly, "was always ready to give advice and help to juniors."

"I once described to Mr. Fitch a climax that seemed novel and strange to me. But Mr. Fitch said that novelty and strangeness had little value in climaxes—real human interest was the thing.

"He instanced an extraordinary, a quite unique climax that would yet be bound to fail.

"In this climax the hero, a chap with wooden legs, stumps breathlessly across the stage as fast as his two wooden legs will carry him. A woman brandishing a butcher's cleaver is in pursuit. The woman overtakes the man. She upsets him. Kneeling, she brandishes the clever about his artificial limbs.

"'Herbert Mannering,' she cries, 'pay me the six weeks' board you owe, or I will cut both your wooden legs off!'"

COST OF MODERN WAR.

McClure's Magazine: The Anglo-German crisis is only one phase of the question in which every nation, America included, is vitally concerned. The impoverishment of the world by war—even by war which is never fought—is the most imminent evil now threatening the race.

It costs $10,000,000 to build a warship of the latest type. Each broadside fired by such a vessel in practice or at any enemy costs $10,000, and her guns are capable of discharging six rounds a minute.

The construction of these marine monsters is proceeding at the utmost capacity of the dockyards and gun foundries of the entire world. The peace taxes of the present are already heavier in the aggregate than the burden imposed to carry on any of the great wars in history.

DEMORALIZING COMPANY.

Washington Star: "What makes that parrot so profane?"

"Well, mum," answered the sailor man. "I su'pose it's part my fault. Every time I hear him speak a bad word it makes me so mad that he gets a chance to learn a lot of new ones."

ON THE IRON RANGES

OLD SPARTA SITE BEING STRIPPED

Overburden Being Rapidly Removed From the Former Townsite.

Eveleth, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.) — Work at the Sparta mine, which now occupies the townsite of Sparta, is going on at a good rate. Three steam shovels are taking off the overburden and this is being dumped close to Ely lake. The Iron Range road, which used to run on the north of Sparta, now occupies the right of way of the Missabe road, south of the townsite proper. Locations have been built on both ends of the open pit and these houses are all occupied by miners. On account of the large amount of overburden that will have to be taken out, it will be some time before ore will be reached.

The Genoa underground mine, which is a few hundred yards north of the pit is also being worked. The mines around here are doing their usual work, though at the Fayal not so much is going on as at the other mines.

The Adams open pit is shipping quite heavily while at the Virginia mine the stripping under the direction of Winston Bros. & Dear is going on day and night. Pickands, Mathers, who are taking out the ore have two shovels at work in ore. The ore at this mine was found only twenty-five feet below the surface. The Iron Range road had to build some extra track to go out to the Virginia mine, which was about two miles away from the West Adams yards to which place the Iron Range already had tracks. Local mining men say that the shipping will be much heavier during the fall months just before the closing up of navigation. All around here drills are at work and the announcement of the discovery of ore at Cedar Island lake is expected any day.

STRIPPING WORK IS VERY MODERN

Operations of Winston-Dear Company at Susquehanna Are Up-to-Date.

Hibbing, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The stripping of operations being carried on by the Winston-Dear company at the Susquehanna mine are conducted along the most modern and up-to-date lines, all the latest improved machinery being used. This affords quite a striking contrast to the methods that once obtained in removing the over-burden on the Mesaba range.

On the north side the company has arranged for the operation of the new equipment, including the new engines and dump cars, while on the south side the old cars and little dinkey engines are working. Upon the arrival of the last consignment of the company's order for standard rolling stock, all equipment will be discarded in that mine that is not up to the company's standard and already the work accomplished under the new system is treble that of the old.

Track to Burt, Minn.

A large force of men, including a steel gang and tie layers are laying the tracks at the Burt mine near the new viaduct to permit the operation of the steam shovel in digging the large trench for the aqueduct that will empty into the ditch in that vicinity, draining the north side.

WEST END

BOARD IS CRITICISED.

No Attention Is Given Lawn at the Adams School.

Much unfavorable comment has been excited at the West end by the announcement of the board of education that in the future the janitor at the Adams school would be dispensed with and his duties would devolve upon the engineer.

West end people, who are in touch with the situation say that this is "cheap economy" and believe that if this policy is carried out that the building will soon tell its own story of neglect, as there is work enough in the Adams school now for two men.

Since the janitor at the Adams school has been on his vacation, the neglected condition of the Adams school lawn, which has always been looked upon as a "beauty spot," has attracted much attention. For lack of watering the grass has burned in the hot sun and the lawn looks as forlorn as a circus ground after the show.

SHOW WILL NOT CUT MUCH FIGURE

Campbell Bros.' Appearance Not Expected to Affect Business.

Criticism of the mayor and city council for allowing the way to remain open for the Campbell Bros.' shows to appear here tomorrow continues, but it is abating on some sides and a few of the merchants are taking different views.

"The mayor and city council should not be so severely criticised," said one prominent merchant this morning. "I realize, of course, that our business would suffer severely if another big circus should be allowed to appear here on Saturday, but the Campbell Bros.' show is only a small town affair and I don't believe it will create any more of a furore in a city of this size than would a visit of Al Martin's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company. When the show was here last time it was a joke when compared to real circuses which have appeared here and many people left before the performance was over."

Campbell Bros., have taken out a license for which they paid the city $100. Under it, they are allowed to charge 25 cents for admission and 25 cents for reserved seats. Some of the small shows advertise one fee and charge a higher one for reserved seats when the people get inside of the tent, but tomorrow's visitors to Duluth will not be able to "soak" anybody in that way, for the police will be vigilant. It is not known whether a street parade will be given.

The Campbell Bros.' shows will go from Duluth to Two Harbors, appearing there Monday. Its route is laid through small towns which the big circuses do not visit and on that account many merchants do not believe that a show of its calibre can attract many people after the recent visit of Ringling Bros.' big show to Duluth.

CLOQUET FIREMEN RESIGN POSITIONS

Volunteer Members Have Difference With Council and Quit in Body.

Cloquet, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the city council and the volunteer fire department could not agree as to the number of men necessary on the volunteer list, the volunteer firemen have handed in their resignations to the council and quit in a body.

It has been customary to keep fifty men on the volunteer roll, and some members of the council thought thirty enough. The council also refused to give their consent to the organization of a firemen's relief association, as is provided by state law, and the disagreements results in the firemen walking out. There has been an unusually good body of men on the volunteer list and the fact that this city has no such department at the present time is a source of considerably anxiety to business men of the city.

SAY ACTION IS ILLEGAL

Minority Stockholders of Butte & Superior May Go Into Courts.

Charges of Mismanagement--- A. M. Chisholm Goes to Butte.

It is probable that minority stockholders will test in the courts the legality of the reorganization of the Butte & Superior Copper company, limited. A. M. Chisholm of this city, who seems to be the leader of the minority faction, left last night for Butte to confer with stockholders there. It is said that the interests of W. A. Clark do not take kindly to the proposed reorganization. Mr. Clark has said that if the company would accept his plans he would undertake to finance it.

The minority holders charge that by mismanagement the stockholders have lost between $10,000 and $15,000 on the treatment of 9,000 tons of ore at the Basin smelter during June. They claim the management should have effected a saving in the concentration of the ore. The Basin concentrator was leased without recourse from the Heinze interests.

The company, it is reported, is indebted $400,000 on the purchase of new properties and that the current indebtedness, including the first mortgage bonds due January, 1911, is about $100,000 of which $200,000 will be due within thirty days.

The minority stockholders hope to be able to effect a plan whereby the company will be placed on a firm financial footing without recourse to the methods proposed by the reorganization which was adopted by 95½ per cent of the stock represented at the meeting of shareholders in the company's office yesterday.

The following protest was presented:

"The undersigned, stockholders of Butte & Superior Copper company, limited, hereby protest against and object to the holding of an adjourned meeting of the stockholders of said company at Duluth, Minn., on July 21, 1910, for the purpose stated in the call for said meeting, on the ground that said meeting is contrary to law and that any action taken at said meeting will be illegal and void."

AUTO BUCKS BUT DOES NOT TURN OVER.

The fire chief's auto went through a remarkable stunt in speeding in response to an alarm today. As it approached Fourth avenue west along First street, at a rapid clip, spectators were horrified to note the front wheels of the machine beginning to skid. In a twinkling the automobile turned twice without upsetting, then after backing against the fire plug on the northeast of the corner regained its equilibrium and with a final snort joined the rest of the fire fighting apparatus in a race eastward.

OBITUARY

Hosmer H. Keith, speaker of the last Dakota territorial legislature and one of the best known attorneys of this state, died in Sioux Falls, S. D., July 22. He was 64 years old.

Walter Rankin, vice president of Carroll college and prominent in its history for forty-four years, is dead at Waukesha, Wis., following a nervous breakdown. Born in Allahabad, India, and brought to the United States with his parents when 7 years old, Dr. Rankin early entered Clinton college, from which he was graduated in 1860, at 19 years of age, standing at the head of a class of ninety members.

Going to Wisconsin, Dr. Rankin was elected president of Carroll college in 1866. The institution had only fifteen students and was in critical financial difficulties, but under the guidance of Col. Rankin the enrollment increased rapidly and money began to come in at the president's personal solicitation.

Dr. Rankin left Carroll twice, once to become instructor in a woman's college in Pittsburg and later to join the faculty of the Northwestern university. He was placed in charge of Carroll for the last time in 1881, resigning the presidency in 1903. After that he served the institution as vice president and instructor of Latin. Dr. Rankin was 73 years old and is survived by a widow and three children, Walter L. of Chicago, May N., a teacher of Carroll college and Adelaide of Madison.

MONUMENT TO A DEAD THEORY.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Standing in the city park at Hamilton, Ohio, is a queer looking monument. Upon a marble plinth stands a globe hollowed at each pole and marked with the lines of geographical measurements. It was erected by Americus Symmes before the civil war out of respect to the memory of his father, John Cleves Symmes, author of the remarkable "Theory of Concentric Spheres, Demonstrating That the Earth is Hollow, Habitable Within and Widely Open at the Poles."

The monument and the countless books and pamphlets that were written following the promulgation of this theory are testimonials to what may be accomplished by mere persistence in any cause even though it be faulty and entirely erroneous, as was the Symmes theory. The discovery of the north pole by Dr. Frederick Albert Cook and Lieut. Shackleton's near approach to the south pole have forever settled the previously admitted absurdity of open or concave poles. It is interesting to recall the fact that there was a time when this geographical doctrine had many supporters.

Symmes, who was a nephew of the first landlord of the country on the Ohio river between the Miami rivers, first announced his discovery (?) in 1818 at St. Louis. In his short brochure he asked for "100 brave companions, well equipped, to start from Siberia in the fall with reindeer and sleighs on the ice of the frozen sea. I engage we find a warm and new land stocked with thrifty vegetables and animals, if not men, on reaching 1 degree north of the latitude of 82 degrees. We will return the following spring."

After a series of public lectures he petitioned congress in 1822 through the famous Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky, for a subvention in order to equip an expedition. The canny senate unanimously rejected this appeal and two years later the general assembly of Ohio took similar action. One of his converts, Jeremiah N. Reynolds, of Clinton county, with the cooperation of Messrs. Rush and Soutard, members of President John Quincy Adams' cabinet, and Dr. Watson, a wealthy resident of New York city, in 1829, fitted out the ship Annawan and set sail in October for the warm and fertile concavity they believed to exist at the south pole. They reached a latitude of 82 degrees south and thus fully demonstrated the incorrectness of the Symmes theory.

Its author died in May, 1829, fully believing that his calculations were correct.

It is interesting to note that he was the first to select the winter season for the polar journey, an idea which Peary and Cook made part of their scheme of exploration.

As far as can be ascertained John Cleves Symmes was never nearer the north pole than lower Canada, in which he fought as a soldier in the war of 1812. His polar regions existed only in his imagination, but so ingenious were his pleadings that thousands of otherwise sensible men firmly believed in "Symmes' Hole," as the vernacular of that day had it. That nickname became part of the slang of the period between 1820 and 1830. When a man disappeared under suspicious circumstances he was accounted for by saying, "He's gone down Symmes' hole."

So has this ludicrous theory effectually been demolished by the practical and physical work of a hardy line of brave men.

BRILLIANCY IN DIAMONDS

The great secret of buying a diamond is to get one that has the brilliancy.

You have all seen daimonds that are white, nothing apparently the matter with them, and yet they never seem to have any life and snap, always seem dirty as though they need washing, but no amount of rubbing and polishing will give them the beautiful sparkle and flash that characterize a true gem.

Such a diamond is always a disappointment to its owner. It is lacking in the one feature that should distinguish a diamond from all other gems.

Brilliancy in diamonds is the particular hobby of this store.

Every stone we sell has that everlasting sparkle and snap no matter in what position you hold it.

Perfect refraction of the light rays is the cause of brilliancy, and only long experience and the ability to judge a diamond almost at a glance enables a dealer to select these exceptional stones from the large lots that are shown them by importers.

It is a matter of tradition at this store that every diamond customer, whether purchases are made or not, is entitled to our most careful consideration and attention.

MONTENEGRO IS SOON TO HAVE A KING

PRINCE NICHOLAS,
Who Will Assume His New Title on Aug. 14.

CROWN PRINCE DANILO ALEXANDER AND THE PRINCESS JUTTA.

London, July 22.—Europe soon will contain a new king. By an understanding with the powers, Prince Nicholas of Montenegro will assume the title of king on Aug. 14 next, the anniversary of his succession as ruling prince.

Originally the rulers of free Montenegro were prince-bishops. Later they relinquished their spiritual supremacy but retained the title of prince. Until recent years Montenegro was a nominal dependency of Turkey, but its independency now has been recognized by the great powers, and the permission for its ruler to adopt the title of king is but a step in this recognition.

Prince Nicholas is the present sovereign and will be the first king of the country. His heir is Prince Danilo Alexander, whose wife is the Princess Jutta. The new king's second son is Mirko, and his wife, the Princess Natalie, is related to the royal family of Servia.

PRINCESS NATALIE,
Wife of Prince Mirko, Second Son of Nicholas of Montenegro.

RAWN MURDERED FOR REVENGE?

Coroner Believes So, and Says Arrest Will Be Made Soon.

Chicago, July 22.—Coroner Peter Hoffman announced today that he had received information which led him to believe that Ira G. Rawn was murdered for revenge. He immediately went into conference with Herman Schuettler, acting chief of police. Hoffman said he would make a statement, but he announced that there would be an arrest soon.

"I have obtained a new clue in connection with the death of Mr. Rawn," said Mr. Hoffman, "and my information looks very good. I also have information concerning the identity of the alleged slayer, but I do not care to make my information public until after my conference with Acting Chief Schuttler."

Mrs. Rawn was reported seriously ill today. She was too ill to make a statement desired by an attorney. It was said to be doubtful that she would be able to attend the funeral.

Died On Eve of Scandal.

Death came to Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon route, on the eve of his possible exposure as a central figure of what it is declared may be one of the greatest railroad scandals of the country. Counsel for the Illinois Central, when confronted with a verbatim copy of questions and answers at the recent investigation of the company's affairs, admitted that the foundation had been carefully laid with intent to show Mr. Rawn as primarily responsible for years of crooked car contracts. His answers, however, had been steadfast denials of the implied charges.

DECLINE UNDER PROFIT-TAKING

Values Fall Sharply, But Rally on Later Developments.

The copper market was heavily liquidated today and values shot downward from the opening. The announcement at noon that the Guggenheims had advanced the price of copper caused buying and short covering that caused the market to rally and the close was only fractionally under the opening. The undertone was weak. The less active stocks closed lower and weaker.

At the opening it was announced that the large producing interests had agreed to a policy of general curtailment. In spite of the announcement the list was weak and liquidation developed. No official announcement has been made and it is not likely that any official seal will be placed on the agreement to curtail production and fix prices, for that is what the agreement in its finality amounts to. Copper men think the government might take a hand in the proceedings if the agreement was formally ratified. The policy of curtailment will probably be a "gentlemen's agreement." The Amalgamated and Guggenheim interests, it is said, will curtail production 25 per cent for three months, after which the output will be increased as rapidly as the surplus stocks are worked off. In the last two days between 1,000 and 2,000 men at Butte have been laid off. The leading copper producers claim that a reduction of 15 per cent for three months would be sufficient to restore the equilibrium of the metal market.

The Guggenheims put up the price of the red metal today and are now refusing to sell below a basis of 12½c cash. A sale of 3,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper was made today to a Western corporation at a shade above 12½c a pound for delivery in the early part of September.

Trading her was moderate, about half of the volume being in Butte & Superior. Interest in the market centered in this issue. Butte & Superior sold at $1.12½, $1.25 to $1.18¾, Butte-Alex Scott, full paid, at $7.06½, Butte-Ballaklava at $11.87½, Cactus at $2.00½ to $2.50, Shattuck at $22.62½ to $22.87½, Calumet & Corbin at 34c, Calumet & Sonora at $14.87½ to $15.12½ to $15, Carman at 80c, Cliff at $1.12½, Keating at 99c and $1, St. Mary's at 17c and 18c, Tuolumne at $2.50.

Amalgamated sold at $60.50, $60.87½, $58.62½ to $60.25, Steel common at $68.75 to $69.25, $66.62½ to $67.25, Butte-Ballaklava was $11.25 bid and $12 asked, Calumet & Arizona at $49.50 to $50.50, Giroux at $6.37½, Greene at $6.87½, North Butte at $22.75 to $24 to $23.50.

MUST NOT DRIVE ON CAR TRACKS

Teamsters With Heavy Loads Must Keep Near the Curb.

St. Paul, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to a decision rendered by the state supreme court this morning, teams drawing heavy loads and moving slowly are denied the right of travel on street car tracks. They must keep to the right and close to the curb, or their drivers will be subjected to arrest and fine.

This decision came in the case of Henry Bussian, a teamster, who was arrested in Minneapolis while driving a furniture van on Washington avenue, and who was fined in municipal court for violation of the law. The statute on which he was convicted says:

"In cities or villages, or any place where traffic is large, or on streets usually congested with traffic or horse-drawn vehicles or street cars, slow-moving vehicles must keep near the right of the curb, allowing those moving more rapidly to keep near the center of the street."

TAFT LAUDS LONG REST

Says Two Weeks' Vacation Is Not Nearly Long Enough.

Chief Executive of Nation Favors Whole Summer of Relaxation.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 22.—President Taft established himself as the patron and special arche-type of the all-summer vacationist today in addressing the residents of this village on the village green. None of your one and two weeks' vacations for him, announced the president. Houses must be closed and the summer made one long yawn, stretch and relaxation, with no worry and strife—except, of course, golf.

The chief executive's speech was the most informal, perhaps, he has delivered since he became president, and he made it an occasion to panegyrize the "greatest American need and the greatest American joy—a vacation."

Two Weeks Not Enough.

He said it used to be thought that two weeks were sufficient. His father's lawyer held to the opinion, "and when I came to the bar he told me that if I stayed at home during the summer months I would make a good deal more money than the fellows who went away.

"But the American people have found out that there is such a thing as exhausting the capital of one's health and constitution, and that two or three months is not too much after a period of hard work during the rest of the year, to give to the work of fall and winter to come the energy and effectiveness it ought to have.

"Sixty days of the summer in the woods, away from everybody, is ideal.

Mothers and Children Too.

"And so we have come to understand that the mothers and children should have a change of air and a place in which to expand their lungs The men can come in when they can."

Mr. Taft declared that summers spent in the Maine climate should add years to one's life.

A drizzling rain fell while the president spoke, but did not dampen the enthusiasm.

WILL ARBITRATE THE GRAND TRUNK STRIKE

Montreal, July 22.—Vice President Murdoch of the Order of Railroad Trainmen has wired to the department of labor at Ottawa accepting Minister King's suggestion for arbitration by a board to be named by the government.

FARMHAND KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLT.

Benbigh, N. D., July 22.—As Arthur E. Conway, employed on C. E. Duffy's farm, five miles southwest of here, was hurrying to cover during a thunder storm day before yesterday, he was struck by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. His mother resides in Los Angeles.

THREE-HOUR BATTLE IN SPANISH PRISON.

Madrid, July 22.—A grave mutiny broke out at the prison here today. The fighting lasted for three hours and was only ended when troops were called in. The soldiers intimidated the mutineers by firing in the air.

NARROW ESCAPES IN BADGER FIRES

Citizens Are Badly Burned in Fleeing From the Flames.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—A Journal special from Merrill says:

Many narrow escapes from death have been experienced by people in the fire-swept district. Joseph Gonda, a farmer living near Bloomville, was burned about the legs and head in getting his family to the outskirts of the fire which had hemmed in their house.

Chris Sauv, living near Heinemann, was caught while endeavoring to save his cattle. He was badly burned about the arms and legs, but got to Gleason.

Martin Suits and Fred Fredensfeldt, while driving towards Heinemann, were hemmed in, but saved themselves from suffocation by holding their coats over their heads. Both were badly burned.

MILLIONS LOST IN FOREST FIRES

Canadian Northwest at Last Is Getting Relief By Fall of Rain.

Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—Twenty heavy railroad and traffic bridges have been swept away by flames in the Kootenai district and a dozen lumber mills and yards burned. The timber loss through forest fires is estimated at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Canadian Pacific tracks are reported burned out at Revelstoke, and all traffic is tied up at that point. The heart of the fire is eating its way toward Summit Camp, near Ore Dennro mines, with two powder magazines in the direct path.

Rain is coming to the relief of the fires in the Kootenai.

Telegraph wires are down on main lines and authentic information is difficult to obtain. Sandon, Slocan and Three Forks were saved after a strenuous fight.

The nearboundary fires are still raging and the flames are beyond control at Hall's Siding and Saven, where ranches are the heaviest sufferers. Nelson is enveloped in smoke but in no danger at present. Rain is falling in Crow's Nest pass.

THE COLORS OF FLOWERS.

How They Alter By Cultivation—Some Familiar Instances.

In general all the flowers of the same species in the wild state have the same color. For example, all plants of crowfoot or buttercup and dandelion have yellow flowers. In a few species different colors are found. For example, the flowers of the milkwort may be blue, violet, red or white. Much greater variation is shown by cultivated plants.

In these the variation of color of the flowers appeared long ago, but in recent years many new colors have been produced which had either not hitherto been observed or which if they did appear occasionally were not selected for preservation and development. The floriculturists of the present day, says the Umschau, carefully observe and endeavor to fix every new shade, even if it is not particularly beautiful, for the desideratum is novelty, and there is no telling what will please popular taste.

A species of primrose in the wild state always has lemon yellow flowers, which vary only slightly in tint. Cultivation has produced both lighter and darker shades, but until recently no color but yellow. Hence it was the more surprising when, a few years ago, a pure blue variety was produced, which has since retained its general color, but has developed all shades, from the palest sky blue to the deep bue of the cornflower.

The Chinese primrose, when cultivated in the garden, bore until recently only red and white flowers. In this species also other colors have lately been produced, not only violet but also blue, though not so pure a blue as that of the species first mentioned. Another example is offered by the gladiolus, which formerly bore only white and red flowers, but has recently developed a blue flowering variety.

A case of a somewhat different character is presented by the asters, which have long shown a great variety of colors, but in which recently a great many new shades have been produced, including some which would not at one time have been considered beautiful; for example, copper color.

Very numerous, on the other hand, are the species which have long shown great variation in color and have recently developed many new shades, with the exception of blue. Especially conspicuous is the dahlia, which is now found in every color except blue, although many propogators are making earnest efforts to produce a blue dahlia, which would bring great profit to its originator. A blue carnation would be equally valuable, but it has not yet been produced, although the colors of carnations have lately been enriched by many new shades.

The new varieties of canna also show great diversity of color, including almost pure white and a beautiful light pink, but a blue canna has not yet appeared. In the begonia not only blue is lacking but also all shades from red to violet. Finally we may mention the variety of poppy called the Shirley, which is greatly admired for its play of color. Here, however, the colors range only from white to rose and vermillion. Blue and violet colors are completely wanting, and so is yellow, which is very common in the begonia.

Finally there are species which, notwithstanding many years of cultivation, have shown little variation in the color of their flowers or have produced only new shades but not new colors. Among these are the fuchsias, which show only various shades of red. A blue or a yellow fuchsia would be a curiosity. Another example is furnished by Cyclamen persicum, in which many years of cultivation have only changed the original color scheme of a dark red throat and a white or pink tip so far as to deepen the red throat to crimson and almost to violet, and on the other hand to efface it altogether, producing a pure white flower.

Quite recently, however, an approximation to a yelow has been obtained by the production of a salmon pink cyclamen. Similar cases are furnished by the Alpine forget-me-not, in which merely the shade of the original blue color has been slightly altered by cultivation, and by the marigold, the colors of which vary only from yellow and orange to brown.

From the foregoing remarks it is evident that although very many new colors have recently been produced by cultivation in the flowers of numerous species of plants the production of these changes is entirely dependent upon the original predisposition to variation possessed by the plant. Without these tendencies to variation no new color can be produced, either by the gardener or by natural selection, for if there is no variation selection is impossible.

EVOLUTION AS SHOWN IN THE GOTHAM ZOO

"BLAZES," "MAMA BLAZES" AND A KEEPER.

New York, July 22.—The New York Zoological garden has several apes intelligent enough to tickle the heart of Darwin, but none of them is brighter than little "Blazes" just received from Germany. "Blazes"—so-called because of the prevailing heat in New York at the time of his arrival—is thought to be the smallest chimpanzee in captivity.

HIS DEDUCTION.

Shipping Illustrated: A Baltimore school teacher had encountered such a degree of ignorance on the part of one of her boys in relation to the recorded acts of the Father of His Country that she grew sarcastic.

"I wonder," she began, "if you could tell me whether George Washington was a sailor or a soldier?"

The boy grinned. "He was a soldier, all right," he said.

"How do you know?" the teacher challenged.

"Because I saw a picture of him crossing the Delaware. Any sailor would know enough not to stand up in a boat."

Advertisers concentrating their appropriation in The Evening Herald are getting the greatest results at the minimum cost.

UNCLE SAM AND NORWAY CLASH

Washington Declares That Bluefields Is an Open Port.

Washington, July 22.—Crossing diplomatic swords with Norway, the state department, replying to protests from New Orleans commercial interests against Norwegian recognition of the Bluefields, Nicaragua blockade, today declared Bluefields to be an open port. Norway, it was said, was misinformed of conditions there.

Norway's "misunderstanding" was laid by the state department to Michael J. Clancy, consular representative of Norway at Bluefields, and until yesterday vice consul of the United States at the same port. Acting Secretary of State Wilson today announced that Clancy's resignation as vice consul had been accepted, his service in the dual capacity against the law.

Protect American Cargoes.

In connection with the statement that Norway was mistaken about Bluefields' being blockaded, the department, in its reply to the New Orleans interests, quoted at length from various instructions given weeks ago to American naval officers in Nicaragua to the effect that Madriz was to be prevented by force of arms from interfering with legitimate American trade entering Bluefields.

No new position is announced by the government, but the state department's action is taken as an indication that the United States will protect American cargoes entering Bluefields whether carried under the flag of the United States or any other nation.

CRACK TENNIS PLAYERS ARE ENTERED IN PRELIMINARY MATCHES AT LONGWOOD

NILES.

ALEXANDER.

W, A. LARNED.

The Longwood cricket matches this week are the most important event in the tennis world except the national tournament which will be held at Newport later. All the cracks are taking part. The favorite player is Beals C. Wright, who has just returned from England after a defeat for the British championship of A. F. Wilding of Australia. W. A. Larned is the most interesting of the challenge players for the Longwood cup for he has already won it twice and victory this time will mean ownership. Larned has just come out ahead in the tournament at Seabright. Niles, who defeated Touchard in the finals at Seabright Saturday, is another Boston candidate. R. D. Little, W. J. Clothier, G. F. Touchard, Wallace F. Johnson and other big ones will take part—not overlooking young McLaughlin of California.

PEOPLE SHOULD BE VIGILANT

Police Fear Gang of Crooks May Invade City With Circus.

Extra preparations are being made by the police to watch for the large gang of crooks which it is thought will invade the city tomorrow with the small circus which will be here in the afternoon and evening. They recognize that the large circuses have a corps of detectives who weed out all undesirable characters, but that the little affairs are likely to have a large following of crooks, thugs, pickpockets and house breakers.

The authorities advise all residents to take every precaution to protect themselves. The thieves are said to get in their work while the people are down town watching the parade or the performances. In the past many homes have been entered in this manner and great quantities of valuables taken. It is almost impossible to make arrests in cases of this kind. The criminals are so closely identified with the men who are employed by the circus people that they cannot be detected. In fact, many of them work from time to time for the sake of appearances. But they are not paid, depending upon their ability to steal to get enough revenue to keep them all winter until the show starts out again in the spring.

The police state that those who attend the show tomorrow should not carry any considerable sums of money or any jewels with them. Otherwise they fear that they will receive many reports of lost valuables.

FARMER BUILDS RAILROAD.

Doing Most of the Work Himself on This Western Kansas Line.

Jetmore Correspondence Topeka Capital: In the hills of Western Kansas in Hodgeman county one man is building a railroad. He is building it by himself, literally, unless one counts the four mules and the scraper that are necessary in the making of the grade.

Rudolph Meyers, a native of Jefferson county, Kansas, has sought no bond issues, and the right-of-way he has secured thus far he has bought with his own money. For eighteen months he has been working quietly on his roadbed, and in those eighteen months every one who has asked him questions has received a nod of his head for his pains. Meyers will say nothing.

And the result of this non-committal attitude has been that not alone Jetmore, the county seat of Hodgeman county, talking in an excited way but the entire Seventh and Eighth congressional districts are discussing the peculiar enterprise which one man is fostering.

This railroad which Meyers has started is planned to extend from Jetmore to Garden City, fifty-one miles. It will run almost due west and would afford a connection with the Jetmore branch of the Santa Fe, which now extends from Larned to Jetmore. The people of Jetmore and the country around it always have sought a Western connection with Garden City, which would afford another junction with the Santa Fe's main line. For twenty years men have been predicting that some day that line would be built; that it would have to be built.

In the middle eighties even the Santa Fe made a survey and laid out grade sticks, some of which are still in evidence along the grade being established by Meyers. But the Santa Fe gave up its plan years ago and all rights were relinquished by it. Meyers has been so confoundedly silent that the people have never been able to get so much as an intimation from him. He has lived in a shack out a few miles from town, has worked every day and has attended strictly to his own business.

And now after eighteen months Jetmore is waking. It finds that Meyers, the mysterious, has completed nearly two miles of his roadbed, and that he has established a roadbed on two of the roughest miles of the proposed route betwen Jetmore and Garden City, two miles that were filled with hills that went as high as fifty feet, which Meyers reduced to the levels; two miles that were interspersed here and there by ravins many feet deep, which Meyers filled after ceaseless work.

He has established a roadbed on what is practically the only route that can be followed if any one wishes to build a railroad from Jetmore to Garden City, and therefore if Meyers never completes his own road he will hold the necessary key for any one else who wants to undertake the task.

THIS WOMAN STAYS AT HOME.

American women have the reputation of being restless gadabouts, not perhaps without having given grounds for the accusation; but there's one American woman who is a homestayer of the most chronic type.

Mrs. Kate Walker has lived in the lighthouse on Robbins Reef for twenty-three years, and the number doesn't have any mystic significance implying an impending departure either. For fourteen of those years, ever since her husband's death, she herself has been keeper of the light.

Robbins Reef is a ledge a mile or so north of Staten Island on the port side as you sail up the bay. You reach Mrs. Walker's home by scrambling up an iron ladder after you have reached the spot—that is all it is, a spot—by boat. As that is the only means of reaching Mrs. Walker's establishment it is easy to understand that it isn't a rush of visitors that keeps her at home.

She not only has the light to maintain—and she has never once failed in that—but there are also a siren run by an engine and a fog bell, both of which must be kept going in thick weather. According to Harper's Weekly Mrs. Walker takes a long nap in the afternoon so as to keep on the alert at night. The machinery regulating the light, which is a revolving one, has to be wound every five hours. She says that the light is never off her mind at night and that even when she sleeps she wakes up every hour.

Before her husband died she went to the Catskills once; but since she became keeper of the light she has never been further than across the bay. Her front yard—and back and side yards too—is a narrow railed platform; beyond that only water on all sides.

THE VETERAN BOARDER.

"As I look back," said the veteran boarder, "I find the one common complaint that everywhere crops out to be cold plates and cold food. Here is something that every boarding-house-keeper has quite within control, but which is, nevertheless, commonly neglected.

"Many a boarder has been lost by serving to him cold food on cold plates. The boarder with——or it may be without—reason may have been disgruntled about other things and yet may stay, but let him get a succession of cold dinners and some day he says at last: 'Well, I can't stand this any longer; I'm going to quit,' the cold plates and cold food being the last straw that breaks the camel's back.

"What is needed is grace in the kitchen; grace and thoughtfulness; grace to serve things in a way to make them attractive and pleasing to the eye, and thoughtfulness to keep the food and plates hot. I have always thought, and I still think, that if I kept a hotel or a boarding house and I had nothing but hasty pudding to give my people to eat, I would shape it in pretty moulds before I sent it to the table, and above all things I'd serve it hot, and give them hot plates from which to eat it. I know you will agree with me that so served the simplest food would be far more pleasing to the palate and the fancy. Hot food and hot plates would promote peace and happiness and bring to many a boarding house prosperity."

EARTHQUAKE PROOF HOUSES.

Kansas City Star: In order to protect their homes from earthquakes many of the natives in the territory around Chilpancingo and other towns in the state of Guerrero, Mexico, live in trees. Some of these tree homes are of large size and are ingeniously constructed. Reeds and grasses are interwoven with the twigs and branches of the tree, much in the manner that a bird builds its nest.

The severest wind seldom looses these houses from the tree. Where the trees are large and stand closely together houses of two and three rooms are frequently built in their branches. These houses also afford protection from the "tigers" and other wild animals which are found in that region in large numbers. It is claimed that a tiger will not attack its prey unless it is upon the ground. The prime object of elevating these houses into the trees, however, is to keep them from being shaken down by the severe earthquakes which visit the Guerrero territory at frequent intervals.

The rocking of the earth gives the trees a swaying motion that does no damage to the houses. In some localities whole villages of these tree homes are to be seen. None of them suffered damage from the recent earthquakes which wrought such ruin to the buildings on the ground.

WHEAT HAS NERVOUS DAY

Liquidation Causes Decline, But Covering Strengthens the Close.

July Flax Sells at $2.68, Setting Another New High Mark.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 22.—Wheat was top-heavy today and there was considerable liquidation. Covering toward the close caused values to firm. July closed higher than yesterday by ½c. The weakness of the market was most pronounced in the deferred months. September closed 1⅛c off and December 1¼c off. Reports from the Northwest were more cheerful. Most of the messages were from Minnesota and South Dakota, however. Canada did not send out its usual line of bullish dope. Receipts of winter wheat at primary markets acted as a drag on values. Wheat also was affected by the pronounced weakness in corn. Foreign news was disregarded.

July wheat opened at $1.26 bid and sold up to $1.27¾ and closed $1.27 asked. September wheat opened at $1.19 bid and advanced to $1.19½ bid, sold down to $1.18¼ and closed $1.18⅜ bid. December opened $1.16 bid and was offered down to $1.15⅝ asked and closed $1.15¼ bid. May opened at $1.19 and sold down to $1.18⅜ asked and closed $1.18¼ bid.

Flax came across with another high record in the history of the market today when July sold at $2.68, 1c higher than yesterday's record-breaking price. July closed 2c off, opening at $2.57, selling up to $2.68 and down to offers at $2.53½c September closed 1¼c off. That option opened at $2.55 and sold up to $2.63 and down to $2.53½ asked at the close. October opened at $2.41 bid and sold up to $2.49 and was offered down to $2.40½ asked. November opened at $2.48 and was offered down to $2.40½ after selling at $2.43 and $2.47.

Cash wheat closed 1c over July; oats ⅜c off; Durum ¾c off; rye and barley were unchanged.

Values were nervous and unsettled today and the undertone was weak. The opening of the wheat market was steady but values soon eased off. The crowd wanted to sell wheat but held back on account of the bullish situation abroad and higher cables. As the day progressed sentiment veered and traders played for a break. Values sagged. The news from the Northwest was more optimistic, chiefly because it came from Minnesota and South Dakota. Two or three commission houses gave out reports that there had been an improvement in conditions in North Dakota although the bulls were unable to see on what favorable conditions the argument was based. The market lacked buying power.

The hedging sales because of the movement of winter wheat in the Southwest caused Southwestern markets to lead in the downturn. Fair and warm weather is the forecast for the Northwest, but in the Southwest the weather may be showery. Rains in Kansas and Nebraska caused heavy liquidation in corn and the weakness in this cereal affected wheat.

Banks in the Northwest are said to be tightening and retrenching and farmers are finding it difficult to borrow money. Whether this condition will force farmers to market their holdings more quickly than they otherwise would remains to be seen.

There is some flax in the country and the attitude of the banks may force farmers to take advantage of prevailing high prices and sell. The attitude of the crushers in keeping out of the market leads an observer to believe that the crushers are satisfied that the country is not barren of offerings. The flax market here is dominated now by speculative interests. There has been considerable spreading lately between Duluth and Winnipeg, the world's leading both ways. The receipt of some real flax in this market would probably cause a break that would make speculators think the market had no bottom.

The foreign wheat situation is bullish although statistics today were on the other side. Broomhall cabled that shipments from India, Australia and Argentine would show increase this week. Argentine advices are to the effect that threshing for wheat is progressing under favorable circumstances. Indication point to a slight increase in acreage.

Some folks who think the corn crop has been severely injured persist in anticipating damage to the crop which has not developed in the degree that they maintain. The entire corn belt has had fairly good rains in the last two weeks. Temperatures have rarely been above the normal. The increase in acreage is greater than ever before planted. Many traders seem to think, however, the weather in the remainder of this month and in August will be sufficiently hot to work actual injury to some portions of the late crop, which in some places was replanted a second and third time because of adverse weather and poor seed.

In some places under immediate consideration of the fodder for cattle and horses is beginning to be a serious problem. Many fields of wheat and oats, say messages to The Herald, would be plowed under immediately if it were not for the necessity of saving the plants for hay. There is very little native hay this year that is worth cutting.

The flour trade continues dull. Cash wheat was bid 1¼c over July by mills today. Mills have increased flour prices, justifying the advance by the premiums which they have been compelled to pay for cash tariff.

C. F. Macdonald, secretary of the board of trade, received a letter today from a friend at Halkirk, Alta., who has more than 3,000 acres in crops. He said: "Grain of all kinds is in fine condition from Red Deer to north of the Canadian Northern line to Edmonton and over 100 miles east from the Calgary-Edmonton line. I have been over the whole country. I have 3,000 acres of crops in south of Red Deer. East of the territory mentioned above there has been more or less damage, but in the district where I live wheat is making a good stand and is green and healthy. Nearly all of it is headed out. Weather fine and cool. Farmers are still breaking prairie, which doesn't look as though it is dried out."

Reports received today from Walter Turle, who is in North Dakota, were more pessimistic than at any time since he has been in that state. His observations seem to confirm reports of damage sent in by other crop examiners.

G. P. Case of Piper, Johnson & Case wired from Minneapolis as follows: "Our reports from North Dakota are more cheerful and from many points where it was thought there would be no grain to ship are now reporting a moderate amount of wheat, after all."

The Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis estimates the Northwestern wheat crop as follows: Minnesota, 55,000,000 bu; North Dakota, 22,000,000 bu; South Dakota, 36,000,000 bu, a total of 143,000,000 bu.

Chicago wired: "Crop prospects throughout Northwestern Iowa and Southern Minnesota are above last year's returns," said E. C. Butz, the barley expert, who is out for the Rosenbaum Bros. His report from Luverne, Minn., says: "The only trouble is that farmers actually do not know that the grain is in the heads and not in the straw. The latter is short, but where cutting has commenced farmers are beginning to crow about how big their yields are. This is especially true of barley and wheat. Oats look good and corn is in the finest shape I have seen in years. Timothy seed and hay are badly burned up."

Spring wheat crop is estimated at 180,000,000 bu by John Inglis, against 290,000,000 bu last year. The three Northwestern states have 140,000,000 bu or 92,000,000 bu less than last year in making his estimate he allows 40,000,000 bu for the Pacific coast states and for spring wheat raised in winter wheat states, which raised 58,100,000 bu all told last year. The Western slope suffered from the same conditions that prevail in the Northwest. Mr. Inglis will issue a report on winter wheat as soon as preliminary thrashing returns are in.

Northwestern crops have suffered further deterioration from the extreme heat of last week, says the Northwestern Miller. "Summed up, trade estimates today of the wheat crop of Minnesota and North and South Dakota range between 140,000,000 and 150,000,000 bu. Some early wheat will be cut the present week. However, it will be around Aug. 1, before work will be begun on the regular spring wheat. Flax has suffered considerable during the week, and without early rain the crop promises to be heavily reduced from the verage. Corn is the only crop which has thrived and it has done so to an exceptional degree."

During the last week the Atchison railroad reports the movement of 300 cars of old wheat from Kansas City to Minneapolis.

One of the leading and largest winter wheat millers in the United States says that their sales of new crop flour thus far are 1,600 barrels. At this time last year he had sold over 100,000 barrels.

E. B. Kalb of Slaughter & Co., estimates that the three spring wheat states will have 150,000,000 bu wheat. He says the bad crop area in North Dakota covers about 15,000 to 16,000 square miles out of about 64,000 square miles of wheat country, or one-quarter of the total.

Broomhall cabled: "Wheat at opening was affected by the strength in cables and firmness in Winnipeg and values were ⅝d to ¾d higher. Following the opening the market was strong and excited with heavy covering of shorts, and large speculative buying and values further advanced ½d to ⅝d. Buying was induced by continued unfavorable reports from Russia and France and the fact that France is buying freely of Indian cargoes. Continent continues to absorb all cargoes offered and Australian shipments are light for week. At midday market was strong and excited ⅝d to 1¼d higher than yesterday. Corn at opening quiet and unchanged. Later prices advanced ⅜d on strength in America and improved demand for Plata parcels which are firmly held.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Corn Pit Furnishes Feature With Big Decline in Prices.

Chicago, July 22.—Excitement in the corn market today was due to a cause exactly the reverse of the reason yesterday. The fresh development was a big decline in prices, and came in consequence of rains extending from Central Iowa to Central Nebraska. Selling was general from commission houses of every kind.

Following the sudden bulge in quotations yesterday, the quick drop attracted unusual attention to the corn pit, which was filled to the limit with Eager traders. The remarkable change in sentiment over night was largely the result of the fact that the session yesterday was occasioned by prospective more than actual crop damage. The market opened ½@1⅝c down. September started at 62¾@63⅜c, a loss of ½@⅝c to 1⅛@1¼c. A rally to 63½c was succeeded by a decline to 63⅛c.

Because of good general movement of winter wheat to market, and on account of yields above expectation, the weakness was intensified. At the close, the tone was very weak with September at $1.05⅞ to $1.05⅞@1.06, a net loss of 1¾@1¼c to 1⅛@⅜c.

Wheat was influenced to a considerable amount by the course of the corn market. Scattering showers in the Canadian Northwest formed another bearish factor. Selling of wheat by commission houses was almost as free as the throwing overboard of corn. The market opened ⅜@½c lower to ⅜c higher. September started ⅜@½c off to a shade advance, and fell to $1.06¾. Recovery to $1.07⅛@1.07¼ preceded a fresh decline to $1.06¾.

Rains were more general than at first reported. As the day wore on the weakness increased, but the excitement materially subsided. The close was weak with September 1½ net lower at 62⅜@62½c.

Oats were involved in the rush to sell by yesterday's buyers. September suffered a loss of ¼c to ⅜c at the outset, opening at 39¼ to 39⅜c. There was a subsequent reaction to 39½c.

Provisions were firm because of purchases attributed to the fact that the run of hogs was comparatively light. First sales of the September option were at $21.85 to $21.87½ for pork, $11.82½ for lard, and $11.70 for ribs, 12½c up to 2½c down.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

No Sign of Effective Demand Early and Prices Yield.

Strong Rally in Final Hour and Close Is Irregular.

New York, July 22.—Initial sales today of National Lead and American Smelting were at advances of 1 and 1⅛ respectively over yesterday's closing prices. The general list showed some settlement and irregularity, but gains were in the majority. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and International Harvester rose 1, and Reading, Amalgamated Copper, Utah Copper, American Locomotive and Consolidated Gas, large fractions. The dealings were in very moderate volume.

National Lead showed fresh weakness, falling to 52½ or within a half of yesterday's prices. This unsettled the tone but an effective demand for stocks made headway against depression. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Ste. Marie and La Clede Gas fell back to 1 below last night. Utah Copper rose 1¾, Anaconda 1¼ and Reading, Missouri Pacific, Amalgamated Copper and Republic Steel 1.

The market suffered from the cut in the National Lead dividend. That stock sold off to 51½ in the second hour and American Smelting to 64½. There was a drive against the whole list at the same time, Canadian Pacific dropping 2¾, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Saut Ste. Marie 3, Southern Pacific 2, St. Louis Southwestern and American Linseed preferred 1⅝, Union Pacific, American Car and Amalgamated Copper 1¼ and Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern and United States Steel 1. Bonds were irregular.

National Lead fell as low as 49⅝ during the noon hour and kept the market disturbed. There was some subsidence of selling pressure but the rallies were insignificant and not followed by any active demand. Before 1 o'clock Canadian Pacific's decline had reached 4½. Reading 2½, Missouri Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio 2 and numerous other stocks a point or more.

The market gave no sign of effective demand and prices continued to yield easily. United States Steel broke 2⅞ into new low ground for the year. National Lead sold at 48½. Union Pacific fell 2⅝, Reading 2¾ and General Electric, Wisconsin Central and American Sugar 3. Losses ranged to 2½ in Atchison, Great Northern preferred, Wabash peferred, Atlantic Coast line, Louisville & Nashville and others. Covering by shorts rallied prices in some cases a point during the hour.

The market closed irregular and uncertain. The demand for uncovered shorts became active in the final hour and a strong rally set in. Prices recovered between 1 and 2 points and Amalgamated Copper rose a fraction over last night. Some hesitation developed as the rally progressed.

WIRELESS SAYS MAN WHO MAY BE CRIPPEN IS ABOARD STEAMER

Woman Believed to Be His Stenographer Is With Him.

Couple Wanted By London Police Said to Be on Way to Canada.

Authorities Refuse to Give Out Name of the Vessel.

Liverpool, July 23.—A wireless message from a steamer bound for Canada and now in mid-ocean received this afternoon states that the vessel has on board two passengers believed to be Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve.

The present clue is the first of real promise which the authorities have secured since Crippen and his typist disappeared and the body of the woman believed by the police to be Belle Elmore, the actress, wife of the physician, was unearthed in the cellar of the Crippen home.

It appears that the London detectives are satisfied that Crippen and his companion fled to France and made close connections with a steamer sailing for Canada. They had time in which to do this before the general alarm asking for their apprehension

BONILA SAID TO BE COMING BACK

Former President of Honduras Is Looking for Trouble.

New Orleans, La., July 23.—Special dispatches received here are to the effect that Manuel Bonilla, former president of the Honduras republic, had left Belize with two schooners, carrying men, arms and ammunition, with the intention of overthrowing President Davilla of Honduras.

Advices from Port Barrios, Guatemala, say that the government of Honduras has placed an embargo on all messages to and from that country and that it is impossible to learn anything concerning the progress of the reported uprising in several towns along the east coast of Honduras.

A steamer said to have been loaded with arms and ammunition for Bonilla is reported to have cleared from Port Arthur, Tex., last week for Port Cortez.

STRIKE RIOT AT BROCKVILLE

Grand Trunk Detectives Are Kicked and Beaten By Mob.

Montreal, Can., July 23.—The possible need of much heavier policing at important points on the Grand Trunk Railway system took a place today in the list of topics, including arbitration and freight paralysis, discussed as vitally affecting the status of the strike inaugurated last Monday by the company's conductors and trainmen.

A more serious outbreak than had been previously reported occurred last night at the company's station at Brockville, Ont., and caused increased activity at headquarters. Seven men were injured, none of them seriously, in the trouble, which followed the arrival of a local passenger train from Toronto.

Kicked the Detectives.

Stones were thrown and the agent's office was stormed. In it were six private detectives. The door was battered down and the officers driven out, kicked and buffeted.

The despatchers' office was then attacked and the men inside expelled. Two of the injured were taken to a hospital. They were David Corey of Montreal, a special constable, and Edward Wilcox of Toronto, conductor of the train. Police finally cleared the platform. No arrests were made.

She regarded the stories of Mrs. Crippen's death as doubtful and made an investigation on her own account.

The second woman is Mrs. Richard Hyde, another friend of Mrs. Crippen. She has seen Dr. Crippen since his wife disappeared.

The third is Mrs. Louise Mills, a half sister of Mrs. Crippen. Under charge of a detective, the three women have examined the passengers of every arriving liner since the body was discovered in the hope that they would be able to identify Dr. Crippen.

LIND FOR GOVERNOR DEMAND OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY DEMOCRATS

Eveleth Convention Declares That They Have No Second Choice.

Alfred Jaques Is Strongly Supported for Election to Congress.

Judges Martin Hughes and Dibell Are Indorsed for Re-Election.

Eveleth, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county Democratic convention was held here at the Othello theater today, and an enthusiastic John Lind aggregation it was. The convention was unanimous in its demand that Lind must be the party's nominee for governor, and the highest grade of optimism as to the outcome of the pending campaign was evident at every stage of the proceedings. County Chairman Andrew Nelson called the convention to order, with E. A. Tessman, secretary of the county committee, serving as temporary secretary. Mr. Nelson made a brief speech, more notable for its pointedness than for its length.

Permanent organization being in order, Alderman Joseph P. Shartel of Duluth was nominated and named by acclamation as permanent chairman, with J. W. Peterson of Virginia as permanent secretary.

Then the convention got speedily to business. Resolutions were adopted declaring strongly for John Lind as the choice of St. Louis county Democrats for governor. When the resolutions were read there was a burst of wild applause that made the delegates look forward with wide-eyed expectancy to

STAINS ARE NOT BLOOD

Murder Theory in Rawn Case Weakened By Discovery.

Chemists Report on Examination of Shots on Outside Walk.

Chicago, July 23.—Stains on the cement sidewalk near the home of Ira G. Rawn, the railroad president who was found shot to death in his summer residence, were declared today by chemists to be caused by some coloring matter in a watery solution, and not blood stains of the supposed murderer, as believed by the slain man's relatives and friends. This discovery weakens the theory of murder held by the relatives of Rawn.

Ira L. Rawn, a nephew of the decedent, has offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who, the relatives believe, killed Mr. Rawn.

WALKS LONG WAY WITH BAD WOUND

Woodchopper Nearly Severs Hand With Ax, Then Walks Twelve Miles.

Cloquet, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon a Finlander living twelve miles from Feely on the Great Northern cut his hand about half off with an ax and then tied a handkerchief around his wrist, pulling it tight with his teeth, to stop the flow of blood, and walked the twelve miles to Feely and boarded the train for Cloquet, arriving here at 5 o'clock, his clothing literally soaked with blood.

He was chopping wood and the ax caught in his clothing and came down full force across the back of his hand. Physicians say that had he not had an extra good constitution he must have dropped on the road before reaching Feely from loss of blood.

UNCLE SAM TO MAKE CHOICE

Blondes and Brunettes Competing for Favor of the Government.

Washington, July 23. — Whether blondes or brunettes will stand better the actinic rays of the tropical sun is being made the subject of an investigation by the war department.

A complexion study is to be made of the sick in hospitals, and data will be gathered from the soldiers' invalid homes, all bearing on the correctness of the theory that persons of dark complexion show less the effects of the sun in a hot climate than do their lighter companions.

BET ON JEFF AND KILLED HIMSELF

Suicide of Harry Michaels of Chicago Is Explained at Last.

Chicago, July 23.—A telegram announcing the loss of a $10,000 bet that Jim Jeffries would win in the prize fight with Jack Johnson was the reason why Harry Michaels, secretary of the Michaels Furniture company of this city, shot himself dead at his desk while his brother, a New York man, awaited him at a hotel here. Ill health was the cause assigned at the time. Publicity today as to the real occasion for the deed came through proceedings by creditors.

YEOW! FZZT! ZIP!!! GET 200 OF THEM

Cops, Butchers and Grocers Join Night Cat Hunt in New York.

New York, July 23.—Yowling, spitting, scratching and biting, 200 cats were cornered one by one last night in the old Washington market and dumped into baskets to be disposed of later by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Agents of the society, policemen, watchmen, butchers, green grocers, mongers and all the little world of the market joined in a midnight hunt that for activity and noise outdid anything ever chronicled for darkest Africa.

For years the cats, at first encouraged to keep down the rats, have run wild and increased in garrets and subcellars until they became at last an intolerable pest. The market is now in process of renovating.

TAFT GOES TO VISIT BANGOR

Will Return to Ellsworth to Be Guest of Senator Hale.

Ellsworth, Me., July 23.—The Mayflower, which anchored last night in Northeast harbor with President Taft and his party on board, left there before 7 o'clock this morning. They anchored in Bay harbor while the party breakfasted and a small boat was sent ashore for the mail.

Leaving Bar Harbor at 9:30 a. m., the Mayflower proceeded to this place, where the president and his party took a special train for Bangor, where the president will speak at 1 p. m. He also will be entertained at luncheon.

Mrs. Taft and the women of the party stopped at Ellsworth and were driven to Senator Hale's home to await the return of the president at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The little town is gaily decorated in honor of the president's coming.

Considerable rivalry exists between the degree teams of the two tents and it is expected that the contest will settle the question of supremacy, for a time at least.

ERNEST L. EARLE FOUND IN BOSTON

Discovered in Library Poring Over a Work on Chess.

Ernest L. Earle, teacher of the University school at 1801 East Fourth street, who disappeared from his home at Athol, Mass., after leaving a note that the community would be shocked to learn that he had taken his own life, was located in a library at Boston, Mass. He was poring over a work on chess.

The young man does not remember anything of his actions on Wednesday or Thursday, memory having apparently failed him for two days. He is now in the care of a physician.

Mr. Earle complained of being ill before he left Duluth and sought medical advice at that time. It is believed that the mental aberration of the last two days is due to his sickness.

When his note, addressed to his mother, was found, a large searching party was immediately organized. The neighboring woods were thoroughly scoured and the neighboring lake dragged in an effort to find his body. Mr. Earle was an usher at the First Unitarian church and resided at Lakeside. He is 24 years of age and unmarried.

Tells of Movements.

Athol, Mass., July 23.—Ernest Earle, a school teacher of Duluth, Minn., who was mysteriously absent from the home of his parents here for three days, was able to tell of some of his movements when he arrived here today. Earle had been ill from overwork. When he was found in the Boston public library last night by a cousin, Lucien E. Taylor, Earle was unable to tell where she had been since leaving here. Today he said that for some reason he cannot explain, he left Athol Wednesday and walked to Barre, a distance of eighteen miles. At Barre he took a train for Worcester and upon arriving there changed cars, going to Boston. He arrived in Boston Thursday afternoon and wandered around the city, but does not know where he spent the night. Friday he drifted into the public library.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES

Monday morning the students at the normal school had the pleasure of listening to an interesting talk on forestry by Prof. W. N. Clifford. Mr. Clifford is a teacher in one of the Philadelphia high schools, but in the summer vacation is in the forest service of the department of agriculture.

The speaker asked the question. "Does forestry pay?" For proof that it does he cited Germany, France and Switzerland, where the people are getting large net returns. Mr. Clifford gave two reasons why forestry has not as yet paid in America. First, that quantities of timber are eaten up every year by the forest fires; and second, that the form of taxation is such that the people cannot afford to keep their land.

Miss Long, teacher of reading at the normal school, has been giving a series of talks to the students upon physical culture. Tuesday morning, Miss Long spoke about our standing and sitting positions in general and showed us how important it is to be careful about such matters.

DULLNESS WEARING OFF IN TRADE

New York, July 23.—R. G. Dunn & Co's Weekly Review of Trade today says:

Midsummer dullness is less pronounced in both wholesale and retail departments of trade, and as the leading markets are gradually relieved of some of the difficulties with which they have been beset—crop uncertainties, price inconsistencies, and other disturbing elements—a broader demand develops. There is still much idle cotton machinery in New England, and a two weeks' shut down is scheduled for August, but curtailment is forcing a recovery from the low price levels and there is less pressure to liquidate stocks. Some substantial business is reported in woolens, and, while the Eastern markets for wool continue quiet, primary markets in the West are active and higher. Footwear factories, East and West, are resuming and trade is much improved in leather, while hides have recovered from the low point, large accumulations having been moved. More definite knowledge regarding the yield of cotton in the South and wheat in the West will determine the basis of manufacturing costs in dry goods on the one hand and flour on the other. Flour production in the Northwest continues greatly reduced. Cancellations in spring wheat territory are less numerous and some orders are being reinstated, as stocks are generally very slow. With a few exceptions industrial lines are busy and labor well employed in nearly all sections of the country, making for a large purchasing power. Except for a moderate reduction on prices of wire products no new feature has developed in iron and steel, the situation generally reflecting the dullness customary at this season. In finished lines, structural material makes the best showing, most mills having sufficient orders on hand to keep them occupied for some time to come, while several important contracts will be opened in the near future. Inquiries are more numerous for pig iron, but sales are not heavy. Prices of steel are weaker and open hearth billets have declined to $26.50, while Bessemer billets are quoted nominally at $25. Sheet bars command $1 above billets. The temporary suspension of iron bar making tended to strengthen the market for these stlightly and quotations are firm at $1.45. Orders for steel rails are sufficient for three months' operation and specifications are heavy.

reached the police of foreign countries.

New Life in Search.

London, July 23.—The Canadian clue appears to have put new life into the Crippen search today. The police have been watching continental points and examining shipping agents and others who come in touch with trans-Atlantic passengers. It is understood that from one of those interviewed was received information which caused the hurried departure of Inspector Dew for Canada.

Probability points to the Allan line steamer Sicilian as the vessel which the police have in mind. The Sicilian sailed from London on July 9, the day of Crippen's disappearance, and from Havre on July 11 for Montreal. She arrived at Montreal last Thursday.

Steamer Not Given Out.

There is a possibility, however, that Crippen and the Leneve woman are aboard a steamer sailing for Canada on a later date. The Sardinian sailed from London July 16 and Havre July 18, for Montreal. The Zaandyk sailed from Hamburg for Montreal on July 13 and the Uranium sailed from Rotterdam July 14 for Halifax, N. S., and New York.

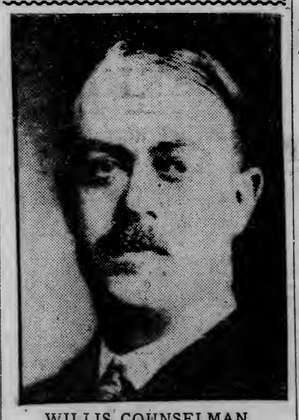

Word was received here this afternoon that a wireless message had been received at Liverpool from a steamer bound for Canadian ports and stating that it had on board two passengers believed to be Dr. Crippen and his typist, Miss Leneve.

The Sardinian, which sailed from London for Montreal, July 16, is in mid-ocean today, while the Zaandyk, which sailed from Hamburg July 13 for the same port, is nearer this side. Between the two probably is the Uranium, which left Rotterdam July 14 for Halifax. The Sardinian is equipped with Marconi wireless; the other two are not listed as wireless vessels.

ACREAGE NEAR WOODLAND SOLD

C. F. Coleman Buys Seventy-Five Acres From Woodland Company.

C. F. Coleman is now the owner of seventy-five acres of land close to the Woodland car line and near the Hartley farm as the result of a deal which yesterday terminated in the filing of the deed with the register of deeds.

The Woodland company was formerly the owner and it is understood that the consideration was $28,000.

The land in this vicinity has been steadily going up in price for the past few years and aside from the fact that the lands are among the best about the city, they are considered valuable for truck garden purposes.

CUMMINS ROASTS THE STANDPATTERS

Invades Kansas With Attack on Aldrich and Cannon Methods.

Council Grove, Kan., July 23.—Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, in a speech before a chautauqua audience here last night, asserted that the pledge of the Republican national platform for a revision of the tariff was not fulfilled, and that Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon and the others who took the lead in framing the tariff bill had never attempted and never intended to keep the pledges of the party.

Senator Cummins came into the home of one of the Kansas regular congressmen—Representative James M. Miller—to give this message. The senator was cheered for a minute when he started his speech.

Cannon and Aldrich and other stand-pat leaders are driving the nation into socialism or co-operative control and away from the individual or competitive theory, he said.

Eliminate Special Interests.

"I am an exponent of the progressive Republican idea," he said. "I believe that the Republican party can be made the most progressive party on earth, the one that does things for the good of the whole country. But the special interests men must be eliminated. That is my sermon. That is what I talk, and if it helps or hurts anyone where I may be talking, it does not bother me.

"For ten years I fought for progress in Iowa, and we have won and are winning. This is not a local matter at all, but one covering all this country and affecting other countries, so that any local matter is of small consideration.

Driving Country to Socialism.

"Speaker Cannon and Senator Aldrich are driving the country into a Socialistic form of government and industry because of their interest in promoting the cause of monopolies. They are unwilling to take measures to prevent the rapidly growing tendency toward monopoly, or to disintegrate and destroy the monopolies already in existence, whereby the prices of commodities are fixed, not by the usual laws of trade, but by the will of a single man or group of men.

"Monopoly does not mean a single factory with absolute control of one article, but a combination of factories making the same article, whereby the prices are the same in all, whether or not the factories are owned by one company or are controlled through a trust agreement."

DECISIONS UPHELD.

Supreme Court Affirms Rulings Made By the Lower Court.

The supreme court upholds the decision of the district court in the case of Cyrille Fortier against the Skibo Lumber company. The case was the outgrowth of a dispute as to the measurement of logs.

The decision in the case of John Johnson against McLeod and Smith is also upheld. Johnson sought to recover for the loss of his hand while in the employ of the company. The decision of the lower court favored the defendants as did the decision of the supreme court.

The supreme court affirms the decision of the lower court in the case of Charles E. Hamlin, administrator, against the Lanquist & Illsley company. The plaintiff obtained a verdict in the lower court.

Bowel Complaint in Children.

When six months old the little daughter of E. N. Dewey, a well-known merchant of Agnewville, Va., had an attack of cholera infantum. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was given and effected a complete cure. This remedy has proven very successful in cases of bowel complaint in children and when given according to the plain printed directions can be relied upon with perfect confidence. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all druggists.

WARRANT IS ISSUED.

Mrs. O'Connor Will Have Neighborhood Trouble Aired in Court.

A warrant for the arrest of Mrs. John E. Evans of 902 South Seventy-first avenue west, charging asault, was issued this morning from the municipal court to Mrs. Michael O'Connor, a neighbor residing at 924 South Seventy-second avenue west.

The action is the outcome of a personal combat between the two women Wednesday evening in a cow pasture near their homes. The West Duluth police will not serve the warrant on Mrs. Evans until she is able to appear in court. The woman is now under a physician's care.

The fight, which was stopped by Officer Root of the West Duluth police among the women for several weeks, station, came about as a culmination of an old trouble which had existed Mrs. Evans came out of the affair with several bad cuts on the head which were sewed up by a physician and the O'Connor woman had her finger nearly bitten off, it is said.

Mrs. O'Connor insists upon having the matter aired out in the courts. Thursday morning she applied to Judge Flack of the West Duluth justice court for a warrant, which was issued. Before it was served however, it was withdrawn.

NEW CHURCH PLANNED FOR NEW DULUTH.

The old Presbyterian church at New Duluth, built in 1890, may be replaced within a year by a modern and up-to-date sctructure to cost about $12,000.

The congregation, of which Rev. Peter Knudson is pastor, is now formulating plans along this line and if a suitable location can be picked out the church will be built within a short time.

Just where the business district at the site of the steel plant will spring up will not be known for some time, and the congregation is holding off for this reason as it is planned to have the new church centrally located.

NEW PORTRAIT OF RICHEST AMERICAN TIMBER MAGNATE SHOWN IN DULUTH

—Photographed from oil painting from life by A. Salzbrenner.
FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER.

While forest fires are sweeping the north country and destroying millions of feet of timber, a new portrait of the man who is suffering the heaviest losses by the onrush of the flames is on exhibition in Duluth, the city that not many years ago was the central point in many of his vast enterprises. The portrait, which is the work of A. Salzbrenner of St. Paul, is on view in the parlors of the Spalding hotel today and tomorrow. It is a striking likeness of the multi-millionaire and has attracted much attention wherever shown.

BROSVIK CHARGED WITH WHOLESALE FORGERIES

Town Clerk of Buyck Believed to Have Made Confession.

Thousands of Dollars Said to Have Been Obtained Illegally.

Wholesale forgeries, running into thousand of dollars, are now alleged to have been committed by B. B. Brosvick, clerk of the town of Buyck, arrested several days ago on a charge of forgery by Attorney W. J. Stevenson.

Brosvik is said to have confessed to numerous illegal signatures at the county jail yesterday afternoon.

Attorney Stevenson, accompanied by David Williams, assistant cashier of the First National bank, visited Brosvik in his cell at the county jail yesterday afternoon. Attorney Stevenson refused to make any statement relative to the case but he was equally positive in his refusal to deny that there had been a confession.

It can be reliably stated, however, that Brosvik admitted numerous forgeries for large amounts. The mass of crookedness charged exceeds anything of the kind ever discovered in official life in St. Louis county. The first information as to irregularities came from County Examiner Wiggett last week when he examined the books at the town of Buyck.

Not only is Brosvik alleged to have forged naines of town officials, but he is said to have operated in saloons in Duluth and Superior, putting spurious checks for various amounts over the bar in the style of the professional who makes a business of living by his ability to wield the pen.

Aug. 1, 1909, Brosvik is said to have forged the signature of Mina Finstad to a county check for $1,069. Mrs. Finstad is treasurer for the school district which includes Buyck. At the First National bank he purchased two drafts for the proceeds, it is said. The exact amounts could not be ascertained. But one was for approximately $659 to the Miners' National Bank at Eveleth and the other for about $410. The latter was signed by C. Munson, per B. B. Brosvik, and was cashed at the City National bank.

Following this transaction he is said to have forged the name of Oscar Hanson on Aug. 18 to a county check for $4,018.24, the check being payable to Hanson, who was then town treasurer of Buyck. For this he got three drafts, it is said. One of them he is said to have made out to Mina Finstad for $1,669 to pay the amount which he had secured on the previous transaction. Another was for $2,018.24, payable to Hanson, and he is charged with having put the balance into his own pocket on the third draft, which was cashed at the City National bank.

Later he is said to have forged an entire school district order for $248. It was made payable to Peter Anderson and signed by B. B. Brosvik, clerk; Ole Hanson, director, and Mina Finstad, school treasurer. It was alleged to have been edorsed by Peter Anderson. Anderson had no money coming to him from the school district and every signature except his own was a forgery, it is clealmed.

Last Saturday Brosvik is said to have put off the forged checks on the saloons. One was on a Superior buffet for $27 and two others on saloons on the Duluth bowery for $40 and $10. He got cash on all of them, it is charged. They purported to having been issued by C. Gill on a Virginia bank. It is understood that Gill is related to Brosvik.

Brosvik was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Stevenson accusing him of forging the name of Mrs. Finstad to a check for $267.58, dated April 18, last. At headquarters he told of another check for $622, supposed to have been put off at the same time. He claimed at that time that the signatures were genuine and that his only crime had been in accepting public money to satisfy a private debt due him by the Finstads.

Attorney Stevenson and Mr. Williams were with Brosvik a considerable length of time. At least part of the time a third man was with them, presumably a brother-in-law of the prisoner. It is known that they showed Brosvik a number of papers or checks, and it is thought that they are those he is said to have confessed to forging. The transactions given above were received from sources known to be reliable, and there is scarcely any doubt but that they, together with a number of others, will all be made public by the authorities in an official statement at a later date.

COUNTY AUDITOR RECEIVES BOOKS

City Board of Review Made Few Changes in Assessment.

Breaking most previous records for early closing, the books of the city assessor containing the real estate assessment were delivered to the county auditor's office this morning. Guarded by three deputies they were carted to the courthouse in the police patrol automobile. Every footing was complete and every page in shape for the inspection of the county board of review.

The changes made by the city board of review were remarkably small, amounting to but .0073 of 1 per cent of the total assessment. Real estate was given a total raise of $121,957 and personal property a total reduction of $87,860 by the city board, a difference of but $34,097 from the original assessment the total assessment being $46,496,999, inciuding the exemptions. Considerable credit is being given to Chief Deputy Assessor William J. Stephens for an assessment which brought fewer "kicks" than ever before and which was completed many weeks earlier than the average time. It is also highly gratifying to City Assessor C. L. Rakowsky, who secured an additional appropriation of about $6,000 from the council with which to carry on the work.

Proper Treatment for Dysentery and Diarrhoea.

The great mortality from dysentery and diarrhoea is due to a lack of proper treatment at the first stages of the disease. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is a reliable and effectual medicine, and when given in reasonable time will prevent any dangerous consequences. It has been in use for many years and has always met with unvarying success. For sale by all druggists.

HEAVY TRAVEL ON THE LAKES

Big Passenger Boats Arrive in Port With Capacity List.

The Juniata and Hamonic are in port this morning with the largest passenger lists they have carried this season. The Anchor line steamer was almost filled to capacity, while the Northern Navigation company boat has the largest passenger list that the steamer has brought here the present season.

The Juniata will leave tomorrow evening with every berth and stateroom engaged. The rush to reserve room on the big Anchor line boat has been the heaviest of the season. The Hamonic will also leave Duluth with a capacity list.

Each of the boats brought in over 200 passengers, and it is expected that the Juniata will take over 240 passengers from here Sunday evening.

The booking for the North West for the up lake trip is very heavy. Lake passenger agents say the tourist travel is at its height at the present time, and that from now until the end of the season the tourist travel will be heavy.

SMOKE HINDRANCE TO NAVIGATION.

Captains of incoming lake vessels have reported that the smoke from the forest fires along the shores of Lake Superior hangs like a pall over the lake, extending far down the path of the vessels. For miles out from Duluth, according to the reports that have been made here, the smoke is thick. While during the day time the smoke does not wholly obscure the view of the pilots, it is reported here that in the evening the smoke-obscured atmosphere is more dense than a heavy fog settling over the lake.

NEW STORM WARNING PLAN

Station Established at Grand Marais By Weather Bureau.

Captain Albert Swanson, in charge of the Duluth branch government hydrographic office, has notified his office at Washington of the establishment at Grand Marais by the weather bureau department of the agricultural department of the government, of a day and night storm warning and forcasting station.

At the present time this station is sending out forecasts of the weather and warnings to mariners of storms that may be brewing.

These reports are sent to Duluth and in turn are communicated to all ships that have wireless apparatus.

It is hoped in the future to have a similar station established at Sluger's Island, Isle Royale.

The Duluth weather bureau has been working on the scheme for some time, and now that the details have been completed, in co-operation with the wireless telegraph company is able to give the storm signals to the vessels.

FALLING OFF IN LAKE COMMERCE

Less Tonnage Carried Through Soo for Fiscal Year Just Ended.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Statistics compiled by Supt. L. C. Sabin of the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie and included in the annual report of Col. Townsend, United States engineer in charge of the district, show a big falling off in lake commerce for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1910. While there was an increase of more than 1,900 in the number of vessel passages at the Soo, the amount of freight carried was 3,806,342 tons less than in 1909. The total tonnage in 1910 was 28,951,144, as compared with 32,757,486 tons in 1909.

Coal shows a decrease of 296,000 tons; iron ore, 3,578,000 tons and grain, 15,000,000 bushels.

There were 27,736 passengers carried through the canals, an increase of 4,625 over the previous year

A fire which started yesterday in the piling under the dock at Great Northern elevator "S" was discovered in time to prevent a serious bay front conflagration. The $2,500,000 fire on the bay front a few years ago started in a similar manner.

CLEANING WAY FOR THE NEW ROAD

Crew of Men Set at Work Near Smithville on Canadian Northern.

The contractors on the Canadian Northern railroad extension have begun active operations near Smithville.

The right-of-way is being cleared, a large crew of men having been set to work yesterday. Several of the engineers employed by the road have taken residences at Smithville, and from now on it is expected that the work will be rushed.

The contract for the road between Duluth and Virginia has been sublet in sections of from five to ten miles each. Foley, Welsh & Stewart are the general contractors, and E. M. Olson & Co. of Duluth have been given the contract for the erection of section houses along the way.

H. T. Hazen, chief engineer of the road, says that the preliminary work is progressing nicely. Mr. Hazen says the line will cost about $35,000 a mile. There will be 500 feet of rock tunnel at Short Line Park, according to the chief engineer.

No trouble is experienced by the line in getting engineers and laborers. Several lines have been laying off their help, and it comes at a time to be of help to the Canadian Northern.

WESTERN GOLF TEAM LEADS

Good Scores at Minikahda Despite Rain and Wind.

Minikahda Club, Minneapolis, Minn., July 23.—The Western Golf association team, made up of one national and three sectional champions, was the leader at the end of the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six-hole medal play for the Olympic trophy at Minikhada club today. This quartet was an easy leader with a total of 316 for the first half of the match.

The consistent work of the Western quartet was in a measure eclipsed by the phenomenal score of 72, turned in by Howard B. Lee, of the Detroit Country club, playing with the Michigan association.

The seventy-two tied the course record, which was made by Warren K. Wood of Homewood yesterday. Lee's score was remarkable inasmuch as he played the greater part of the eighteen holes in a driving rain and part of the time in the teeth of a strong wind.

The Western Golf Association team played consistently. Robert Gardner, the national champion, was the leader with 76.

Score of the Western Golf association team:

Name.	Out.	In.	Tls.
Albert Seckel	38	39	77
R. A. Gardner	36	40	76
Charles Evans, Jr.	38	42	80
Paul Hunter	42	41	83
Grand total			316

The Des Moines association turned in 341, Ralph Rider leading with 81.

The Minnesota association was close behind with 342, Harry Legg, the trans-Mississippi champion in the lead with 79.

DULUTH SINGERS WERE PROMINENT AT NORWEGIAN SAENGERFEST AT SIOUX FALLS

NORMANNA SINGING SOCIETY.

The Normanna Sining Society of Duluth made an enviable record at the big Norwegian-Danish Singers' association saengerfest at Sioux Falls, S. D., July 15, 16 and 17, and the Norse singers got in a lot of good advertising for Duluth as well as enjoying themselves and chanting folk songs to their heart's content at the big concerts.

The Duluth society had a total of thirty men at the saengerfest out of a membership of thirty-five, and with the Superior contingent of fourteen, this gave the Head of the Lakes a delegation of forty-four singers at the big meeting.

One of the leading merchants of Sioux Falls put up a big trophy cup to go to the club having the best attendance record at the fest, and the judges are still trying to decide whether the Fergus Falls or the Duluth club is entitled to the trophy. The Fergus Falls club had every member present, while the Normanna society reported five members absent, but the committee is inclined to favor Duluth because of the much longer distance traveled.

The Duluth singers had a special car to the big meeting, and at Willmar they were joined by the Twin City organizations so that the singers invaded the Dakota town 225 strong.

There was a big parade on the morning of July 15, and there were concerts in the afternoon and evening, the big auditorium which seats nearly 16,000 persons being well filled at all the events.

At the business meeting, held Saturday afternoon the name of the organization was changed from The Norwegian-Danish Singers' association to the Norwegian Singers of America, the Appollo club of Minneapolis, the only Danish organization on the rolls, being dropped from membership.

The big song fests of the association come every two years, but business sessions attended by delegates from the different clubs are held every year. The one next year is scheduled for Duluth and will bring about 100 representatives of the different organizations to the city. The next big saengerfest will be at Fargo in 1912.

Olaf Halten of Duluth, director of the Normanna society, was elected assistant director-in-chief at the Sioux Falls meeting.

WEST END FOUNDER OF COVENANT

Dr. P. P. Waldenstrom Will Give Two Lectures in Duluth.

Noted Throughout Sweden as Author, Legislator and Churchman.

Swedish people of the city are looking forward with much interest to the visit of Dr. P. P. Waldenstrom, D. D., Ph. D., author, legislator and churchman of Sweden, who will lecture in Duluth Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

Dr. Waldenstrom, with his simple, frank and affectionate ways, holds the distinction of being the most popular speaker and preacher in Sweden. Although over 72 years old, his physical and mental powers of endurance are marvelous and he is still the picture of health and strength.

He is the author of some forty religious works, of which about thirty are phamplets on timely subjects, while others are larger volumes. He has published four books in Latin, two on scientific and two on theological subjects. Some of his admirers claim that he can preach in both the Latin and Greek languages.

Dr. Waldenstrom took the most prominent part in organizing the Free Church movement in Sweden. The Swedish Mission Covenant was founded by him in 1878 and he is still president of the organizatton. The denomination has an adult membership of over 100,000 and claims a following five times as large. Some of the largest church buildings in Sweden are owned by this denomination. Three of them have a seating capacity of over 4,000 each.

The Swedish Mission Covenant of which Dr. Waldenstrom is president, adheres to three fundamental principles. They are: First, the local church should consist of only regenerated members as far as one can tell; second, all true Christians have a right to belong to the local church regardless of different opinions and ought not to be divided into different sects and denominations. The ideal of the local church should be the one great church of God of which Jesus Christ is the head. Third, a church government by the people."

Member of Parliament.

In 1873, Dr. Waldenstrom aroused a great religious controversy, when he issued a phamplet about the biblical doctrine of of the reconciliation. The publication called forth many replies throughout Sweden and among the Swedish people in America.

For twenty years, Dr. Waldenstrom was a member of the Swedish parliamen and he has always taken a lively interest in the political questions of Sweden. He stands as a reformer but he is a strong opponent to all radical measures. He is in sympathy with many of the reforms, which have been worked out in New Zealand, but does not believe in Socialism.

While in Duluth, Dr. Waldenstrom will be a guest at the home of Rev. John J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, 2013½ West Third street. On Tuesday evening, he will give a lecture on "Shadows and Lights in Sweden," and on Wednesday he will preach a sermon on "The Biblical Doctrine of the Reconciliation." His lecture Tuesday evening, will be a discourse on economical and political conditions in Sweden as they exist today.

Dr. Waldenstrom came to America shortly over a month ago to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the founding the Swedish Mission church in America. Since the affair was held at Chicago, June 29, Dr. Waldenstrom has been visiting the principal cities where there are churches of this denomination.

After visiting a few points in the East, he will sail for Sweden.

AGITATION FOR GRADING OF STREETS RENEWED.

Agitation has started anew at the West end for the grading of Tenth and Eleventh streets between Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth avenues west.

This matter has been talked of for the past six years and it is expected that at the next meeting of the West End Hillside Improvement club some action will be taken to bring it about.

The cost, it is estimated, will be about $35 a lot, providing for a 24-foot roadway with a stone curbing. The lack of a gutter and good curbing now is responsible for the flooding of cellars on the lower side of the street every time there is a hard rain.

Several new residences have been erected here lately and property-owners urge that the street be improved.

WILL SPEAK TO HIS FORMER FLOCK.

Rev. Albert Johanson, former pastor of the Swedish Mission church, who now has a charge at Moline, Ill., will preach to his former flock Sunday morning at the church, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. Rev. Johanson is in Duluth on a visit.

In the evening Rev. C. W. Bowman of Minneapolis will occupy the pulpit. In the morning he will speak at West Duluth. Rev. Bowman until recently has been superintendent of missions for the denomination in the Northwest.

Recently he accepted a call to become the pastor of a large church in Boston. This will be his last visit to the Head of the Lakes before going East.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS STOPS DITCHING.

Because Charles F. Spence, street commissioner, scraped both sides of Twenty-ninth avenue west from Vernon to Third street and had the scrapings heaped in the center of the street, in order to obtain a more perfect drainage from Fourth street this week, the board of public works has put a damper on the proposition on the grounds that if the street was ditched, property owners would put off grading the thoroughfare indefinitely.

The street commissioner claims that he did the work to give the people a drier street and says that he had planned to do the same with other thoroughfares in the West end. The board of public works, however, looks upon the proposition as one of free grading and has ordered all work of this kind stopped.

SAYS INDIANS ARE NOT STRANDED IN BELGIUM.

Washington, July 23.—A denial that thirty-nine Sioux Indians from Pine Ridge, (S. D.), reservation are stranded in Brussels with an American wild west show company, with which they are connected, has been received by the bureau of Indian affairs in a cablegram from the manager of the exhibition. The bureau immediately cabled to United States Consul Watts at Brussels, requesting him to make an investigation in view of the conflicting reports which have been received in Washington. The Indian officials recently were informed that the Indans were stranded. Arrangements at once were made to bring the red men home. Whether this action will be taken now will depend upon the report of Consul Watts.

SEASON IS AT ITS HEIGHT

Duluth Autoists Getting Much Pleasure Out of Their Cars.

The automobile season is at its height. The roads are now all in good condition and the trip to the Range towns and St. Paul and Minneapolis is now of daily occurence.

Many shining new 1911 models of the popular makes of cars are seen on the streets and while the lines are about the same as have been in vogue for the past two years, many new improvements have been made.

Many Minneapolis and St. Paul people are motoring to the Zenith City and many Duluth people pass them on the road going the other way.

The surrounding short drives are being taken daily and Duluth with its 300 automobiles is enjoying the heighth of the season to the full.

J. A. Watterworth has purchased a toy-tonneau Interstate 40-horse power car. The toy-tonneau, which is a new model and the first to come to the Head of the Lakes is a beauty.

The campaign for members by the officers of the Duluth Automobile club is being kept up as strenuously as it was the first days of the campaign. From the number of new members obtained, and taking their enthusiasm into consideration, Duluth will have a live organization within a short time. The annual meeting will soon be held and at that time definite plans for the work to be done during the fall and winter will be discussed.

The first of the 1911 Cadillac models will be on display at the show rooms of the Northwestern Cadillac company some time during the early part of August. Several distinctive features have been added for next year.

The trip to Cloquet has been made enjoyable by the fact that there is now at that place an excellent restaurant maintained by Miss Ella Lindberg, formerly of Duluth. One Sunday recently twenty-five Duluth people were in the cafe at one time. All had motored to the lumber town.

The Pierce Arrow for 1911 is a beauty. It has been this and more for several years past, but in the 1911 moiel the company has a silent, swift-running, comfortable car that is almost in a class by itself. Hills, sand or roads of the worst kind have no terrors for those that drive Pierce cars.

Blowouts have not been so numerous during the week past. The weather has been cooler and people generally are being a little more careful to ease on the pressure in their tires.

H. C. Sanderson and family made the trip from Minneapolis to Duluth during the week. The roads, they say, are excellent with the exception of the sand on the other side of Rush City. The sun, they say, has dried it out so that it now is quite deep and in places hard to get through.

The Black River Falls drive out of Superior is now being taken by a great many Duluth people. The road is new, but of the best. It is known as one of the most beautiful of the many drives at the Head of the Lakes.

The improvements on the Pike lake road have improved that highway wonderfully. The holes have been filled with gravel and the bumps and jerks are not nearly so numerous as heretofore.

People are voicing their sentiments in regard to the lake shore road beyond Lester Park. This road, if improved, would be one of the finest drives near the city. At the present time it is broken, ragged and rough. Small creeks have ploughed their way through it so that it makes driving over it extremely risky, even though the drive be taken ever so slowly. The Two Harbors road, just north of this road, is in good condition as far as Sucker river. Beyond that point it is very rough.

The boulevard drive has been greatly improved. Until the present time a ride over the boulevard in an automobile was not particularly agreeable. The filling up of the holes and the short cuts to the right at dangerous places are good improvements. There are so many short turns on this drive that some consider it wonderful that an accident has not happened. Going either way the driver can see but a few feet ahead. The new departure making the cars go to the right and the providing of two roads around the short turns is an improvement that has been needed for some time.

The roads to and from the range are said to be about the best roads in the state. Those who have made the trip of late announce that it is a pleasure to motor to the range. The improvements on the Miller-Trunk are about finished and this part of the road will be greatly improved. Once on the range the roads permit one to run as fast as the car will go.

After having been submerged for six hours in the Pacific ocean, a Cadillac Thirty was given a fresh supply of gasoline and started on its own power.

This remarkable incident occurred recently at Aberdeen, Wash. F. D. Deming and a party were driving on the beach, when suddenly the car sank to the frame in quicksand.

The tide was rising at the time, and before assistance could be summoned the car had been engulfed. When the tide began to recede and it was possible to reach the car, it was drawn up on solid ground.

A fresh supply of gasoline was procured, the carburetor drained to get all the water out of the system, and the car was started as readily as though it had not been buried in salt water for half a day. No water was found in the cylinders, or even in the crank case.

F. J. Le Gear is an Elk of Austin, Tex. Instead of traveling to the grand lodge reunion at Detroit by rail, he drove from the Lone Star state to Michigan in his Cadillac Thirty. Throughout the long trip of 2,287 miles a tool touched the car once—and that was a wrench to tighten a nut. In the past year Mr. Le Gear has driven his car 24,400 miles, this distance including the trip from Austin to Detroit.

CHALMERS CAR IS THE WINNER

Automobile Court Sustains the Protest Filed By Detroit Concern.

New York, July 23.—After an all-night session the contest board of the American Automobile association yesterday sustained the protest filed by the Chalmers company against the Premier entry, which has been awarded the Glidden trophy as victor in the recent annual road classic of the A. A. A.

As a consequence of this decision by the automobile court the Chalmers company is sustained and the previous award to the Premier car is reversed, victory going to Chalmers, No. 5. The protest against the Premier entry was based upon the use of an auxiliary oil tank.

MEETING OF THE LABOR ASSEMBLY

Plans Discussed For an Exhibition at the Minnesota State Fair.

Plans to have an exhibition at the Minnesota state fair were discussed at the meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly held last night at the Kalamazoo building.

A committee consisting of James Walsh, Henry Perault, E. G. Wallgren, George Northfield and Henry Miller will take the matter up with the State Fair association, which has reserved 400 feet of space to be used by the labor organizations of the state. In a recent leter the local union was invited to have an exhibition.

A local moving picture theater which is said to employ non-union musicians was under discussion. The proprietor is said to have given the committee that visited him no satisfaction, and the theater will be placed on the unfair list.

Representatives of the Garment Workers' union were present at the meeting and they reported that the union was not in a very flourishing condition. A committee was appointed to confer with the members of the union.

A report was made to the effect that the janitors of the city are about ripe for an organization. One of the janitors in one of the large buildings has the matter in charge.

FUNERAL OF JOHN D. BRADY

Many Friends Attend Services at Sacred Heart Cathedral.

Many friends and relatives yesterday attended the last rites over the body of the late John D. Brady, who died Monday night at St. Mary's hospital following an unsuccessful operation for appendicitis.

The services were held at the cathedral of the Sacred Heart, Second avenue west and Fourth street, Rev. Father Eli Lemere officiating. He preached a strong sermon eloquent of the excellent qualities of Mr. Brady. Father Lemere commented particularly upon his fortitude in meeting death, explaining that Mr. Brady knew that his end was at hand and that he had called for him at the hospital. The mother of Mr. Brady and his brother, Frank Brady, were so deeply affected that they were unable to accompany the body to the cemetery.

For years Mr Brady was one of the most prominent politicians in Northern Minnesota, being closely identified with the inner circles of the Democratic party. During John Lind's administration as governor, from 1899 to 1901, he was surveyor general of logs and lumber in this district. Interment was at Calvary cemetery following the services at the cathedral.

VICTORY FOR RAILROADS

Master in Chancery Files Findings in Big Lumber Rate Suit.

Decision at St. Paul Recommends Holding Up of Order.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frederick N. Dickson, master in chancery, today filed his preliminary findings in the lumber rate suit instituted in the fall of 1908 against the interstate commerce commission by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway companies. They were served on the attorneys of both sides of the litigation.

In the findings the railroads win a substantial victory. The lumber rates established by the interstate commerce commission from the Pacific coast to all points west of the Pembina line, which is made up of the western boundaries of Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, is sustained, but the rates from the coast to points east of that line are declared to be unreasonably low.

The railroads asked for a rate of 50 cents a hundredweight on lumber shipped from Portland, Or., to Minneapolis and St. Paul, and for 60 cents from Portland to Chicago. The interstate commerce comission cut this to 45 cents from Portland to St. Paul and 55 cents from Portland to Chicago.

Dr. Dickson upholds the contentions of the railroads and recommends an injunction nullifying the order of the interstate commerce commission on these rates and on other lumber rates from the coast to east of the Pembina line.

ANTI-LIQUOR MEN ARE PLEASED AT FEDERAL RULE.

Washington, July 23.—The Anti-Saloon league of Northwest Minnesota has telegraphed its congratulations to the bureau of Indian affairs for its action in extending prohibition on the ceded Indian lands in that state adjacent to the Leech Lake and White Earth reservations.

The league referred to the instructions recently issued by Chief Supervisor Holcombe to the first agents of the Indian bureau, forbidding the introduction of liquors to the prescribed territory in order to carry out, for the protection of the Indians against intoxicating beverages, the stipulations of the treaties by which the lands were ceded.

The dispatch requested the officials to remain firm in their attitude on the subject.

LIGHTNING HITS HOUSE

Considerable Damage Done By Sudden Electrical Storm.

Rainfall Is 1.4 Inches in About Fifteen Minutes.

The sudden electrical storm which struck Duluth about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon resulted in the house being struck by lightning, the temporary shutting off of electric power and considerable damage to streets and parks.

The residence at 421 East First street was struck by a bolt of lightning about 2:30 o'clock. As far as could be learned no one was hurt. The bolt came through the roof and window, shattering a big mirror, knocking the walls to pieces and tumbling the furniture about. The house is occupied by the families of K. Light and S. Witt. The house was set on fire and the department called out. The fire was quickly extinguished.

The Great Northern Power company was compelled to stop service for a short time because of the storm. The power was off only a few minutes.

The surfacing of several streets was washed out, particularly on the hillside. A considerable part of the new park on the Lakeside grounds was washed away. The top was well taken off and gutters put through it by the torrents of water.

The water came down in a flood. During the short time it lasted 1.4 inches of water fell, according to statistics at the weather bureau. The fall is unusually heavy.

It amounted to a small cloudburst. Many people were caught unawares. The city will have to go to much expense to repair the damage. Numerous gutters were choked by the mass of accumulated dirt and wreckage washed into them. Many cellars were also flooded. In some of them stocks were damaged, but it is not thought that this loss will be heavy because of the short duration of the rain. The weather prediction calls for showers and it is anticipated that there will be further falls before morning.

STRENUOUS MUSIC.

Martin W. Littleton, the New York lawyer, described at a recent dinner the music of the bagpipes that he had heard at Skibo.

"But all this word painting," Mr Littleton ended, "won't give you as good an idea of this strenuous music as you may get from a story.

"At a Highland gathering one Donald MacLean had entered for a number of events. The first of these was the quarter mile. Donald certainly didn't distinguish himself in the quarter-mile. Of eight runners he was last.

"'Donald, Donald,' cried a partisan, 'why did ye no run faster?'

"Donald sneered.

"'Run faster!' he said, contemptuously, 'And me reservin' mysel' for the bagpipe competition!'"

ALL COUNTIES ARE FOR LIND

Carlton County Adopts Strong Indorsement for Judge Jaques.

Isanti County Also Joins in Promising Support for Jaques.

Carlton, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic county convention here today was a harmonious and enthusiastic gathering, with a good representation from all districts. The convention declared strongly for John Lind for governor and adopted the following resolution of the candidacy of Alfred Jaques of Duluth for congress:

The Democrats of Carlton county, in convention, assembled here with pride and enthusiasm of the willingness of Judge Alfred Jaques of Duluth to stand for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Eighth congressional district. We commend him to the Democrats of this county as a man in every way worthy of their support. His private life, his professional and business career and his political history guarantee his absolute integrity. His word is good. Any voter who wants to send to congress a representative of the unprivileged and independent citizenship of the Eighth district, and one who is able to hold his own with the peculiar political temptations of these times, should support Judge Jaques. He will still be able to hear the voice of the people of his district, no matter how loud the special interests and monopolists yell after he gets among them at Washington.

Isanti County.

Cambridge, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Isanti county Democratic convention today adopted the following resolutions:

We, the representatives of the Democratic party of Isanti county, in convention assembled, do hereby adopt the following resolutions:

We hereby reaffirm our faith in and allegiance to the principles of our party as enunciated by Thomas Jefferson and as exemplified by the administration of Andrew Jackson and as interpreted by William Jennings Bryan, the party which has always jealously guarded the interest of the American people and consistently and patriotically supported the institutions of our country and adhered to the constitution; the party whose watchword has ever been "Equal rights to all, special privileges to none;" the party, which today alone stands for the enforcement of all laws against all classes, treating in this respect the powerful corporation the same as the humblest citizen, and which believes in the actual curbing of the power of powerful corporations and the reduction of the trusts to a legitimate business.

We point with pride to the unexampled and splendid record of our late lamented governor, the Honorable John A. Johnson, whose wise statesmanship, whose great ability and whose unselfish labors for the common good have added credit to our great state and placed it, by his prominence, in the front rank of the confederation of states; we also take this occasion at this time to express our sincere regret at his untimely death and commiserate with the people of this country in the loss of a great leader and noble man. The reforms he so wisely inaugurated; the policies he advocated, and the economies he originated were so favorably received by the people and are of so far reaching an importance that they must not perish; we feel that there is only one man in the state today, who possesses the confidence of the people to carry into effect the policies of our late governor, and whose selection as the chief magistrate would guarantee the perpetuation of the policies inaugurated by him, and that man is the Honorable John Lind, the peerless statesman, whose nomination we unanimously demand as the standard bearer of the party in the approaching campaign by the state convention, as the candidate of the party for the position of governor.

As a part of the Eighth congressional district, and the past having indubitably demonstrated that we can expect no relief from present burdensome and unjust tariff exactions, and that under a Republican representation in congress we will never be divorced from the tyrannous demands of the special interests and Cannonism, we hereby indorse the candidacy of Judge Alfred Jaques of Duluth for congress, a man who has demonstrated in the past that he is honest and capable of contending with present unjust conditions and who will not trim his sails to curry the favor of any interest, except that of all the people, and who will not jeopardize those interests to escape the effect of the steam roller; who, if elected, will always be heard in defense of the people's rights and whose efforts will always be to a reduction of the tariff for revenue only.

We also urge and demand that the Democratic convention adopt a plank in favor of the enactment of a county option law at the next session of the legislature, thereby giving to the people of each county the right to determine whether intoxicating liquors shall be disposed of in any community within the respective counties of the state. We believe such a law to be just and right and that its enactment will, in a large measure, lessen the evils of intemperance and curb the power of the unscrupulous liquor interests.

We believe the people will never enjoy their full measure of rights until the initiative, referendum and recall has been established as a part of the organic law of the state, and that the same affords the safest, speediest and most sensible medium through and by which the people can express their approval or disapproval of men and measures. The same is the inherent right of freemen and it is only the selfish interests, and the unscrupulous politicians and the ignorance of the people relative to the justice of this measure that has delayed its adoption, and we urge upon the convention of our party to take advanced ground in this direction and adopt this principle as a part of its platform, believing that it will add prestige to the party and enlist in its behalf the support of thousands of earnest, well-informed and intelligent voters.

BOMB STARTS PANIC.

Explosion Tears Hole in New York Sidewalk.

New York, July 23.—A panic unexampled in the record of somewhat numerous similar occurrences on the East side followed the explosion of a dynamite bomb thrown on the sidewalk in front of a five-story tenement on Second avenue today. The bomb dug a hole a foot and a half in diameter in the sidewalk. Hundreds of tenement dwellers rushed to the streets in terror, the panic spreading for blocks in either direction. Fortunately, no one was injured.

The police believe the explosion to have been an act of attempted vengeance on some of the store proprietors in the vicinity.

WOMEN AS MACHINISTS.

Employed in Manufacturing Establishment—They Like the Work.

Chicago Tribune: Some of the biggest plants in the city employ women machinists. At first they were kept at lighter work, but now they are being initiated even into the functions that had taxed the powers of men. You may see them drilling holes in plates and cutting bars of iron where the sparks fall in showers of fire all around them.

They stand at their machines with collars turned down and sleeves rolled up like their hardened brothers. During the day their hands are literally saturated with machine oil and covered with iron filings, but after work you can hardly tell them from the stenographer or filing clerk of the office. Ample use of soap and towels effects a transformation not known to the members of the other sex.

The work as yet does not seem to appeal to the American girl, however. Nearly all the women in the machine shops are foreigners. The American girls, the foremen explain, fear the oil and soot of the machines. Another deterrent is the wages. The scale is so low the few American girls in the trade state that the native born women do not care to accept it.

An investigation in one factory disclosed that girls receive from $3 to $4.20 a week. Piece workers average from $1.25 to $1.50 a day. Three dollars a week is paid to beginners. As soon as they have become proficient in the work and after they have worked at the maximum week wage for a time they are placed on piece work.

One of the harvesting implement manufacturers, an electrical shop of great size and a manufacturing establishment of hardware specialties are three of the biggest employers of women machinists in the city. They employ the bulk of the 5,000 women who lead their sex into a new industry. Many of the machine shop girls are in their teens, but a large number of them are those who have tried married life and found it a failure.

The women learn the trade readily, the superintendents who employ them declare—easier than men or boys. The senior sisters in the trade now act as teachers for the beginners. The foremen find it better to have women help women. In many instances the experienced women have charge of departments.

"They like the work," said a foreman of a department of fifty girls in a factory on the South side making hardware specialties. "You can't drive them away with a stick after they get in here and they break their necks to get a job with us. They are a bit nervous when they start out as a rule, but they become 'broke in' quick—quicker than men. They don't loaf any, but put their minds to the work. That's why they learn the trade so quickly.

"Do any of them get hurt? Well, nothing serious. Some of them get a finger smashed once in a while, but nothing bad. There are more accidents among boys. Once they catch on they ain't tripped so easy. After they are 'broke in' there is hardly any danger of accidents among them.

"Of course we keep them at the lighter work as far as we can. Some of them do work at the planing machines, but most of them are on the saws, the bending machines and things of that sort. We hardly ever put any of them at the planing machine or lathes.

"If you want a good piece of work to come out of those big machines though you put a woman at it. There is something in her hands that makes those clumsy rubbers of ironwork almost talk like humans. I always put the girls at finer work. There are departments in this building run entirely by women.

"These big machines ain't the place for women, but the women like them. They get oily and greasy during the day, but you never see one of them going home that way. They wash up and dress up, and when they leave the shop they look as if they were out shopping."

THE MEN THAT GET ON.

"Some men," said a business manager, "are afraid of responsibility, some men welcome it; either sort of man may be good and useful or bad and harmful, according to his special development.

"There are timid men who need somebody always to lean upon but who under guidance are faithful and effective workers; and then there are men afraid of responsibility who are always irresolute and ineffective, who never can be prodded into anything but the dullest of dull routine work and who must always stay down close to the ground, men of small account.

"Then among men not afraid to take responsibility you find some who are too cocksure about it, ready to settle any question that comes up to them right off the bat, big or little, going ahead ajauntily, slapdash; not a good sort of man this to have at a responsible post.

"Also you have the man not afraid who thrives on responsibility and enjoys the increase of power, but who is cool and clear headed, a man of keen and true discernment, who knows instinctively and logically what is the right thing to do and who then fearlessly goes ahead and does it, a man of brains and courage. A rare combination this, and the man that possesses it gets far.

"For courage is the manly attribute that men most admire; we'd all dearly love to be courageous, to dare; and the man of courage plus brains, the man not afraid to take the responsibility and who has also the downright ability to make good we cotton to, and him most of us are willing to follow and obey. He can have what he wants in their world, and if he should want it he can have the biggest pair of wings in the world to come.

"If you expect to get anywhere don't be afraid to take the responsibility! But really to get on you want to mix your courage with brains."

"THERE WERE GIANTS IN THOSE DAYS."

Clyde Fitch, at a dinner he once gave in his beautifully-decorated New York house, talked about the press agent.

"The press agent of today," he said, "has a dull and feeble imagination beside the press agent of the past. How Barnum would have scorned the press agent of today!

"Barnum, you know, had a good press agent. Take his press agent's story of the elephant Alpha.

"Alpha fell ill—so the story ran—with gastritis. No medicines would relieve her. It was discovered that she had wrenched off an iron bar from her stall, and as the bar couldn't be found anywhere, all saw that she had swallowed it. This bar was the cause of her acute gastric sufferings.

"Mr. Barnum had a small colored lad named Rufe working for him. He sent for Rufe and said:

"'I want you to take a rubber tube to breathe through, and we'll put a strong rope round your waist, and send you down into Alpha's stomach after that iron bar she's swallowed. It's the only way to save her life.'

"Little Rufe rolled his eyes in horror, but he knew Mr. Barnum. He knew he must obey.

"So he was well greased with cosmoline, and Alpha being safely gagged, they thrust him head-first down the enormous oesophagus, a long stick, wel lolled, shoving him right down into the elephant's stomach.

"He soon found what he sought there; he gave three tugs on the rope, and they drew him out with the indigestible bar of iron claasped in his hand.

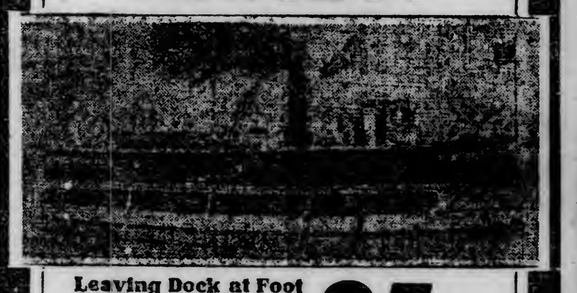

"It is superfluous to say in conclusion that Alpha's life was saved, and that brave little Rufe was handsomely rewarded by his generous employer."

JURY WAS OUT OVER TWO DAYS

After Considering Damage Suit for Fifty-Four Hours Found for Plaintiff.

The last case was that of John Maki against the Drake-Stratton Stripping company and William Carlson, the foreman over the powder crews, to recover $25,000. This case opened on July 11, and the testimony closed July 19, and at non that day the case was submitted to the jury.

For Plaintiff From Start.

Upon the first ballot the jury stood 9 to 3 in favor of the plaintiff, but later was changed to 11 to 2 and there it remained until Thursday afternoon, the two jurors holding out on the question of the amount of damages. About 2:30 o'clock the jury reported to Judge Hughes that it could not agree, but was sent back. One hour later the two who had been hanging out gave up the fight and went over to the ten men who for nearly fifty-four hours fought to give Maki a verdict of $8,000.

From no verdict the two stickers went to $4,000, then gradually, slowly and painfully kept adding $1,000 and $500 until the $8,000 mark was finally reached.

On Feb. 25 last, Maki while employed as powder boss, was caught by a huge piece of frozen earth and his right leg so badly crushed that it had to be amputated a little above the knee, and for such injuries he brought suit against the company for $25,000.

GILBERT LIGHTING PLANT.

Possibility of One Being Put Up and Run By Local People.

Gilbert, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The people here are talking considerably about an electric lighting plant. At first it was proposed to have a combined pumping station and electric light plant, but that has been dropped. Then the Home Electric company of Eveleth and the Virginia Water & Light company asked for franchises. This was also dropped and now it seems as if a number of the local business men will put up an electric company and will ask for a franchise. As municipal ownership of an electric plant has always been favored by the Gilbert people it is very possible that if a franchise is granted it will include a clause allowing the village to buy any plant erected after a short term of years.

The new water works system is enough for the city itself to handle at the present time, so that the electric proposition will have to be taken up later.

WHY LA FONTAINE QUIT.

Eveleth, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are various rumors current concerning the reasons Assistant Fire Chief La Fontaine quit the department and the exact facts in the matter are not coming to the surface very rapidly despite rumors to the contrary. It is claimed there have been two cliques in the department, composed of several of the firemen trying to depose the chief and the assistant chief. It is said the men were called out to practice on the ladders at 5 o'clock one morning and they were kept at for some time. Some say the practice was too long. The firemen complained at any rate, and as the assistant chief saw he could not get along with the rest of the department he resigned. The council are trying to get a competent assistant chief from Duluth and they are awaiting his arrival. Meanwhile Charles Nelson is acting as chief.

Proctor, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large delegation from the Commercial club went to West Duluth last evening to attend the meeting and smoker of the West Duluth Commercial club. Fourteen made the trip and reported an interesting meeting. Several subjects of interest were brought up, one of which is the proposed extension of the Duluth Belt Line railroad from Bay View Heights to Proctor. Proctor citizens have been looking forward for years to the time when the Duluth Street Railway company will put in a line to this striving village and they do not propose to stand by and let the Belt line build in without a fight.

A BALM FOR EVERY ILL

And There Is More Than a Grain of Truth in That Saying, "It Only Remains for Us to Find It."

Nature Will Provide, Says Doctor Hauselmeir, the Celebrated Lecturer and Scientist, in His Lecture to Physicians Last Night.

IN THE ELECTRO RADIO PARLORS A $5,000 MACHINE INSTALLED

Original investigation, especially upon medical subjects and where the results are phenomenal is almost necessarily fatal to the finances and reputation of the investigator unless he be spared long enough to gain the company of sufficient support to strengthen his position.

How prone is the physician to criticize adversely the things that are new, and how inexplicable is human nature in genral in his respect. I was forcibly reminded of this seemingly innate characteristic of all mankind when several years ago I had the temerity to attack the old accepted pathology of a recognized "incurable lesion chronic Brights Disease. And how nearly fatal my day was would doubt after the elaborate and conclusive experiments of Schiff, Dubois Raymond, D'Arsouval and others, that we have electric currents traversing our bodies in every direction, and that the nerves are the carriers of these currents. It is also true, that everything that acts as a carrier of an electric current vibrates. The molecules of a copper wire becomes so disturbed by the vibration of an electrical current that in time it may be broken like a piece of cast iron. Then it is manifest that if the nerves carry currents of electricity they must vibrate, and in the state of perfect health the nerves are constantly vibrating. Each nerve vibrates in a different way from every other nerve because they all carry different kinds of currents. The rate of vibration is peculiar to the kind of current carried by the nerve. Whenever a nerve loses its normal vibratory tone its function is destroyed and degenerative changes occur. The patient taking electro radio is subject to a rate of vibrations from a few to many millions per second, so that every nerve in the body will find a rate to which it will respond, and they will vibrate normally, it will choose its vibratory tone from the currents generated by the electro radio machine. Every nerve in the body takes the vibrations peculiar to it and are made normal. Of course, if degenerative changes have taken place in the nerve so that there is no longer any substance to act as a carrier for the current the nerve will not vibrate—it is dead.

We have an illustration of this in the case of Mr. T. Carson, who came here to be treated from Nashville. When he was in the employ of the L. & N. R. R. he accidentally fell and injured the nerve that supplies the left internal rectus muscle of the eye. In consequence of this it injured the nerve causing left diplopia or double vision. An object held up before him before the machine was in action he always saw two objects, one about four or five inches above the other and a few inches to one side. Then when the machine was started he would after a few minutes see only the one. The reason for this was that the vibratory action of the current had conveyed the proper vibrations to the injured nerve and his vision became normal. A beautiful illustration of what electricity will do for kidney trouble was demonstrated upon no less an authority than the celebrated Dr. Klebs, when he began treatment he said that positively he had no confidence in electricity but that he had no objection to trying it. His urine contained 50 per cent albumen by volume and both hyaline and retinitis to such an extent that his vision was seriously impaired. I gave the doctor 16 treatments in all, the least I have ever given in any case. He went back home into active practice, something he never expected to do. He is now entirely cured. Another case of a physician being cured was that of Dr. J. A. L. Recordy, a prominent physician of Aemid, Okla., who came to the office's rooms and began treatment for an enlargement to the prostrate gland which became so aggravating that he was compelled to give up his private practice and seek expert medical aid. After the first treatment the doctor made the statement personally to me that he had received so much relief that he shouted with joy after the first micturation and that he had constantly improved after each treatment until last night he boarded the train to resume his old practice at Aenid. A society belle of Memphis whose name is withheld, for the present, Miss H——, age 23, referred for treatment by a prominent Memphis physician, who is enlightened on these modern methods. Had albumin urine since age of 17. Analysis showed sixty-four grains to the liter, numerous casts both hyaline and waxy. Although large of frame she was anemic and yellow and so weak she could not stand alone. Weight 95 pounds, ankles swollen. Heart fair. After four treatments she came to the office unassisted, and in three weeks could walk five or six blocks for her daily exercise. In four weeks she menstruated normally—the first time in twelve months. At the end of six weeks she was pronounced cured. Her urine showing no albumin and no casts. She now weighs 138 pounds and feels as well as she ever did.

Chronic Nephritis, more essentially a disease of central nervous impairment. One of the strongest proofs of this is the kind of persons afflicted. The natural paths along which impressions are conveyed to the kidneys are through the splanchnics and spinal cord, and when these tracts are impaired, the functions of the kidneys is correspondingly affected. The reduction of albumin obtained by strict diet has no significance. Electro Radio will hasten the oxyidzation of waste products; it is the logical remedy, because the evolution of oxygen, always accompanying this modality not only hastens the elimination of waste but gives a better tone by its vibratory action to the nerve centers affected. It is a powerful equalizer of the nervous forces, as is evidenced by its effect on the temperature, respiration and pulse.

OZONE AS A CURE.

Ozone is really the "World builder," and has more to do with the phenomenon of life than any other agent. It has much to do with metabolism, and with metabolism life must cease. Much of the therapeutic value of electricity applied to the body depends upon the generation of this agent. All currents produce it in different degrees, the higher the voltage the greater the production. The ozone you breathe in the atmosphere is not of sufficient strength to overcome disease. The ozone generated on this machine artificially will cure consumption, asthma, hay fever, neurosthenia, syphilis, anemia beyond a doubt. If cost the electro radio people $5,000 cash to build it, which is another proof that the policy of this corporation is nothing too good for their patrons, mucous membrane, or covering of the inner body, consequently its beneficial action is quickly apparent. When inhaled it hastens the oxidation of the blood, increases the red corpuscles and by quickest results are noticed in neuristhenia, melancholia, hysteria, neuroses and lost vital power of men. Only a limited number of these cases have been treated since we established this magnificent machine, yet the results have been marvelous in every case. Friend aptly remarked, "Electro-Radio must be learned practically under a skilled operator, and not from books." That is why this company pays the highest salaries, and thereby procures the finest talent in the world today, and I may further remark that right here in Duluth they have employed men of genius who are destined to eventually become stellar lights in the world's greatest scientific achievements in the next few years to come. When you take this treatment be sure to not overdo it; twice weekly is sufficient to cure any case, and when it is taken too often it does for you exactly what an overloaded stomach would do—there would be an excess of gas, the same as there is an excess of food to be disposed of, which overtaxes the stomach. This machine is the only one in the Middle West, and was installed only a few days ago at an expense of five thousand dollars. Two expert operators go with the machine to see that the most scientific and expert treatment is given. I consider this one of the greatest benefactors of the human race, and Duluth is indeed lucky to possess such a great invention for the saving of human life.

The office, room 810 Alworth building, is open on Sundays from 11 to 12; week days, 9 to 12, 2 to 4 and 7 to 8. Free examination will only be given for a few days longer.

TRIBUTE TO COL. GRAVES

American Minister to Sweden Honored By Duluth Citizens.

Order of Vasa Tenders Banquet to Diplomat Before Departure.

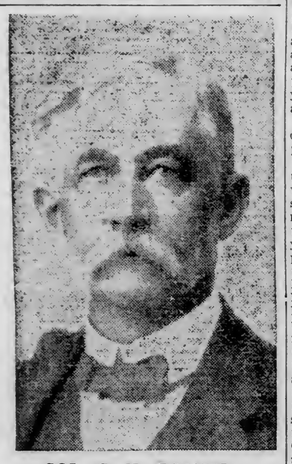

A tremendous ovation was tendered to Col. C. H. Graves, United States minister to Sweden, by representative Swedish citizens of Duluth last evening at a big banquet in his honor in the hunter's room at the Holland. Two hundred persons, including beside prominent Swedish citizens of Duluth and their wives, a number of old friends of Col. Graves, sat down at the elaborate banquet.

Dr. Eklund officiated as toastmaster and at the close of the feast he introduced Mayor M. B. Cullum.

The chief speech of the evening was, of course, that of the guest of honor, Col. Graves. He was introduced by Dr. Eklund, the toastmaster, in a short speech in the Swedish language.

Col. Graves said:

"I will not undertake to reply in the language in which I have been introduced for fear you would have difficulty in understanding me. I understand it far better than I speak it.

"Before I started to speak tonight, I asked Mr. Brandt here what I should talk about. He said, 'Talk about Stockholm, we are all interested in that.'

"First, however, I wish to talk somewhat about the duties of a minister representing the United States at the court of King Gustave. I recall the remark of a very worthy lady of this city when I first left, who remarked that she was afraid I did not talk Swedish well enough to preach to the people of the old country. The duties of American minister to Sweden are different from those of minister to almost any other nation on earth. A minister to Sweden goes to a country where there are about 5,000,000 Swedes and leaves behind him a nation where there are 2,500,000.

"The people of Sweden are very keen to know what we are doing along governmental lines in this country, how we are solving the tariff problem, the railroad rate problem, etc. The minister has many questions to answer in this regard. Then outside of his official duties he has a great bulk of correspondence to answer. You have no idea the number of Swedes there are in this country who write to locate relatives, friends, inheritances, and sweethearts in Sweden. I am glad to accommodate such of them as I can.

Matrimonial Bureau.

"We also even run a sort of matrimonial bureau. Under the laws of Sweden a man desiring to get married must produce the parish priest's record of his life and show it to be satisfactory. These records are very complete. When a Swede from America returns to Sweden and wants to get married he has difficulties for he does not know just who to write to in America to find this record. The minister is appealed to. I will not let you in on the secrets of the trade, but I think I can promise you that you can get married if you come to Sweden.

"Now for one's impression of Stockholm. It is as different from Duluth as imaginable. The greatest difference is in the way it is built. Stockholm is very compact. The authorities have limited its boundaries and do not let building go on in scattered additions as is common in this country. As a result the houses are fireproof, almost all five stories high, the legal limit, and set solidly together almost all over the city. Most of them are apartment houses housing ten to twenty families.

"Its situation is beautiful, with the old island city surrounded by two great mountain streams, the outlet of a chain of inland lakes in the background.

"When President Roosevelt was there recently he was entertained in court. The only thing I did for him was to invite the noted scientists of Stockholm to meet him. Mr. Roosevelt was dee-lighted to meet these men and was very much pleased with them and they with him. He said that the ovation tendered him by the citizens of Stockholm in the public square that afternoon was one of the finest in his travels.

Toast to King Gustave.

"As representative of the United States to Sweden I was fortunate enough to have been received many times by good old King Oscar. Oscar was well known to all of you. Of his successor you know perhaps a great deal less. I say to you that he is a level-headed gentleman with a full comprehension of the dignity and responsibility of his position and a genuine and great love for his people. (Applause.) I am sure that you will all join with me in drinking a long life to King Gustave."

The entire assembly arose and drained their glasses to the accompaniment of hearty Swedish cheers.

Mayor M. B. Cullum, who opened the program of speeches, spoke in very high terms of Col. Graves. He said that it had been his pleasure and regret to speak at a farewell banquet tendered to Col. Graves some five years ago, regret in losing him and pride in the fact that a fellow citizen was to fill such an important mission. He remarked that their confidence in his ability to fulfill the duties of his high office was greatly increased when they learned that he had acquired the real diplomat of the embassy, Mrs. Graves, on his journey. He said that in his opinion sending such men as Col. Graves to represent the nation in foreign courts would go far toward making international warfare and strife a thing of history only. The mayor closed by wishing Col and Mrs. Graves bon voyage and Godspeed on their return to Sweden.

Andrew Nelson pointed ou the appropriateness of the Swedish minister coming from Minnesota, the greatest Swedish state in the Union. "This man who had lived among the people of the race which he was to visit," said Mr. Nelson, "who knew their habits, their way of thinking and their ideals, was in every way highly fitted for the delicate and difficult task before him. When he returns we want him to convey our heartiest greeting to our friends and relatives in Sweden. We want him to tell them that while we and our children have developed a great love and affection for this the country of our adoption we still romember and reverence that which is typified by the blue and gold."

E. L. Millar Speaks.

E. L. Millar, the next speaker, said: "Col. Graves must have found himself very much at home in Sweden. It is very much like Northern Minnesota. The country is rough and rugged. So is Northern Minnesota. Its winters are invigorating its summers cool and beautiful. So are Northern Minnesota's. It is a country of mountains and gorges. So is Northern Minnesota. It is a country where there are lots of Swedes. So is Northern Minnesota. In short, I think Col. Graves must have found nearly everything there that he had in Minnesota except a few Norwegians, Lee Wilcutts, and the Republican party.

"There are not many changes, Mr. Graves, since you left Perky Johnson is still clerk of the court here. Presidents may come and governors may go, but Perky Johnson stays on forever. We have had a Democratic governor for four years, because we have had Tom, Dick and Harry to run against the Democratic candidate. This year we have nominated a Scandinavian gentleman with a German name and hope to do something." Mr. Millar closed with a few choice stories and by expressing his good wishes to the guests of honor.

T. W. Hugo bestowed high words of praise on Col. Graves and said that he was very well qualified to speak since he had known him for a long time, coming to Duluth for the first time to work for Col. Graves.

During the evening the orchestra played Swedish national airs, which were enthusiastically applauded. Rev. W. E. Harmonn gave the invocation before the guests were seated. The dinner was admirably prepared and served by the attaches of the Holland hotel.

The committee from the Order of Vasa in charge of the big banquet consisted of Otto Gafvert, Albert Swenson, John Brandt, C. E. Johnson and O. W. Olson.

PIONEER DIES IN CALIFORNIA

J. W. Day Entered Lumber Trade in Minnesota in 1854.

J. W. Day, a pioneer lumberman of Minnesota, owner of large tracts of standing timber and valuable iron mining interests on the Mesaba range, died Thursday evening at Riverside, Cal., where he had made his home for the past twelve years. His daughter, Mrs. David Willard of 1230 East Eight street, was notified of his death.

Mr. Day was nearly 79 years old, having been born in Maine Aug. 26, 1831. With his father, Leonard Day, and his three brothers, he came to Minnesota in 1854 and took up his residence in Minneapolis. Mr. Day and his father and brothers built one of the first saw mills at St. Anthony's Falls, and up to twelve years ago, when the firm of L. D. Day & Co. dissolved, Mr. Day was actively engaged in lumbering.

Mr. Day's holdings included a large amount of standing timber in Northern Minnesota and some of the cut-over land, which was acquired in the early days of lumbering, has since become valuable for its iron deposits. Among the mines in which Mr. Day was interested is the Day-Morris mine at Hibbing.

Mr. Day is survived by his widow, a son, Eugene Day of Minneapolis, who has charge of the Day interests in Minnesota, and two daughters, Mrs. Willard of Duluth and Mrs. Frank J. Mackey of Remington, Eng. Mrs. Day left Riverside today with the body of her husband and the funeral will be held in Minneapolis next week. Mr. Day survived his father and his three brothers and was the last member of the firm, which was a power in the halcyon days of Minnesota lumbering.

The above is a quotation from a letter written by H. M. Winkler, Evansville, Ind. "I contracted a severe case of kidney trouble. My back gave out and pained me. I seemed to have lost all strength and ambition; was bothered with dizzy spells, my head would swim and specks float before my eyes. I took Foley Kidney Pills regularly and am now perfectly well and feel like a new man. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." Sold by all druggists.

what will break loose at Minneapolis on July 28.

The enthusiasm for Lind was so remarkable, even for a convention that was known to be committed to him, as a candidate before it was convened, that delegates who came to Eveleth prepared to find the sentiment all for Lind were completely taken off their feet.

Such a demonstration in favor of a Democratic candidate for a state office has not been seen in St. Louis county since the Hibbing convention went wild over the resolutions demanding the nomination of John A. Johnson two years ago. It enheartened the Democrats of this county, entering upon what promises to be a strenuous campaign, as nothing else could do.

The Resolutions.

In indorsing John Lind for the nomination for governor, the resolutions say: "We believe John Lind to be the best equipped man in the state for the high office of governor, and in recognition of his fitness, in deference to the universal demand of the Democratic and independent voters of the state, and in testimony of our individual preference, we instruct the delegates from this convention to the state convention to vote as a unit for his nomination as governor. We have no second choice."

The candidacy of Judge Alfred Jaques to represent the Eighth district in congress was strongly indorsed. The independent voters of the district are invited to join with the Democrats in electing him to congress, where he would represent the people and not the interests. Attention is directed to the unsullied private life of Judge Jaques and the faithful and able manner in which he has always fulfilled every trust reposed in him.

The election of Judge Martin Hughes and Judge Homer B. Dibell to succeed themselves on the district court bench is strongly urged.

Delegates Chosen.

This list of delegates to the state convention was selected by the convention:

The branch of the bank in this city has no vaults of its own, but rents vaults in a nearby bank the name of which is withheld. Sometime, precisely when is not stated, a safety deposit box containing the missing securities was taken from the neighboring vaults to the second floor of the bank.

On Thursday the loss of the securities became known. Several employes of the bank had keys to the box, but none of them had disappeared.

GIRL SAVES MAURA'S LIFE

premier was hurried on board the steamer Miramar where a doctor dressed his wounds, which are said to be slight.

Maura, leader of the conservative party and who as premier put down the Barcelona riots and brought about the execution of Dr. Francisco Ferrer a year ago, owes his escape from death perhaps to the courage of his youthful girl cousin, who threw herself upon the assailant.

Saved by Girl Cousin.

It was shortly before last midnight that the former prime minister stepped from a train at the Francia station, where he arrived from Madrid en route to Palma. At his side was his cousin. Suddenly, from the crowd, Manuel Posa fired three shots. The first bullet peirced Senor Maura's arm and the second found lodgment in his leg. As Posa fired again the woman sprang upon him, spoiling his aim, and the bullet went wide.

Posa, who is but 18 years of age, said today that he did not intend to shoot Maura, but desired only to make a demonstration against him. The wounds inflicted are not regarded as serious.

MILLS START NEXT WEEK

Wentworth company has started two camps. Hauling from the south end of the reservation also has begun, on the new spur track completed just before the forest fires became so threatening as to stop all hauling of logs through the woods. The Nrothern Lumber company will bring in logs over the Mesaba Southern railway, and a number of men have been shipped there this week from local employment offices.

Plan Steady Work.

The only thing which will curtail the operations now planned would be continued dry weather to the extent that logging in the woods would again become dangerous. The other mills cannot resume operations until there is water in the rivers to float logs, as the railroads cannot bring in enough to keep all the mills busy.

During the weeks of idleness many of the men have been kept at work cleaning up and doing small repair work around the mills. As far as possible, the married men have been kept at work. Although many men have gone out of Cloquet, the great majority of these have been young men without family ties here.

Hardships in Shutdown.

Owing to the fact that sawing started a month earlier last spring than ever before, many millmen started to buy homes, and contracted expenses which they thought were justified by the prospect of an unusually long season. Consequently the shutdown has been harder to bear and the opening of the mills again is hailed with expressions of relief on every hand.

SCIENTIFIC METHODS OF DOCTORING

The above picture is an exact reproduction from a photograph of the interior of our operating room—the most modern and thoroughly equipped in the Northwest—where broken-down men are restored to good health and happiness through the application of the most scientific and successfull methods known to the medical world.

Here you will find all the electrical apparatus that is used anywhere in the making over of men, the application of which, together with the administering of appropriate medicines, has been the cause of the restoration of thousands of men from various afflictions and diseases back to the "life that is worth living."

With this modern electrical equipment alone, it is not possible to complete the cure of brokendown men; a thorough knowledge of the action and uses of drugs is also necessary.

Many years of incessant and persistent study and experimental practice is necessary to equip any doctor for the safe and sane handling of the many complications of afflicted men. We passed this stage of experimental practice in the most famous colleges of Germany and of this country. Our work is now carried on with the most complete assurance on our part that we always know just what is necessary to be done and just how it should be done. We know just what drugs should be used and what should not be used. The results of our years of practice here have raised us in the medical world to the summit of success!

Nowhere in this country—not even in Chicago—the great industrial and commercial hub of the nation, can you find a better equipped medical institution nor one where more scientific and successful methods of treatment are used, with as satisfactory results. The man who continues to suffer, when he is within reach of us, suffers from preference.

We actually cure blood poison, scrofula, pimples, blotches, stagnant circulation, varicose veins, nervous debilities, heart disease, rheumatism, Brights' disease, gall stones, stomach, liver and kidney troubles and ALL diseases of men, and issue a legal guarantee to cure such cases as after a consultation, we decide are curable, and consultation is free.

A personal examination is desirable but if you cannot call, write us fully about your trouble and we will give your letter immediate attention, sending you a symptom blank to fill out, from which we will diagnose your case.

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

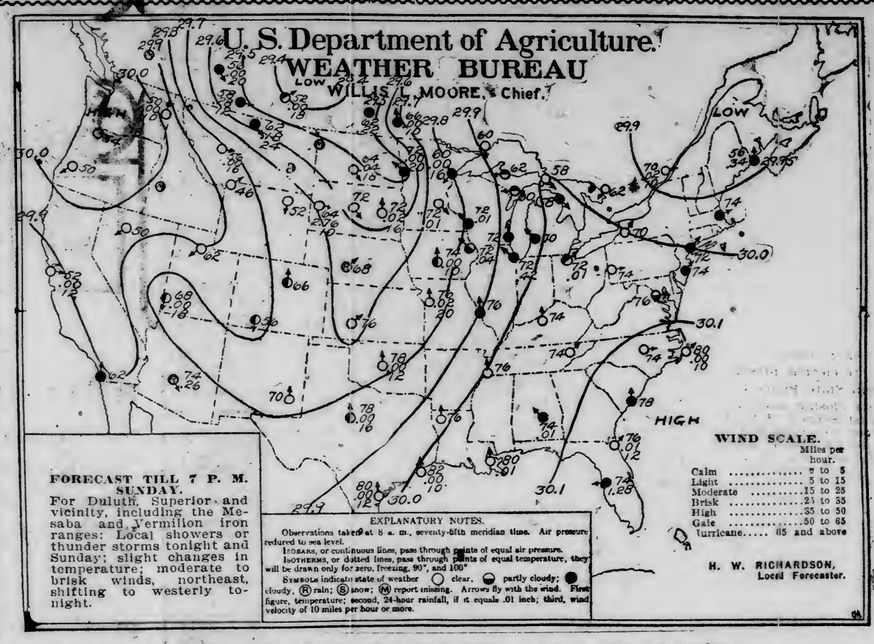

Skin Peeled and Flesh Got Hard and Broke—Blood Flowed in Fifty Places—"Single Box of Cuticura Ended Suffering."

About eleven years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I first began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heartsore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position.

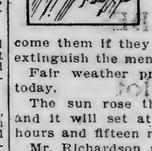

Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves in bed. In fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a single box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been eight years since I used any and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never lost a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment. (Signed) THOMAS A. CLANCY,

RAIN

Yesterday was another fine summer day, the highest temperature being 76 deg. No rain yet and the air is filled with smoke. The weather man holds out the promise of local showers or thunder storms tonight and tomorrow, and Northern Minnesota will welcome them if they are hard enough to extinguish the menacing brush fires.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:37 and it will set at 7:52, giving fifteen hours and fifteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance central Friday morning over Alberta has increased considerably in intensity and has advanced to Saskatchewan. During the last twenty-four hours it caused further high temperature in the greater portion of the region lying between the Mississippi river and Pacific coast states, and light to copious local showers or thunder storms in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Northern Montana, the Dakotas and Western and Southern Minnesota. Some rain also fell over Southern Wisconsin, Eastern Iowa, Western Mississippi, Northern Illinois and Southern Michigan, probably due to the influence of the depression that now overlies Eastern Canada. The barometer continues high over South Atlantic and North Pacific states. Indications favor local showers in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate to brisk south winds on Michigan and Superior, probably shifting to southwest and west Sunday; moderate variable winds on Huron, becoming southerly; unsettled with thundershowers tonight and Sunday.

Chicago, July 23.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Upper Michigan—Unsettled weather with thundershowers tonight or Sunday; warmer tonight.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with local thunderstorms tonight or Sunday; continued warm.

Iowa—Partly cloudy with thundershowers tonight or Sunday in east and central; cooler Sunday and in west portion tonight.

North Dakota and Montana—Fair tonight and Sunday; cooler tonight.

PULLED TOO HARD ON SAFETY DEVICE

Cause of Catastrophe at Fortress Monroe Found By Gen. Crozier.

Washington, July 23.—To the failure of a safety mechanism, to operate which a sudden and powerful pull was given by an artilleryman in attaching the lanyard, is now laid the responsibility for the accident which cost the lives of eleven men at Fortress Monroe, Va., during the battle practice Thursday.

Such is the conclusion of Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance, U. S. A., who attended the practice and who has been in touch with the inquiry made by the investigating board. Never before in the history of the navy had the device failed to work. The possibility of its occurrence was demonstrated, however, by Gen. Crozier himself shortly after the accident by a test made of all the guns which participated in the practice. In another gun in the ill-fated De Russy battery the device was found defective when Gen. Crozier applied unusual force, such as was never deemed necessary in tests and examinations.

Had Been Inspected.

Just before the accident the gun was pronounced by officers to be in perfect condition, and in April a coast artillery officer on inspection duty reported that its premature explosion was beyond the range of possibility. Steps will be taken at once to improve the device.

"The firing mechanism is somewhat delicate," Gen. Crozier said in discussing the accident, "because of the lack of sufficient space for the utilization of larger and more robust parts, but it was supposed to be sufficient to withstand all reasonable usage. The operations of loading and firing are conducted with extreme rapidity, in the praise-worthy effort to make a good time record, and it is a necessary consequence that the motions are made with great force and violence.

"In this case it appears that the gun started to rise to the firing position before the breech block was pushed home preparatory to rotating and locking it, and before the lanyard was hooked, so that the man whose duty it was to hook on the lanyard had to do it while the gun was in motion.

Testimny Taken.

"Testimony is to the effect that he had some difficulty in hooking, making several passes in his attempt to do so, and that he finally succeeded in getting it hooked just as the gun was passing out of his reach, when the explosion immediately took place. It is presumed that he inadvertantly clung to the lanyard and gave the sudden pull which, in the case of the neighboring gun with which it was tried later, proved to be sufficient to defeat the safety object of the mechanism."

Norris Brown Chairman.

Omaha, Neb., July 23.—The Republican state central committee has named United States Senator Norris Brown of Kearney, as temporary chairman of the state convention which meets at Lincoln, July 27.

Newbro's Herpicide

WHAT HERPICIDE DOES

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the tiny vegetable growth in the scalp that causes dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness. Once this microbe enemy of the hair is destroyed, and kept out of the scalp, the hair is bound to grow as nature intended, except in cases of chronic baldness.

WHAT SUNLIGHT DOES

Sunlight is nature's great germ destroyer and prophylactic. The effect of sunlight upon the scalp proves highly beneficial, if a complete plan of scalp cleanliness is carried out. This cannot be done without the use of Herpicide, which prevents reinfection and keeps the scalp pure and wholesome.

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other hair remedies combined.

HOT WEATHER TROUBLES

The perspiration that exudes in increased quantities during the summer months carries out poisonous and refuse matter that would otherwise clog up the pores of the scalp.

Incomplete elimination of this waste produces a hot and feverish condition of the sweat glands known as Prickly Heat for which Herpicide gives immediate relief. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Col. Thomp Burton, Member of the Board of Managers of the Ohio Penitentiary, writes as follows of Newbro's Herpicide:

"As to Herpicide I find it an excellent hair dressing as well as being the first and only absolute dandruff cure I have found. Upon my advice a number of my friends are using Herpicide, and the unanimous verdict is, that Herpicide is, in all respects, everything that its manufacturers claim for it."

Send 10c in stamps to THE HERPICIDE COMPANY, Dept. 27, Detroit, Mich., for sample and booklet. $1.00 size bottles guaranteed. At Drug Stores. When you call for Herpicide, do not accept a substitute. Applications at Prominent Barber Shops.

STATE HAS MUCH MONEY

Direct State Taxes May Be Suspended This Year Owing to Surplus.

Gross Earnings Tax Collections and Money From Kennedy Estate Big Benefit.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of the large surplus being piled up in the state treasury all direct taxes for state purposes may be suspended this year. Owing to large collections from railroads and other corporations, there is now a surplus of about $1,700,000 in the state treasury. With this surplus on hand, the officials say that the state can run itself through collections coming in from sources other than the direct tax and from sources such as the inheritance tax, the gross earnings tax, and other sources.

The unusual amount of money in the treasury has come as the result of collections from the railroads on the settlement of the 4 per cent gross earnings tax case.

State Auditor has Authority.

Under the law it appears that the state auditor has full authority to reduce the direct levy for state revenue. The last legislature fixed it at a maximum of 1.5 mills. The auditor can make it any lower figure. However, Auditor Iverson and the other officials desire to be absolutely sure of their ground.

It has been the aim of the state officers for several years to reach a time when the direct levy for state purposes can be abolished. Revenue from the corporation taxes has been increasing, but so have the demands upon the treasury.

Recent payments into the treasury which help account for the surplus are $345,000 from the John F. Kennedy estate of New York, which consisted largely of stock in the Great Northern railway, a Minnesota corporation. The Great Northern and Great Western tax cases brought in $732,000. The current tax settlements are rapidly swelling the accumulation in the treasury.

State Officials Confer on Matter.

Conferences of the state officials have been held at frequent intervals on the proposition. The tax authorized for the year ending July 31, 1911, is $1,260,000, at a rate not to exceed 1.2 mills. If this is wiped out it will reduce the rate of taxation all over the state by 1.2 mills on the dollar of assessed valuation. The new legislature can take action for the future based on the needs of the state, but it is believed that the direct tax can hereafter be practically wiped out. It will save the taxpayers of the state at least $1,000,000 a year.

TWO ARE DROWNED IN LAKE CHISAGO

Lindstrom Woman and Her Daughter Perish Trying to Save Mother and Son.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—An attempt made by Mrs. John Crosby and daughter, Pearl, 19 years old, of Lindstrom, Minn., to save the lives of Mrs. Chris Meisen and her 8-year-old son, John, of St. Paul, resulted in both being drowned in the waters of North Lake, a branch of Lake Chisago, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Meisen and young son were rescued by John Guenther, a St. Paul man, who chanced to be fishing near where the tragedy occurred.

The accident was caused by the Meisen boy falling from a raft into the lake. In attempting to save him his mother was soon beyond her depth. Mrs. Crosby and her daughter went to the rescue of the other two and the entire party would have been lost had not Guenther been near in a boat. He reached the boy and his mother as they were going down for the third time, but was not able to save the others.

Their bodies were afterwards recovered.

BEMIDJI SALOONS RUNNING.

Report Government Would Close Them Is Not Borne Out.

Bemidji, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report that the government agents had ordered saloons here all closed is premature. So far as known no such order has been issued. The statement the saloons would be closed was based on an alleged interview with N. A. Way of the Indian service.

N. J. Sero, who is really in charge of the work of the special agents in this city, when asked if there was any truth in Way's statements, stated that no such order had been received from Washington, and that as far as he knew the saloonkeepers of Bemidji were keeping their promises, made to the department. He knew of no especial reason why the closing order should be extended to Bemidji, at this time. It is not believed here that the saloons of Bemidji will be closed, at least not at present. The saloon men have been very careful and have sold no bottled goods to anyone, according to information which is believed to be authentic.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 23.—Pittsburg's easy defeat of Brooklyn, 14 to 1, in a hard hitting game again, and New York's loss of a game at St. Louis brings last year's champions up from third to second, place. New York which has been second best for most of the season, now drops a point behind Pitsburg. With the bases full in the second inning, Phillippe alt for a home run today, a trick which Leach turned yesterday. Errors by McKecchnie and Wilson gave Brooklyn its one run. Score: R. H. E.

PECULIAR PLAY IS FEATURE OF CONTEST.

Boston, Mass., July 23.—Boston hit the ball hard with men on bases and won from St. Louis yesterday, 6 to 3. A peculiar double play was a feature. In the second inning, with Stahl on first base, Lord popped a fly to Wallace and Stahl was caught off the base. Lord, however, blocked the shortstop's throw and Stahl was called out for interfering. New York, July 23.—Rallying brilliantly yesterday in the closing innings New York with a seven run lead to overcome, caught up with and defeated Detroit, 11 to 8. In an effort to stave off defeat, Manager Jennings took Mullin off the rubber at the end of the seventh and in the eighth used three pitchers. Cobb was responsible for five of Detroit's eight runs, tripling in the fifth with the bases full. Score:

COLUMBUS POUNDS KANSAS CITY PITCHERS.

Columbus, Ohio, July 23.—Three Kansas City pitchers were hammered yesterday by Columbus batters, Downs alone driving in enough runs to win, in addition to starting the attack of the third inning. No runner reached second on Packard until the seventh. Ritter scored both Kansas City runs, a passed ball leading up to each. Packard's covering of first to complete a double play was the best executed fielding maneuver. Score: R. H. E.

LOUISVILLE DROPS THIRD TO ST. PAUL.

Louisville, Ky., July 23.—St. Paul had an easy time yesterday in winning the third straight game of the series from Louisville. The visitors batted freely while the locals fielded loosely. Manager Howard was put off the field for arguing with Umpire Cusack and Pat Bohannon, the former Association player, who is being given a trial in the outfield by Louisville, was shifted to first base. The heavy hitting of the visitors in the eighth and ninth innings was the feature. Score: R. H. E.

New Pitcher for New York.

New York, July 23.—Another new pitcher, who will shortly be received into the fold of the New York Americans if negotiations now under way are successful, is Dick Rudolph, the star twirler of the Toronto club of the Eastern league. Rudolph is a New Yorker and was formerly a member of the Fordham university nine. He has been pitching winning ball for the Toronto team for several seasons.

JIM SMITH HOPES TO BEAT WILLIE LEWIS AND WIN ANOTHER MATCH WITH KETCHEL

JIM SMITH.

Jim Smith, somewhat new in the pugilistic world, has a great chance tonight to make a name for himself when he meets Willie Lewis. Smith trimmed Sailor Burke some time ago, but was put away by Stanley Ketchel, after giving Ketchel a hard fight. Smith wants another chance at Ketchel and if he wins from Lewis, he will probably get it.

TRACK RECORDS ARE LOWERED

Giftline Easy Winner of 2:03 Pace at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 23.—The final day of the Grand Rapids harness racing meet was marked by the lowering of the track records for both pacers and trotters. Giftline, who brought the pacing record down to 2:03¾, one year clipped a second, to 2:02¾, in the first heat of the 2:03 pace. Later on, in the fourth heat of the 2:14 trot Hall Worthy dropped the track trotting record to 2:03¾.

Giftline ruled as favorite in the 2:03 pace and won in two processions that grew exciting only at the finish. The Eel was a length behind at the wire in the first heat, while Aileen Wilson was only a neck behind at the finish of the second heat.

The 2:00 trot for the Grand Rapids railway $2,000 purse furnished exciting contests.

After Henry R. had won the first heat rather easily, Rickey Rawson took the next two and seemed to have the fourth won when Henry H. came from behind in the last 100 feet and took the heat by a nose. Henry H. led all the way in the fifth.

Turf history was made when Willy won the first heat of the 2:14 trot, as it was the first time that a foreign-bred trotter had won a heat in less than 2:10. Willy made it in 2:08¾.

In the second heat Willy was nosed out at the wire by Hall Worthy. The fourth heat was a repetition of the second, Hall Worthy pushing ahead just at the wire and lowering the track record for trotters to 2:07¾.

In the fifth heat Hall Worthy let Willy lead to the final turn and then won without effort.

Colorado E. showed himself the best of the 3-year-olds, leading the others around the track by a big margin and winning each heat pulled up.

Mayday had things pretty much her own way in the 2:12 pace, although she had to lower her mark from 2:14¼ to 2:08¾.

COMPETING FOR OLYMPIC CUP

Teams Representing Leading Golf Associations Meet at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 23.—Teams representing the leading golf associations of the West competed today for the Olympic cup over the links of the Minikahda club. This event was the curtain raiser for the Western amateur championship tournament which will be played over the same course beginning Monday.

The competition for the Olympic cup was over thirty-six holes for teams of four men representing associations, not clubs.

When the play started the Western Golf association was the overwhelming favorite. The quartet consisted of Charles Evans, Jr., western champion; Robert Gardner, national champion; Albert Seckel, Eastern intercollegiate champion and Paul Hunter, champion of California.

Other associations represented were the Trans-Mississippi, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa.

The following associations have teams entered as follows:

Western Golf association—Charles Evans, R. A. Gardner, Albert Seckel and Paul Hunter.

Minnesota Golf association—H. G. Legg, L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis; H. H. Bent, R. T. Goodell.

Michigan Golf league—J. D. Standish, Jr., Howard B. Lee, Guy A. Miller, C. L. Denman.

Trans-Missisippi Golf association—Walter Fairbanks, H. W. Allen, J. D. Cady and Paul Talbot.

Des Moines Golf association—William Sheehan, Ralph Rider, W. H. Ammons, Fred P. Carr.

Wisconsin Golf association—Gordon Yule, Malcolm Kehler, E. P. Ailis and Harold Wyatt.

Nebraska Golf association—H. C. Sumney, W. N. Chambers, J. B. Rahm, A. V. Kinsler.

Inter-Collegiate Golf Association of America—R. E. Hunter, B. E. Heburn, Addison Stillwell, A. E. Fish.

Indiana Golf association—Clarence Stanley, W. H. Diddell, W. C. Hibbard and J. L. Dille.

The entry of the Inter-Collegiate Golf Association of America was an eleventh hour affair, the application being made late yesterday afternoon. After consideration the directors of the association decided to accept it, although doubt was expressed as to whether it was eligible for the contest as possibly not representing an association of golf clubs.

With the arrival of President Horace Smith of Nashville, Secretary Willard of Chicago, and other officers of the Western Golf association, plans for the championship play next week were rapidly matured.

CALLAHAN OF EAU CLAIRE LEADS "MINNY" LEAGUE IN BATTING

Batting averages for the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, which are out today, show that Callahan of Eau Claire is the hitting kid of the league. The Eau Claire outfielder has taken part in sixty-one games and has hit for the splendid average of .376. His nearest competitor for batting honors is Russ Bailey of the same team. But as Bailey had only taken part in eleven games up to the time the averages were issued, his high average is not as worthy as some averages made by players that have played in more games.

Bailey was the leader of the league last year, however, and he will probably be fighting for the swat honors of the league the present season.

Carter, the left fielder, who was only recently let go by Eau Claire, is really the player ranking next to Callahan. He is hitting at .343 and has played in fifty-seven games. Old Biddy Dolan of the Jacks is right behind his teammate. The old boy is stinging the ball to the merry tune of .339, many of his hits being for extra bases.

The averages of the league show Callahan, Carter, Dolan, Safford and Kelly about the sweetest swatters in the league. Both Safford of La Crosse and Kelly of Red Wing are hitting over the charmed .300 figure.

McCulloch of Superior was hitting well, his average being .396. The high batting average of the Superior baseman shows what a loss to the team the crippling of "Red" meant.

Cummings leads the Duluth hitters. In fifteen games the Duluth twirler has swatted .289, while "Baldy" Altermott is right behind smiling Al, hitting at the .282 figure. O'Brien has .274, the rest of the Sox being low in the hitting list.

A surprising thing about the collective hitting of the clubs is that Duluth leads both Wausau and Rochester. Here it was thought that Duluth had the weakest hitting team in the league. Eau Claire leads with the stick, Red Wing, La Crosse, Superior, Winona following, with Duluth, Wausau and Rochester bringing up the rear.

To the date of their issue in the pitching averages of the league show Pearl leading the pitchers of the league, he having worked in eight games without a defeat being registered against him. Whittaker, Dahlgren and Lakoff follow in the order named. Whittaker has worked in nineteen games for an average of .769. Dahlgren having the same average for fourteen games.

Cummings leads the pitchers of the Duluth club. Al has worked in fourteen games for an average of .538. The Duluth pitcher has won seven and lost six games.

Our old friend, Krick of Superior, is far down the line, as is also Klingebeil, formerly of this team.

The various averages of the league up to and including the game of July 11 will be found below:

KILLORIN.

Duluth will send to Kenora this season an eight that will carry the hopes of the members of the largest boat club in the West. Last season practically the same eight, the junior eight, won second place at the St. Paul regatta. Followers of rowing at the Duluth club argue that the eight the present season is much faster than the eight that won second at St. Paul last season, and that it should carry off the honors at the Canadian meet.

For some reason, just what or why—no one seems able to offer a satisfactory explanation—the crews of the Duluth Boat club have not made a very good showing at the Western regattas. Some excuse the recent bad showings on the plea that the weather here is against effective rowing. Others say that the rough water of St. Louis bay prevents the acquirement of the proper amount of watermanship and finished blade work.

The present season the coaches have labored long and late to overcome the difficulties that have in the past handicapped the crews of the Duluth Boat club. In the past few years the short, rather jerky stroke of the Duluth crews has been both criticised and ridiculed at the Western regattas. The blade work of the Duluth crews has also been laughed at. These same carping critics admitted that Duluth has great material, but for some reason seemed to be unable to mould this material into a winning crew.

Coaches Peyton and L'Estrange have set determinedly to work to correct some of the glaring deficiencies of the past. The stroke has been lengthened, and the men have been taught the quicker and harder catch. The present junior eight members spend less time in hanging on the catch, and also get a better reach and quicker shoot. The result of this improvement in the general points of rowing, is that the stroke is longer, has more rhythm and the men put more power in the beat.

It is believed here that the present eight is five or six lengths faster than the eight that represented the club in the junior events of last season. The men have had one more season's experience in rowing, in addition to the improved stroke, and have also a greater spirit of determination than was possessed by the eight of last season.

Men Have Improved.

Of the men who sat in the boat last year, Louis Thompson has probably shown the greatest improvement. Last year he rowed at No. 4. Early the present season he was moved up to the position of stroke and he has made good from the start. He has a remarkable stroke, a quick catch and combines all the qualities that make a great oarsman.

Forgette is captain of the eight and nearly all of the present season has been rowing at No. 5. "Cy" was a mighty good man last season, but the present season he has even shown more ability in getting power out of his oar. Roy Kent is another man who has developed remarkably the present season. The big boy has come along great since the first month of the year, and his blade work at the present time is probably as good as any member of the crew.

Wallace Quimby is one of the most faithful workers in the eight. He is rowing at No. 7 the present year, having been moved up in the general shift that took Thompson to the front of the shell. Quimby is as steady as one of those old eight-day German clocks. He is never erratic and he is one of the men whom you always feel sure will work for all there is in him.

"Big Bill" Crawford is a very familiar figure at the Western regattas. He has sat in a Duluth junior eight for the past four years. Each year he has seen the other eights finish in front of the Duluth eight. Each season he has resolved that he would row until Duluth carried home one of the handsome cups. The present season "Bill" believes his dogged determination will be rewarded. He is firmly of the opinion that at last Duluth has a winning combination. The other members of the crews are hoping that "Bill's" powers of prophecy are as tried as his tenacious sticking qualities.

Hare is a new man. The present season he rowed with the University of Wisconsin. Hare joined the Duluth crew at the latter end of the season and is rowing at 3. While the stroke of the Wisconsin crew is slightly different from the stroke used by the local eight, Hare has quickly fallen into the stroke of the Duluth eight, and is considered nearly the best oarsman in the boat.

Lathrop, Nelson, Sole and Slack are other men who will make the trip to Kenora. These men have been out all season and have worked hard for the success of the crew. Slack, Sole and Nelson are new to the shell racing game, while Lathrop had some experience last season. All of these men have contributed to the success of the eight, and what success if won by the crew will be just as much a part of the efforts of these men, as any of the other members of the rowing squad.

Bantam Four.

The bantam four is composed of Henry Talboys, captain and bow; O'Donnell, Refus and Walker. There may be a shift in this crew at the last moment, owing to the fact that the coaches favor placing Eddie Walker in the junior eight. This little man is about as strong an oar as any man in the club. He rowed in the senior eight last year and at St. Paul rowed a great race.

Ted Mapp may succeed Walker in the bantam four, and in this case the boat will probably be made up of Talboys, O'Donnell, Mapp and Refus.

Both crews have worked hard the present season, and both are confident of success at Kenora. A win will be a great thing for Duluth. It will mean increased interest in rowing in the future, and it will also mean that Duluth oarsmen have at last shown that they can compete with the best men of the other clubs.

MAY ROW IN SENIOR RACE

If Junior Eight Wins, Second Trial May Be Made.

(BY BRUCE.)

Two days remain for hard slugging work on the waters of St. Louis bay, and then the two crews of the Duluth Boat club will leave, bag and baggage for Kenora, where the 1910 honors of the Western oarsmen will be fought out.

There is little that remains to be said regarding either of the crews. Both the junior eight and the bantam four have prepared for the races of next week as men prepare for contests that tax every reserve force of mind and body. The hardest work of the season is over; there remains little to accomplish, save the finishing touches.

Arriving at Kenora Wednesday, the two Duluth crews will have that afternoon or evening. Thursday morning and afternoon and Friday morning for the final spins. It will be the object of the coaches to keep the men in form, during the two days at Kenora before the race of Friday.

It will depend upon the showing of the Duluth junior eight as to whether that crew may enter the senior eight race on Saturday. In the event of the junior eight winning the junior event on Friday, it is almost certain that the junior crew will be sent in for the senior event, the closing event on Saturday.

The St. Paul senior eight is composed partly of the men who also row in the junior eight boat. Therefore, if the Duluth juniors pull out a victory in the junior event, they should stand a very excellent chance of winning in the senior race.

If spirit counts for half a race, Duluth will win at Kenora. The seriousness of the race, which is not a week away, is beginning to get to the men, and when the members of the Duluth crews speak about the race, they do so in sort of whispered, awe-stricken sentences. Each man is realizing more every day that the race means more to him, and also more to the Duluth Boat club, than any race has ever meant to the club.

St. Paul Crew Fast.

Every man in the boat realizes thoroughly the caliber of the two crews Duluth will meet in the struggle of next Friday. St. Paul is reported to have the fastest junior crew in some years. Winnipeg can always be relied upon to place a fast eight in the water. It is the knowledge of the worthy opponents that the Duluth men will meet, that has made the Duluth junior eight men realize with deadly earnestness the seriousness of the race and the great effort they will be called upon to put forth.

If there is a man in the Duluth boat who is able to sit up after the boat crosses the finish line next Friday, the coaches will be grievously disappointed in the grit of the men. A man that rows with all his effort every stroke, slugging it in and driving with all his strength and determination is through at the finish. That is the way the Duluth eight is expecting to row; and if the eight does row that way, the coaches believe confidently that it will cross the line ahead of St. Paul and Winnipeg.

The eight men in the Duluth boat are big enough and strong enough to set an awful pace for a mile and a half. There is power and strength in the boat, and there should be endurance and staying qualities. Duluth should outstick both of the other crews. The men are experienced, know what they are up against, and from the very start should cut out a pace that will kill off the other crews. It is up to the men—well, they should win.

St. Paul, over thirty strong, will arrive here Tuesday afternoon and will leave with the Duluth crowd Tuesday evening over the Missabe for Kenora. It was the original plan of the St. Paul boys to come up Wednesday and leave that evening for Kenora. However, a wire was received here yesterday stating that St. Paul would make the trip with Duluth.

A special sleeper has been reserved for the Duluth crowd. The car will be set aside at Ranier, which will permit the Zenith City people to sleep until the boat is ready to leave. Those intending to make the trip can secure tickets at the Missabe office here. There are still reservations left in the Duluth car, and those intending to go with the crew Tuesday evening, are urged to secure their accommodations immediately.

SAYS BIG FIGHT WAS HIPPODROME OF THE AGE.

The recent combat between Johnson and Jeffries at Reno, Nev., instead of being the "battle of the century" as it was widely heralded by the industrious press agents in both camps, was the hippodrome of the age, according to M. S. Burrows of Duluth who has returned from the far West.

Mr. Burrows was in Nevada at the time of the fight looking over some mining properties and naturally joined the throng that flocked to the Reno ringside. He was accompanied by Capt. W. J. Dawson, the Butte mining man, who frequently visits Duluth, and both agreed the affair was the essence of tameness. Besides failing to "come back," the one time champion appeared dazed and Mr. Burrows says it was evident he was in the throes of a nervous breakdown. The Duluth man says there can be no question about Johnson being a clever boxer or that he had Jeffries at his mercy at all times.

Mr. Burrows acquired interests in several mining properties in the Sagebrush state and has faith in the continued mineral wealth of Nevada. Captain Dawson has taken on the oil fever because of some recent discoveries of gushers in the vicinity of Bakersfield, Cal., and is there now seeking to get hold of something good in that line.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Shakespeare wrote as only "Bill" could scribble of the seven ages of man. Reading over the observations of William, one is reminded of the several stages of athletic usefulness. These athletes have their several stages, just as mere man has his moods from the cradle to the yawning grave.

We may first observe the athlete, young and filled with the sprightly ambish, not to mention frolicksomness of youth, dash hither and yon on the field of contest, paying little heed to the fact that he is using up fuel at an alarming rate of consumption.

Fatigue is the furthest from his thoughts. He does not know he is tired until long after he is. His one great desire is to keep on the everlasting jump. We have all seen this young athlete on the baseball field, in the prize ring and again on the football field and on the track.

Here we pass to the second stage of the athlete. He is older and he had learned not to leave his race in the first part of the contest. He has learned by painful experience the gentle lesson of reserve force. He may be just as sprightly on the field—but, Bill, he saves himself in the contest. His lungs and muscles have become a sort of barometer, and he guides himself accordingly. He begins to notice when he is tired, and noticing it, he kind of saves himself at every opportunity.

And now we come to the third and jumping off stage of the athlete. In this distinguished stage, gentlemen, before they bid good bye to us, were Robert J. Fitzsimmons, James J. Jeffries, James J. Corbett, Norman Selby, better known as Kid McCoy; Fred Tenny, Iron Man McGinity, and many others; far too many to permit of mention.

These shorthorns had stayed by the game until they found it a real effort to move fast. Fred Tenny, the eminent first baseman of the Boston Doves and later of the New York Giants, was a really brilliant performer in his day. Well, friends, toward the end of his big league career he saved himself at every possible turn of the game. He was the most reserved of the reserve; he carefully calculated every move and the effort it would cost him. He saved every ounce of strength, for he knew that his strenuous days were surely slipping from him.

It is the same with many others. We have seen them coming down. It is a well known fact that a young man always goes up a ladder faster than an old man comes down. Veterans—a few of them are good for a team; but it is never good to have too many on any old kind of a team—they just naturally slow it up.

And so as "Bill" Shakespeare wrote of the seven ages of man, from the kid, Bill, to the old guy with the stitch in his side and the doddling walk, so it is with the merry and bold athletes. Taey pass from that merry, gamboling, lamblike and frisky age, when the joy of moving gurgles within them, to that stage of blase spirit and somewhat warped bodies, when every move is not a picture.

The Right Honorable Tom Fletcher, who last season was seen out at Athletic park with the La Crosse team, might have been placed in the third stage athletic class. Tom has given the little brook an awful good race, for he has been going on long before the outbreak of Civil war hostilities.

We might also insinuate that Mons. Dolan of the Wausau Jacks was eligible to the old men's home, were it not that his playing is far above the standard of many young men of our league. Mr. Dolan may be eligible to the old men's home, but he firmly refuses to enter welcome portals of that institution.

The Eternal Feminine.

No matter which canoe won, it wouldn't make the least difference—there are certain characteristics that pertain to the two very charming feminine crews that today race for the club pins.

It may be that a man has so much less to think about than a woman, though you can get very few men to admit this, that he talks less. Again, it may be that a man has so much more to think about than a woman that he doesn't talk so much. You can get more men to agree with this latter hazard—for it is a hazard.

Now, in paddling, often the rhythm of the boat is sadly broken—shattered, one might say—by some fair paddler suddenly turning around and inquiring of the girl back of her if she is going to the matinee tomorrow, or if she is going to the dance at the branch that evening.

The girl in the back might have been paddling as if her sweet life depended upon it, just at that precious moment. Her mind was riveted to the paddle, and with concentration worthy of a pale-browed Greek student, the fair oarsman might be attempting to keep in fairly good account with the one in front.

Lo and behold! The subject of the matinee or dance drives the worthy effort of rhythm from the mind of the young lady, and there is immediately an animated discussion of the dance and the peculiar attractions of the leading man.

This occurs daily in both of the boats; for that reason it is safe to presume that neither will have the advantage of training when they line up at the start. Women often rely more on brilliant initiative than dogged and persevering concentration. For that reason, if the stroke in war canoe race is even and a thing rhythmic and beautiful to behold in its perfect precision, you may be sure that it is because the members of the two crews have aptness and brilliancy, rather than a knowledge of paddling—that only is acquired by plodding man and studious practice.

The Literary Comeback.

Long ago in the dim beginning of pugilism, gentlemen of a recognized literary standing used to write of the ring in charming essay. Tom Moore once wrote a verse to a fighter, who did not want to fight, urging him to come forth and battle.

That was very, very long ago. For many years the habit of having literary men mixed up in the events of the ring was forgotten. The boys of the sporting page generally gave all the news of the highly colored event, in language quite picturesque enough and quite vivid and to the point.

But Jack London and Rex Beach, and one or two others, possibly recalling the fact that long ago novelists and poets and wits used to write of the doings of the ring, have found the prize ring an institution that they can use big words in describing and write many things about that are utterly impossible.

They have named these men of the red-blood school of fiction. Many of the red-blood school were present when school was called at the recent Johnson-Jeffries fight. They were all very busy and we heard many funny names applied to both fighters.

Johnson was a jungle born, a great cat, a child of nature, etc. Poor, misguided Jeffries came in for even more. He was identified with names that would cause an ordinary man to run with a helpless expression to the dictionary. It was a great day for the red-blood school—only, they all picked Jeffries to win.

Any man who had been given so many strange names as Jeffries should have been able to fight. He didn't fight at all, the same which leads some of us to wonder if Jack London, Rex Beach, et al., are as shrewd and clever in picking winners as some of the boys of the quill who blossomed back in the days of Mendozo and others of the early brawnies of the ring.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

EXTENDS WORKINGS TO WEST

Much High Grade Ore Yet Untouched in the Warrior and Mine Should Have Long Life—Mine Has Five Levels.

Globe, Ariz., July 23.—Work at the Black Warrior mine is being concentrated in the western portion of the workings, that is, on the Montgomery claim, which, in the past, has been such a lavish producer of high-grade silica ores. It is the intention of the management to work continually west, clearing the deposit of high-grade ores as they go. As there is practically the full length of the Winnie claim as yet untouched, as far as extraction goes, a long and productive future is certainly to be looked for for the Black Warrior Development company. The three claims, Dadeville, Montgomery and Winnie, which are at present being worked and which in the past have been so largely productive, control the apex of an ore-bearing trough and join each other longitudinally. Their order from east to west is as given above, and to the west of the property of the Inspiration Copper company. There are five levels to the mine, the 100, 150, 200, 250 and 300-foot levels. On the 200-foot level is cut an underground station at the end of the 200-foot cross-cut, which leads to the surface. In this station is installed a small Fairbanks-Morse 15-horse power gasoline hoist, which operates a skip to the 250 and 300-foot levels. This skip is designed to hold one-half ton and dumps automatically into a bin on the 200-foot level. From this bin, the ore is trammed through the 200-foot crosscut by hand to the surface bins. There it is partially hand-picked and graded up to 10 per cent and dumped into the wagons. Sampling is done by hand every two feet along the loaded wagons, which then haul it to the Miami branch of the Arizona Eastern railroad for transportation to the Old Dominion smelter.

Shipments of 100 tons a day are now being made. As there are approximately fifty men now in the employ of the company, it is easy to see that quite an efficient plant is in operation, considering the nature of the deposit.

At the Old Dominion mine, where 500 men are employed underground, the average ore extraction does not average much over 3 to 5 per cent copper from 600 tons.

No comparison is attempted here between the Old Dominion and the Black Warrior mines, the number of men employed and the tonnage above being merely cited as evidence that mining costs at the Warrior must be extremely low. Hand drilling is universally employed and square setting is the usual method of ore extraction, although there are some small stull stops on the 250-foot level. The average width of the ore body is thirty feet. It runs as narrow as five feet and up to widths of 100 feet or more. The vertical thickness averages some seventy-five feet.

On the Dadeville claim, a churn drill is in operation and is now at a depth of 475 feet in schist.

OUTPUT OF THE BUTTE MINES

Anaconda Smelters Operated at Full Capacity and Only Curtailment Is Equal to Former Production of Clark Mines—Further Reduction of Output Not Contemplated at Present.

Butte, Mont., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—There has been a great deal of misstatement and rot published about the curtailment of production by the Butte mines. As was stated in these letters a few weeks ago, the curtailment consists of a reduction of ore output amounting possibly to 500 tons a day, made necessary by the purchase of the Clark mines by the Anaconda and the closing of the Clark smelter in Butte. The two Anaconda smelters have not sufficient capacity to handle all the ore that can be mined, or that had been mined for some time. At some of the mines a Sunday rest day has been inaugurated, but this announcement prompted some irresponsible correspondent and papers to announce that operations at all the mines had been reduced to five days per week, and that the curtailment of copper production had been put into effect so emphatically that the June production had been put into effect so emphatically that the June production fell below 20,000,000 pounds, when the facts are that the Washoe smelter alone produced in June in excess of 18,000,000, and the Great Falls smelter more than 7,000,000 pounds, while the Pittsmont smelter of the East Butte company put out nearly 1,000,000 pounds, and the Clark smelter also produced some copper. It is announced officially that the Anaconda smelters have been operated at full capacity. The actual curtailment so far has been equal to about the former production of the Clark mines. It is admitted that there may be a further reduction of output if necessary, but at present it is not contemplated. The impression given out is that there is under way a general curtailment among the big producers, either by agreement or through tacit understanding, and that the Anaconda company has contributed its full share to the curtailment by the elimination of a product equal to the former production of the Clark mines, amounting to 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 pounds of copper a month.

North Butte and Tuolumne.

It is hard to say when the case of the North Butte company against the Tuolumne company will come up for hearing as it is nearing the time when the courts will take a summer vacation, and all departments at the present time are crowded with work. The papers have not yet been signed and as no effort has been made by the North Butte company to secure a temporary restraining order, the Tuolumne company is running along as usual. The stock of the Tuolumne company, which for a few days was affected by the starting of the suit, has regained some of the lost ground.

Colorado.

The contract for the construction of the tramway from the Colorado mine of the Davis-Daly company to the Northern Pacific railroad tracks has been signed and workmen are engaged in work preliminary to putting down the rails. General Manager M. W. Bacon of the Heinze company says that active mining ought to commence in the Colorado in about one month. It is stated shipments of 500 tons of ore a day will be shipped to the Heinze concentrator at Basin, just as soon as the tramway is in condition to allow the ore being run over the line. Mining men who have been into the Colorado declare that large quantities of high grade ore have been blocked out on the 1,200, 1,400 and 1,500-foot levels, the values running about 6 per cent copper and a fair percentage of silver.

Suit for Ore.

W. O. Clymo wants $2,494.49 from the East Butte and Anaconda Copper mining companies for ore delivered to the East Butte company in which, the Anaconda company claims an interest. When it was learned that the Anaconda company claimed an interest in the ore, the East Butte company refused to pay over the amount claimed, hence the suit.

Butte-Ballaklava.

The Butte-Ballaklava company is sending a little over 200 tons of ore a day to the smelter which is averaging better than sixteen tons of copper besides high values in silver. High grade ore is still being encountered and it is stated that with an advance

DENN-ARIZONA LOOKS GOOD

Outlook at Mine Most Favorable and Sinking of Shaft Progressing Rapidly—Little Water Encountered in Shaft Below 1,385 Feet.

Bisbee, Ariz., July 23.—The outlook at the Denn-Arizona is most favorable and the sinking of the shaft is rapidly progressing. The weekly average of fifteen feet sunk and timbered is being kept up, and when the water is successfully handled this average may in time be materially increased.

The shaft is now down 1,425 feet and the next station will be cut when a depth of 1,500 feet has been reached, which will make a distance of 150 feet between this station and the next above. The greatest volume of water is coming out at a depth of 1,385 feet in the shaft, and at this point excavation for a large box will be made in which this water will be caught and pumped to the surface, leaving the shaft below this depth and in the bottom practically dry, as little, if any, water is made below this in the shaft and none at the bottom. The two large pumps which are doing such splendid work will be carried down as the shaft is sunk, so that they can be used at any time the pumps at the 1,385-foot depth break down. The formation continues to be the hard lime rock which was struck at a depth of 1,200 feet and which was encountered in the diamond drill hole, about 700 feet south of the shaft, at a depth of 840 feet showing that the dip of the ore is in a northerly direction. Foreman A. F. Sutton is of the opinion that the Denn is now out of the swamp which the shaft has been going through and that, as a consequence, very little trouble will now be encountered and the work will progress more rapidly and satisfactorily.

Shattuck-Arizona.

Work in the lower levels of the Shattuck-Arizona has been temporarily suspended and the force on the upper levels has been increased and development work in new territory opened up on these levels is being pushed ahead rapidly. On the first of these levels the 400-foot, the station, which for some time was being cut, has been completed and a north and south drift are being driven for the purpose of determining the quality and amount of ore which can be opened up and blocked out.

On the fifth and sixth levels the nature of the territory will be determined in the same manner.

For the present only the rich oxide ore are being mined and shipped while the immense bodies of sulphide on the lower levels remain untouched. These sulphides, although not so rich as the oxides are good, marketable ores and as soon as the market for copper shows an advance the mining and shipping of them will be resumed with an increased force. This mine is now shipping 175 tons of ore per day running on the average 17 per cent copper which is an average which few copper mines can equal and fewer, if any exceed.

THE FUTURE OF SNOWSTORM

All Depends on How Far Ore Body Extends Below No. 3 Tunnel—Capitalists From East Shown Through Saltese Mines.

Spokane, Wash., July 23.—R. C. Vanderford, one of the oldest miners in the Coeur d'Alene district, said in an interview here regarding adverse reports on the Snowstorm mine:

"I was through the mine about a month ago, and though I was not allowed to inspect the No. 4 workings, all the rest of the mine was entirely open. It is undoubtedly true that no ore of good grade was found on No. 4, but it should be remembered that No. 4 tunnel is 600 feet below No. 3, in which the paying ore of the Snowstorm was found.

"The whole problem of how much value there is in the mine now depends on how far below No. 3 tunnel the pay ore extends. It is my opinion that there is at least a 300-foot shoot of good ore in that 600 feet, and there may be much more. That means about 1,000,000 tons, which will produce as much dividends as the mine has paid already. In addition, there is a good chance that a lower ore body can be picked up below No. 4 somewhere, which will make the mine better than it has ever been."

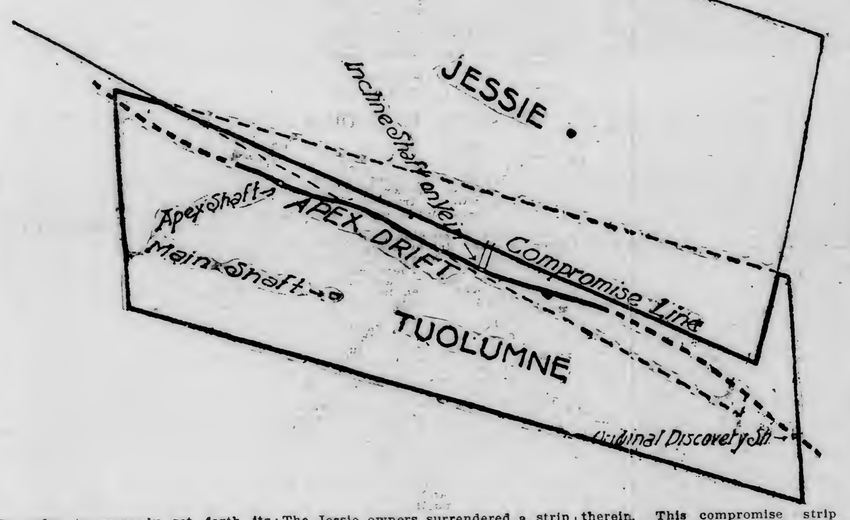

J. L. Baller of Spokane, who recently assumed an option and bond on the Monitor mine in the Coeur d'Alenes from H. F. Samuels and the Success Mining company, has been conducting a party of Eastern capitalists through the Saltese copper mine. If a deal is closed for a large block of stock, the long crosscut, a mile in length, will be run, as by this means the ore can be extracted economically enough to leave a good profit from the shipments. Men have been employed at the Monitor several weeks, unwatering the shaft and doing other work preliminary to active mining operations.

Fremont S. Rowe, a prominent mining engineer, who recently made an examination of the Blue Bell property in the Coeur d'Alenes, says it will develop into a mine. The property, embracing twelve claims, is located on Big creek, a short distance southeast of the Bunker Hill & Sullivan mine. Extensive development work has been done on the surface and a good showing of ore is opened up. It is expected the main body will be encountered at 1,000 feet depth. The tunnel is in 1,100 feet and is within 350 feet of the ledge. A. G. H. Landgren of Chicago was elected president of the company at the last meeting.

Work will be started soon on the Verda mine, which adjoins the Mineral Point on McFarren gulch, at Osburn, Idaho, according to J. E. Letcher, mine manager for the company, who is in Spokane. He said:

"We expect to run a 1,500-foot tunnel to tap the lead at depth as soon as possible and should get good returns from the ore body at that point. The surface showing and the ore which we have taken from open surface cuts runs very high in copper, with good silver values."

POSITION OF THE TUOLUMNE

In order to properly set forth its position in the suit recently commenced against it by the North Butte Mining company, the directors of the Tuolumne Copper company have prepared and submitted for the information of the general public the following statement accompanied by diagram prepared from the accepted survey:

The recent suit brought by the North Butte Mining company, against the Tuolumne Copper Mining company, and the comments made thereon by newspapers friendly to the plaintiff, have in some instances misled the public as to the exact nature of the controversy.

When the Jessie owners made application for patent in 1882, the owners of the Tuolumne, it being the older location, filed an adverse suit claiming part of the ground embraced in the Jessie lode. Instead of litigating this question the owners of both claims arrived at a settlement or compromise by which the boundary line of both the claims was agreed upon and fixed. The Jessie owners surrendered a strip of ground claimed by the Tuolumne and deeds were executed in 1882 conveying this strip by the Jessie owners to the owners of the Tuolumne, by which conveyance this strip, called the compromise strip, became part of the Tuolumne claim, although patented by the Jessie.

This compromise strip, with the balance of the Tuolumne lode, was held by the Tuolumne owners until 1906, when the Tuolumne Mining company was incorporated and became vested with the full title to the Tuolumne lode, including this compromise strip, and the entire property has been held and operated ever since by the company.

In September, 1909, John G. Moroney, for the North Butte Mining company, purchased for a nominal consideration an alleged three-eighths interest in this compromise strip from a former owner who claimed that this interest had not passed on account of a faulty description in a prior deed. Moroney deeded this interest to the North Butte, which holds the same for litigation purposes, and without any right to any interest therein. This compromise strip is shown on the accompanying map as the triangle below the Jessie claim. All the ore that has been, or is now being mined by the Tuolumne company is from this compromise strip.

In the suit instituted by the North Butte Mining company, the plaintiff does not claim that it has any apex rights in this strip, but only founds its claim on the three-eighths interest acquired by Moroney. It admits the ownership of the Tuolumne company in an undivided three-eighths interest in this strip. The plaintiff claims apex rights in the Tuolumne claim lying south of this compromise strip, but there has been no ore extracted from this portion of the property, and the contention of the defendant is that there is no foundation in law or in fact for any claim on the part of the North Butte Mining company to any portion of the veins in defendant's property, wherever situated.

The complaint asks for a temporary injunction, but as yet no order to show cause has been issued, nor any time set for hearing of plaintiff's application in this regard.

PURCHASE SAN MARTIN MINE

Canadian Capitalists Take "Antiqua" Property in the Ocotlan District of Mexico—Mountain Peak of Gold Ore Recently Discovered.

Mexico City, Mex., July 23. — Mine owners in the state of Guerrero are greatly interested in the report that the prospects are favorable for the early construction of a railroad between Balsas and the port of Zihuatanejo on the Pacific coast. The Cuernavaca division of the National Railways of Mexico already runs to Balsas and by the construction of a line to the coast a vast scope of rich mineral territory would be opened up. There is already considerable activity in mining camps in Guerrero, but the transportation cost is so high that only the richer properties can be worked to advantage. The proposed road will afford an outlet for the extensive iron deposits adjacent to the Pacific coast. One of the most noted mining districts to be reached is Placeres de Oro, which has yielded many millions of dollars of gold during the last 300 years.

George Donville of Montreal, Can., and associates have purchased the San Martin mine in the Ocotlan district, Oaxaca. It is an "antigua" property and has a record of producing much ore in the period of the early Spaniards. The principal shaft is down 340 feet. It is planned by the new owners to start blocking out ore immediately. Later a cyanide plant and reduction works will be erected. The property embraces about 125 acres of mineralized land.

A mountain peak of gold ore has been recently discovered in the Rayon districts, about 120 miles west of Minaca, the nearest railroad point. It is said by mining men who recently visited the place that the property has been denounced under the name of La Protectora. The surface ledge of gold ore runs along a high ridge and can be traced for a mile. It is thirty-five feet wide and finally rises to a perpendicular height of 275 feet. The wall rocks that once enclosed the great vein of pay ore have eroded, leaving the solid body of ore standing high above the surface in the form of a peak. The top of the peak has tumbled over, leaving a large pile of broken ore around the base. The ore

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Algomah Finds Copper Ore at Depth of 25 Feet—Hancock Resumes Sinking in Vertical Shaft—Situation in Lake Property Never Better Than at Present Time.

Houghton, Mich., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The operations of the Algomah Mining company, in the Ononagon district, continue to result in a disclosure of copper ore at a depth of twenty-five feet, attained in the exploratory pit which the company is sinking, preliminary to the development of the property by shaft and lateral openings. The pit is being sunk with the aid of hammer and drill. In addition to this work the company is engaged in surface trenching at various points between this pit and the Lake mine boundary, with the object of determining the strike of the Lake lode across the Algomah property. A steam boiler, hoist and air-compressor have been installed to facilitate development work.

Franklin.

The Franklin Mining company has ceased its diamond drill exploratory operations in the horizon of the Hancock lode, and is now centering work of this nature in ground lying immediately to the east and west of the Pewabic formation, in which lode the mining operations of the company are confined. The development of the Pewabic lode on this property is going ahead without interruption and results are encouraging.

Hancock.

The Hancock Consolidated Mining company has resumed sinking in the vertical shaft, in which operations were suspended during the erection of the steel head-frame of the new shaft house. The No. 2 shaft, which is designed to be the main outlet of Hancock's undergorund operations, has attained a depth of about 2,400 feet. The surface equipment at this point has about reached the limit of its capacity and is being replaced by larger and heavier machinery. The shaft will eventually be deepened considerably more than 3,600 feet, at which depth it is expected to tap the Quincy-Pewabic lode. Development work in the No. 3 lode is in progress at several levels down to the eighteenth, and is resulting in the disclosure of first-class copper ground.

Indiana and North Lake.

There have been no recent developments in the diamond drill operations of the Indiana and North Lake companies. Three of the four drills in operation on the Indiana property have attained depths of a little over 200 feet. The fourth drill is considerably over 1,600 feet down. Two of the holes show a felsitic formation similar to that cut in the famous No. 2 hole, but thus far have not resulted in the disclosure of commercial values. The No. 9 drill hole, on the North Lake property, has attained a depth of about 400 feet, and is thus far without feature.

Bohemia.

The diamond drill explorations of the Bohemia company are not proving very encouraging. The No. 1 drill hole has attained a depth of about 1,500 feet and has passed through several copper bearing lodes, none of which, however, reveal anything of promise. The No. 2 hole is about 1,000 feet deep and thus far has yielded nothing of importance.

Ahmeek.

The Ahmeek Mining company has drilled into the Kearsarge lode at a depth of 1,050 feet from surface. The lode at this depth shows a width of about fifteen feet quite all of it well charged with heavy shot copper. The Nos. 3 and 4 shafts of this company are sinking to cut this lode at about the point just drilled into, and have attained depths of about 950 feet so that the disclosure of this lode by the shafts is expected within the next month or two.

Lake.

The situation in the Lake property, despite reports to the contrary, was never better than it is at the present time. The shaft has reached the seventh level, where a plat is now being cut preliminary to crosscutting to the hole which is calculated to be anywhere from 150 to 200 feet from the shaft at this depth. Drifting is in progress at the third, fourth, fifth and sixth levels and at nearly all points of attack reveals copper ground of exceptional richness, particularly so at the third and fifth levels. The openings at the sixth level are at the moment looking rather indifferently. The greater part of the work at this point has been to the northward of the shaft, in which direction the conditions generally have not shown equal encouragement with those toward the southward. In this direction, too, a turn in the formation is indicated, and it appears as if the expected swing is being entered. The openings to the southward of the shaft are all in good copper ground, the general average of which is probably not exceeded in richness by any other amygdaloid mine in this district.

AT THE NATIONAL PROPERTY

Carbonate Ore Encountered in South Drift From the Williams Shaft—Drill at Superior & Globe Now Running in Diabase.

Globe, Ariz., Aug. 23. — The three working faces on the 660-foot level of the Williams shaft of the National are in process of development. The drift southeast is 125 feet in length; the southwest cross-cut is 230 feet in length and the northeast seventy-five feet from the shaft. The Williams shaft is now at a depth of 749 feet.

Along the southwest cross-cut, some 100 feet from the shaft, a bunch of carbonate ore was encountered. A small stope was started up here and continued until the ore, which was evidently a replacement in limestone, was extracted. Near the present face of the cross-cut occurs a cross fault, dipping about seventy-five degress to the southwest and crossing at nearly right angles. This secondary fault seems to have jumped the main ledge a little to the southeast. This southeast cross-cut, as well as the one running in the opposite direction, is following what is supposedly the Black Hawk vein. The fault is not well defined here, being considerably broken up and jumped. At some places it is difficult to trace either foot or hanging wall, and the fracture seems to be more nearly vertical than otherwise. Hematite, which usually characterizes sulphides in depth, is, however, very prevalent along the entire length of both of these cross-cuts.

The returns of the ore shipped show an average content of nine and one-half per cent, forty-seven and six-tenths per cent iron, and as low in insolubles as 11 per cent. After all charges were paid, the car yielded about $15 a ton at the mine. Four Sullivan U. C., eleven piston drills, run by a Laidlow, Dunn and Gordon compressor, form the instruments of rock breaking.

Superior & Globe.

A diamond drill on the 650-foot level of the Superior & Globe mine has been in operation in diabasse for the last two days. It is situated some 500 feet from the shaft, in the north cross-cut, which is at present being developed and is something over 500 feet in length.

At a distance of 450 feet from the shaft, this cross-cut crossed the main vein which diamond drilling is supposed to penterate at a depth of some 1,200 feet from the surface. A 60-horsepower Fairbanks-Morse gasoline hoist is in operation and a three-drill gasoline compressor is furnishing air for the Sullivan diamond 2½-inch drill, which is doing the development work.

ALTA AGAIN COMING TO FORE

Company Expects Soon to Penetrate Old Workings of Mine at Depth of 660 Feet—Corbin Concentrator is Started.

Helena, Mont., July 23.—Within thirty days the Boston Alta Copper company expects to penetrate the old workings of the Alta mine at a depth of 660 feet. Immediately after, it intends to increase its working force and stope out from 200 to 300 tons a day. Marcus L. Hewett, managing director of the company, who has been East all winter, is here from Corbin, where, with Eastern stockholders, he made an examination of the work already done. He said: "The Alta is again coming to the fore as one of the best mines in the state. The ore bodies in the lower depths have not been scratched. The $30,000,000 so far taken out was all from the workings above 600 feet. When the mine was shut down years ago because of the low price of silver, the ore bodies were widening and values becoming richer. A crosscut to the old workings has been driven 520 feet, and according to the maps of the old workings its face is aproximately under the old ore bodies. In the next thirty days we should break through."

Announcement was also made by Mr. Hewett that within a few days the Northwestern Metals company will begin the construction of a $250,000 electrolytic plant for the treatment of refractory ores on the site of the old Peck concentrator between Helena and East Helena. The company will also erect a refinery.

Mike Finch and Al Downing, owners of sixteen claims at Hellgate Gulch north of here, are in the city with samples of ore, from two veins lying about two miles apart. One runs high in copper and the other high in gold. The copper vein is three feet wide and has been developed by extensive tunnels and crosscuts. Mr. Finch has assays showing the stuff to run 30 per cent. The ore was roasted and the native copper came up in globules. More than 120 feet has been blocked out. The gold vein is 4 feet wide. It is free milling and carries values of $120 a ton. The vain has been developed by a 400-foot tunnel.

The 100-ton concentrator, which has just been completed on the property of the Corbin Copper company, has been started. The tunnel at the mouth of which it has been built has opened into a body of good copper ore. The winze recently sunk twenty feet below the tunnel level has opened up a body of silver ore running better than 150 ounces to the ton.

A new strike has been made at the West Kendall in Fergus county. The 12-inch wall has been broken through by the big tunnel and a fine body of free milling gold ore, which assays $80 to the ton was encountered. The ore body has been cut six feet, and its width is not yet known.

Edward H. Campbell, a Helena druggist, is taking his vacation, seeking a bonanza mine near Lo Lo in company with an ex-soldier of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, who discovered the float while on a hunt for big game. He was stationed at Fort Missoula at the time. After the regiment went to Cuba during the Spanish-American war. Lately he returned to Helena to make search for the hidden wealth. He says he marked the ground so that he is sure he can rediscover it.

AT THE SUPERIOR & BOSTON

Great Eastern Vein Continues to Yield Large Tonnage For Shipment—Exploratory Work at Gardner Workings Still Showing Ore.

Globe, Ariz., July 23.—Development work continues at the Superior & Boston property, with results which apparently assure the mine of remaining one of the foremost producers of the Globe district. The Great Eastern vein continues to yield a large tonnage of ore for shipment daily and the exploratory work on the Black Oxide vein at the Gardner workings has not as yet set any limit to the ore body, which, thus far, has averaged about 8 per cent copper and has a high iron content. The winze sunk from the fourth level of the Gardner workings, on the Black Oxide vein, is 140 feet deep and has recently passed into the hanging wall of the shattered limestone. The fact that the winze has passed out of the ore is due simply to a change in the dip of the vein from an angle of 82 degrees to an almost vertical position. The course of the winze has now been altered in such a manner that with some forty or fifty feet more of sinking it should encounter the vein again at a depth of about 680 feet from the surface. The vein dips very slightly to the north and the winze is being sunk almost vertically. To a depth of 115 feet below the fourth level, the winze was in the ore body of the vein, which is almost ten feet wide. Apparently, the Black Oxide is a true fissure vein, having both foot and hanging walls in limestone.

The company is maintaining its shipments of ore at ninety tons a day, and the average copper content of ore at present being extracted from the Great Eastern vein is 8 per cent. The present product of the mine is being taken from the stopes west of the McGaw shaft, on the 600-foot level. The fact that the Superior & Boston Copper company's output of copper during May was 451,081 pounds and that its silver output was 10,485 ounces, gives the property third place as a producer among the mines of the Globe and Miami districts. This production could be greatly increased if the management desired it, but for several reasons no material enlargement of output is considered feasible at present.

The McGaw shaft, which is the main working shaft of the Superior & Boston mine, has been sunk to within thirty-five feet of the depth at which the eighth level will be established. The shaft is at present bottomed in shattered limestone, which renders sinking a little difficult. As soon as the 800-foot mark is reached and a sump of proper proportions is made, the 800-foot level will be established to develop the Great Eastern vein at that depth.

NEW BARNES-KING DEAL IS ON

Property May Not Be Permanently Closed Down—President Fischer Discusses the Situation—Company Has About $250,000 in Treasury.

Butte, Mont., July 23.—Concerning the affairs of the Barnes-King Development company, W. H. A. Fischer, president of the company, in a recent interview in the New York Commercial, confirmed reports coming from Butte to the effect that the company has closed down its mine near Kendall, Mont., but denied that the directors had decided on a permanent shut-down.

"We laid off all of the men employed in the mine on the first of this month, and we will close the mill as soon as we have run through a little ore that is on hand. We have some negotiations under way now which have not yet reached a stage where it would be advisable to speak of them. There has been no definite decision to shut down the property permanently. We have found that we cannot mill the ore that is available at a profit—in fact, the mill has been running at a loss, and we determined to stop the loss."

Mr. Fischer said that the company has in its treasury about $250,000, and when asked if the management was likely to use this surplus, or a portion of it, in searching for better ore, he said it was not. The former management, he said, had expended much time and money in an effort to discover additional bodies of pay ore, and the present directors believe the property has been pretty thoroughly prospected.

It is reported in Butte that the North Mocassin Mining company is negotiating with the Barnes-King people to use the Barnes-King mill on North Mocassin ore, and that the deal was likely to go through. Mr. Fischer says that such an arrangement has been talked of for a long time, but is no nearer a conclusion now than it has been several times before.

HOT CAMPAIGN FOR CHIEF OF NEW U. S. BUREAU OF MINES

Washington, July 23.—Dozens of telegrams urging that pressure be brought to bear on President Taft to apoint E. W. Parker as chief of the bureau of mines have been sent out of Washington to prominent men over the country in one of the hottest bureau campaigns which has ever been waged here.

Unusual as it is to invite openly and force indorsements in this manner, the feature which has made the older departmental heads and members of congress who are still in Washington gasp when they learn of the methods used in the campaign is the fact that the telegrams are written and signed by a bureau chief of the department of the interior, the messages which have become public carrying the name of George Otis Smith, who is director of the United States geological survey.

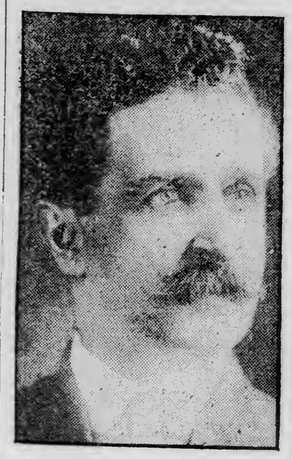

While the good time of public officers is being used up in the campaign, in writing telegrams and letters galore, yet it shoud be said in justice to all that the telegrams are not going out as "official business." Telegraph franks are being conserved with a vengeance. Director Smith, however, has not told any one whether the telegrams were paid for by himself or Mr. Parker, his candidate.

Members of congress who are interested in the conservation movement think that it is not exactly the proper thing to make a football of President Taft's best piece of conservation legislation in the game of bureau politics, and that the policy of forcing the indorsemnt of a candidate on the president through the means of a telegraphic campaign such as is being waged is almost going the limit.

Three men are prominent figures in the bureau campaign and these are Director George Otis Smith, Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, former chief of the technologic branch of the geological survey, which became the bureau of mines in accordance with the act of congress, on July 1, and E. W. Parker, statistician in charge of the division of mineral resources, a subordinate and friend of Director Smith in the geological survey. The lines of the fight have been closely drawn, with the field aginst Dr. Holmes, and with the survey forces working hard for E. W. Parker.

Holmes is now technologist of the bureau of mines, and Smith is the temporary head and his superior, having been appointed by President Taft to organize the bureau on July 1. Holmes has been in charge of the line of work of the geological survey which is now performed by the new bureau for some years, and in view of his experience in mine and fuel investigations and study for the prevention of mine accidents he naturally has been the leading candidate for the new place from the beginning. He is opposed, however, by Director Smith, who is understood to have the sympathy of Secretary Ballinger, his superior. Holmes has received indorsements from practically every one else having an interest in the mining industry, including both the mine operators and the miners themselves, and these have long been in the hands of President Taft, along with a petition from sixty-two senators asking that he be appointed.

So far as the present campaign is concerned, Parker is still in it, and his only opponent is obliged to rest on his oars and take no part in the active work. Owing to the fact that Holmes is now a subordinate in the new bureau, which has only a temporary head, he must maintain a dignified silnece, for any activity on his part would be disloyalty to his present chief. Director Smith, as permanent head of the geological survey and temporary head of the bureau of mines, however, considers himself free in his dual position to continue campaigning for Statistician Parker. The latter because of the friendliness and activity of his chief, finds there is no need to work for himself, and is also able to maintain a dignified silence. Meanwhile, the work of bringing influence to bear on President Taft is going merrily on.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Title to Harney Peak Properties at Hill City Cleared and Work to Be Pushed—Golden Slipper To Be Unwatered.

Rapid City, S. D., July 23.—Documents perfecting the Pahasa Mining company's title in the properties held by the Harney Peak Mining, Milling & Manufacturing company at Hill City, in the southern part of Pennington county, have been received by County Register Halley for record. They have come from ex-Senator A. B. Kitridge of Sioux Falls, who has worked for two years to put the deal through and allow the development of the mines. At the time of the sale attorneys representing the New York judgment creditors said that the new company intended to make this property second only to the Homestake. Work has been carried on for months. The first of the documents is a release from Sir Clarence Crisp of London, Eng., to the Harney Peak company of certain incumbrances and fees to mining properties. The other documents are deeds to integral parts of the property from the Farmers' Loan & Trust company of New York, George Ehret, Theodore L. Herman, Charles Remson and Emita M. Lewis, all of New York, to the Pahasa Mining company. The grantors in these deeds are the judgment creditors against the Harney Peak company, which purchased the property at sheriff's sale here about a year ago.

In the Southern Hills the Pahasa Mining company, the Continental Copper Mining company's Calumet mine and the Gertie Tin proposition command the greater share of attention. The first named company is a reorganization of the Harney Peak Tin company, which spent millions of English money twenty years ago. Extravagance led to litigation and the extensive properties were tied up for many years. Manager C. H. Kammon of the company is now opening two of the old shafts, the greater activity being at the Cowboy, which is nearly unwatered.

At the Calumet Supt. Overpeck is directing a crew of twenty men in sinking, having now reached a depth of 700 feet. A break in the hoisting equipment has delayed work somewhat.

Reports from Keystone indicate that the Columbia is giving up better values every day as the ledge trends toward the Holy Terror workings. The Manions have sixty men on the payroll.

It is reported that negotiations for the Egyptian and Bullion have been closed.

The Golden Slipper is soon to be unwatered to permit its inspection by intending purchasers. This mine, which is located four miles from Hill City was a payer when closed, and there is reason to believe plenty of good ore remains to be taken out. The Gold Medal, also near Hill City, has recently taken on a number of men.

MEETS WITH FLOW OF WATER

Churn Drills at the Cactus Encounter Heavy Flows of Water, But No Copper-Bearing Schist—Prospects Are Good.

Globe, Ariz., July 23.—The first two churn drill holes sunk on the property of the Cactus Copper company, 200 feet apart and several hundred feet northeast of the Hamilton shaft, where nearly all the development work to date has been done, encountered heavy flows of water, but no copper-bearing schist. These holes were not put down in the expectation of finding ore, but for the purpose of proving that no ore underlies this part of the property, where the main working shaft will be sunk in the near future. The first hole attained a depth of 500 feet and the second hole was abandoned about 260 feet from the surface. The churn drill is now working in the bed of Pinto creek, about 600 feet southeast of the Hamilton shaft. This hole has just passed into schist containing a small percentage of copper sulphide at a depth of 100 feet.

Extensive repairing of some forty buildings, constituting the camp of the Summit Mining company, has been completed, and the company's force is now engaged in sinking at the vertical main shaft which is already 265 feet deep. All the stock of the Summit company has been subscribed for, and orders amounting to 3,000 shares, taken by brokers in Globe in excess of the allotments allowed, could not be filled when they reached the main offices in Duluth, Minn. The stock is being put on the market at 60 cents a share and has a par value of $1. The capitalization of the company is $600,000. T. W. Hamilton, the superintendent of the Cactus Copper company, will be general manager of the new corporation.

SWARMS WITH PROSPECTORS

Great Boom in Portland Canal Territory—Miles of Land Along Strike of Newly Discovered Reef is Already Staked.

Seattle, Wash., July 23.—The Portland canal territory, to which Mackenzie and Mann of the Canadian Northern railway have given their attention, is booming. Stewart is busy and development of the mines is going on night and day. The country swarms with prospectors and for miles the territory along the strike of the newly-discovered reef is already staked. A thorough examination of this zone by representatives of large mining interests is now in progress.

Many prospectors have gone to the Alice Farm district, from which good reports have been brought. The latest strike reported is on the north fork of the Marmot river. Morris R. Moon has returned from a prospecting trip there. He made an important strike, from which high assays have been obtained. Men were sent out to prospect the lead and exposed it for 200 feet on the surface. A small amount of work disclosed an ore body twelve feet wide, from which an assay of $30.20 in gold was obtained. Capt. White Fraser and Mr. Moon have located ten claims and an expert report is to be secured.

Assays made at Stewart of ore brought from the "mammoth reef" located early in June, tend to confirm reports that this leached out, barren-looking quartz carries paying ore. Francis S. Otter, broker, obtained an assay of $8.80 from his claim, while Dan Bartholomew got $5.20. Mr. Bartholomew returned from the reef last Saturday and said he believed it as big as reported. He followed it for seven miles and locations have been made all along for the distance. The fourth deposit covers five acres, and it is estimated that there are fully 70,000 tons of ore on the surface. The ore assays about $15 a ton.

There are blanket veins near the pillar which have a thickness of five to twenty-five feet. It is said that half the surface ore can be mined with pick and shovel. The owners of the wonderful freak of nature are preparing to install a cyanide plant. A hydro-electric plant will also be installed on either the Mayo or Babnora river, a few miles distant.

The West Coast Copper Smelting & Refining company, which owns several mines in the state of Sonora, is opening up a body of ore that is said to be 1,100 feet wide in its property at Tecolote, forty-two miles west of Carbo. The ore runs 4 per cent copper and considerable gold and silver values.

The Boleo Copper company, which has been operating copper mines and a smelter at Santa Rosalia, Lower California, for many years, is enlarging its electric power plant. All of the copper matte produced, amounting to about 1,000 tons a month, is shipped to Dunkirk and Liverpool.

The unusually favorable concession which the government granted recently to the Sonora Copper company is the subject of considerable comment in mining circles. The company is authorized to erect a smelter of a minimum capacity of 100 tons daily, to construct railroads and telegraph lines and to make other important improvements, and shall be exempt from all state and municipal taxes for twenty years from June 9, 1910. During the same period all employes of the company are to be exempt from all taxes and military service. The company is operating the Cobre Grande copper mines in the Magdalena district, Sonora. It is erecting a 100 ton smelter. In return for the favors received it agrees to receive each year five students for apprenticeship in the smelter, mines or shops, the appointments to be made by the governor of Sonora.

OUTPUT OF THE BUTTE MINES

of a cent a pound in copper the company would be easily in a position to increase its dividend. The initial dividend of 50 cents is payable Aug. 1.

Ohio Copper.

Heinze's Ohio Copper company is producing at the rate of about 8,000,000 pounds of copper a year, and if the copper magnate is successful in arranging his refinancing scheme in Europe the mill will be completed and fully equipped, whereas at present only about one-half the mill is in shape to handle ore. Such is the word brought to the city by Chief Mining Engineer Frank, who has returned from a visit to the property. Mr. Frank says the plant is being worked at a profit now. He says that mining is now being carried on at 50 cents a ton and that concentrating costs 40 cents per ton, these figures also including the cost of management and incidental expenses. The Ohio has a floating indebtedness of $600,000 with outstanding bonds amounting to $1,246,600 convertible into stock at par, while there are bonds in the treasury amounting to $754,000 and it is the sale of these Heinze is now endeavoring to effect in Europe. Mr. Frank declares that the Ohio is making of one of the greatest properties Mr. Heinze has ever handled.

Ophir Mine.

W. L. Credon has commenced an examination of the silver ore reserves in the Ophir mine of the Butte Central Copper company and upon the result of this examination will depend whether the company will erect a mill to treat the ores now on the 200, 300, 400 and 500-foot levels. These ores are said to be very rich in silver and if Mr. Credon so decides a mill will be built as it is contended that the silver values will not only pay the operating expenses but will leave something over for the treasury. A force of men are now at work in the Ophir and the work of sinking to a depth of 1,500 feet will soon be commenced. Supt. McConnell is quite satisfied that copper of a high grade will be opened up at depth.

The Parrot Case.

After two continuances the case of the minority stockholders against the Parrot Mining company for an appraisement of the stock has been set for hearing on Sept. 12. Under the laws of Montana minority stockholders have a right to ask for an appraisement, the expense to be paid by the company.

Silver King.

The Silver King, one of the Davis-Daly company mines, is being developed by leasers through a new shaft. The shaft is 125 feet and at that depth the Silver King vein has been cut. The width has not been determined, but drifting has been started on the foot wall where the ore body has been opened to a width of seven feet. The drift has been extended about 100 feet and the assays run from 3½ to 4 per cent copper and about 12 ounces of silver. Some assays run as high as 30 ounces, the silver value being variable.

French Gulch.

The French Gulch Mining company, of which Lieutenant Governor Allen is the head, has valuable placer property located twenty miles south of Anaconda. It was first discovered as a placer mining camp in 1865 and has been worked almost continuously ever since, yielding it is estimated close to $9,000,000 in gold up to the present time. All the claims in the vicinity have now been acquired by the company. They embrace an area of 412 acres of lode claim locations and over 392 acres of placer claims. About 192 acres of the placer ground have been mined, leaving 200 acres of virgin ground. The company has all the water it wants as its claims include 2,500 miners inches. The flow is continuous throughout the year and is sufficient to supply water and power for a large mining plant. On the lode mining claims there are 270 acres of timber, in addition to which there are 200,000 feet of commercial lumber, dressed and rough, ready for sale or use, while there are a sufficient amount of sawlogs on the ground for all lumber and mining timber that will be needed about the property for years to come. The geology for several miles in any direction is composed of granite, alternating with basalt, porphyry and quartzite dikes. The dikes are parallel and the veins occur as true fissures, between granite walls. The general course of strike is east and west with a dip 70 deg. to the south. The ore deposits do not seem to differ mineralogically or geologically from those of some of the Butte mines, which have proved highly productive. In the early days it is generally believed that a large amount of gold was carried away by Chinamen of whom there were many in the locality thirty-five to forty years ago. The French Gulch claims have not been very heavy producers in recent years, but the new company is engaged in extensive development work and the results so far are proving very satisfactory.

THESE MEN OF WEALTH FIND PLEASURE IN THE AIR

side of the basket and said calmly:

"That's about the spot where old John A. Wise was drowned on his last mysterious balloon trip."

Atherholt shuddered and curled up tighter.

"And there," continued Hersey, "is where a stage driver along the shore saw the body of Newton E. Grimwald, Wise's companion. There was a diary in his pocket and the last entry read: 'At last I have risen in the world.' Poor fellows! I wonder how it happened."

Atherholt, new to the game, gritted his teeth hard and hoped that the list of casualties was ended. But, a few moments later, Hersey remarked in a matter of fact tone:

"And it was somewhere near here that Donaldson met death."

This was too much for Atherholt. The memory of the two men whose ascensions had stirred his own boyish ambitions, and who had mysteriously died in the waters he was now crossing, drove all sleep from him and he finished the journey standing.

Since then, Atherholt has made seven other ascensions and he needs only to make one by himself to win a pilot's license.

The Perilous Trip of a Novice.

Atherholt's very first opportunity to make an ascension came in the fall of 1906. The owner of the balloon, Initial, had lent it for a day to a physician who claimed to be an aeronaut of many years' experience. The doctor agreed to take the novice up and assured him that with such an experienced pilot there would not be the slightest danger. Less than half an hour after they ascended from Philadelphia they came down with a bump in an orchard in a northern suburb.

Atherholt had studied the science of ballooning carefully all these years and he knew that they were in peril. So hard did the basket land in its descent that the doughty doctor was thrown to the floor, something struck him on the head and he was knocked senseless. The novice at once took charge of the balloon. Two bags of ballast were thrown overboard and the balloon shot up to a height of a thousand feet. For two hundred miles they flew over the earth, blowing up over New York state and back again until they were hovering over Rockaway, N. J.

Twice they dropped suddenly toward a lake, the second time bumping the car upon the surface of the water, and overboard went all the ballast, water casks, tarpaulins and everything that was throwable. Again, they ascended and caught a current of air, which carried them away from the danger of the lake and brought them down eight miles away, a distance which they traveled in less than ten minutes. The novice afterward learned that the redoubtable doctor had made just two previous ascensions, both in charge of some one else.

On Atherholt's next ascension the rip cord refused to work when he wanted to land. There was a forty-mile gale blowing and it dragged him and his companion 500 yards, leaving behind them a trail of clothing, aeronautical instruments and all sorts of detachable articles, and finally throwing the basket against the stump of a tree, with half of the balloon strung across a creek in front of them.

America's Most Widely Known Aeronaut.

When, in 1909, none of the pilots of the Aero Club of America was able to go to Switzerland to represent the United States, Cortlandt Field Bishop defrayed the expenses of Edward Mix, and J. C. McCoy of Newark, N. J., another wealthy aeronaut, loaned his full-sized balloon America II, and the result was that America again won.

Mr. Bishop is the most widely known of all American aeronauts, not because of his actual ballooning, but because, as president of the Aero Club of America and vice president of the International Aeronautique Federation, he devotes practically all of his time and money to promoting activity in ballooning and aviation.

When the first international aviation meet was held at Rheims, France, it was found that America could not send an entrant, the Wrights being too busy and Glenn Curtiss being unable to stand the great expense involved. Bishop, by his generosity, made it possible for Curtiss to compete, and the result was that the American flew away with all the honors.

Bishop was born in New York City forty years ago. He is a member of a great many clubs and is an automobilist as well as an aeronaut.

Colgate Hoyt, another aeronautic enthusiast, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, sixty-one years ago. He intended to follow his father as a lawyer, but an injury to his eye made this impossible, and he entered the real estate business in Cleveland, where he still has substantial holdings. In 1881 he moved to New York and entered Wall street and a year later President Arthur appointed him government director of the Union Pacific railroad. In 1884 he was regularly elected. Since then he has been prominently identified with the Northern Pacific, the Wisconsin Central, the Oregon and Trans-Continental and many big financial concerns outside of the railway world. As president of the Automobile Club of America he was largely responsible for building its magnificent club house and when the Aero Club of America was formed the financier was one of the first to support it and to be elected to ... in it.

Charles J. Glidden's wonderfully active life has been so often "written up" in connection with the Glidden tour that it is unnecessary to repeat it here. Glidden has become an enthusiastic balloonist and has made many ascensions in New England in his Boston. Most of these trips have been peaceful ones, but the bag has been pierced by rifle bullets fired at the aeronaut, and he once landed at night in a pasture, to be charged by a bull and to find that he was five miles from the nearest house, but his enthusiasm is not a whit dimmed by such trifling accidents.

The Middle West's Leading Aeronaut.

A. B. Lambert of St. Louis, head of the new movement to form a representative body of the aero clubs of this country, is largely responsible for the fact that St. Louis is today one of the aeronautic centers of the United States. Lambert is only in his 30's. He has won balloon pilots' licenses from the Aero Club of France as well as that of America; he founded and was for two years president of the Automobile Club of St. Louis, and won the Missouri state gold championship in 1908. In his absence abroad in the interests of ballooning he was elected a member of the St. Louis councils.

Prof. A. Lawrence Rotch, founder and director of the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory, has gone farther, perhaps, than any other scientist in the study of atmospheric conditions far above the earth both as recorded by kite and balloon. He is a member of the Aero Club of the United Kingdom, an original member of the Aero Club of America, was first president of the Aero Club of New England and is now president of the newly organized Harvard Aeronautical society.

The national elimination balloon races, to determine the three competitors who shall represent America in the International race this year, will take place in Indianapolis in September. The International races will follow the next month in St. Louis, and if you follow the accounts of both the elimination and the international races you will doubtless read of the adventures in the air of practically all of the men herein mentioned, who have done so much in so short a time to make this country noted the world over as a center of ballooning of the modern sort.

ELECTRIFYING THE RAILROADS.

For several years the tendency toward supplanting steam as a means of locomotion by electricity has been marked. In many places terminal engines are operated by electricity, and there are railroad yards where practically no steam is used at all.

Not many, however, have dared to forecast the complete substitution of electricity for steam in railroad operation. One man has ventured that far, and he is as well qualified to prophecy as any other.

George Westinghouse, the inventor and manufacturer of electrical appliances, has been letting some of his friends look into the paper he is to read shortly before the British Institute of Mechanical Engineers in London, and they have come out of their perusal of his views with an amazed realization that he predicts such a change, not only in this country but all over the world, and that within a comparatively short time.

Managers of steam railroads have been so positive in their declaration that a change to electricity is impractical under present conditions that the Westinghouse statement is little short of sensational.

Without any reservation whatever, Mr. Westinghouse says that the limitations of the steam locomotive have been reached, that the electrification of all the railroads of the United States and of the world will be brought about in a reasonable time, and that it is now the duty of the transportation agencies of the country to standardize their equipment to meet this condition.

He finds that in the last decade not less than $2,000,000,000 has been invested in various branches of the electrical business. This rate of growth will in twenty-five years make the capital in electrical enterprises greater than the present capitalization of the railroads of the entire country. He believes that it will be possible to find the money for this enormous development, and also to change the railroads to the new motive power.

To change in a day or a year would be disastrous, of course, because it would involve throwing out equipment worth millions while it is still efficient and valuable. Mr. Westinghouse predicts no such sweeping method of change, however. The change will come gradually without throwing good equipment into the junk heap. It is to avoid scrapping any of the new electrical equipment that he urges all of the railroads to agree at once upon a standard locomotive, car and current.

The inroads of the electric railroads upon the business of steam railroads should have paved the way to a realization that what Mr. Westinghouse says is at least measurably true. The trolley line, at first confined to the cities, has been spreading out gradually but rapidly, until in many sections it offers very real competition to the steam roads. In the opinion of many it is competition that can be met only by changing the steam roads to electrical roads.

Incidentally, the prediction will harmonize with the hopes of those who would like to see the copper industry in better condition, copper being a large factor in electrical development.

A MILLIONAIRE FARMER.

Viewed in the light of current quotations of farm products, it is not hard to understand the story of David Rankin, of Tarkio, Mo., who tells in Country Life in America how he has accumulated more than three million dollars by plain farming.

So long as the great majority of people prefer the hard struggle of the cities to the independence of the farm, prices will remain high enough to make farming profitable. That doesn't mean that a lazy man can win wealth on a farm; a lazy man can't win wealth anywhere. It doesn't mean, either, that any city man can jump out on a farm and get rich all at once; for farming takes hard work and intelligence and knowledge, just as any other enterprise does.

But given proper intelligence and industry, and the will to study proper methods and to put in elbow grease and brain work as well as seeds, what David Rankin has done another can do, so long as there is cheap land left.

Rankin's fortune came entirely out of farming. He has avoided speculation all his life. Reared in Indiana and Illinois, with little schooling, he began farming for himself when he was 21 years old. In those early days settlers avoided the prairie lands because of the scarcity of wood and water and the fear of winter cold. He decided to take a chance on freezing, and chose the prairie. He raised a crop of wheat before he got a deed for his land, and when he married, at 25, he owned eighty acres of land and a few head of cattle. Every dollar he could raise was invested in land or in young steers, and from 1852 to 1861 he paid from 15 to 18 per cent for borrowed money, which he invested in land. He did not begin to make a profit until 1865, when his holdings took an upward turn. Then he began buying land in Missouri and Southwestern Iowa at $5 to $10 an acre. His farms vary from 700 acres up to 8,000 acres.

Contrary to the prevailing notion, Rankin believes that farming on a large scale is as sound a financial policy as conducting commercial enterprises on a large scale. He holds that the farmer, like the manufacturer, the packer and the railroad man, must increase his profits by reducing cost of production through the use of labor saving devices. Years ago he invented a straddle-row cultivator which he estimates saves him $20,000 a year. He believes in "book farming," and takes advantage of all the developments and discoveries that are proved in the schools and on experiment farms. The value of his magnificent estate—he planted 19,000 acres in 1906—came entirely from such methods, and from wise purchase and improvement of land.

The average farmer, however, will probably do better to apply these methods to tracts small enough to be handled to the best advantage. Many a farmer who is poor on 160 acres could make himself rich on eighty or even forty acres by using up-to-date methods. There is more money in a small farm fully cultivated than in a large farm poorly cultivated. If, having established a paying system on a small tract, the farmer is able to apply the same system to a larger tract, upon Mr. Rankin's hypothesis he should make a correspondingly larger profit.

The safer method, on the whole, is undoubtedly to begin with a small tract, and to learn how to extract the utmost from its soil without impoverishing it. When that plan is mastered it is time enough to branch out on a larger scale.

LO, THE POOR CHINESE!

Most of us are familiar with, or at least have a hearsay knowledge of, the conditions so aptly expressed in verse as follows:

The poor, benighted Hindu!
He does the best he kin do;
For clothes he makes his skin do.

But we cannot get over the nerve-racking shock conveyed by a recent report of the American consul at Shanghai, that suspenders and garters "do not interest" the native Chinaman. Here is a state of things indeed. Here is a condition that might make the mikado himself exclaim, in the words of one of his most famous subjects, "Here's a howdy-do!"

Imagine a race so benighted as to have no interest whatever in suspenders and garters! Just as an example, try to form a mental picture of what our own most mighty nation would look like if we, like the native Oriental, refused to be interested in those articles. What would become of our great social gatherings? What would become of so many of our public institutions where the young and the old mingle for mutual instruction and enlightenment? They would die out even as the potato bug crop when it is liberally sprinkled with paris green or similar existence-blighting solutions.

Then too, think of the awful inroads such a lack of interest would make on the business of the peddlers. There would be no more transients dropping into the office with wonderful specimens of the trouser-supporting apparatus that you can buy for only fifty cents. And the wanderers who travel the highways and byways of the civilized world would be bereft of one of their staple articles of commerce. Dealers in men's furnishings would find a sudden, unfillable vacancy in their showcases and front windows, a vacancy that will take nothing but long boxes of abnormal proportions, boxes that you see nowhere else, for when you invest in a pair of the things in the hope of getting the box, the dealer heartlessly removes the suspenders, wraps them in tissue paper and sends you on your way disappointed.

And the garter! Now how on earth can anybody help being interested in that? With such a callousness, what on earth can the reckless youths of the Flowery Kingdom find to mention in casual conversation when they want to see the maidenly flush mantle the cheek (isn't that the proper term?) of the opposite member of the fair sex? Such a historic article, too. Think how we would have lost if there had been no interest in garters in the time of Edward III. The world would have gone gloomily on without the famous "Honi soit qui mal y pense," and one more English monarch would have gone unremembered to a royal tomb.

There is but one excuse for the Chinese for this deadly indifference on their part, and that is, that in the absence of these two articles they find themselves supplied with other matters to attract their interest. Indeed, it must be that such is the case. Perhaps, if we were to be robbed in some sudden and unexpected moment of our own quota of them, if all such articles were to fade into nothingness and vanish without warning—perhaps, we say, if such a thing could and should occur, we too would find other matters to be interested in. Who can tell?

A POLITICAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

New Zealand and other Australasian commonwealths for a long time served as the world's political experiment stations, and there is much that the world can learn from them about conducting government for the benefit of the people. However, in Oklahoma and Oregon, particularly the latter, this country has some experiment stations of its own that are very useful.

Oregon has adopted a scheme of electing United States senators that is the best substitute for direct election yet devised. It has worked out already in putting in the senate a Democrat whom the people wanted, even though he had to be elected by a Republican legislature.

Oregon has adopted the initiative and referendum, which simply means that Oregon has become convinced that the people are capable of making laws for themselves, and that it is no longer necessary to delegate that office to lawmakers who are often stupid, faithless or corrupt.

And now Oregon is making a new experiment with the "short ballot" plan, which has more interest than any previous development.

The people of Oregon are going to apply to their state government some of the principles of the commission plan which is working so well in the government of many American cities. They are no longer going to attempt to elect a long list of state officials when they cannot possibly know whether they are fit except in a few cases. They are going to elect three state officers, and let these appoint the rest and be responsible for them and their acts.

The governor, the state auditor and the legislators are going to be elected by the people, but that is all. The governor will appoint all other officers who are now elective, and he will be made responsible for them. Some of them will form his "cabinet", and the governor and his cabinet will have seats in the lower branch of the legislature. This cabinet will consist of three government advisers; and every three months each householder in Oregon will receive a copy of the official gazette reporting every act of government.

Minnesota elects its governor, lieutenant-governor, auditor, treasurer, supreme court justices, secretary of state, clerk of the supreme court, attorney general and members of the railroad and warehouse commission. There is just as much reason why it should elect its board of control, tax commission, speaker of the house, road commission, drainage commission and immigration commission as there is for electing most of these elective officers. There is just as much reason why most of them should be appointed as there is for appointing some of them. There is just as much reason for having the state officers below the governor appointed by him instead of being elected as there is for appointing the members of the president's cabinet instead of electing them.

In the average state campaign the fight is over the governorship, and few even know who is running for the other places. These places are filled by the politicians. Some time Minnesota is going to elect only a few officers, and let these appoint the rest and be responsible for them. Some time, too, Minnesota is going to have the "recall," by which its people can discharge an unfaithful state officer and put another in his place, and the initiative and referendum, under which they can initiate and pass upon all important legislation if they please.

REDUCING THE COST OF LIVING.

The Literary Magazine makes some entertaining suggestions about reducing the cost of living. Though the vein is satirical, there is an underlying measure of sound truth in the following bits of advice:

"First, keep a garden. A man with his back yard full of turnips can tell the butcher to go to thunder any time.

"Second, walk instead of using a street car. This saves carfare and besides it makes you so hungry that you will enjoy the turnips.

"Third, wear your last year's clothes. This will be saving in two ways. You will be saving the price of the new ones, and because of the holes in the old ones you will stay at home from the theater, thus making a large saving.

"Fourth, get up early and work in the garden. This will compel you to go to bed early at night and will reduce your light bill.

"Fifth, get a hay cooker. It will cut down your gas bills and will enable you to eat old hens at 11 cents a pound instead of young chickens at 25 cents.

"Sixth, smoke stogies instead of cigars. You will soon find that one stogie, costing 1 2-3 cents, will do you for a month. This means a saving of $500 a year.

"Seventh, adopt the fresh air fad and leave your windows open. After a little practice you will be able to exist in only tolerable discomfort at a temperature of 50 degrees. You have no idea how much coal this will save.

"Eighth, make your own breakfast food. Buy the handsomest colored paper box you can find and keep it full of oatmeal. This will save you half the price of your breakfast foods.

"Ninth, discover that coffee and tea are highly injurious. People who discover this fact save enough in ten years in narcotics and cream to go to Europe.

"Tenth, when your vacation comes put it in exploring the city and the county in which you live. You will get better food at home for less money, and the railroad fares you save will almost make up the loss caused by the rise in eggs and butter."

Cut the airy persiflage out of this and there is a residue of common sense.

The average man is limited in his earnings—distressingly limited, in most cases. To provide a store for the rainy day or old age he must turn to saving, and take it out of his present earnings by economy. There are few who cannot save something by making an earnest study of their situation.

The country needs economy, too. Too much money goes into needless luxuries in all classes instead of going into producing capital. For instance, the automobile industry is making serious inroads upon productive capital for the support of an industry wholly devoted to luxury. There are too few producers, too many consumers. Too many consumers are consuming more than their share, and consuming too much in luxuries.

Economy is in order, therefore; but we trust it will not be confined to breakfast foods and light bills. It would help more to see some of it devoted to reducing the bill for automobiles and steam yachts and champagne and lobsters.

Down in Baltimore they are talking of putting on women policemen to stop street flirting. But might not the result be to increase it?

Uncle Sam, through the Indian bureau, has decided that some of the Indians will have to hustle for their grub hereafter instead of getting free rations from the federal government. It would help some if a few of the supernumeraries in the government service could be made to join the Indians.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHY BAR THE CIRCUS?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have noticed in the daily papers that the merchants of this town are kicking against Saturday circuses. I didn't see any interviews on the subject, but I assume that the articles were inspired.

Most of these retail business men have extremely narrow outlooks on life. They are distinguished by their prejudice and logic. Reason springs and ends in their own Ego. The attitude of the retail men of this town on the circus question is the attitude adopted by Four Corners twenty years ago, but which most towns have outgrown.

Suppose every business man on Superior street has receipts cut down by a circus. Is that any reason why a circus should not come here? Because a retailer wants my half dollar in return for a pair of socks that may have cost him as much as 20 cents, am I obligated to pay him that half dollar if I prefer to spend that piece of money at a circus? Big business regards the pocketbooks of the people as public institutions for the private good of big business. When a bunch of little retail merchants have the effrontery to tell this town that it cannot see a circus on Saturday or any other time it desires, these retailers not only accentuate their provincialism, but they become fit objects for ridicule.

There are so many funny features to this situation that to tell of them would take more space than you would give me. The inspired, impersonal news stories on the disadvantages of circuses on Saturday do not fool or convince anybody. C. O. THAYER.

WALK ACROSS COURTHOUSE LOT.

To the Editor of The Herad:

My former communication to The Herald on the subject of a walk across the courthouse lot at Fourth avenue west and First street, so as to give a passage for people going between the federal building and Second street, passed by unheeded by the county commissioners.

I feel very strongly on the subject and I believe it should be placed before the board at the meeting Aug. 6. The board objects to people crossing on the sueded portion of the lot, yet walks are provided for the accommodation of the people who are visiting the courthouse and none for people going in the other direction. I thought the lot was to be arranged for a public beauty spot and for the convenience of the public, not alone for those working in or having business at the courthouse.

A little consideration for the public at large on the part of the county board would be deeply appreciated, at least by me. E. A.

God Save the Flag.

Washed in the blood of the brave and the blooming,
Snatched from the altars of insolent foes,
Burning with star-fires, but never consuming,
Flash its broad ribbons of lily and rose.

Vainly the prophets of Baal would rend it,
Vainly his worshippers pray for its fall;
Thousands have died for it, millions defend it,
Emblem of justice and mercy to all.

Justice that reddens the sky with her terrors,
Mercy that comes with her white-handed train,
Soothing all passions, redeeming all errors,
Sheathing the saber and breaking the chain.

Borne on the deluge of old usurpations,
Drifted our ark o'er the desolate seas,
Bearing the rainbow of hope to the nations,
Torn from the storm-cloud and flung to the breeze!

God bless the flag and its loyal defenders,
While its broad folds o'er the battlefield wave,
Till the dim star-wreath rekindle its splendors,
Washed from its stains in the blood of the brave!

Advice to Parents.

Samuel Butler in "The Way of All Flesh." "To parents who wish to lead a quiet life I would say: Tell your children that they are very naughty—much naughtier than most children. Point to the young people of some acquaintances as models of perfection and impress your own children with a deep sense of their own inferiority. You carry so many more guns than they do that they cannot fight you. This is called moral influence, and it will enable you to bounce them as much as you please. They think you know and they will not yet have caught you lying often enough to suspect that you are not the unworldly and scrupulously truthful person which you represent yourself to be; nor yet will they know how great a coward you are, nor how soon you will run away. If they fight you with persistency and judgment. You keep the dice and you know them both for your children and yourself. Load them then, for you can easily stop your children from examining them. Tell them how singularly indulgent you are; insist on the incalculable benefit you conferred upon them, firstly in bringing them into the world at all, but more particularly in bringing them into it as your own children rather than anyone else's. Say that you have their highest interests at stake whenever you are out of temper and wish to make yourself unpleasant by way of balm to your soul. Harp much upon these highest interests. Feed them spiritually upon such brimstone and treacle as the late bishop of Winchester's Sunday stories. You hold all the trump cards, or if you do not you can filch them; if you play them with anything like judgment you will find yourselves heads of happy, united, God-fearing families. True, your children will probably find out all about it some day, but not until too late to be of much service to them or inconvenience to yourself.

Among the Jolly Hardups.

New York Letter to the Cincinnati Times Star: Shep Freidman has a bunch of stories to tell of actors who are now living beyond their means—their means being non-existent, and the necessity for continuing to live being enforced upon them all. There is Eddie Meyerson, who declares that any man ought to be able to live within his means if he can borrow enough money, and Dave Altman, who dolefully declared the other day that he was deep in the hole. "I owe everybody," he said.

"Why don't you go into bankruptcy?" asked Joe Edmondson. "It only costs $50."

"Oi, yoi," said Altman. "If I had fifty dollars I would pay all I owe and have money left."

And Friedman's best relates to Tim McMahon, actor, who sought to borrow money the other day. He exhibited a bunch of pawn tickets. "Why don't you sell the tickets, asked a practical friend.

"How can I?" asked McMahon. "There are just fifty-two of them, and I need them to play solitaire with.

It was McMahon who was discovered looking for Harry Montgomery the other day. "I got to find him," said McMahon, earnestly. "I'm broke, and he owes me seven dollars."

Those present expressed wild incredulity. "For what does he owe you seven dollars?"

"Well," said McMahon, "he has been loaning me a dollar a day—and I haven't seen him for a week."

THE MINNESOTA ALDRICH.

Party Interest Not Consulted.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The Beacon thinks no more of E. E. Smith of Hennepin as a man, nor of appointing a professional politician to the head of the state central committee, because he was the personal choice of Governor Eberhart, and because he insisted upon his appointment against state wide protest.

Nothing more than this appointment is needed to show to what unjustifiable lengths the custom can go of permitting the head of the ticket to dictate the committee. There is responsibility in the committee beyond the head of the ticket; the party at large has an interest in it; and this interest is not consulted in the make-up of the committee; and this is true notwithstanding the fact that the committee with very few exceptions is most excellent. In several of the members the party has been specially fortunate, as they are men who give character to any movement with which they are identified.

Asks for Real Opinion.

Little Falls Herald: We trust that the Foley Independent, Royalton Banner and Sauk Center Herald, edited by up-to-date progressive thinkers, will give their real opinion on the selection of Ed. Smith as chairman by their candidate for governor. Sam Gordon said it was a bad and wrong thing to do. How about it?

What the Independent Says.

Foley Independent: The new state central committee is a strong one and the ticket will be safe in its hands. E. E. Smith for chairman is a very good choice, and while he is a thorough organizer, he will not spend all his time looking after small unimportant details at the expense of the greater ones—something that has proven disastrous in the last three campaigns. In selecting J. A. O. Preus for secretary no mistake was made. Mr. Preus is a comer in Minnesota politics and if we mistake not he will, before many years, be naming his own central committee. He is free from all political taint and plays the game for the love of the thing—not to flesh his, or someone else's, jack-pot. Keep your eye on Preus. He's a future governor.

Are Balky in Earnest.

Grand Rapids Independent: E. E. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee, is not having overly smooth sailing. 'Tis said that all but two of the Republican state ticket candidates are against Smith, and are pulling back on the leading straps, and that they are balky in earnest. The "machine," it is reported, is just as determined to hold the fort, and the fireworks are already going up fast and furious.

"Forces Back of Him."

Buffalo Journal: If it was "the forces back of him that did the work" in the appointment of Ed. Smith chairman of the state central committee, will not those same forces do the work when other things are desired of the governor in his official capacity? The Republican party still offers the best government to the people, but many will have to swallow a couple of times before joining the hurrah.

Democratic Papers Helpful.

St. Cloud Times: The Democrats, in looking around for their thunder for this fall, have opened their batteries against Mr. Smith, chairman of the state Republican committee.—Perham Journal.

Beg pardon, it is the Republicans who are protesting, including the nominee for lieutenant governor, and nearly all the other candidates. The Democratic papers have merely printed the protests—they are strong enough.

His Irretrievable Error.

Braham Journal: The storm of protest from all sections of the state make it clear that Governor Eberhart committed an irretrievable error when he placed Ed. Smith at the head of the state central committee. Harmony is needed in the Republican ranks of the state and it cannot be procured by the expenditure of "dough," even though Smith may be able to procure a barrel full.

Phew!

Little Falls Herald: One of the Republican candidates says that their new state central committee is the strongest ever. Yes, it does smell rank.

A Very Timely Question.

Sauk Center Herald: "Ed" Smith has been appointed chairman of the Republican state central committee. Smith's a shrewd politician and can handle a campaign, but it's a question whether he will inspire the confidence of the people. It looks to the Herald as though some other appointment would have been better in that respect

Charity and Social Justice.

Jane Addams contributes to the July number of The North American Review a carefully analyzed article on "Charity and Social Justice." It is an earnest plea for the economic value of prevention to eradicate deleterious social conditions rather than to alleviate them and the relation of industrialism to these conditions. She says: "Have the body of charitable men and women done what they ought to eradicate dark tenements, unclean milk, disease-breeding food, and many another evil to which the attention of the sanitary engineer needs be perpetually directed if the health of the poor is to be preserved and their children kept alive? What might they not do if they properly bestirred themselves at this moment of human conservation and city planning? They could overwhelm every city government in the land with verified knowledge which exactly fits in with the trend of the times, and they could also make new demands upon every institution which is now under state supervision and administration to supply the requisite data to the state legislatures. . . . What have the charitable people contributed to the movement for state control over industrial diseases or the protection of machinery? What have they done to secure old-age pensions, industrial insurance, employer's liability act, the regulation of the hours of labor, the control of the sweated trades, the prohibition of the sale of intoxicants? Perhaps the charity of the past may have claimed a share only in the last two, but certainly contemporaneous charity is taking a leading part in the establishment of the various safeguards against premature disablement and dependence of the worker. It is perhaps significant that the most drastic survey of industrial conditions ever made in America was inaugurated and carried out by the editors of a paper called 'Charities.' From the human as well as from the economic standpoint there is certainly an obligation resting upon the charitable to discover how much of their material comes to them as the result of social neglect, remedial incapacity, and the lack of industrial safeguards."

It's absurd how society looks down on people in jail, considering those who are in politics.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

In Behalf of the Overlooked.

Persons in the thick of life's activities, prosperous and happy, who seldom venture out of a certain beaten track, who have already formed their circle of friends, are in danger of forgetting that large but silent class in the community, who may be classified under the caption of "The Overlooked." They do not come readily to mind when you are making out your list of dinner guests or your slate for the coming election, or when cataloguing the "prominent and influential" citizens.

But they are with us nevertheless, and though they seldom speak loudly in behalf of themselves, they constitute a very appreciable element of the population. Their heads may be white and their figures no longer erect. Perhaps they are in those institutions known as "Aged People's Homes," thinking longingly of the days when they had homes of their own, but trying to endure patiently their loss of independence and enforced reliance upon the bounty of others. And some of these dear old people are in our own homes, but not always the objects of that deference and consideration which we should like were we in their places. It is hard enough at best to grow very old and feeble, but still harder when to increasing physical infirmities is added the pain which arises from being neglected or simply tolerated.

Others of the overlooked are in hospitals and sick rooms. "What!" we busy people say, "Jones just up from an operation? Why, I hadn't realized that he was sick. But to him the sickening smell of ether, the sharp, continuing pain, the almost unendurable weakness, have been terrible realities for the last three weeks. Maybe it isn't our fault that we have not missed him from the office, the club, the church. But then again, maybe it is. At any rate, if you have ever yourself been prostrated by illness you know what that little bunch of flowers meant to you and that little note. The invalids and the shut-ins are always with us and whensoever we will we may do them good, provided we have not forgotten their existence; and provided we do not postpone too long the carrying out of our benevolent intentions.

But sick people and aged people do not exhaust the number of "The Overlooked." I am thinking also of the multitude of persons who have seen better days and who, because of their reverses, have ceased to frequent the places where they were once welcome and influential, and of the men at the end of the procession who never amounted to much, and of the colorless, mediocre, growing boys and girls who gravitate not to the center of the ballroom, but to its circumference, where they fulfill more or less indifferently well the function of wall flowers. A college mate of mine—God bless him for his chivalry!—a brilliant fellow, too, always used to seek out at the parties and other social gatherings that type of girl and did his best to make it pleasant for her.

Yes, the overlooked are sufficiently in evidence, provided we turn our gaze where they are. Make a list of the persons in your street or in your vicinity who might properly be thus classified. Some of them, it is true, may be unduly proud and sensitive, some very unlovely, some altogether to blame for being set one side. But there are human gems among them, and to become acquainted with them may prove an inspiration. At all events, if we select one or two as the objects of loving and persistent ministry, we shall make ourselves more worthy to be called disciples of Him whose main search on earth was for the overlooked. THE PARSON.

Too Wonderful Whisky.

London Daily News: Mr. Lloyd-George has informed the house of commons that the only distillery set up in Wales has been closed, which from the poetical point of view only is a matter for regret. Some years ago, writes a correspondent, I visited this establishment and found there quite a big brewing of the "crature," or the Welsh equivalent for the same. But what amused me was a document I came across some time afterwards in which Welsh whisky was lauded to the skies in the following terms:

"Welsh whisky is the most wonderful whisky that ever painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of peat and barley washed white with the waters of the Treweryn. In it you will find the sunshine and shadow that chased each other over the billowy fields, the breath of June, the carol of the lark, the dew of night, the wealth of summer and autumn's rich content, all golden with imprisoned light."

Is not an experiment, as is proved by the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college or higher institutions of learning. Their record also proves that intensive study does still yield a positive pleasure.

Our specially trained teachers working with small classes are unusually successful in keeping in touch with their students, who are thus kept in that hopeful attitude so essential to successful efforts. Not mental fulness but mental discipline is our aim.

We have satisfied others; we can satisfy you.

A sharp squall struck the lake this afternoon and seven small sailboats, cruising close together about a mile from the canal pier, got its full force. The Roamer, Laura and Albatross were instantly capsized, the first two named going down like lumps of lead. C. F. Lindner, H. W. Clark and C. H. Pursell were on the Roamer. Lindner and Clark perished, while Pursell was picked up insensible, but was resuscitated. The Albatross, owned by H. S. Patterson, was sailed by Rev. Mr. Lathrop and three others were on board. Wallace Warner was sailing the Laura, and with him was Harry C. Crawford, Fred Kugler and Will and Edward Edson. The occupants of all the capsized boats, except Lindner and Clark, were rescued by other sailboats and the tug Goodman.

A CHAPTER ON PATRIOTISM

By SAVOYARD.

When I walked abroad on the morning of July 4 a man, a foreign-born citizen, a Hessian, who was forced to vote the Know Nothing ticket fifty-seven times in one day in that town by the "Plug Uglies" of Baltimore, nearly sixty years ago, accosted me and demanded to know why I did not display the Stars and Stripes, and he challenged my patriotism. He had a little old flag out at his window that cost about 5 cents the dozen. What I answered would not read very well in print in a religious newspaper, though I claim to be as indifferent patriotic as Hamlet was indifferent honest.

Now I hold, and will maintain against all comers, that no man can be a "patriot" except for the land of his birth, where he first saw the light, where he first drew from the breast of his mother the milk that sustained his infant vitality. Hamilton, the foreigner was an adventurer. Had his lines been cast in England, he would have been a partisan of George III, and perhaps the one man of all political letters who would have been able to drive "Junius" out of the pamphlet controversy.

Perhaps I will return to that phase of the subject before I quit, though I am now indignant, and there is no telling what I am going to say. The man who boasts his patriotism is he that was the Pharisee, that Christ rebuked. He prayed long and loud on the street corners. He was sanctimonious. He reeked in his iniquity and in his sin. He was an ingrowing scoundrel from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot. He wore the badge; he would have exposed to the breeze the flag. If a female he would have daunted chastity; if a merchant he would have proclaimed honesty; if a soldier, he would have vaunted courage. Everywhere and everything he would have been a fraud.

Patriotism is a sentiment, child of the heart and not of the mind. It is never clothed in the harlot garb of the brazen and brilliant tulip, but wears the modest and fragrant decoration of the retiring violet. It is the charity of St. Paul:

"It suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

"Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh not evil.

"Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth.

"Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

And that, too, is patriotism. The two words are twin. They mean the same thing and are the same thing.

Altred the Great was a patriot. So was William the Silent. John Hampden was a patriot; so was George Washington. Jefferson Davis was a patriot; so was Abraham Lincoln. Robert E. Lee was a patriot; so was Ulysses S. Grant.

Patriotism is a matter of birth, and in our country we never had but a single traitor, and his name was Benedict Arnold. He was as brave as Caesar, and after our war for independence was successful, he fought a duel with Crawford of the Scotch peerage, who, doubtless, was a direct lineal descendant of that Crawford who commanded the Scotch Guards of the household troops of Louis XI. When they came on the field of honor Arnold fired and missed. Then Crawford threw down his pistol and, with scorn in his eye and vitriol on his tongue, said, "I leave you to the hangman."

That same Crawford paid a big forged check with the remark, "My name shall not go to protest." There is patriotism for you, which is honor.

I read of a military commander in one of the states of the Middle West He was a fool and a scamp and it would have taken a platoon to get him into a place of danger. But, O, how he did reek with the dross of patriotism. The still slop, so to speak, that we used to feed the hogs in old Kentucky when I was a boy.

Well, this fellow marched his company of cornstalk militia out on the grounds at drill on July 4. He ordered that every man there present of the thousands of spectators should salute the flag. There were some reprobate patriots who told him to go to hell. They believed in the flag, all right, but they scorned it when a Sir Andrew Aguecheek like he ordered them to take off their hats and they were right. If that flag means what I interpret it, it is this: I can keep my hat on in its presence. Why, even in Spain, in that elder day when "divine right" maintained in every country in Christendom, the Spanish grandee stood covered in the presence of his king, the master at whose order he would have marched to the cannon's mouth.

If I am supposed to show the flag and flaunt it, or to bow to it when somebody else flaunts it, what is it but a knee to Gessler's cap? The only difference is that one is a cap and the other is a rag.

In this connection I may say that Ben Butler, a man — if I may quote John Young Brown—"who was ostracized from good society in his own home, who might be characterized by all that is pusillanimous and inhuman in peace, forbidden in morals and corrupt in politics" — Ben Butler was the chief owner of that concern in Massachusetts that furnishes the United States with its flags. He was the author of the law that flies the flag from the tens of thousands of public buildings in the United States. That was not patriotism; it was thrift. There's millions in it.

The flag should be sacred, representative of patriotic sentiment, immaculate, lustrous and exact — equality only. Make it that, and I'll salute it; I'll kneel to it.

And Johnson licked Jeffries. I'm glad of it. In the realm of brutality I want a negro for king, and I hope that Johnson will "knock the block off" any other white man who lowers himself to enter upon combat with him. Practically it was a fake fight for Jeff knew he was all in; but he got tens of thousands of dollars out of it, and if it were possible to associate Alfred Tennyson with a ruffian I might quote:

"And the jingling of the guinea helps the hurt that honor feels."

I am glad that the nigger won on another account. It shows that the race prejudice is just as intense at the North as it is at the South and the increasing exodus of negroes from the South to the North will soon make the question acute and then it will be settled.

The way to compose it is to enter into treaty with Great Britain under the terms of which that empire shall take over Liberia and hold it a crown colony. Then hire all the educated negroes we have, from Booker Washington down, to emigrate to Liberia and become British subjects, and there work out their salvation, elevate themselves to the skies, God willing.

Failing that, death will settle the thing. Inferiority cannot stand with superiority. There are now as many negroes in this country in 1910 as there were in 1900. The negro will go to Liberia, or go as went the unslavable Indian.

CHARITY TRANSPORTATION

Use of Telegraph Code to Stop Imposters—How Trunk Line Association Grants Charity Rates—Kinds of Cases Helped By Transportation.

By W. F. PERSONS,
Superintendent Charity Organization Society, New York City.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

To check the custom of "beating their way," so much practiced by vagrants, the Trunk Line association has this year taken a most important step. Reduced rate charity passage on almost all the important lines east of Chicago is now granted only to beneficiaries of charitable agencies which observe a carefully prepared code of rules that have been devised to govern the transportation of destitute persons.

These rules represent the practical agreement of many experienced charity workers in all parts of the country. They were adopted by the National Conference of Charities and Corrections some seven years ago, to prevent the useless squandering of public and private funds and to stop the encouragement of vagrancy by giving transportation to those who have no surety of employment or other benefit from the change.

The adoption of these provisions by an ever increasing number of public and private agencies (at present nearly 350 observe them) has greatly diminished the abuse of charity transportation and the action of the Trunk Line association will undoubtedly cause a much more general compliance.

In the old days applicants were continually asking for railroad tickets. A man stranded, let us say, in New England was apt according to his story to have a promise of work in Cincinnati, St. Louis or Baltimore, if he could only get there. Commonly the municipal authorities or the charitable agency would feel that they could not afford to send him all the way. Yet unless they got "rid of him as soon as possible" they were burdened with his support So a ticket to the next town was bought and the case passed along. It was an easy way of shifting responsibility. The next town did the same, so that there was about an even exchange.

If the applicant really had a chance at his destination, he often became a confirmed vagrant before he was able to win his way there by slow steps from town to town. In the case of impostures the practice merely encouraged the imposition and complicated the tramp problem. Where a conscientious investigation was made and only deserving cases helped with transportation, the community or charitable society became a dumping ground for the cast-off problems of its less scrupulous neighbors.

At present in the more progressive cities a very different plan is followed. The first precaution taken is to be sure that the applicant is really unable to pay the regular fare. This is but common prudence. Further it is useless to send any one to a far-off city unless his condition and prospects will be substantially improved. Generally speaking, a man in good health, if no one is dependent upon him, is not given transportation. The joint application bureau in this city has at present standing requests for men to work on various engineering and contracting jobs. We are unable to fill the positions. So an able-bodied single man is offered a chance to earn money or to walk to his destination. If he is unwilling to work here, there is no guarantee that he will do better somewhere else.

In many cases, a mechanic comes to our office complaining that in his trade here everything is slack. Men are not being hired. But he has heard from a friend that work is plenty in a certain place, perhaps Buffalo, and he is sure he could get a job there. "Have you a position promised " "No, but I could get a job all right." "Have you any letters of introduction that would help you to get work there?" "No, but I heard from a friend that they want lots of men in my line." "Does he work at your trade? Would he be able to give you any definite help?" "He's a plumber but he knows they need bricklayers." In a case of this nature it would be foolish to spend money to send him 400 miles to an uncertain possibility of work. We can use the money for cases where it will be of positive and certain help instead of probably burdening another community.

But suppose that a workman who left home to get employment in this city fails and becomes stranded. To unite him and his family often relieves two communities of the burden of supporting indigents, for his family has very probably become dependent owing to the man's failure in the strange city. The society to which the man applies verifies his story by telegraphing to his former home, for which a code is used. Arrangements are also made by telegraph for tiding over the man and his family at his old home until he begins to be self-supporting.

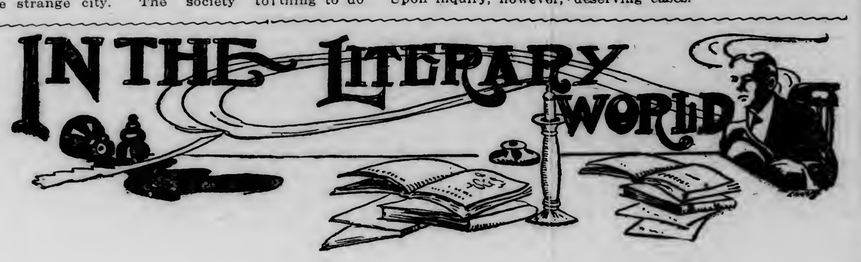

Other problems for which transportation is an obvious solution are where young boys and men or young girls lured by the attractions of a great city have left their homes. All that is usually necessary to save them from continued destitution and bad influences is to send them back. Before this is done care must be taken to be sure that they will not become dependents in the town to which it is proposed to send them. The family may be unable to support the boy or he may have a reputation at home that would go far to prevent his getting work.

It is not sufficient to know merely that the facts given by the applicant are correctly stated. His judgment of the best course to pursue is not conclusive. For instane, a young man stranded in a large city asks to be sent home to his mother On its face it would seem to be the very best thing to do Upon inquiry, however, it may develop that he has left home several times. After wandering till he was tired, he has always applied to be sent home and this may have been done several times. In such a case, employment has been found for the boy and he has been induced to save his fare home and so realize that he had no right to force others to give him free transportation home whenever he wishes

The adoption of the co-operative policy in handling charity transportation has resulted in considerable economies The old method of buying freely tickets to the next town, bred vagrants. One city expended $1,500 a year in this way. After deciding to buy tickets to the final point of destination or not at all, the expenditure was only $800.

Now that the Trunk Line association requires compliance with the charity transportation rules instead of merely recommending their use, the saving both for the railroads and for charitable agencies should be even greater. An incidental advantage is that the funds available for charity transportation can be used for the more adequate treatment of really deserving cases.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD

ONCE ABOARD THE LUGGER—. By A. S. M. Hutchinson. New York: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.50.

This romance is like a draft of cool water to a thirsty throat or a breath of fresh air to a suffocating pair of lungs. It is a quaint title, a quaint tale, written in a quaint style, with quaint people. It is full of unusually piquant humor. It is the work of a poet, a philosopher, a whimsical humorist. From the moment when the heroine is precipitated out of a hansom cab into the arms of the hero at their first meeting to the final "once aboard the lugger and the girl is mine," it is full of surprises. it is unprofitable, as a rule, to compare modern writers with ancient classics, but it can do no harm to say that this book is a sort of composite of Dickens, Smollet, Carlyle and especially Hutchinson. It is a story of George and his Mary, of Mary and her George; of Mr. Marrapit and his cats; of Mrs. Major and her gin; of Mary's comedy employes—comedy, but tragically cruel; of Margaret and her Bill; of sentiment and humor and fancy and philosophy. Marrapit, George's uncle, had inherited $15,000 from George's mother to be used in making a doctor out of him. He made a doctor out of George, but kept the change. George wanted $1,500 to buy a practice so he could marry Mary. Strategy had to be used. How he won his point by kidnapping the Rose of Sharon; how the Rose was a veritable white elephant on his hands, causing no end of comical mishaps and near tragedies; how Abishag the Shunamite, twin of the Rose, finally solved the whole problem and helped George and his Mary aboard the lugger, make up the story. It's worth reading.

THE VARMINT. By Owen Johnson, author of "The Humming Bird" and other stories of Lawrenceville. New York: Baker & Taylor company. $1.50.

Remember your first smoke, and the sad result of your attempt prematurely to get the part of maturity?

"Stover was just about to make an angry reply when he looked at McCarthy, who suddenly leaned back against the tree. At the same moment a feeling of insecurity overtook him. He started again to make an angry answer, and then all pugnacious thoughts left him. He sat down suddenly, his head swam on his shoulders, and about him the woods danced in drunken reelings, a sweeping grotesque boughs over him. Only the earth felt good, the damp, muddy earth, which he all at once convulsively embraced.

"'Dink!'

"The sound was far off, weak and fraught with mortal distress.

"'Has it hit you, too?'

"'Dink's answer was a groan. He opened one eye; McCarthy, prone at his side, lay on his stomach, burying his head in his arms.

"'At this moment a light patter sounded about them.

"'It's beginning to rain.'

"'I don't care!'

"'Neither do I.'"

You will revel in this splendid story of boyhood, no matter whether your school days are a day, a year, a decade or a generation behind you. It is "the eternal boy," this tale of "Dink" Stover, his feud with the Roman, his fights, his football failures and triumphs, his friendships, his mischiefs, his callowness, his manliness, his puppy loves," his pure American boyishness. We have revered "Tom Brown" for years, and shall revere it for years more; but for Americans who remember their boyhood, "The Varmint" offers freshness and sparkling reality that will provide a keener pleasure still. It is a thoroughly delightful book, and it will be relished keenly by every man who retains a kindly rememberance of his red-blooded boyhood.

FROM THE JUNGLE THROUGH EUROPE WITH ROOSEVELT. By John Callan O'Laughlin. Boston: Chapple Publishing company. 25 cents.

John Callan O'Laughlin, the brilliant Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, was dictating a political story to his home paper in Washington one evening last February when he was ordered by wire to start immediately for Africa, to find Roosevelt and to go through Europe with him. He went, and of course had exceedingly interesting experiences, which he tells about in this book in a vivid and highly entertaining manner. It begins with the story of how a rival correspondent, after agreeing to remain at Khartoum to meet Roosevelt, tried to put one over on O'Laughlin by slipping up the Nile to meet the ex-president on the way down. O'Laughlin, with two other correspondents, chartered a boat and dashed up the stream at the prodigious rate of six miles an hour, often going aground, breaking numerous paddle wheels, and finally meeting Roosevelt's boat at the same time as his rival. The whole story is well told, and it will interest. There are a number of good photographs.

MY PERSONAL EXPERIENCE WITH TUBERCULOSIS. By Will M. Ross. Stevens Point, Wis. Published by the author. 50 cents.

This is the story of a victim of the white plague, who went to the Southwest for relief, got worse there, and then came back home and was cured. It should be helpful and suggestive to all sufferers from this dread disease. It is an exposition of the modern sanatorium treatment, adapted for home uses, and it abounds with good sense and wholesome, practical advice.

ROOSEVELT AMONG THE PEOPLE. By Addison C. Thomas. Chicago: L. W. Walter company.

Scarcely less wonderful than Roosevelt himself is the warmth of his receptions by the people of all countries and classes, as was exemplified lately by his European tour. In the summer of 1903, when he was president, he made a tour of 14,000 miles from ocean to ocean, being received everywhere, as Mr. Thomas says, "by the acclaim of the multitude, regardless of party affiliation." The story of this trip has been retold by Mr. Thomas in an accurate, striking and dramatic manner. So well is it done, indeed, that the book has the personal indorsement of the ex-president, and it contains his autographed letter of thanks. The volume was first put out in an edition de luxe of nine copies, the first of which went to Col. Roosevelt himself. Now it is issued in the usual way. Besides the sympathetic and entertaining account of a truly remarkable tour of triumph, it contains the most notable of the president's speeches on the trip, and an unusually large number of excellent photographs.

ELIZABETH DAVENY. By Claire de Pratz. New work: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.50.

This is the story of the women bread-winners of Paris, from the feminist viewpoint, with the minute details of how they live, even to culinary arrangements, all catalogued with a literary patience and skill that is characteristically French. Elizabeth Daveny was a teacher in a girls' public school, though her stodgy and nomely fellow teachers were quite certain that her beauty and orginality utterly unfitted her for teaching, if not for being honest. She had unusual ideas—one of them being that so long as marriage is often made involuntary on the part of the wife by pressure of economic conditions, marriage and prostitution are akin. She also protests against that form of slavery by which a woman's child is the property of its father. To enlarge her vision and to gain a new view of the woman question, she seeks the acquaintance of a queen of the demi-monde, an acquaintance which ripens into friendship. She has lovers, but remains pure. Preferring her life's work to the dependence of wifehood, she rejects the man she loves.

Through the story runs a vein of dramatic romance. The tale is well told, and it develops new viewpoints that give it unique attractions.

THE BOY AVIATORS ON SECRET SERVICE; or Working With Wireless. By Capt. Wilbur Lawton. New York: Hurst & Co. 50 cents.

Here is the second in a series of boy stories about the prodigious exploits of a pair of precocious lads with an airship and a wireless equipment. In this tale they are sent by the state department on an important mission in the inner unknown of the Everglades, where they have many exciting adventures. The story is interestingly told.

Of Books and Writers.

Charles Tenney Jackson, whose story, "The Day of Souls," (Bobbs-Merrill company), has received so much favorable comment, is of the younger writers. "The Day of Souls" is but his second book. His first, "Loser's Luck," published in 1905, went into several editions. Back of it lay a literary apprenticeship of ten or twelve years, during which he was a contributor to the magazines and did much for the juvenile readers. His earlier stories in The Youth's Companion and his newspaper experiences in the middle west and on the Pacific coast (Jackson calls it "unrequited grind") formed the basis for higher attainments.

Passion for the outdoor life led him to Florida at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. Later he accompanied the governor of Wisconsin and party to the Pacific coast as representative of one of the Milwaukee dailies on the occasion of the launching of the battleship Wisconsin.

San Francisco afforded new impressions and contrasts that immediately impelled him to study the life he has described in "The Day of Souls." He became a part of it, shared its reckless, irresponsible existence, and has written what seems a true delineation of the pleasure-loving, diversion-seeking city that was before the earthquake.

The new novel from Mr. Jackson's pen is promised for publication in the fall.

E. Phillips Oppenheim is coming to America.

The popular author of the "Illustrious Prince," (Little, Brown & Co.), which some of the critics assert is "by far the best and most important novel Mr. Oppenheim has ever written," has recently resigned his directorship in the manufacturing business which his father established in Leicester, England, and he will now devote more time to travel.

Mr. Oppenheim is no stranger in America, for his wife, who was Elsie Hopkins before her marriage, is an American and her parents reside in Chelsea, Mass. The Oppenheims' home on the Norfolk coast of England is named "Winnilsimnet," the original Indian name of Chelsea.

Mr. Oppenheim frequently introduces American scenes and characters in his novels, although he sometimes kills off his Americans in the early chapters. His latest book, "The Illustrious Prince," now numbered among the six best sellers, has a strong American interest, although Mr. Oppenheim attempts to explain the reason for the recent around-the-world cruise of the American fleet.

Mr. Oppenheim's biographers have noted that his popular novelist career commenced writing at the age of 16, and it is said that in his first book he killed off all his characters in the first half and was compelled to create an entirely new set to complete the novel.

It may be 1911 when Mr. Oppenheim reaches America, for he is very much interested in English politics and would not leave home if a general election was impending. When he does come, he will, of course, bring his golf sticks, for the author of "The Illustrious Prince' is one of the crack players of the Sheringham Golf club.

"'Now,' said the doctor, 'I am going to show you the effect of alcohol upon your circulation.' I think it was 'circulation' he said; it may have been 'advertising.'" This is one of the opening paragraphs in the very last story that O. Henry wrote. He completed it only a few days before his death and he got the material from his experiences in seeking relief from the very illness that was fatal to him. Like the very last line of one of his deep, whimsical stories, were the last conscious words he said. It was dark on Sunday morning, and he knew that he was going. "Turn on the lights, doctor," he said, and smiled. "I'm afraid to go home in the dark."

The last volume of stories from his pen were gone over by him not a month before his death. Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish them next fall under the title of "Whirligigs." In less than ten years this man became unquestionably the most popular and, according to known critics, the best short-story writer in America. He left behind him ten volumes, a permanent contribution to the native literature of this country.

"If I had known you were going to ask me for literary plans," writes the author of "Pigs Is Pigs" to his publishers, "I would have set up nights planning a few plans to give you, but I am not much of a planner. My method of producing literature is more on the 'spur of the moment' order and resembles a cat having a fit. A cat hardly ever plans out a fit very carefully. When it gets ready to have a fit it goes ahead and has it; sometimes it is a good fit, and sometimes it turns out to be a mere fizzle, and sometimes the cat thinks it is having one of the best fits it ever had, and then the fit critics say it is a mighty poor fit. I may have a lot of fits this summer, and I may not have any. That's the way it goes!"

The public has at last turned to Mary S. Watts' "Nathan Burke" (Macmillan), with all the cordiality which the book deserves and which at first was not accorded it. Though the critics praised it highly and the men of letters said many nice things about it, there was in the sales no evidence of a general interest. This evidence, however, has at last come. The book is now in its third large edition and the fact that the daily sales run up into the thousands would indicate that a fourth will soon be necessary. And it is not alone in this country that the book is proving a winner. England has not been at all slow in recognizing its merits.

Among the Magazines.

"The Iron Gin," by Forrest Halsey, opening novelette in the August Young's Magazine, is a strange story of a strange crime and a stranger punishment—a wonderful mingling of allegory and realism into an artistically perfect hole. There is something almost uncanny in "The Iron Gin. It grips one's imagination with a power that seems akin to the forces with which it deals—forces both human and divine. The sin—the blackest surely the mind of man could fathom—is wholly human; the punishment, in its swift, relentless justice, seems wholly divine—and throughout the entire story there is a suggestion of "other-worldness' which heightens the effects without lessening the sense of reality. Mr. Halsey is rapidly becoming famous for the imaginative strength of his work as well as for the perfection of his style, but he has never before so wholly woven the spell of almost fearful fascination: "Stuyvesant Esq're—of Ludlow street" is the most naughtily merry of the "Mr. Desmond's Divorces" series by Ruth and Reginall Wright Kauffman. It shows the shocking liberties one may take with the law—provided one has the right lawyer.

Among the many excellent and instructive articles which appear in the August Wide World, those on "Unknown Arabia" and "The Mysterious Ruined Cities of Yucatan" are perhaps the most interesting. Both are written by travelers who are apparently intimately acquainted with their subjects. The "Pumpkin Festival at Nice" and "Witchcraft in Wales" are also full of remarkable and little known facts. W. Lacey Ames writes of "The Town That Was Born Lucky"—Medicine Hat, which is situated over an immense area of natural dry gas which supplies all the heat and power necessary to run the city. Among the purely adventurous articlaes are "A Tragedy in the Gulf Stream," "The Lure of Gold," "The Queen-Mother's Plot," "Jeff Kent, Outlaw," and "The Execution of Ning Wo." The ilustrations, mostly from photographs, are as numerous as they are interesting.

The August Strand is remarkable for at least two articles—one descriptive of the sensational escape of Egor Sazonoff, the assasin of Plehve, head of the Russian police, and the other a symposium of opinions on the interesting question, "Should Women Serve as Soldiers?" The former article is written by Sazonoff himself, while the later has for contributors Lord Roberts, Sir John French, Sarah Bernhardt and other distinguished people. "Customs at European Courts" will also be found full of interest. Harry Furniss, the Punch cartoonist tells and illustrates some amusing stories of artistic inaccuracies which are occasionally perpetrated on the theatrical stage. The fiction is excellent and includes eight short stories and two serials. "The Murder of the Villa Rose," by A. E. W. Mason, is concluded and will give place next month to a series of short stories by A. Conan Doyle. "Love Stories of Real Life" will doubtless interest all women readers.

The August Harper's—the midsummer fiction number—is full of good reading, and is almost a volume of short stories in itself. The list of authors presents some notable names, among them W. D. Howells, Joseph Conrad, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Arthur Sherburne Hardy, Henry W. Nevinson, Margaret Cameron, etc. A two-part story by Joseph Conrad begins—a splendid tale of a mystery at sea, written with all the wonderful genius that has made Mr. Conrad the foremost of living writers of sea romance. "His Father's Heart," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, presents a dramatic chapter out of the life of a clergyman and his son at college. "The Twelve Green Russian Garnets," by Arthur Sherburne Hardy is a captivating and skillfully told story of mystery. Mr. Nevinson's story, "Sitting at a Play," is a remarkable study of a man who sees a dramatic crisis in his own life re-enacted before him on the stage. In lighter vein "Cut Off in Paris," by Arthur E. McFarlane, will be found one of the richest pieces of humor of the year, in which a young American couple get involved with a French count's bundle of laundry and then with the whole Parisian police force.

The fiction number of Scribner's Magazine has one of the most distinguished lists of contributors that has ever appeared in a single number, although the record of previous fiction numbers for twenty years has been remarkable. The great Victorian novelist, who but recently died, George Meredith, leads the number with "The Sentimentalists," a comedy which had such a charming performance in London recently and is probably to be seen in one of Mr. Frohman's theaters in this country. The brightness of the dialogue and the air of polite comedy, with the ever present Meredithean wit, make it a real piece of literature by the master of the comic spirit. The last scene is in blank verse. Mr. Roosevelt's article describes two of his most picturesque experiences. He was one of the men to see and describe the killing of a lion by the Nandi tribesmen, armed only with shields and spears. It is a thrilling narrative. He then pictures a unique journey of 500 miles from the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza to Albert Nyanza. This is entirely different from the previous scenes of his hunt, and the new and strange peoples, the wild chiefs and the entirely novel landscape, furnish him abundant, rich material for a graphic portrayal of a little-known region. John Fov, Jr., has made a journey, "On Horseback to Kingdom Come," the scene of his very popular novel, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." It describes the quaint people and the inspiring mountains, and he finds a heroine more beautiful than "Melissa" in the novel. The illustrations are by George Wright, who made a journey especially with the author to get the material for this and several succeeding papers that Mr. Fox is writing on the scenes of his fiction.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for July 16, contains an interesting character sketch of Governor Harmon of Ohio, who is considered by many to be the next Democratic candidate for president. In "Inoculation Against Hunger" Katharine Newbold Birdsall tells of the new science of nitrogen fertilization. William Milne Grinnell writes upon his sojourn at a Tripoli inn. Thaddeus S. Dayton describes the mysterious Sargasso Sea. This issue contains an amusing story of plantation life by Virginia Frazer Boyle, and many other features of interest.

If women had the running of things in business would they show a stricter sense of honor than men? Many men and many women doubt it. Perhaps you will doubt it also after reading that highly entertaining little story of love and Wall street, "Brand's Daughter," by Harry S. Stabler, which is the complete novel of the August Ainslee's. Love is the incentive for a very daring deal in bonds made by a young woman with her fiance's help, which so amazes her conservative financier father that he decides he can't afford to let them work independently of him; and so he gives his consent to the marriage at once and takes the adventurous young Adam, tempted by the still more adventurous young Eve, into his partnership. It is a very lively story.

A brilliant account of George V, written in Sydney Brooks' most able style, heads the list of articles in the August McClure's, and brings out a number of interesting facts about the personal character of England's unknown king. Burton J. Hendrick, in "Oxygenizing a City," describes Chicago's great fight for fresh air, which has revolutionized the ventilation of the city's schools and tenements. Louise Parks Richards contributes some remarkable psychological studies of the men and women who are taking part in the Passion play at Oberammergau. The third installment of "Senator Platt's Autobiography" is the highly interesting account of the fifteen-year fight of the Republican machine against Tammany; and William James contributes a strong article on "The Moral Equivalent of War."

The August fiction is unusually successful. Among the stories are "Shiela," one of a Western series by George Patullo; "The Fifth of October," a love story by Mary Shipman Andrews; "A Cup of Cocoa," a story of African adventure by Eleanor Stuart; "The Steamer Child," by Elsie Singmaster; and another John Thorndyke detective story. Charles Livingston Bull contributes a series of beautiful drawings in color.

Hardly a week passes without a report of an earthquake disturbance somewhere, and yet the Western world has done little in the study of these phenomena. Here, again, Japan is at the front. The interesting and unique work of the Japanese earthquake committee will be described in the August Century by T. A. Jagger, Jr., professor of geology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, under the title, "Studying Earthquakes." The object of the committee is two-fold; in the first place to investigate whether there are any means of predicting earthquakes, and in the second place to investigate what can be done to reduce the disastrous effects of earthquake shocks to a minimum.

In the mass of material that is being written about Theodore Roosevelt these days, it is refreshing to find in Hampton's Magazine for August such a careful analysis of the man and his probable future as that contained in the article, "Is Roosevelt Inevitable?" by Judson C. Welliver. The ex-president's probable attitude toward insurgency is one of the most interesting phases of American politics today, and Mr. Welliver has made it exceedingly clear just where Roosevelt stands in relation to insurgency and to the Republican party. This August number of Hampton's is notable also because in it Commander Robert E. Perry gives completely his proofs of the discovery of the North Pole. He goes into minute detail in his descriptions of scientific instruments used and observations taken to determine his whereabouts at the final stage of his journey. The third act of Edmond Rostand's poetical drama, "Chantecler," is a feature of this number. In it the fowls that talk and act like human beings hold a reception which is a parody on the "at home" custom, and there is also a cock fight which gives "Chantecler" a chance to unburden himself of some of his choicest wisdom. Stage-struck girls and parents who think they see unusual histrionic talent in their offspring will find much to interest them in an article by Henrietta Crosman. Just at this season of the year thousands of young men and young women are studying the literature of various dramatic schools, longing for triumphs behind the footlights. Miss Crosman tells them a lot of truths they ought to know.

A Peculiar Ceremony

THE following interesting description of a most peculiar ceremony which takes place in Florence on Easter eve is quoted from Baring-Gould's book entitled, "In Troubadour Land."

"I was at Florence on Easter eve. A ceremony of a very peculiar character takes place there on that day at noon. In the morning a monstrous black structure on wheels, some twenty-five feet high, is brought into the square before the cathedral by oxen, garlanded with flowers. This erection, the carro, is also decorated with flowers, but is likewise covered with fireworks. A rope is then extended from the carro to a pole which is set up in the choir of the Duomo, before the high altar. For this purpose the great west doors are thrown open, and the rope extends the whole length of the nave. Upon it, close to the pole, is perched a white dove of plaster.

"Crowds assemble both in the square and in the nave of the cathedral. Peasants from the countryside come in in bands, and before the hour of noon every vantage place is occupied, and the square and the streets commanding it are filled with a sea of heads.

"At 11:30 the archbishop, the canons and the choir go down the nave in procession, and make the circuit of the Duomo, then re-enter the cathedral, take their places in the choir and the mass for Easter Eve is begun. At the Gospel —at the stroke of 12—a match is applied to a fusee, and instantly the white dove flies along the rope, pouring forth a tail of fire, down the nave, out at the west gates, over the heads of the crowd, reaches the carro, ignites a fusee there, turns, and, still propelled by its fiery tail, whizzes along the cord again, till it has reached its perch on the pole in the choir, when the fire goes out and it remains stationary. But in the meantime, the match ignited by the dove has communicated with the squibs and crackers attached to the carro, and the whole mass of painted wood and flowers is enveloped in fire and smoke, from which issue sheets of flame and loud detonations. Meanwhile, a mass is being sung composedly within the choir, as though nothing was happening without. The fireworks continue to explode for a quarter of an hour, and then the great garlanded oxen, white, with huge horns, are reyoked to the carro and it is drawn away.

"The flight of the dove for its course of about 550 feet is watched by the peasants with breathless attention, for they take its easy or jerky flight as ominous of the weather for the rest of the year and of the prospects of harvest. If the bird sails along without a hitch, then the summer will be fine; but if there be sluggishness of movement, and one halt, then another, the year is sure to be one of storms and late frosts and hail.

"Now, what is the origin of this extraordinary custom—a custom that is childish, and yet is so curious that one would hardly wish to see it abolished? Several stories are told to explain it, none very satisfactory. According to one, a Florentine knight was in the crusading host of Godfrey de Bouillon, and was the first to climb the walls of Jerusalem and plant thereon the banner of the Cross. He at once sent tidings of the recovery of the Holy Sepulchre back to his native town by carrier pigeon, and thus the Florentines received the glad tidings long before it reached any other city in Europe. In token of their gladness at the news, they instituted the ceremony of the White Pigeon and the carro on Easter Eve."

A POWERFUL WIND MILL.

THE largest and most powerful windmill in the world has just been completed at Willesden, England. It will be used to generate electricity, supply power to run crushing machinery and work the pumps. It is claimed the windmill is able to generate enough electricity to run three hundred lights, to crush oats and grind maize, work an electric lift, heat a room and cook food for a very little cost.

LITTLE HELPERS

TENDING the pretty blossoms
That in the garden grow
Are little Grace Amelia
And her young brother, Joe.
With sprinklers full of water
They feed the thirsty flowers;
They weed and twine the ivy
To form sweet shady bowers.
Each morning in the garden
With their mamma there to show
Them where to weed and prune and clip
To make the blossoms grow.

The Adventures of Black-and-Tan

BY MAUD WALKER.

BLACK-AND-TAN was the name of the dearest little dog one could want to see. And Black-and-Tan belonged to the dearest little boy one could wish to know. Indeed, Black-and-Tan loved his young master, Hughie Banks, as dearly as Hughie loved him. But for all that, Black-and-Tan sometimes yearned for adventure. He so often saw great common dogs running in the alleys, uncollared and unowned, and very probably unloved. And sometimes the foolish notion came into his canine head that he would like to be just a common cur, owning the freedom of the alleys and back streets.

One day while Hughie and Black-and-Tan were walking through the park they met one of those stray curs that Black-and-Tan envied so much. As the common cur made a friendly advance towards Black-and-Tan the latter paused to speak in dog language to him. Hughie, who had seen some of his school friends on a bench not far away, did not notice the strange dog nor his salutation of Black-and-Tan, who responded in such a friendly fashion, but calling out to his comrades, ran to where they sat in the shade of a great tree. And for the first few minutes he did not notice the absence of Black-and-Tan.

After his master had hurried to meet his friends Black-and-Tan thought his opportunity had come at last. He would run away with the strange dog and live the life of a free-and-easy tramp cur. How fine to go foraging for his food every day, hunting in garbage barrels at the back doors. He had seen many strange curs doing that way, and had always longed for the experience.

The stranger dog was ready to move on down the shaded path, and Black-and-Tan hurried along at his side, communing with him in their common tongue. They were soon in a wild place in the park, on the banks of a deep stream, where trees and underbrush made them secure from the eyes of people on the hillside just above. Down in this nook were many squirrels and numerous insects. But few people came there owing to the dampness of the low-lying hollow.

The strange cur—whom we will call Tramp for want of a better name—chased the squirrels about till tired. Then he started towards town, Black-and-Tan close at his side. Tramp did not care to frisk about much, for he had reached the serious age and his one thought in life seemed to be hunting for food, or the occasional chasing of squirrels or cats. But he rather liked aristocratic little Black-and-Tan, who had warmed to him so quickly, and he led the little fellow on and on, getting farther and further from the spot in the park where Hughie and his friends were vainly hunting for Black-and-Tan.

It was only a few minutes after reaching his friends that Hughie discovered Black-and-Tan was missing. And even then he supposed that the little doggie had merely stopped in the path to look at some squirrel on a limb and that he would soon put in an appearance. But as the time went by, and no Black-and-Tan came into sight, Hughie and his friends began a search for him. Failing to find him, Hughie reported the case to the park policeman who said he would let him know if a dog of Black-andTan's description were found in the park. Then Hughie hurried home to tell his mother about the missing Black-and-Tan and to get her advice. She told him to insert an advertisement in the evening paper, and to offer a reward.

In the meantime Black-and-Tan was frisking about in alleys and by-streets, foraging for his supper. He was sticking as close to Tramp as though they had been brothers, and Tramp, a good-natured old cur, seemed to have grown quite fond of his new youthful companion. But when, after some hunting about in a garbage barrel which stood in a very dirty alley, Black-and-Tan found a fine bone with a quantity of meat on it, old Tramp began to show a different side to his character. He growled and snapped at Black-and-Tan, causing the little fellow to become so frightened that he dropped the bone. That was just what old Tramp wished him to do, and no sooner had the bone fallen from Black-and-Tan's mouth than old Tramp had it between his own jaws. And poor, hungry little Black-and-Tan crouched behind the barrel, fearing to come out lest his newfound companion should bite him.

"Git out, you pesky stray cur. Git out."

Well, this was Black-and-Tan's first lesson in dog-character. And he decided to profit by the knowledge, for he would never again love or trust old Tramp. When a big old dog could stoop so low as to rob his younger brother of a bone he had found by dint of scrambling about in a garbage barrel, and without so much as a "beg your pardon, friend, but I'd like to sample that bone," he was not worthy of Black-and-Tan's friendship. So, as soon as the old dog had lain himself down to crunch at the bone, and to enjoy every moment of the crunching, little Black-and-Tan slipped from behind the barrel and scooted off down the alley as fast as he could go, his poor tail tucked in a shamed manner. He felt that he had been made a fool of. And so he had.

Soon the night began to fall and Black-and-Tan, very tired and hungry, wished that he were in Hughie's big and happy home. There he would have had a delicious supper of milk and dog biscuit. And so often Hughie brought him bits of meat or a nice bone, which he delighted in hiding. And sometimes Hughie's mother gave him a bit of cake or a lump of sugar, which he relished exceedingly. But tonight he was not only without shelter, but supperless. And, perhaps, he would not be able to find even a fresh drink of water!

Up and down the alleys trotted tired little Black-and-Tan, peering into every back yard and sniffing at the scent of cooking food that came from open back doors. But he dared not enter one of those yards, for in many of them he saw other dogs—big fellows and fierce-looking or terrible cats perched on back fences. And so he suffered the pangs of hunger and thirst.

But at last, about 9 o'clock, he became so thirsty that he decided to brave any danger to hunt for water. In a back yard he saw a pan filled with the delicious liquid, which sparkled invitingly in the moonlight. Evidently it has been placed there for the use of two cats that Black-and-Tan saw on a porch, and that seemed to be asleep. So into the yard he crept, going under a fence. Just as he was lapping from the pan, the water relieving his parched tongue, one of the cats leapt upon him from the porch. She scratched and bit furiously, while poor Black-and-Tan tried to free himself of her. He barked lustily and the other cat began to yawl. This created quite a din in the back yard of the residence and from an upper window a head was thrust out and a masculine voice called: "Git out, you pesky stray cur. Git out! An' take that as you go, to remember this place by." And through the air came flying an old shoe, which hit poor Black-and-Tan square on the head. Wildly crying, the little dog fled, going under the fence into the alley, the great black cat in hot pursuit. "Another stray cur got a taste of Blackie's claws," said the masculine voice at the window. "I tell you that cat is a fighter."

"Yes, she keeps the dogs away," assented a feminine voice. "How I do hate stray cats and dogs about."

And little Black-and-Tan, not knowing which way to turn, crept into a nook behind some bushes and lay there till morning. As the milkmen were going their rounds one of them saw Black-and-Tan standing disconsolately in the alley, looking so forlorn. "Ah, ha, answers the very description," chuckled the milkman, looking over an advertisement in a paper he drew from his pocket. Then he got down from his wagon, held out a cup of milk to the starving dog and said: "Huh-huh, doggie. Come, you're worth $10 to me, for that's the reward they offer for your return."

Black-and-Tan knew a friendly voice when he heard it, and liking the looks of the fresh milk, he went up to the milkman and partook of the food offered him. Just as he had finished the milkman took him up into the wagon beside him, and, strange as it may seem, Black-and-Tan was happy to be there. Somehow he felt that he was to see his home once more. And he did see it, too, within the next hour, for Hughie's house was just a few blocks away from the spot where Black-and-Tan was found. And as Hughie's mother gave the milkman the reward—ten dollars as advertised—Hughie took the doggy in his arms and hugged him lovingly. And had Black-and-Tan been able to tell of his adventures he would have done so, most certainly, and would have finished his narrative by saying: "Ah, that thing called alley-freedom, where stray dogs and cats prowl and fight, is not all it is thought to be. Happy am I to be back in a home where food, drink and shelter are provided me, and not foraged from sour old garbage barrels. I am not made for a tramp, after all. And I love a quiet, respectable life. No more adventures for me."

In Glum-Glum Land

OH, the Glum-Glum Land is an awful place!
There every one wears a scowl on his face.
The Boys and Girls, and the Grownups, too,
Just scold and fret and are always blue.
No laughter echoes in that strange land,
Where Grouches and Cranks make up the band;
No games are played, no lessons learned,
For Joy and Knowledge by all are spurned.
Oh, woe to the Child who joins their band,
And goes to live in their awful land!
For as sure as Fate his face will become
Sour and ugly as the meanest Glum-Glum.
And soon no loveliness can he see;
And his heart will shrink as small as a pea;
And his smile will vanish on the very day
That he with the Glum-Glums goes to stay.
So avoid those People who always frown,
Be they in village, city or town;
Who Hate and Envy and never Smile,
And who live in Idleness all the while.

NEWSPAPER AS TEXTBOOK.

AN experiment is being tried in the public schools of Danzig of teaching the children by making the daily paper the textbook. The teachers exclude all politics and crime, and the reading is confined to scientific and literary news and weather reports, and even stock exchange information is discussed. This new mode of allowing the children to know what is going on about them is very popular, and has been so far found to give good results.

LITTLE EDITH'S PERIL.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

DO you want to go play with me, Edith?" asked Frankie Strong of his little playmate and neighbor, Edith Bowers.

"Where are you going?" asked Edith. The two children were standing beside a fence which separated their fathers' lawns, Edith on her own home side and Frankie on his.

"Oh, I'm going down by the creek," replied Frankie. "I'm going to climb a tree."

"Oh-o-o!" exclaimed Edith. "How I should love to climb a tree. Do you suppose I could, Frankie?"

"Sure," asserted Frankie. "A girl can climb as well as a boy—if she only thinks so. Run ask your mamma if you may go."

"Mamma went to town in the auto this morning," explained Edith. "But she left me in Nancy's charge, and I'll run ask permission of Nancy."

So away ran Edith to ask the housemaid's consent to go to play with Frankie. The maid, too busy with some affairs of her own to pay attention to Edith's request, said: "Yes, run along." And away ran Edith, happy. Together she and Frankie hurried down the broad country road toward the creek which ran across the meadow half a mile from their respective homes. The day was an ideal one, and as the little ones went along they were highly entertained by the flying butterflies, the humming insects and the songs of birds. "Oh, isn't it fun to be in the wild country?" asked Edith, who had never gone from home without her mother or her father accompanying her.

"Yes, it's like Africa down by the creek," said Frankie. Then he began to dilate on the dangers and the excitement that accompanied a trip to the creek, especially if one climbed a tree or waded in the shallow water.

"I'm so glad Nancy permitted me to come," said Edith. She thought that if any danger should befall her she would in no way be responsible. The fault would be Nancy's for having allowed her to wander off on adventures.

When they reached the banks of the creek Frankie picked out a nice big tree, with limbs growing conveniently close to the ground, for Edith to climb, and another tree, not so easy of ascent, for himself. "Being's you are a gurl, I'll give you the easy tree," he explained. Then he demonstrated to Edith the method of climbing a tree. After he was securely seated in a top-most branch of the great tree he called out to Edith to "go up her tree." Edith did not make out very well, however, for her apron caught in a twig and impeded her ascension. After freeing her apron from the twig, she succeeded in reaching a low, wide-swinging bough which extended directly over the waters of the creek. Once there, she decided on going no higher.

"Ah, go up higher!" called out Frankie, seeing that Edith had halted in her climbing and was preparing to seat herself in a little saddle-like place on the limb. "Go on to the limb above that one. It's easy as falling off a log."

Whether Frankie's comparison had anything to do with it or not, the words "falling off a log" had scarcely left his lips when Edith toppled and fell headlong into the water beneath. She screamed as she descended so rapidly, and thought her time had come to die. How many things went through her child's mind during that short moment could hardly be told. First of all, she thought of her dear papa and mamma. Then she thought of death, oh, so horrible to be suffered in this way—by accident! Then she thought of Nancy's having too readily given consent to her going with Frankie to play by the creek. She should have made inquiry and found out just where Frankie was going to take her. And then she hit the water, splash!

Edith toppled and fell headlong into the water beneath.

As she floundered about in water the depth of her own head, she strangled, screamed and coughed in succession, battling all the time to reach the shore—only a few feet away.

Frankie, seeing the accident, was frightened into silence, but not into inactivity, for he went down his tree like a cat, rushing to the water's edge and extending his hands towards Edith. But not being able to reach the frantic little girl, he waded out till the water reached his arm pits. Then he caught her hands and dragged her ashore.

Both children were more frightened than hurt, and it took them some moments to recover speech, although Edith still made terrific vocal noises, such as sobs, short shrieks and groans. But pretty soon she realized that the danger was over, and that she was sitting on dry land again, her body whole and unhurt save for the sudden ducking.

Frankie was the first to speak. "You aren't a very good tree-climber, are you, Edith?" he asked in a casual way, just as though nothing of any consequence had happened to prove his conclusion. And Edith, her face flushing from embarrassment, replied, "Not very, Frankie. But—maybe I might learn—if only—only—I had a tree that didn't stick itself over the water. I would not mind falling in the grass, you know. That's all." She had grown very calm now, sitting so safely in the sweet-scented grass, a bird overhead singing to her.

"Well," and Frankie shook his head, "I am not so sure that you could learn, Edith. Of course, if any gurl could climb well, you would be that gurl. But gurls aren't intended to climb—same as boys. But they're awfully good at falling off," he added. "My big sister always falls off high places. She fell off her horse once, and again she fell off a foot bridge right into the water. Gurls seem to like falling into water, don't they?"

"Oh, they don't mind," said Edith, evidently forgetting the way she had screamed from fright during the few seconds she was battling in the brook. "It spoils their clothes, you know. And—I must hurry home and get on dry clothes," she went on, rising and shaking the water from her frock. "And I must show Nancy just what happened through her carelessness in allowing me to come off here. She should not have permitted it, should she?"

"No, the best place for gurls is in the yard—with a fence round it," acquiesced Frankie seriously. "They aren't fit for adventures. Come along, I'll take you home."

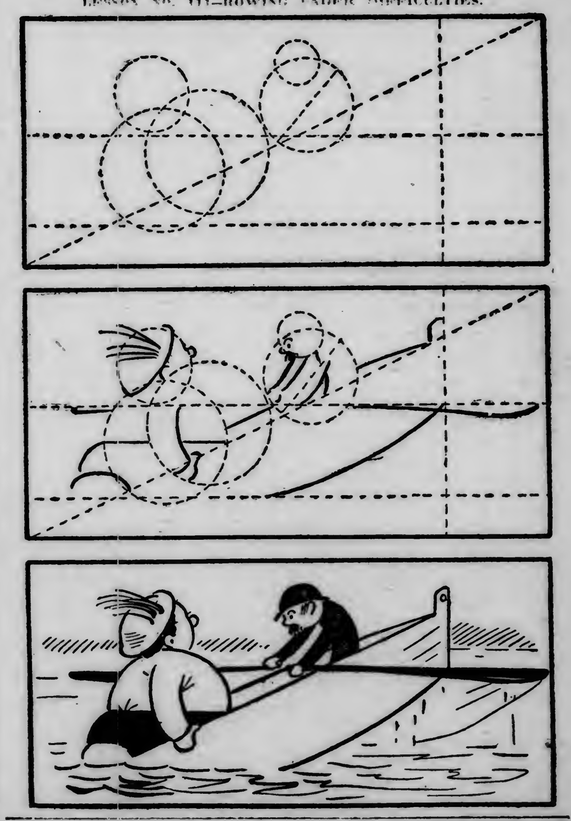

Hardly had they reached the big road when they heard the conk, conk, conk of an automobile horn behind them, and, turning about, the dripping Edith cried: "Oh, it's mamma! She's coming home from town. She'll pick us up. Oh, won't she be surprised to see me in this condition? And—won't she scold Nancy for permitting me to come?"

"Yes, and she'll scold both me and you for asking Nancy to let you come," said Frankie. Then a thought entering his mind he quickly said: "Oh, since your mamma's here to take you home, I'll go back to the creek for a while." And before Edith could say a word the little chap, who felt a bit responsible for the accident to his little neighbor, had run away, getting well out of sight behind a clump of bushes before the automobile bearing Edith's mother came up alongside the waiting child.

To say that Mrs. Bowers was surprised to find her little daughter on the public road in such a sad plight would be putting it mildly. She was more than shocked and quite upset after Edith told her the whole circumstance. "Why, child, you knew it was not right for you to go to the creek to climb trees, even though the thoughtless Nancy did give her consent. And I shall have a talk with Nancy as soon as I reach home. And—you must never be willing to do naughty things—just because you have some one else on whom you may throw the blame. You might have met with a very serious accident, and all through your doing that which your better-self told you was wrong. And that hiding Frankie shall hear from me, too. He was equally to blame with you and Nancy."

Helpful Hints For Our Young Artists.

LESSON NO. III—ROWING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE LYCEUM

Gus. A. Forbes and His Players to Present "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," a Rollicking Farce of Domestic Life, Next Week With Usual Matinees.

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave, When first we practice to deceive!"

The above well-known and oft-quoted couplet of the poet's might have been the motif upon which the writers of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" founded their play, for the tangled web that results from the little fib that Mr. Temple tells his wife makes up the funniest farce of recent years. Gus A. Forbes has chosen "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" for the seventh week of his stock engagement at the Lyceum theater and it is in line with the other plays he has offered, the best of the sort to be had.

Farce comedy, light and amusing, is the most popular sort of midsummer amusements and "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," which ran for more than a year in New York, is up to date and clever. It has been seen in Duluth and Mr. Forbes is promising an elaborated and most comprehensive production.

The story of the farce is as follows: Jack Temple, a young married man with a jealous wife, goes up in a Ferris wheel at a fair, and in the car with him is a strange young woman. When their car reaches the top the machinery balks and they are forced to remain there all night. Mr. Temple returns home and starts to tell his wife the truth. She refuses to believe him and so, again proving that truth is stranger than fiction, he invents a very plausible story about being detained at the home of his friend, John Brown of Pickerton. Mrs. Temple counts still and so sends the famous telegram to John Brown at the address her husband gave her. Her husband discovers that she has sent the telegram and, thinking that there is no such person as John Brown, induces his friend, Frank Fuller, to impersonate John Brown, and so get Temple out of the scrape. Mr. Forbes will appear in the role of Frank Fuller, the friend of Jack Temple, who forces his wife to send the telegram.

Mr. Fuller calls and introduces himself as Brown. Everything is satisfactorily explained. Then the real John Brown calls in answer to the telegram. And then the real Mrs. John Brown, who has found the telegram, comes, literally on the warpath. Mrs. Temple insists upon the bogus John Brown becoming reconciled with the real Mrs. John Brown. The fun is fast and furnious and not until two minutes before the final curtain do the ludicrous and laugh-provoking situations untangle themselves.

The play kept New York in a whirl of laughter for a year and next week at the Lyceum should do much to add to the avoirdupois of Duluth if "laugh and grow fat" is an axiom to be depended upon.

The comedy provides splendid roles for the company. As the friend of the worried young husband, Mr. Forbes will have fine opportunities as a comedian. He lies valiantly, quickly, ingeniously and ultimately gets into a few troubles with his own wife. Miss Justina Wayne will appear as Mrs. Temple. Miss Kate Woods Fiske will have a delicious role in Mrs. John Brown and there are several other highly amusing characters in the piece.

The first performance ever given in Duluth of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" will be given Monday night and it will be continued every evening for a week. The matinee days will be as usual, Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

The concluding performances of "Raffles," which has proved very popular this week with Mr. Forbes in the title role will be given tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

Mrs. Fiske Coming.

Unwonted interest should be aroused by the announcement that Mrs. Fiske and her justly famous Manhattan company are to appear at the Lyceum about the middle of August in "Becky Sharp." Mrs. Fiske stands for more in the art of the theater than does any other personality upon the American stage, and her appearance in Duluth, it is safe to say, will be marked with the same brilliance that is vouchsafed in every other city she visits.

She brings to Duluth the play, with which, more than any other, her fame is most inseparably connected, "Becky Sharp."

It is doubtful if any character ever given to the stage is so closely related to its creator as is "Becky Sharp," to Mrs. Fiske. Not until Langdon Mitchell's dramatization of Thackeray's famous novel, "Vanity Fair," had there ever been a successful stage version of that literary masterpiece, but through Mr. Mitchell's work and the absolute realization on the part of Mrs. Fiske, of "the immortal Becky," not only was a tremendous interest reawakened in Thackeray but "Becky" as a stage figure became as compelling an addition to dramatic as she had been these many years to literary portraiture.

Lyceum Notes.

John Cort announces that he will present Max Figman again the coming season in "Mary Jane's Pa," with Helen Lackaye and practically the same supporting company. Figman will open his season at the Globe theater, Boston on Labor day, for an extended engagement, after which he will be seen in a few of the smaller New England cities, and the principal cities of the East until the first of the coming year, when Mr. Cort will produce for him a new play of French origin, in which he will be given a metropolitan hearing.

"The Flower of the Ranch," Joseph E. Howard's greatest musical comedy success is an early booking at the Lyceum theater. It is an interesting story set to music, picturing ranch life in California, full of catchy songs and music, lively with dances, clean and wholesome in its tone, with good natured fun and femininity and overflowing with comedy characters.

AT THE BIJOU

The Aeroplane Girl Sensational Feature for Week Beginning With Monday Matinee, With Walter Law and Company as Extra Feature--Every Act on Bill Could Be Classed a Top Liner.

If Duluth people who are not regular attendants at the Bijou will take an afternoon or night off, and go to this popular theater they will see what they have been missing, and besides will discover they are getting the very best class of vaudeville that mony can secure. The program that will open Monday matinee and continue for the week will be one of the strongest that has ever been in Duluth, in fact it is practically the opening of the regular season, although the shows so far have been of a very high standard.

Heading the list will be what is considered the biggest novelty that has ever played at the Bijou. It will be the Aeroplane Girl. Now that aerial navigation is the talk of the world it has become an important item in the amusement world. Prof. Burleigh, who made a successful flight at New York, and who has invented many different models of the airship submitted a model of an aeroplane that could be set sail in a theater. After thoroughly proving that it was practical, Chris O. Brown, general manager of the Sullivan & Considine circuit in New York, secured the rights, and the sensational act will play the entire circuit, showing at every performance with a girl aeronaut, and is billed as "The Aeroplane and the Girl." The aeroplane is much like the model of the Wrights, it is of the biplane type and so arranged that its stability is its strongest point. Extra planes not only serve to hold the ship to it's altitude in the air but effectually prevents tipping and sliding from side to side.

A musical travesty of exceptional quality will be presented by Roland Carter and company, entitled "Vacation Time." Mr. Carter is one of vaudeville's best known playwrights, and being a very clever comedian he has always had something good to offer the public. "Vacation Time" is a travesty on swagger prison life. The stage setting represents the yards and walls of a prison, the inmates are the pink of perfection in everything but the striped clothes and to them prison life is a vacation. The act is full of bright comedy, and the songs introduced are a feature in the act, as each of the cast is an excellent singer, each possessing a voice that has been thoroughly trained. Mr. Carter is assisted by Edward Wright and Charles Church, both of whom are well known in the musical line.

The reappearance of Miss Hetty Urma in America will be a welcome feature. Miss Urma is one of England's most noted male impersonators, and is known and billed in Europe as "England's Pet Boy." Miss Urma played an American tour in vaudeville two years ago and became a great favorite wherever she appeared, so much so that Messrs. Sullivan and Considine engaged her for a tour for 1910. She has just returned and Duluth will be her second week of her return engagement. Miss Urma is pretty, vivacious and has a charming personality that one enjoys from the moment she enters upon the stage, and on this tour she comes with all new songs, and her male impersonations are all new and very attractive.

One of the most remarkable and skilled cyclists in the country is Will Lacey, and his act is the most sensational of any single cyclist in vaudeville. His tricks are different from the general run of trick bicycle riders; they are more daring and difficult, as he performs many tricks that are his own original ideas and have never been done by any other cyclist. Most of his feats are performed on a single wheel, and among his feature tricks is waltzing upon a unicycle in perfect time with the orchestra. This act will be an enjoyable feature on the prgram.

The big extra feature for the week will be Walter Law & company in the powerful playlet, "At the Threshold," By Jackson Haag. Mr. Law will be remembered as the star in "The Spoilers." The piece that he is playing is a dramatic gem, and one that gives this clever actor a chance to be seen at his best. The playlet has a pretty story which is played with a spontaneous force which shows its beauty and heart appealing interest, it has a natural sentiment that holds one's interest and attention at all times. The staging of the piece is most artistic with picturesque effects in the setting, representing the library in a modern mansion. Full and complete sets of scenery, electrical and lighting effects are carried for the production of this sketch, and those who love dramatic art will do well to see Walter Law in "At the Threshold," as it is the most pretentious offering in the dramatic line that has ever appeared at the Bijou.

The illustrated song will be "I'm Awf'ly Glad I'm Irish,' sung by Duluth's popular singer, James B. Adams. The moving pictures will be all new and exclusive subjects, showing pictures of the better class. Matinees given daily at 2:45, every night at 8 and 9:30. Seats reserved by either phone. Children's matinee Saturday at 2:30. Performances Sunday afternoon and night.

THE MOVING PICTURES

Crowds Attend Performances at Orpheum and Lyric Despite Fine Summer Weather--Program for Next Week.

The Orpheum and Lyric will have the usual programs of moving pictures and illustrated songs during the coming week. Both houses are doing an exceptionally good summer business. While people are seeking for cool outing places, ordinarily, the business of the two moving picture houses are crowded at almost every performance.

The programs for the coming week are up to the high standard maintained by the two houses. Wholesome fun and amusement are sought in arranging every program.

The programs for the coming week are as follows:

Orpheum—"A Flash of Light," "Hall Room Boys," "The Wicked Baron and the Page," "Moonlight Flitting." Miss Nelson will sing, "Hello, Miss Liberty."

Lyric—"A Wireless Romance," "The Sheriff," "A Hunting Story," "Jupiter Smitten," "Jolly Whirl." Miss Erd will sing, "Love Keeps the Whole World Young."

PLAYWRIGHTS GET THE MONEY EVEN OUT OF STOCK PLAYS

One of the easiest methods of making money is to be a playwright. If you write a good play and get it produced then about all you'll have to do for twenty-six years is sit back in a swivel chair and increase your girth. At the end of twenty-six years, any one who chooses can produce your play without your consent.

It all comes about through royalties. If you write a successful play and you get it produced once, and get it copyrighted, then every one who wishes to produce must pay you quite a bit of money, called "royalties," for the privilege of playing.

Just see how renumerative that is. When Gus A. Forbes played "The Great Divide" the first week of his engagement here, he had to send $500 to William Vaughan Moody, or his representative merely for the privilege of offering it to Duluth theatergoers. When "Girls" was put on it cost Mr. Forbes $100 for the week and that sum went to the Clyde Fitch estate. "Merely Mary Ann" cost him $175, which went to swell the coffers of the author, Israel Zangwill, and "Old Heidelberg" cost a like sum.

These are the medium-priced plays. When "The Girl of the Golden West" was first released for stock production, the manager had to pay $1,000 for the pleasure of producing it for one week. James Barrie, who of course has to pay alimony and so needs more money than some men, insists upon $500 a week for himself whenever "Peter Pan" is produced in stock.

Occasionally it happens the other way. The Dollar Mark" was first produced in the Belasco theater at Los Angeles and played there for twelve weeks in stock. Its success attracted Manager Brady, who produced it in New York. Occasionally it happens that people may see in stock for 50 cents what is later offered them at $1.50.

Not all of the good plays are royalty plays, however A play can be copyrighted for twenty-six years. After that time any one who will may produce it. Naturally Shakespeare's play are as free as the poetic June. Others upon which there are no royalties are "East Lynn," "Thelma," "Camille," "St. Elmo," Sapho," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," Rip Van Winkle," and among them are some fine plays that will attract for many years to come.

The representaitives who look after the royalty rights of many authors and producers are in many cases women and they strike shrewd bargains.

"You can see, said Mr. Forbes one day this week in discussing play royalties "that the path of the stock manager is not all roses. If in addition to his regular expenses he has to pay from $100 to $500 before he has even a nickel for himself to buy a glass of buttermilk, you can understand how once in a while he might even forget art in the interest of box office receipts."

It would seem that playwright royalties are much better than those from iron mines. But this fairy sounding income has induced any budding dramatist to inflict his play on the public, apology is hereby offered the public. it does seem too bad that if any one has a royalty producing play anywhere in his system that he shouldn't get it into profit getting shape.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Henry Savage's Withdrawal From Klaw and Erlanger---Henry B. Harris Likely to Follow Suit---Margaret Anglin to Be Seen in Comedy

NEW YORK, July 23.—A situation has been cleared up that for some time had been a puzzle to those who were watching the daily developments of the theatrical mix-up that has been going on of late. When Henry Savage returned from Europe he declared that he would produce his attractions in both syndicate and "open-door" houses. How Savage would arrange to show with both factions was not very clear, nor was it clearly understood how Klaw and Erlanger could permit it in the face of the principles they upheld.

There was no solution to the puzzle. Savage saw that he could not play both ends of the game and so decided to leave the syndicate entirely, a step which was foreseen by many. Savage claims that there was opposition on the part of a number of syndicate producers to granting him the dates he had selected for his productions on the Klaw and Erlanger circuit, and that he was forced to withdraw his bookings entirely from the syndicate circuit. This means that all of Savage's shows will appear under the "open-door" management throughout the country, and that business relations of twelve years between Savage and Klaw and Erlanger have been completely severed.

The point wherein the solution of all this controversy is to interest the public is in the benefit it will receive. The theatrical game, despite the repeated cry of failures, is one of undeniable general profit to the manager, and the greatest question, How much value is the public to receive for the money it passes over? It is not a question of sentiment. It is the cold question of the greatest benefit received. Since the revolt of Brady, interesting things have happened in the theatrical world, and while his action was considered a great blow to the syndicate, it was but a step to a number of other similar transfers throughout the country, to which the past week has added the very important one of Savage.

The whole meaning of it is that a great number of attractions will be given to cities that have never witnessed them before, and taht all the theaters under the "open-door" rule will be open to any producing manager.

The present prospects are very bright if the representations of the "open-door" people are what they seem, and, judging by the cold rule of public benefit, the situation appears most favorable to the public for next season.

One of the latest rumors that Henry B. Harris, another of the big producing managers, will follow Mr. Savage's example and sever his relations with Klaw & Erlanger.

While in England, Mr. Dillingham arranged with Leslie Stuart to write the music for Henry Blossom's new light opera, "The Slim Princess," in which Elsie Janis will appear at the Globe after the run of "The Girl in the Train." Dillingham has secured George Parsons as leading man for Miss Janis.

Henry B. Harris announces the engagement of Frank Mills as leading man for Elsie Ferguson in "A Matter of Money," which has its premier early in September and a few weeks later comes into New York, where it will be seen at a prominent Broadway theater.

One of Mr. Dillingham's interesting announcements was his plan for the windup of his next season's work with an organization of an all-star American musical comedy company, which he is to present next spring and summer in Paris. The hits in all the Parisan reviews at present are American songs. An entire musical comedy, done in American fashion, is Mr. Dillingham's idea, and he has secured one of the best theaters in Paris to exploit it. The company will include Montgomery and Stone, Elsie Janis, Sallie Fisher and Bessie McCoy, and it is probable that the comedy presented will be "The Girl in the Train."

Herbert Trench, sweeping the dramatic heavens for new stars, believes he has found a brilliant luminary in Phillida Terson. Miss Terson is the young and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terry. She will play the Princess in "Priscilla Runs Away," which is to follow "The Blue Bird."

Dr. Frederick James Furnivall, the eminent Shakespearean authority, died in London on July 2, at the age of 85. He early became interested in philology and Elizabethan literature, being the founder and director of the Early English Text, Chaucer, Ballad, and New Shakespeare societies. He was known also as an editor of the Oxford Dictionary. Besides having scholarly interests, Dr. Furnivall was an athlete, a vegetarian, and a social reformer. He celebrated his 84th birthday by rowing a racing shell on the Thames from Putney to Mortlake, the course over which the Oxford-Cambridge races are rowed.

At Knoll's theater in Berlin Siegfried Wagner's opera, ""Der Kobold," met at its first reception that greeted almost the same reception that greeted Hartley and Nevin's "Pola" a short time ago. According to a report, hostile critics expressed their dissatisfaction in no uncertain tone of voice during the performance. One man was even ejected from the theater.

Judging from all reports, one of the most phenomenal successes of the season has been achieved by Della Clarke, in her own creation, "The White Squaw," which served to introduce a comparatively new author and a new star. This play has enjoyed forty-seven weeks in the best theaters, and is now playing on the Pacific coast, with no thought of closing.

* * *

Another star has risen over the horizon, Christie MacDonald has attracted so much attention as Pitti-Sing in the stellar revival of "The Mikado" at the Casino that Louis F. Werba and Mark A. Luescher have offered her the leading role in a comedy to be written especially for her. It is understood that her contract covers several years. While the new comedy is under construction Miss MacDonald will study in Paris with Mme. Adini.

William A. Brady has begun rehearsals of "The Girl and the Drummer," under the direction of George Broadhurst. This is a musical version of Mr. Broadhurst's old farce, "What Happened to Jones." The cast includes Charles Grapewin, Anna Chance, Vera Michelene, Stella Tracy, Berenice Buck, Jean Salisbury, Phil Ryley, William Phillips, Bernard Dillon, Franklyn Hurley.

For the first time since she has become a star Margaret Anglin will be seen during the coming season in a comedy, under the direction of Liebler & Co. For a number of years Miss Anglin stood in the front rank of America's emotional actresses, and her advent into comedy is looked forward to with considerable interest.

Liebler & Co. have secured the American rights to a new musical comedy, entitled "Marriage a la Carte." The book is by C. M. S. McLellan, author of "Leah Kleschna" and "Judith Zaraine," who, under the name of Hugh Morton, also wrote the book of "The Belle of New York," "The Telephone Girl" and other successful musical pieces. The music for the new comedy has been provided by Ivan Caryll, composer of "Our Miss Gibbs," "The Duchess of Danzig," "The Toreador," etc.

Now that Charles Frohman announces his purchase of the rights of "The Jew," Augustus Thomas' most recent work, the secret of Mr. Thomas' sudden departure for Europe about a month ago comes out.

About three years ago Mr. Thomas, in an address, made the assertion that some day a great play would be written around the American Jew — the Jew of fine sentiment and noble deeds. Then he proceeded to write it himself. He had frequently discussed the play with Mr. Frohman, but had not arranged to sell it to him.

The piece was composed in May, and without revealing his mission, he boarded a steamer, went to London and read the manuscript to Mr. Frohman. The latter accepted it on the spot.

There is offered on the market a play by the late Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, for whose murder her husband, Porter Charlton, is now being held.

The title of the play is "The Struggle of the Strong," and Capt. Scott, Mrs. Charlton's brother, has charge of the manuscript. He says that it was found among the murdered woman's effects.

The play is described as strongly emotional in character. The one or two managers to whom it has been submitted have not manifested any uncontrollable eagerness to acquire the rights.

In addition to his coming "Shylock," David Warfield will probably try "Louis XI."

Charles Dillingham added Bessie McCoy to his list of stars when he placed her under contract for a number of years.

The first play in which Mr. Dillingham will star Miss McCoy is "The Echo," scheduled as the next attraction at the Globe theater, opening Monday, Aug. 15. The supporting company will include Johnny Ford, Eva Fallon, John E. Hazzard, Georgie Drew Mendum, Edgar Carrington, Annie Yeamans, George White, Ben Ryan, Rose Dolly, Jennie Dolly, Joseph Herbert, Jr., Toots Paka and the Hawaiian trio and the original troupe of Russian dancers that has been making a sensation in Paris.

Henry W. Savage announces that he has secured the sole American rights to English of Puccini's new grand opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," and that the widely discussed work would mark his re-entry into the grand opera field.

Anne Sutherland will not appear under David Belasco's direction this season. Miss Sutherland says that she has not as yet made her plans for the fall.

Queenie Vassar has been added to the cast of "Girlies," replacing Carrie Perkins in a character role

Charles Frohman states that the correct title of Henri Bernstein's latest play is "After Me, The —." The piece will have its first performance in France under the title of "Apres Moi" at the Comedie Francaise in October. M. Bernstein has endeavored to make this his masterpiece, and, though he has the reputation of being a very rapid worker as a playwright, has devoted an entire year to it.

Mr. Frohman will produce "After Me, The —" for the first time in English in New York next January. He also controls the play for London, where it will be produced later in the season.

Te title of the play in which Helen Ware is to star under Henry B. Harris's direction is "The Deserters."

Originally the piece was known as "Della of the Secret Service."

Later that title was discarded because of its length. The next choice was "Between Two Fires," but Mr. Harris learned that there already was a play of that name. After a conference "The Deserters" received the stamp of the management's approval.

* * *

W. J. Counihan and Al Caldwell insist tnat in Bernard Daly they have discovered the Chauncey Olcott of the future. They have taken Daly under their management and will present him next season in a comedy entitled, "Old Limerick Town."

The attraction will be booked over the Stair & Havlin circuit to the Pacific coast.

It has been definitelr decided that Luigi Illica, librettist of "Tosca," "La Boheme," "Madame Butterfly," Mascagni's new opera, "Ysobel," and a number of other modern Italian operas of note, will accompany Pietro Mascagni to America next fall to witness the first production of "Ysobel," which is to be presented by Liebler & Co.'s new Abbott Opera company, with Bessie Abbott in the title role. Illica will be compelled to return to Italy immediately after the New York premiere of the opera, though Mascagni, who will also act as conductor for the new company, will remain in this country until the opening of the International Exposition at Rome next spring. Signor Illica has spent some time in the preparation of his new libretto, spending several months in the town of Coventry, where the action takes place.

The injunction granted by Justice O'Gorman restraining Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth from appearing under any other management than that of Florence Ziegfeld was vacated by Justice McCall, which means that the couple may return to "The Jolly Bachelors." Bayes and Norworth have been appearing in vaudeville recently, and Ziegfeld has made no attempt to put them at work, but it is understood that he will appeal.

* * *

We have "The Man From Home," therefore it is only fair that we should have "The Girl From Home." It is the work of George Middleton and Henry B. Harris has arranged to produce it in the fall.

THESE MEN OF WEALTH FIND PLEASURE IN THE AIR

A. Holland Forbes, Publisher, Yachtsman and Aeronaut Who Pronounces Aerial Navigation Less Risky Than Automobiling—Clifford B. Harmon, Who Has Made More Than Fifty Ascensions and Declares That While Ballooning All Care Is Forgotten—Arthur T. Atherholdt, One of the Best-Known Amateur Balloonists in America—Cortlandt Field Bishop, Most Widely Known of All American Aeronauts—Colgate Hoyt, Charles J. Glidden, A. B. Lambert, Professor A. Lawrence Rotch and the Record Ascensions They Have Made.

By HENRY M. NEELY,

Chairman of the Contest Committee of the National Council, Aero Club of America.

(Copyright, 1910, by the Associated Literary Press.)

"BALLOONING is no more dangerous than automobiling; in fact, it is much less risky. It is the greatest sport in the world and the most healthful." A. Holland Forbes, wealthy publisher, yachtsman and aeronaut moved painfully on the pneumatic cushion that covered his chair as he made this declaration. He had just begun to get about after the terrible fall from the skies which ended his attempt to break all American balloon records and in which he and his companion, James Carrington Yates, had barely escaped with their lives. Yet Forbes was impatient to go up again and reiterated his declaration that aeronautics was the king of sports and not at all hazardous.

It is wonderful the hold that ballooning has taken upon wealthy men of this country. The rosters of the aero clubs of the country abound with names whose owners have wealth that runs close to the seven figure mark or even above, and one authority's estimate that the money represented by the Aero Club of America alone is near $400,000,000 is probably not far wrong.

Charles J. Glidden, the man whose tropay has made the Glidden tour an automobile classic, can be lured from his car at almost any time by the promise of a flight in the air. A. Bond Lambert, millionaire manufacturer of St. Louis, is in the very forefront of the aeronautic movement in America. Cortlandt Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, has already spent lavishly out of his big fortune to promote both ballooning and aeroplaning. Henry S. Gratz, wealthy clubman of Philadelphia, is in Europe now, preparing for his tenth balloon trip, which will entitle him to a pilot's license under the International rules.

Clifford B. Harmon, son-in-law of E. C. Benedict, holds American aerial records. Arthur T. Atherholt, of Philadelphia, whose business connections have made him known all over the state of Pennsylvania, will forsake commerce any day to go up in a balloon. Prof. A. Lawrence Rotch, the famous meteorologist who has made the Blue Observatory famous, sails the sea of air in balloons both for science's sake and pleasure's; and among many other men of wealth whose trips in the air by means of the modern dirigible gas bag have been more or less numerous since the present balloon craze struck America, may be mentioned Colgate Hoyt, railroad magnate and corporation director; Hugh L. Willoughby, yachtsman motorist, athlete, aviator and founder of the Rhode Island Naval Militia; M. Robert Guggenheim, first vice president of the Seattle Aero club and director of a half dozen of the mining and smelting corporations which his family control; C. A. Coey, the Chicago automobile enthusiast; Augustus Post of the Aero Club of America, who has devoted most of his time and money to the sport, and young Jay Gould.

Probably every one of these men would insist with Forbes, that ballooning is not more dangerous than automobiling, yet if they were to sit down and tell of their aerial experience the stories would be found to abound in adventures that would seem anything but safe to the average peaceful citizen.

Forbes' Marvelous Escape From Death.

As has been said, Forbes made his declaration while he was still suffering from the effects of a bad fall. But it was by no means the first time he had been in extreme peril, for his most sensational drop and most marvelous escape occurred two years ago in full sight of thousands of awestruck spectators.

This was in the International distance race for the James Gordon Bennett trophy in October, 1908. The contest that year started from Berlin. Forbes was piloting his big balloon, Conqueror, with Augustus Post, then secretary of the Aero Club of America, as his aide. One by one, eight of the twenty-three great gas bags rose majestically and sailed away to the northeast. The Conqueror was ninth.

Forbes gave the word and his assistants let go. Straight into the air the big balloon rose until it reached a height of half a mile. Then, still rising to 3,000 feet, it drifted slowly over a little suburb called Friedenau.

Suddenly there was a thrill of horror among the spectators as a puff of what looked like smoke encircled the Conqueror. The great bag was seen to split open and the whole apparatus, with its human freight, shot like an immense stone toward the earth over half a mile below. So quickly did it all happen that the first gasps were still in the thousands of throats. Then the bag spread out, hollowed upward into the netting and, forming a gigantic parachute, checked the descent just as the two men in the basket seemed to be plunging down among the roofs of the village.

There was a wild rush to the spot from all directions and the news flashed along a score of telegraph and cable lines that the two Americans had met a frightful death in their fall from the sky. But the police found them on the roof of a house, with not a scratch on them and not even the sign of a bruise to carry away as a souvenir of their remarkable escape.

"Dangerous?" says Forbes. "Not a bit. You can always parachute your balloon and get let down easy."

The Real Story of Forbes' Last Accident.

Nevertheless, all this was far from being the case in Forbes' last accident, which was the culmination of an ascent he made last May from Quincy, Ill., with the avowed intention of breaking all balloon records either for duration of flights, altitude or distance covered, or any two or all three of these. And despite the accounts of the accident published at the time, here for the first time is told the real story of the affair. Mr. Forbes says so, adding that he guesses he has read every account of his thriller published.

"My companion, James C. Yates, and myself started at half past six in the evening," Mr. Forbes told me, "and we rose to about 2,000 feet, traveling southeast in a very light wind. All night we drifted back and forth, getting nowhere until nearly 8 o'clock the following morning when we struck an east-southeasterly wind and went straight to our landing place. At 11:40 we had reached a height of 15,000 feet and struck a snow storm. An hour later we passed through another. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon we made one of the records we were after by reaching an extreme altitude of 20,600 feet. This is 2,000 feet higher than any authorized altitude ever made in America.

"But by this time, our ballast was almost gone and the gas in the balloon had so contracted by quick descent that the envelope was very flabby. I saw that we must soon come down so, at a height of about 300 feet, we trailed along, hoping to land near a railroad that we had seen many miles away.

"We were over the country about three miles from Crailhope, Green county, Ky., the most desolate and inaccessible inhabited spot on the whole continent of North America. The nearest railroad station to Crailhope is Horse Cave, twenty-one miles away.

"As we trailed along, the appendix line suddenly broke loose from the concentrating ring which is just above the basket. There was so little gas in the balloon at the time that the bag elongated with the weight of the basket, the rip cord, which was tied at the end, was not quite long enough to allow for the unexpected stretch and the ripping panel on top of the balloon was torn open for a few feet—just enough to allow the escape of the little gas that remained.

"I cannot describe the sensation of that 350 foot drop to the ground. We were not high enough to give the balloon time to parachute, and is why we were hurt.

"I have a faint recollection of trying to tilt the basket ready to spring out and of bending my knees to meet the shock of landing. Then, subconsciously, I pulled our pneumatic mattress under us—this mattress that I am sitting on now—and that was all that saved us.

"We were both stunned by the fall for a few moments. Then some men came to us and we were carried on improvised litters into a cabin nearby. We were so badly shaken that we could hardly move, but there was no truth in those stories of our being overcome by gas and hovering between life and death.

"We had fallen into a place locally known as 'Boston's Bottom' and we were carried to the house of a farmer named Bastin. People came from miles around to see us, for none of them had even heard of a balloon before. They were very primitive and most superstitious, and almost every one of them believed at first we were some kind of supernatural beings. We heard of many funny stories to account for our presence in the sky and they all show the superstition of the people.

"Just before our fall, while we were trailing 300 feet nigh, we saw one man fleeing before us in a perfect panic. When he saw that we were overtaking him, he wheeled around, fell to his knees and shouted: 'I've never killed nobody and I've never gambled much, but, O Lord, I've lived a H— of a life! Please forgive me.'"

Winner of the Lahm Cup.

A. Holland Forbes is the best known of all the American balloonists. With Clifford B. Harmon as his aide, he succeeded in winning the international endurance race from Indianapolis in June, 1909, staying in the air for thirty-six hours. He and Harmon together owned the baloon New York, in which this record was made, Harmon afterward buying Forbes' share. Forbes now pins his faith to his new balloon, "Viking."

It was in the New York, however, that he won the Lahm cup, which he still holds. This he accomplished on Oct. 12, 1909, with Max C. Fleischmann, another millionaire enthusiast, as his aide. They made one of the fastest balloon flights on record, traveling 697.17 miles in 19 hours and 15 minutes.

Forbes is one of the governors of the Aero club of America and is vice president of the Aero corporation, the business end of the club. While ballooning is his favorite sport, he is also a great yachtsman and automobilist, and is one of the best known members of the New York Yacht club. He is a slim, modest-appearing man, with a smile always lurking in the corner of his mouth and with a fund of good humor which seems inexhaustible, especially when he talks of ballooning. He has proved by his ceaseless activity that his love of the air is really a deeply rooted passion and not a mere whim of the moment.

"How many balloon trips have you made?" the writer asked him on one occasion. Forbes shrugged his shoulders and spread out his hands.

"I've lost track," he said. "After your fiftieth you forget to count, and I made my fiftieth long ago."

A talk With Harmon.

Clifford B. Harmon, Forbes' old air traveling partner, is beginning to forsake ballooning in the more thrilling dangers of aeroplaning, but he has not by any means entirely lost his love for the lighter-than-air vehicle. He is in Europe now and he intends to make a number of balloon voyages before the summer is over.

Harmon married a daughter of E. C. Benedict, banker and yachtsman, and Cleveland's great friend, and the father-in-law is said to have offered the darling aeronaut a small fortune to give up ballooning and aeroplaning, but Harmon will not do it. He has gone into it with all the zest that made him a pioneer of the automobile and the motor boat, and that won him many a trophy in big game hunting.

"In ballooning," says Harmon, "all cares leave you. All that is earthy—even the dearest things—even your debts leave you. If you are in any trouble and want to be relieved, my advice is to take a balloon trip. It is the most delicious, quietly peaceful sensation in the world." Harmon has made scores of ascents since going up for the first time about two years ago.

Harmon won his pilot's license very soon after his first trip. This requires ten ascensions, one of which must be made alone. On the final trip by himself, Harmon had many amusing experiences, but the one which he delights most in telling has to do with an honest Connecticut farmer who was ploughing in his fields with a team of horses when the aeronaut, unseen by man or beasts, passed over them.

Harmon was flying low—only a few hundred feet up—and was barely moving with a sluggish breeze. He did not know where he was and he took up his megaphone to ask the man below him.

A. HOLLAND FORBES, WHO SPENT MUCH OF HIS TIME NAVIGATING THE AIR

A. BOND LAMBERT, LEADING BALLOONIST OF ST. LOUIS

PROF. A. LAWRENCE ROTCH, WHO IS A BALLOONIST FOR SCIENCE SAKE.

COLGATE HOYT, RAILROAD MAGNATE, WHO HAS HAD ADVENTURES IN THE AIR

"Giddap!" shouted the farmer to the team and the horses started.

"Whoa!" called Harmon through his megaphone and the horses stopped.

The farmer gazed all about the field to find the man who was playing the joke on him. No one was in sight.

"Giddap!" he ordered again and again the team started.

"Whoa!" called Harmon and the horses stopped.

This time the farmer was evidently getting angry. He looked long and earnestly in all directions except upward; he walked in a wide circle about his plow searching the fields and distant woods and then, muttering to himself and shaking his puzzled head, he returned to his work.

"Giddap!" he commanded.

"Whoa!" said Harmon, and once more the horses stopped.

This time the farmer located the source of the voice and turned a scowling face upward.

"How far am I from Pittsfield?" asked Harmon politely.

The farmer's reply was long and voluble and extremely expressive, but it was not fit for publication.

"You come up here and do it!" dared Harmon.

"You come down here and I will!" shouted the angry farmer. So Harmon slowly drifted away, but as long as he was in sight the son of toil stood shaking his fist and shouting the direst kind of threats at the aeronaut.

An Adventure in the Mountains.

Some time ago, at Los Angeles, Harmon was asked to make an ascension in the New York for the purpose of setting records for the coast to spur local aeronauts to greater activity. With his friend George B. Harrison, he rose, but found that the only wind they could get was blowing them toward the ocean, only twelve or fourteen miles away. Harmon believed that there must be an upper current that would blow them east, so he threw over ballast and in twenty-six minutes they had risen to a height of 11,200 feet.

They found the air current that they wanted. Over the mountains they flew and then, below them, there spread the limitless desert, with not a chance of relief if they landed in it. Harmon valved quickly, and they dropped in twenty-four minutes to within 600 feet of the earth, where the aeronaut, always experimenting, tried to see how quickly he could check the descent. This he did when they were within 350 feet of the ground and again they rose to a height of 2,000 feet to pick out a landing place.

Beneath them, in the darkness that descends without any twilight in California, they made out mountains with a great canyon going through them. Through this they went at the rate of 35 miles an hour, with lights from the houses twinkling miles away, but not a sign of life ahead of them.

Suddenly they saw the glare of an automobile headlight thrown on an open field.

"Land here!" shouted a voice. "It's the only open spot around."

They had only six bags of ballast left and they had to act quickly. Harmon valved and shouted to Harrison to pull the ripping cord.

"She won't rip!" yelled Harrison, and they found they had both been hauling on the same rope. Down through trees and telegraph wires they plunged and brought up with a bump on the third story gable of a house, with the balloon and netting thrown over the roof and holding them up. They heard screams within and finally the gable window opened and the man of the house admitted them. The women and children were gathered in a room below, all on their knees praying to be saved from the earthquake that they thought had struck their house.

The Boy Who Realized His Ambition.

Twenty years ago or more Philadelphia was the centre of ballooning activity in this country. Fairmount Park, the great public playground of that city, was the scene every summer of ascensions by Wise, Kling, Donaldson and the redaubtable Squire McMullen, the local political dictator who went up regularly on the Fourth of July.

On theseo ceastions the most fascinated spectator was a little boy, twelve to fifteen years of age, who could not be kept back among the crowd, but who insisted in spite of all, in edging up to the aeronauts and piping:

"Say, mister, won't you please take me with you?"

He was invariably forcibly ejected from the magic circle and invariably he blubbered through his tears:

"You wait until I'm big enough. I'll do it anyhow."

The boy was Arthur T. Atherholt, today one of the best known amateur balloonists in this country. He has kept his threat and has "done it anyhow," but he had one experience which brought back to his memory with tragic significance the men whom, as a boy, he had almost worshiped in Fairmount park. This was on his third ascent, which was the one that made Atherholt a national figure in aeronautics. It was made with Maj. Henry B. Hersey in the balloon United States in the international race for the Gordon Bennett trophy from St. Louis, Oct. 21, 1907.

Lieut. Lahm and Hersey had won the international race from Paris the year before and had brought the contest to this country. Lahm himself intended to pilot the balloon and Hersey, who had been in charge of the Walter Wellman balloon polar expedition, came down from Tromsoe to Paris only to find Lahm helpless with typhoid fever.

"You take the balloon to America," said Lahm, and find the best man you can to be your aide."

Hersey came over and the officials of the Aearo club of America advised him to get Atherholt. BEMIDJI

Bemidji, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Stanton was at Bagley Tuesday, where he held a special term of court for the purpose of considering a number of court cases. Six cases, in all, were considered, and the judge worked until well into Wednesday night and part of Thursday forenoon to speedily complete the same and oblige a number of attorneys.

The summer school continues with a large attendance and interest growing daily. A. P. Ritchie of Bemidji, the conductor, and County Supt. Ritchie express themselves as being very well pleased with this year's summer school, which is participated in jointly by Beltrami, Hubbard and Koochiching counties.

Mrs. J. M. Keefe and daughter Alice of Cass Lake were the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Rutledge.

The summer colonies at Lakeside, Lavinia, Grand Forks bay and Bass lake are growing in numbers, and the transients who only live here during the hot months are greatly enjoying their outings. There is some complaint, however, that the water in the lake is lower than it has been for several years, and the digging of the channel at the Mississippi outlet has been responsible for considerable of the fall of the water, making it necessary for a number of the summer resorters to anchor their gasoline launches a considerable distance from shore, owing to shallow water.

While there has been but little rain to speak of in the immediate vicinity of Remidji, yet the hay and other crops are looking fairly well. However, if the dry spell continues much longer, considerable damage must necessarily ensue. The sugar beets, of which there was a large quantity planted for demonstration purposes this fall, are thriving quite well, but the dry spell has affected them somewhat, and the crop will not be quite as good as has been expected.

The outdoor concerts given by the Bemidji band are the talk of the city. On several occasions of late Mrs. Matthews, a member of the vaudeville team, who own a summer cottage and spend their vacations here, has sung solos, with band accompaniment, and visitors to the city who have heard both the singing and the accompaniment and the general playing of the band, have been loud in their praise of Prof. Harry Masten, director, and the entire membership of the band. The band is playing the very latest in band selections, and no old-timers are played, except by special request. Bemidji is certainly proud of Director Masten and his band.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

REAL ESTATE DEALERS ARE MORE OPTIMISTIC

Big Deal for West Duluth Dock Property Is Pending.

Eastern Capital Said to Be Coming to Duluth Market.

Real estate men have been a little more optimistic this week and things are looking brighter on the horizon than they have for the past two months. The summer tourist season is one of the reasons for this, and the real estate men have been getting in some good work conducting the summer people around town. Considerable interest is shown and a number of deals are said to be pending as the result of work among this class of trade.

What may turn out to be one of the biggest realty deals of the summer is under way and will probably go through next week. Eastern parties are negotiating with the West Duluth Land company for the purchase of a large quantity of dockage property in West Duluth with the ultimate object of erecting coal docks there at a cost of upwards of half a million dollars. There are two parties seeking land in this section of the city, and the West Duluth Land company owns practically all of the dock property west of the ore docks, with the exception of two parcels owned by the Alger-Smith company and the Lowry estate. The deal has not gone far enough yet to permit the land company to give out the names of the purchasers

The Prince Rupert Land company, which has been selling farming lands in British Columbia here during the week on easy terms, reported a total sale of 6,000 acres up to last night. The land is sold on very easy terms, $1 per acre down. The sale will close this evening.

Most of the sales of the week have been for home builders rather than for speculation, and there have been an increasing number of inquiries along these lines which are expected to develop into deals within the next few days. The home builder is by far the most important factor in the realty market this week.

* * *

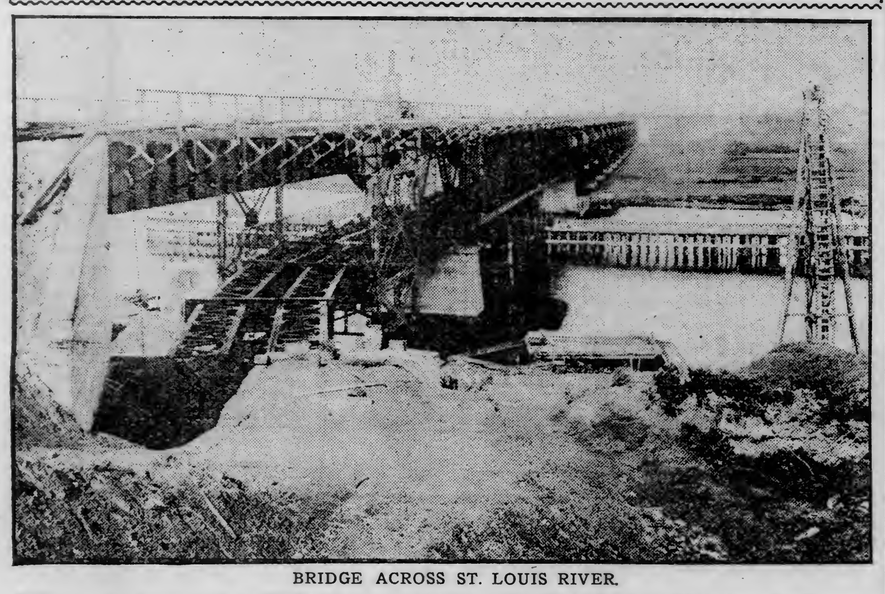

The sale of a number of large blocks of land in the Lakeside district is reported this week and the real estate men say that values in the far eastern section of the city are looking up.

Altogether the offices report a more hopeful outlook this week than for some time past. There have been a number of Eastern parties in the city during the week looking up available real estate for Eastern and Chicago land companies and it is understood that there is to be a large amount

SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE OF THE GROWTH OF IMMENSE STEEL PLANT FOR DULUTH

BRIDGE ACROSS ST. LOUIS RIVER.

PERMANENT OFFICE BUILDING.

CONCRETE FACTORY.

Building operations on the site of the new steel plant at New Duluth are progressing steadily. The photographs reproduced above show the completed belt line bridge spanning the St. Louis river from the Minnesota to the Wisconsin side; the completed concrete building material factory and the completed office building.

The bridge is one of the most interesting engineering structures in the West and will play an important part in the development of Duluth as "the Pittsburg of the West." Over it will be run the trains that will transport tons upon tons of manufactured steel for distribution throughout the Middle, South and Northwest, where steel structural work will be carried on in the future to an extent that it never has been in the past.

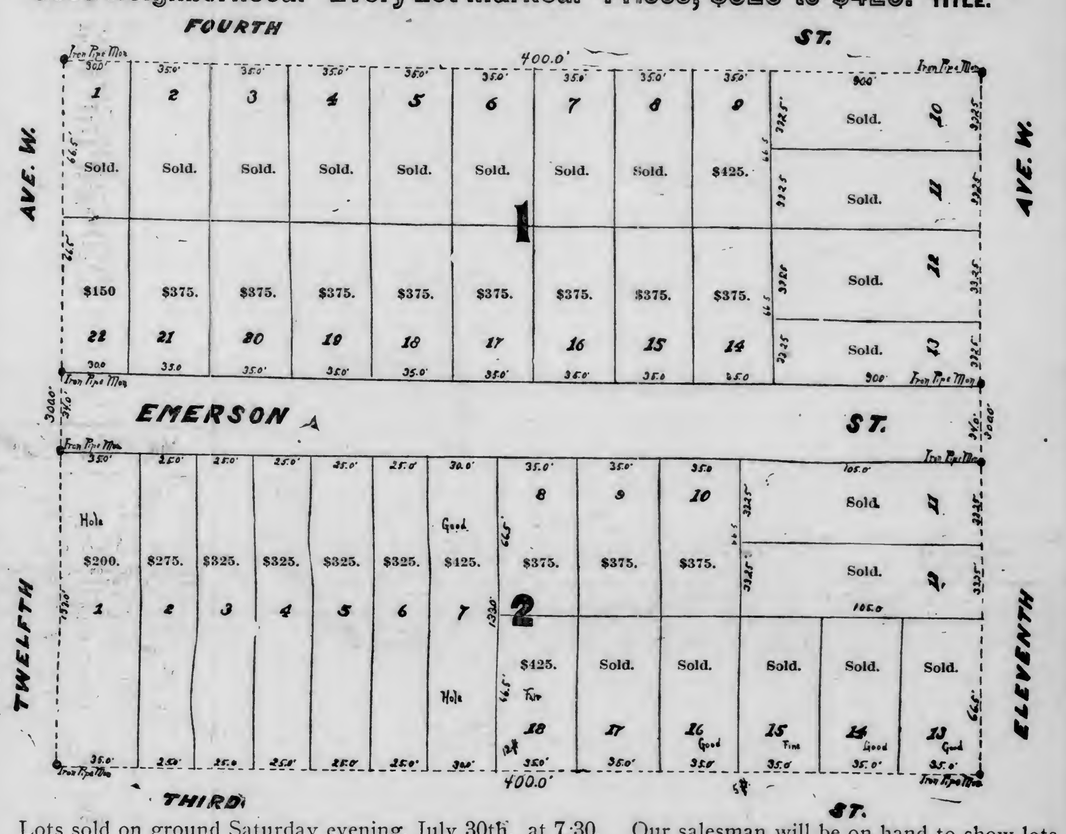

The concrete factory is that part of the coming plant which will make it possible for the plant to build itself. Here will be turned out the concrete blocks that will be used in the construction of the massive structures that remain to be built.

The office building is but the beginning of the administrative headquarters. Much more housing must be provided later, but this structure will serve for the time being and later will be but a part of the larger scheme.

The remainder of the permits were for frame and brick dwellings of moderate costs.

Victor Dash and son announced their intention this week of beginning the construction of twenty-five cheap, but comfortable cottages for workingmen in the vicinity of the steel plant. This work will probably be commenced in the near future. The demand for building in the steel plant vicinity is already great.

of outside money invested here in the near future.

Work is going on steadily but not hurriedly at the Steel plant site. The big bridge is nearly completed and the power plant which has been in operation for some time is proving of material assistance in the work. Contracts have been let to different parties for the construction of cottages for the workers at the plant, as every available shelter at Smithville, Spirit Lake and New Duluth has been snapped up and some of the workmen are obliged to leave their families in town and live in tents for the summer. It is said that twenty houses will be erected in the near future.

Both the Lakeside Land company and the Duluth Building & Land company report a brisk inquiry in regard to their home-building, installment plan contracts and have several deals pending. The last week home-seekers in these offices have averaged two and three a day.

* * *

The money situation is reported somewhat better than last week and reports from crop conditions are bearish. Indications point to an early opening up in the fall to make up for the early summer dullness on the market.

ROLL IS SO BIG DIP GETS PINCHED

Pickpocket Cannot Get Money Out of Chicagoan's Pocket.

Chicago, July 23.—A pickpocket who followed and attempted to rob Charles Johnson, a contractor, after the latter had drawn a considerable amount of money from a bank, got his hand tangled in his intended victim's pocket, and as a result was overpowered and arrested.

"They would have got the money, only the 'roll' was too big," Johnson smilingly said. "The man could not get it out of my pocket."

Drown in Lake Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., July 23.—Paul E. Findlay of Ottawa, Ont., and Charles Orman of Selkirk, Man., were drowned in Lake Winnipeg today when their canoe upset. Four others were rescued.

COPPERS HAVE DULL SESSION

Decline After Opening Is Followed By Rally---Trading Is Light.

The copper market opened strong, declined, rallied and marked time until the close which was about on a par with the opening. The industrials were weak, but the copper market displayed more strength and closed with a moderately good undertone. There was some evening up in the face of the holiday.

Curtailment of copper production continues and it is likely that the period of curtailment will extend into next year and probably will be enforced through most if not all of it. Several thousand men have been let off in the Butte district and the indicated reduction thus far is about 3,000 tons a day. The Never Sweat mine of the Anaconda company, the Parrott of the Parrott company and the Rarus of the Butte Coalition have been closed.

Amalgamated sold at $59.50, $58.87½, $59.50; Steel common at $66.87½, $65.87½, $66.50, $65.50 and $65.62½; Butte Balaklava at $11.75; Giroux at $6.62½, $6.75 and $6.62½; Greene at $6.87½; Calumet & Arizona at $49, $50 to $49.25; North Butte at $23, $23.62½, $23.37½.

Trading here was light. Butte & Superior was the most active stock. It sold at $1.18⅜ and $1.12½. Calumet & Montana sold at $7 and 86c. Carman sold at 75c; Cliff at $1.12½; Shattuck at $32.62½ and Red Warrior at $1.62½.

WOULD MAKE GOOD DETECTIVE

Patrolman Gilbert Did and Alleged Fortune Teller Is Arrested.

Feeling the bumps on the head of Patrolman Gilbert with deft fingers, Mrs. Anna Hawkes, an alleged clairvoyant, stated with conviction in her tone, "You would make a good detective," according to the police.

This was several days ago, in her sumptuously furnished apartment at 724 West First street. This morning she was arrested on information secured by the patrolman and Officer Rothie charged her with telling fortunes without a license.

With tears running down her cheeks she detailed her guilt when arraigned in municipal court. Her trial was fixed for next Tuesday afternoon.

It appears that reports had reached police headquarters that Mrs. Hawkes was telling fortunes at the above address. To ascertain the facts Chief Troyer sent the two policemen in plain clothes to investigate.

It is stated at headquarters that Mrs. Hawkes adopted the approved method of spirit mediums, going into a "trance" and talking through an Indian spirit from another world. It is asserted that she claimed much power for the Indian "spirite," crediting it with the ability to inform her of all harm intended for any of her clients. It is stated that she preceded the "trance" with several distinct snaps of the fingers.

The officers say that when they rapped for admittance Mrs. Hawkes looked them over carefully, finally admitting them with the remark that she is not making a business of telling fortunes as a license fee of $50 is required but that they looked "all right."

DECLINE ON BEAR NEWS

Wheat Values Go Down on Reports of Rain in Northwest.

Flax Weakens and Loses During Short Session Are Heavy.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 23.—Conditions throughout the world today were directly opposite to factors which have governed wheat markets within the last several weeks. Conditions in this country, so far as their direct effect was concerned, were bearish and conditions abroad were bullish. This paradox was due primarily to climatic conditions in the wheat growing states of the Northwest, Canada, France and Southwestern Russia. In the spring wheat states of the Northwest rains were general. Showers fell in Manitoba and heavy rains in Alberta and Saskatchewan. France, according to the present outlook, will not grow three-fourths of a crop. The French situation caused the Paris market to close higher and thus influenced a higher close at Liverpool. Reports from Southwestern Russia were more favorable.

Wheat opened easy on this array of climatic conditions and values declined steadily. Toward the close values rallied when there was some profit-taking from people who sold on the bulges earlier in the week. July wheat lost 2c, September 1⅞c, December 1⅛c and May 1⅛c.

The most important factor in the market was the presence of a low barometer over the Northwestern states and the Canadian provinces which resulted in more or less heavy rains. Winnipeg reported rain this noon and the precipitation is said to have extended as far westward as Regina. In Southern Manitoba showers were widespread and rains were heavy in Alberta and Saskatchewan, especially in the southern portions where moisture was most needed.

There was not much rain in Southern Minnesota, but showers fringed the eastern region of the Red river valley and extended as far east as the Mesaba range. Fargo, N. D., reported that what appeared to be a heavy rain started to fall shortly before noon after a slight shower early in the day. From Devils Lake north and west rain was falling heavily early this afternoon. The northern tier of counties in North Dakota got scattered showers. In the northwestern part of North Dakota the rain was heavy, some stations reporting more than an inch. Rain fell nearly all of last night at Minot and a message today said the skies had not begun to clear. Bismarck reported a moderate rain. From Glenwood to Enderlin the rain was moderate. The southwestern part of South Dakota got a heavy precipitation which in some instances amounted nearly to two inches. Eastern South Dakota had not received more than a few slight showers up to late this morning. From the northern part of South Dakota The Herald failed to receive any messages. Private dispatches said a few showers were light.

The government's forecast is for fair and cooler weather for the western part of the spring wheat belt and cloudy weather with thunder storms for the eastern and southern portions tonight and tomorrow.

A report from Comstock, Minn., told of black rust but the discovery did not make much impression on the trade. Farmers near Comstock are about ready to harvest their grain. The bulls were not averse to the wet weather and hope to see more of it, as they think a wet harvest will help their cause. They believe, and with considerable justification, that the spring wheat damage has been done and that all remains is to thresh the crop and get an accurate record of the damages. No amount of rain, they think, can help the Northwestern crop, although moisture may aid in the filling out of some of the late sown wheat.

Some elevators sold September wheat today and there was considerable liquidation from people who did not care to go over Sunday with a line of wheat on their hands. Minneapolis reported that they were selling December wheat probably against their purchases of winter. Duluth has taken some No. 2 and No. 3 northern and velvet chaff from Minneapolis which has been instrumental in causing a reduction of wheat stocks in the Mill City. The winter wheat movement has been heavy but the total volume has not been as large as at this time last year. That phase of the movement has disappointing to the bears, who looked forward to heavier pressure on values from hedging sales. With good weather in the Southwest, however, the movement of winter wheat should be heavy this week and the total volume, the bears hope, will break last year's record up to the close of the month. The effect of the winter wheat movement got some attention today but its influence was eclipsed by another bearish factor, the precipitation in the Northwest.

The Northwestern Miller estimates the spring wheat crop in the three states at between 140,000,000 and 150,000,000 bu and the Commercial West thinks the yield may be as low as 125,000,000 and as high as 150,000,000 bushels.

The flax market was a sick proposition. The professionals soon awoke to the fact that the rains in the Northwest seemed to be general in the heavy flax producing territory. In fact the big flax counties in Northwestern North Dakota got a heavy rain and the flax area in the central and north central portions got moderate rains. While this moisture probably will not do wheat any good yet it came at a critical time in the growth of the flax crop and undoubtedly did it inestimable good.

Confirmation of this came from the country which forwarded more selling orders than have been received in this market from a legitimate standpoint in many days. Winnipeg was easy and the bulls had to step aside while values shot downward. Increased receipts here had a sentimental effect, also, July flax lost 12c; September, 9½c; October, 7½c and November, 7½c.

All grains were weaker except rye and barley which were unchanged.

MARKET GOSSIP

Shandre, Alberta, wired The Herald: Crops in this neighborhood are fair. In Northern Alberta, north of the C. N. R., wheat will show a good yield. Lately there has been an abundant rain and wheat and oats are filling in good shape.

A dispatch to The Herald from Carman, Man., said: A field of Hungarian red wheat, a new bearded variety, has been cut near here. It made 18 bu. to the acre. In an ordinary year it would have made from 25 to 30 bu. to the acre. It stood the test of the drouth and the hot winds in a remarkable manner. The seed came from the Argentine Republic.

Forecast: Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with local thunder storms tonight or Sunday, continued warm. Indiana—Unsettled weather with thunder showers tonight or Sunday. Missouri—Generally fair weather, except local thunder storms in east portion tonight or Sunday, cooler in northwest portion. Minnesota—Thunder showers tonight and Sunday, cooler in south and west portions. Iowa — Partly cloudy with thunder storms tonight or Sunday in east and central portions. North Dakota, Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas—Fair tonight and Sunday cooler.

Broomhall cabled—The wheat market at the opening was under pressure of increased offerings prompted by the weakness in Winnipeg and more favorable reports from Russia and values were off ⅝d to ¾d. Following the opening the market developed a very firm undertone and values advanced ¾d to ⅞d with shorts nervous and some buying by early sellers. This buying was prompted by further damage reports from France and the continued urgent demand from the continent. Shipments were expected to again be under requirements and further likely decrease in the visible supply. The advance was checked by the easy closing of the Paris market. At the close the market was firm and excited with values ¼ higher than yesterday. Corn—The market at the opening was ¼ lower on the decline in America, but later September advanced ¼ on the continued good inquiry for La Plata parcels. Our agent at Odessa cabled that the weather in the southeast has become cooler with light scattered showers and this will help to relieve the drought.

Finlay Barrell's special reports follow: Argentine—An increased acreage is being plowed to wheat and flax. Weather conditions favorable. United Kingdom—Weather cool, wet and unfavorable. Europe—Conditions are satisfactory in all of the countries reporting, except France and Roumania; where weather is being experienced, and interfering with harvesting. Russia—World's wheat markets have been greatly excited by reports of damage from Russia. Broomhall's agent reports, harvesting winter wheat in Southwest, heavy rains in Crimea with much damage. South center all crops below average; Volga district and southeast extreme hot weather causing poor outlook. Private reports received from Russia do not agree with Broomhall's advices and claim that no damage has resulted so far. Russian news is a very uncertain quantity at best. United States—Spring wheat. During the past week, general rains fell in the Canadian Northwest, but this side of the border only a few scattered showers are reported, although the weather turned cool, which was more favorable to the filling grain. Our Mr. Le Count, in a trip through North Dakota early in the week, reported that the grain shows some slight signs of recuperation, but that rains came too late to increase the yield. Cutting has commenced in sections of South Dakota, and will be general in the Northwest during the coming week, and the history of the spring wheat crop of the three Northwestern states for this year is practically written. We do not believe that the final outturn will much exceed Mr. Le Count's figures of 146,000,000 bu. Mr. Kinyon in the Canadian Northwest finds that in spite of the rains, the crop, even with the better condition north of the Canadian Pacific main line, will be a short one, and his estimate of 75,000,000 to 85,000,000 bu still stands.

Winter wheat: Harvesting has reached the northern limits of the belt and yields are exceeding expectations in Illinois and Indiana heavy rains were experienced while wheat was in shock.

Corn: During the past week, after the heavy rains recorded in Central and Southern Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Missouri, the weather turned cool throughout the belt, which was favorable to the drought districts in Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Northern Illinois. Since then the weather has begun to warm up, and advices received by wire and mail from the belt, indicates that unless general rains fall in the next few days damage will become widespread. Five counties in Northern Oklahoma are reported to have suffered a loss of one-half the corn from drought, heat and chinch bugs, and drought damage may be expected in Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Northern Illinois unles general rains are recorded. Our Mr. Howard has entered Iowa and finds corns there healthy and in fine shape, but at least two or three weeks late. Farmers acknowledge that their corn is generally "laid by" by July 4, while this year corn will not be "laid by" until the 23rd or 25th. From his advices and those of our correspondents we believe that corn is menaced by two important dangers—the first is drought and the second frost. The dry summer and the deficiency of moisture throughout the belt does not tell upon the plant at the present time, but when it begins to ear out the lack of moisture will become apparent. The crop is late and uneven and should drought be broken effectually it will require until Oct. 1, without frost, to mature the corn.

Broomhall estimates that the world's wheat shipments next week will be under weekly requirements.

* * *

A. D. Thompson received a message from Ryecroft, New York, who said that crop conditions in France has been seriously injured and that the situation can be regarded as another "bull card."

Duluth car inspection: Wheat—No. 1 hard, 2; No. 1 northern, 7; No. 2 northern, 19; No. 3 northern, 3; No. 4, 1; no grade, 3; total wheat, 60, last year, 4; flax, 10, last year, 8; barley, 20, last year,1; total, 90; on track, 55.

Discussing weather conditions over the crop belt during the last week, the Cincinnatti Price Current says:

"Weather conditions are favorable for growing corn and vegetation. Thrashing was delayed in central regions by rain. Some complaints of winter wheat sprouting in the shock, but only to a moderate extent.

"Thrashing results continue to exceed early expectations as to quality and quantity. The general condition of spring wheat fails to show much improvement. Rainfall is still deficient. Corn is growing rapidly; color good and growth healthy. Oats are about ready to cut, filling well, and an excellent crop is expected."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Corn Prices Soar While Wheat Turns Downward.

Chicago, July 23.—Wheat and corn parted company today. The former seemed bent on a downward course; corn soared. Rains in the Canadian Northwest were chiefly responsible for the weakness of the wheat market. Opinion was somewhat general that all the damage possible to the crop this side of the international boundary had been done. That the injury had been fully discounted was not so freely conceded. Absence of definite fresh developments on the bull side of the European crop situation operated as a bear factor here, especially as the drouth in Russia was reported to have been partly relieved by showers. The market opened unchanged to ⅝@¾c lower with September covering the entire range at $1.05¼ to $1.05⅝. After touching $1.05¼, the price rallied to $1.06, but suffered a new decline to $1.05½.

Country acceptances of bids for wheat were large, principally from Illinois and Indiana, much of it for shipment today. Accordingly the market continued weak except a slight show of firmness at the windup. September closed ⅛c to ¼c net lower at $1.05⅝@¾ to $1.05¾.

Liberal purchases by some of the larger local speculators and by pit traders stimulated corn. Rain had failed to show where expected in the corn belt, and there was no lack of eagerness to take advantage of the fact. The resulting advance, however, met with active selling by a leading operator and by others. The market started unchanged to ⅝c up with September at 62⅜c to 62⅝c last night's figures to ⅛c above. A rise to 63⅜c was followed by a reaction to 63⅛c.

Lethargy characterized the last half of the day. The close was steady at 62¾c to 62⅞c for September, a net gain of ¼@⅜c to ⅜@½c.

Country selling kept down oats. September opened ⅛@¼ off at 39½c, sold at 39c, and recovered to 39¼@⅜c.

Lack of buying orders let hog products fall. At the outset, the loss was 5c to 17½c and further declines ensued. First sales in the September option were at $21.57½ for pork, $11.75 for lard, and $11.60 for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices Continue to Fall on News of Rains.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 23.—Wheat today registered further declines on account of the continued optimistic sentiment and the fact that there was a liberal rainfall in the Northwest, both this and the other side of the border. Minneapolis today received 165 cars of wheat against 76 cars a year ago, Duluth 60 cars against 4 and Winnipeg 146 against 37 cars. July opened $1.25⅜; high, $1.25⅜; low, $1.24¾; closed, $1.25. Cotton Market.

New York, July 23.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 7 points, the new crop positions being relatively firm on covering of shorts and bull support inspired by better cables than due, talk of a better demand for cotton goods and the continued bullishness of crop accounts from the Eastern belt. There seemed to be some scattering liquidation of old crop positions, which sold off to a net loss of about 4@18 points during the early session, but the crop was evidently attracting a good demand on slight setbacks and held some 2 to 4 points net higher.

Futures closed near easy; distant firm; closing bids: July, 15.79; August, 15.24; September, 13.78; October, 13.19; November, 13.05; December, 13.03; January, 12.99; February, 13.01; March, 12.05; May, 13.05. DECLINES IN STOCKS

Selling Pressure Renewed and Losses Registered in All Directions:

Close Weak at About Lowest Prices of the Session.

New York, July 23.—Selling pressure was renewed at the opening of the stock market today and losses were registered in all directions. All classes of stocks were affected in about equal degree. Canadian Pacific was notably weak with a decline of 2¾. International Pump last 1½, Northern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper and National Lead 1¼, Southern Pacific, St. Paul and Brooklyn Transit a point and Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, United States Steel and Central Leather large fractions. There was some evidence of support in Reading, that stock rallying to a fractional gain after opening down a shade.

In the free outpouring of stocks there were losses of 1½ to 2 points in Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, Rock Island preferred, Southern Railway preferred, Texas & Pacific, American Car, International Harvester and others. National Lead lost 2 and United States Steel fell below 66. Supporting orders for the latter stocks rallied the list and there were recoveries running to a point or more, American Smelting rose a point over last night. Prices wavered on the rally.

The market closed weak and rather dull. Trading became active again on a decline in Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Louis Southwestern and Pressed Steel Car fell 2½, Southern Pacific 2⅜, Denver & Rio Grande 2¾, the preferred 2, and Erie, Wabash preferred and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1⅞ to 1¾. The general list met support at about the limits of the previous decline and rallies followed. Prices sagged back in some cases to the lowest.

OHIO PARTY MUSS WAITS ON GARFIELD

Republican Factions Look to Him to Decide Compromise.

Majority of Delegates to the State Convention Are Unpledged.

Judge Brown and the Former Secretary Both May Be Dropped.

Columbus, Ohio, July 25.—The Republican leaders and delegates who are here for the state convention of the Republican party were today frankly awaiting word from James R. Garfield, the leader of the "progressives." Although the first session of the convention will be held tomorrow and the nominations will be made Wednesday, the leaders are as far from an agreement upon a candidate for governor as they were a month ago.

As the great majority of the delegates are unpledged, the state leaders are greatly interested in the number of votes which Mr. Garfield will claim for the "progressive" camp. It is considered that this will have a direct bearing upon the platform to be adopted, and hence upon the candidate for governor.

Differ In Indorsements.

The only considerable divergence between the platform suggested by Mr. Garfield three weeks ago and that outlined last night by Wade H. Ellis, one of the "regular" leaders and a friend of the president, is in the indorsement of the present national administration and the recently enacted tariff law, which Mr. Ellis insisted upon. It was admittedly hoped that a basis of agreement might be reached on an outline such as that indicated by Mr. Ellis.

The fight of the "progressives" has been thus far wholly for an advanced platform, and it is expected that Mr. Garfield will indicate how far the suggestions made by Mr. Ellis for an extension of referendum and other state

SUMMING UP IN FISHERIES CASE

Lawyers at The Hague Present Claims as to Newfoundland.

The Hague, July 25.—The long-drawn-out arguments in the Newfoundland fisheries case before the arbitration tribunal reached the summing up stage today. Sir W. S. Robson, the British attorney general, will conclude the case for Great Britain and United States Senator Elihu Root will close for the United States.

Sir William, who has the first say, will occupy the present week. In opening he took the questions before the tribunal seriatim and denied in toto the claims that the United States exercised any sovereignty over the fishing grounds.

GET RICH FROM OLD RAIL FENCES

Tennessee Men Are Selling the Rails to Be Made Into Pencils.

Nashville, Tenn., July 25.—The old-fashioned red cedar rail fences of middle Tennessee now furnish the world's main supply of cedar pencils, according to information received here today from big pencil makers who have mills in this state's cedar district. Statistics at hand also indicate that these fences are the sole remaining source from which to make the best grade, smooth whittling cedar pencil so well known to every schoolboy.

Descendants of the rail-splitting farmers of Abraham Lincoln's time are selling their cedar fences for what their forefathers would have considered fabulous sums. The selling price of such a fence will build four up-to-date wire fences of equal length. In exceptional instances even better bargains have been driven.

BRITISH CRUISER ON WAY TO BLUEFIELDS.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 25. — The British cruiser Sycila sailed last night for Bluefields, Nicaragua, under orders to protect British interests at that port, which is in the possession of the insurgents. It was Commander Thesiger of the Sycila, who, on Jan. 7, forbade the insurgents to attack Greytown on the ground that neutral interests would be imperilled. Subsequently the cruiser withdrew from the Nicaraguan coast and later returned to the vicinity of Greytown and Bluefields. She came to this port on June 17.

TWO MEN KILLED IN ERIE WRECK IN OHIO.

Niles, Ohio, July 25. — Engineer George Navers and Brakeman William A. Redout of an east bound Erie freight train, were instantly killed this morning when the freight plunged through a switch, one mile west of here. The engine, tender and one car overturned in the ditch along the track. Navers' body will be taken to his home in Randall. Redout lived in Cleveland.

TAKES ANOTHER STEP UP LADDER

ALBION M. FENTON.

FENTON IS PROMOTED

Duluth Man Becomes Assistant General Freight Agent of Omaha.

Rise From Messenger Boy Has Been a Rapid One.

Albion M. Fenton, for the past four years district freight and passenger agent of the Omaha railroad at Duluth, received notice this morning of his appointment to the position of assistant general freight agent with headquarters at Minneapolis.

All day he has been the recipient of congratulations and wishes of the best success from his many Duluth friends, while telegrams from co-workers on this road, as well as from railroad men of other companies, have been coming to him in large numbers.

Railroad men of the city who learned of his new appointment were well pleased over his promotion, although sorry to see him leave the city.

The new position carries with it many arduous and difficult tasks, but his many friends who have watched his success in the Duluth office, and have noted the many improvements in the Duluth branch, are confident that he will be equal to them.

This evening Mr. Fenton will leave for Minneapolis, which will be his new headquarters, and tomorrow morning he will assume the new duties, although he does not actually take the position until Aug. 1.

Mr. Fenton's rise in railroad circles is considered remarkable by the many friends who have known him from his boyhood. Beginning twenty-six years ago as messenger boy for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company, in the little town of Rice Lake, Wis., Mr. Fenton, who is still a

MAY TRY TO LYNCH NEGRO IN INDIANA

Dying Man Identifies Colored Man as His Assailant.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 25.—George H. Lints, lying in a dying condition at the hospital from a bullet fired last night by a burglar, has positively identified Albert McGowan, a negro; as the man who shot him. After the arrest and identification, McGovern was taken to jail and there is a growing fear that an attempt may be made to lynch him. Men are gathering here and there on the street corners and the sheriff is preparing to defend the jail.

EX-MAYOR IS FINED FOR FIXING SCALES

James Bready of Antler, N. D., Given Chance to Appeal.

Bottineau, N. D., July 25. — Special to The Herald.) — Ex-Mayor James Bready of Antler, was found guilty in the district court of Bottineau county on the charge of "doctoring" the scales in his elevator. The trial was before Judge Burr and excited great interest, as it was claimed that the complaint was lodged through spite work. Bready was given a fine of $50 and was granted a stay of ten days in which he may take an appeal.

"PILL" USERS BARRED FROM FIREMEN'S JOBS.

Canton, Ohio, July 25.—Cigarette smokers are now barred from becoming city firemen in Canton under an order issued by Chief Robert O. Mesnar.

"Men who use cigarettes may be all right in brain power, but they lack physical stamina and nerve," said Chief Mesnar in discussing the matter. He added:

"The fire department service requires men who have plenty of strength, with the brain to use it properly and the nerve to make the brain use the muscle in the face of certain or possible death."

SOCIETY IS LIQUIDATED

New York Court Issues Order on People's Mutual Society.

First Large Insurance Company Affected By New Law.

Albany, N. Y., July 25.—Judge Andrews, sitting at a special term of the supreme court at Syracuse, has approved the report of William Hotchkiss, superintendent of insurance, and has directed the payment of a first dividend of 60 per cent to the certificate holders of the People's Mutual Life Insurance Association and League. This dividend will be paid by insurance department checks mailed to members at their home addreses. The issue of dividend checks will begin Aug. 1, and it is estimated that the work of making the payments to the 38,333 members will take about two months for its completion.

The People's Mutual came into public notice in December, 1909, as a result of an attempt on the part of its board of directors to transfer the control of the society and of its $3,000,000 of assets for a consideration of about $150,000.

This is the first liquidation of a large insurance company under the new law, requiring departmental administration instead of receivership through court proceedings.

AGED ADMIRAL HAS YOUNG BRIDE

Yankee in Mikado's Service and Miss Roche Are Married.

Boston, Mass., July 25.—Japan's "Yankee Admiral" Henry Walton Grinnell, was married today to Miss Florence Mary Roche, daughter of the late James Jeffery Roche, the well known author. The ceremony was performed in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Cross, in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

Admiral Grinnell is 74 years old and was an intimate friend of the father of the bride, who is 25 years old. Admiral Grinnell served with Farragut at Mobile bay and later was in the naval service of one of the South American republics. Still later he was advisor of the Japanese naval establishment, previous to the Chino-Japanees war, and for his services in that war was made admiral in the mikado's fleet.

TOYO KISEN KAISHA MAY JOIN WITH GOULD.

New York, July 25.—Whether the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, better known as the Oriental Steamship company, will continue its present relations with the Harriman system or form a new alliance with the Gould interests probably will be known definitely in a few days. A series of conferences will be held here in which M. Shirashi, director of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, will take a leading part.

Nine Deaths Are Laid to Hot Sunday in Greater New York.

Chicago Has One Day With Temperature at 102 Degrees.

New York, July 25.—After its record rise to 94 deg. yesterday, marking the hottest day of the season, the official mercury hovered above or not far beneath the 80 mark all night, registering a minimum of 78, and at 8 o'clock this morning standing at 79, or 2 deg. above the figures for the same hour on Sunday. The prospects were for another sizzling day, although something of a breeze from the southwest and a less percentage

BERNIER SEEKING FAMOUS PASSAGE

Canadian Explorer Will Claim Land for British Empire.

Ottawa, Ont., July 25.—Capt. Bernier, the Canadian polar navigator, is now en route to Canadian Arctic waters with the government's permission to attempt the Northwest passage and bring his vessel around to Victoria, B. C., a feat which was unsuccessfully tried by Peary, Ross, Franklin and other navigators during the last century.

Capt. Bernier sailed from Quebec on the steamer Arctic, under sealed orders last month. A letter has been received from him at the department of marine, dated Chateau Bay, off the Labrador coast, July 12. Attached to this letter was a memorandum giving the program of his two-year cruise.

Will Claim Sovereignty.

En route, Capt. Bernier will assert British and Canadian sovereignty over all the islands in the North, many of which have not been visited except by the early explorers. He also will investigate the rumors of coal, lignite and other mineral deposits at various points in the north.

The last time the northwest passage was made was in 1854 by McClure. He, however, did not bring his vessel through, but walked across the ice to Melville island.

Capt. Amundson's voyage of four years ago was via the Southern passage, south of Victoria Island.

DIAMOND FOUND THAT WEIGHS 191 KARATS.

New York, July 25.—A report has reached Malden Lane from Johannesburg, South Africa, of the finding of another large diamond at the mines there. The gem is said to weigh more than 191 carats and is described as a pure white stone, flawless and measuring two inches long by about three-fourths of an inch thick. It is estimated to be worth $150,000 uncut. When cut it will be worth at least $200,000.

FOUR BREAK OUT OF JAIL IN OHIO

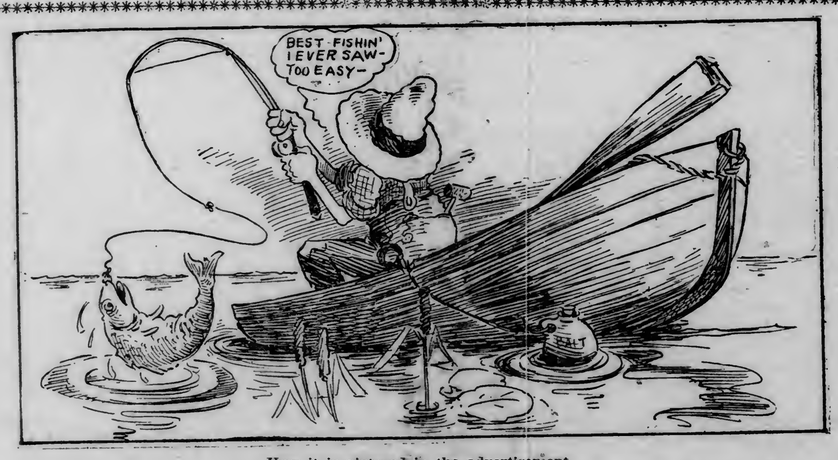

"Grover Cleveland" Is the Only One Recaptured So Far.

Ironton, Ohio, July 25.—Four prisoners escaped from the jail here last night by breaking past the guards as they were about to be locked in their cells. One, who gave the name of "Grover Cleveland," was recaptured today. Those still at large are Fairfax Thomas, Samuel Rogers and Bert Warden.

FIGHT PICTURES TO BE BARRED IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 25. — Chief of Police Stewart announced today in effect that the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures will not be allowed to be exhibited in Chicago. He said he would issue an order tomorrow prohibiting the exhibition of any pictures of any act illegal in Illinois. As prizefighting is not permitted in this state the Reno films are said to come under the ban.

LOTTERY IS ADVERTISED

Danish Concern Is Using the United States Mails Illegally.

Duluth Postmaster Forwards Evidence to the Washington Authorities.

In branching out into the United States for business, the operators of the Danish state and colonial lottery have probably brought upon themselves unpleasant complications.

Letters advertising the lottery have been received in Duluth and have been turned over to Postmaster A. P. Cook. They have been forwarded by him, in turn, to the postoffice authorities at Washington where the matter will be taken up. Doubtless similar letters have been received in other cities and the postoffice department will have plenty of evidence on which to work in taking up the defiance of the international postal regulations with the Danish government.

"The government guarantees the deposit of the full amount of the prize-capital. This guarantee is given by the government on each single ticket we sell. The drawings take place under the direct control of a committee appointed by the king," the advertising matter says. Perhaps advertising

TWO PAY THE DEATH PENALTY

Murderers Are Electrocuted in the Prison at Ossining.

Ossining, N. Y., July 25.—In a double execution at Sing Sing prison today two men paid in the electric chair the penalty for murders committed in New York City. They were Carl Loose, convicted of the murder of his daughter, and Guiseppe Gambaro, a fratricide. But one shock of the electric current was required in each case, and the time which elapsed from beginning to end of the executions was less than ten minutes.

Loose was the first to go to the chair. He went to his death without a word. Gambaro was equally composed.

Carl Loose was convicted in New York City of the murder in November, 1908, of his daughter Mata. He killed the girl and shot his son, Rev. Frederick William Loose, while trying to murder his wife. Loose's wife learned that her husband had menaced their daughter and she sent for her son, who was in the West, to come to New York. When the minister was informed of the actions of his father, he told him he must leave the house or be arrested.

Returned With Revolver.

The elder Loose went away, but next morning appeared with a revolver while the family was at breakfast and opened fire with the evident intention of killing his wife. She escaped injury, however, while the daughter was killed and the son was injured. Loose was 58, a baker by trade.

Guiseppe Gambaro shot and killed his brother, Vincenzo, on Feb. 8, 1909. The men, together with a youger brother, Francesco, a cripple, were employed by a glass novelty company in New York City.

CLAIM END OF STRIKE IS IN SIGHT

Grand Trunk Officials Say Protection Is All They Want Now.

Will Not Arbitrate or Treat Further With the Men.

Trouble Is Anticipated in Attempt to Run Trains Again.

Montreal, July 25. — Solution of the Grand Trunk strike problem is now in sight, according to the company's officials. It neither includes, they say, arbitration nor any further negotiations with the 5,000 conductors and trainmen who struck a week ago for a wage scale higher than the 25 per cent increase awarded by the board of conciliation.

The only essential yet to be provided for in the situation, from the company's point of view, as set forth in a message sent yesterday by President Hays to Mackenzie King, minister of labor, is adequate protection of the company's property and employes, especially those who have taken the places of strikers.

"While we were desirous of arbitration," said President Hays, "time for such action has been passed."

Strike Leaders Confident.

The strike leaders, on the other hand, today expressed the utmost confidence in the steadfastness of their ranks and their ability to force the railroad to terms by an irremediable freight paralysis.

The railroad officials began the week with an ambitious program. It was announced that freight of all kinds would be accepted for immediate shipment. The shops at various points, closed a week ago, were reopened today. Practically all the 10,000 employes returned to their places.

Several minor wrecks, alleged by the railroad officials to be due to tampering with switches by unauthorized persons, and declared by strike leaders to have been accidents resulting from handling of trains by inexperienced

LARD SUBSTITUTE TO BE INSPECTED

Opinion Is Rendered By Acting Attorney General Fowler.

Washington, July 25. — Secretary Wilson's meat inspectors will continue to inspect lard substitutes, and not a pound of that article can go into interstate or foreign commerce unless it bears the mark "U. S. inspected and passed."

This is the gist of an opinion rendered today by Judge Fowler, who is acting attorney general during the absence in Alaska of Mr. Wickersham. The opinion declares that lard substitute, which is a cooking compound made up of one-fifth animal fat and four-fifths cottonseed oil, is fairly within the definition of a meat food product and must be inspected.

By far the largest stocks that we have ever shown here assembled for our new store and now that clearing-time is again at hand, we are face to face with the great task of clearing out all remaining goods before the new season arrives.

Our rule to begin each season with entirely new stocks throughout is imperative and unalterable.

We fully realize the work before us and know that the most direct and surest way of accomplishing our purpose is by severest price cutting. We have slashed the prices deeply, abandoning all further profits, ignoring original costs and incurring heavy losses in many instances.

Superior Street at Second Avenue West

"WHITE WAY" IS ASSURED

Nearly All Owners of First Street Property Sign Agreement.

Fifth Avenue Lights Will Probably Be Installed This Year.

First street from First avenue west to Fifth avenue west will be a "white way," about Aug. 15. The contract has been let for the laying of the conduits and work has already been started between First avenue and Second avenue. It is expected that the standards will have arrived by the time the conduits are completed and that by the middle of August, the light will be turned on.

The joint committee representing the Commercial club and some of the property owners has met with encouragement in interviewing the property owners and the owners all but 500 feet of the 3,200 feet frontage in the four blocks have signed up.

The standards to be used will be the same as those in use on East Superior street. They will be set five in a block on each side of the street.

The committee, which consists of H. J. Mullin, H. V. Eva, John A. Stephenson and C. F. Macdonald, is working on the extension of the "white way" down Fifth avenue west from the corner of First street and Fifth avenue to the dock at the foot of the avenue. The owners of the property on the avenue have not yet signed the agreement, but some of the large holders have signified their willingness to do so, and it is believed there will be no hitch in securing the extension.

The Superior street extension is not so certain and it is doubtful if very much can be done with it this year. However, if the Fifth avenue extension is secured and the First street extension is already a certainty, there is little doubt but that the Superior street extension will come in time and Duluth will be a brilliantly illuminated city—at least in the downtown district.

THREE HEAT VICTIMS.

Torrid Spell Blamed for Passing of Some Williston People.

Williston, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three deaths, due partially to the extreme heat, occurred in Williston. Nicholas Bruegger, eldest brother of Mayor John Bruegger, was one of these. He had been ill with a complication of diseases and was apparently on the road to recovery when the hot weather resulted in a relapse which proved fatal.

Solomon A. Harter, residing near Ray, was the third. He had been brought here for medical treatment and in his weakened condition was unable to withstand the heat that prevailed.

"Correct Dress for Women"

Tailored Suits to $49.50 $19.50 to $97.50 $24.50

"Is it good judgment for me to buy a Summer Suit at this season of the year?" This question confronts many a prudent woman. Madame, if money is at your command, and you can afford to pay a considerable price for a Fall Suit, then perhaps you best wait; unless perchance, you need a "fill-in" Tailormade for general service—but to the woman who has but $15 or $25 to put into a suit, and cannot afford double or triple that amount in one to two months, we say in all earnestness, "BUY NOW! These Suits are in plain tailored, practical, sensible styles and materials that look good now, and will look well a year from now. Suits that can be worn late into the fall. Don't match them against "cheap" Suits—there's no comparison; for a good garment is good until it is threadbare, but a poor garment is not even good in it's prime.

RAILROADS RUN TRAINS BY SEPT. 1

Soo Expected to Have Chicago Connections By That Time.

Rumor That Great Northern Will Extend to Winnipeg.

It is probable that through service on the Soo system between Chicago and Duluth will be established on Sept. 1. That is the date when the road expects to secure possession of the new depot, and as soon as that step has been taken, it is believed, the road and equipment will be ready for service.

In connection with the plans of the Soo there is a rumor in circulation to the effect that the Great Northern is planning to extend its line from Virginia to Winnipeg for the purpose of competing for the business that the Soo is going after. No confirmation of the rumor was obtainable today.

The Soo is now running local trains on the new lines in Minnesota and Wisconsin that stretch back from the Head of the Lakes. Trains from Superior make connections at Brooten, Minn., with the Twin City trains, and from Superior to Owen, Wis., a local train is being operated. This service has been maintained for some time.

Steel has been laid on most of the mileage of the Moose Lake-Plummer line. Plummer is at the point along the line where the Thief River Falls cutoff has been put in. On the Cuyuna line all the steel is laid.

Prominent officials of the Soo are eager to complete the new construction as speedily as possible. There is a remarkably heavy Western passenger traffic this summer and the road wants to be in a position to handle its share of the travel.

GREAT NORTHERN FREIGHT DEPOT

Jobbers Wonder What Has Become of the Railroad's Plans.

"What's become of that Great Northern freight depot?" is a question which recurs frequently in conversations between local business men, especially in the jobbing district.

Some time ago it was reported that the road planned to build a structure for the proper housing of its local freight business, but of late there has been no evidence of an intention to proceed with the building program.

STEEL DINING CAR ON OMAHA

Indestructible Car in Chicago-Duluth Train Is a Beauty.

The Omaha road has inaugurated an innovation by making a part of its crack Chicago-Duluth train a new steel dining car that is attracting much attention. The car is practically all steel, and is said by men who have recently seen the latest thing in that line in many parts of the country to be a finer example of the carbuilder's work than those in use on Eastern roads.

Wood is used in the construction of the car only for the interior embellishments. Tables and chairs are of wood and the walls are veneered with beautifully finished woods. Otherwise all the materials used in the car are metal. The car is practically indestructible.

Two such cars are in use on the road, the one operated between here and Chicago and one run between Chicago and Omaha. It has accommodations for thirty-six passengers, six more than the ordinary diner. It is six inches wider than the old models. It is built by the Pullman company and bears the number 543. Its weight is seventy-three tons and its cost approximately $20,000.

The Omaha road plans to make the Duluth-Chicago train all steel. The cars all will be painted yellow.

ALREADY AT WORK ON EXTENSION

Engineering Crews Scattered Along Canadian Northern Right-of-Way.

Several surveying and engineering crews have left Duluth and are camped along the right-of-way of the Canadian Northern between this city and Virginia, Minn.

The Canadian Northern wil be rushed to completion. Contractors are getting their grading equipment scattered along the line and work has been started on camp houses. The most difficult part of the work will be the section that will wind down the big hill from the plateau back of Duluth. A rock tunnel will be one of the features of this part of the line.

FIRES ALONG THE RAINY RIVER STOP

Except in Few Instances Rains Have Halted Progress of Flames.

Baudette, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rain Saturday and Sunday morning practically checked the forest fires around the town of Rainy River, Ont., and the villages of Baudette and Spooner on the Minnesota side.

Winnipeg sent an engine and men to assist in helping to check the flames, but they arrived about the same time as the rain and were not needed. Although the rains have to a great extent checked the fires there, they are still burning in the moss and underbrush, the moisture not having been sufficient to extinguish them.

A great deal more rain is needed to eliminate the danger. Thousands of cords of pulp wood, cedar posts, poles and millions of feet of sawed timber have been destroyed by the fires.

Almost the whole length of Rainy river from Fort Frances to the mouth of the river was one mass of flames.

GAVE OFFICERS HARD BATTLE

Popcorn Vender Defended Wagon Against Attack of Bluecoats.

Theodore Zatoles, proprietor of a popcorn wagon, and Patrolman Riedel engaged in a battle royal at Fourth avenue west and Superior street Saturday night. The popcorn man had been ordered by the patrolman to vacate his stand, as he was not allowed on Superior street. At the time he moved further down and later returned, it is claimed. Patrolman Riedel says that when he attempted to put him under arrest, Zatoles went after him with a hammer. Patrolman Andre came to his assistance, and when Zatoles had been subdued the wagon had a set of smashed windows and the owner had some bad bruises. Zatoles pleaded not guilty in court this morning and will be tried a week from today. He had been arrested earlier in the day in the West end charged with obstructing the street.

THINK PROWLER IS "BAD EGG"

Hendrick Saari, said by the police to be a "bad egg," was arrested early Sunday morning on suspicion of having attempted to burglarize the residence of Joseph Felix at 410½ Lake avenue south. Hearing some one prowling about the place, Felix investigated and found Saari. The latter claimed that he was trying to locate a Finnish boarding house, having just come from Superior on the ferry. He walked up the street about half a block, where he found a convenient chair. Felix hunted up a policeman and Saari was arrested. Felix told Patrolman Carlson that he had seen Saari throw something away. Investigation resulted in the finding of a revolver near the place. Saari was arrested about two weeks ago on suspicion of having robbed a girl employed at the Maine hotel of $25. He pleaded guilty to trespass in police court this morning, but sentence was deferred until the court could hear the testimony of Felix and Patrolman Carlson.

SUPERIOR SHERIFF ON THE CARPET

Claimed That Prisoner Was Allowed to Escape From Jail.

County Attorney Foley May Prosecute Douglas County Official.

Unless an explanation for the escape of W. J. McKenzie, sentenced about two months ago to a year in the county jail, is explained Sheriff Carlson will probably be prosecuted, according to information which came from the county attorney's office this morning.

The prisoner was sent to jail for clubbing Patrolman William Dondino, when the latter was trying to serve a warrant on him on a charge of wife beating, a few months ago. He escaped the authorities for a time, but was caught at Red Jacket, Mich., and brought to Superior.

It is claimed that on Tuesday last, McKenzie escaped from the jail and that after remaining in the city until Friday evening, he took a train at the union depot for parts unknown. Friday Chief McKinnon of the police department heard rumors that McKenzie was at liberty and got into communication with Sheriff Carlson.

The sheriff denied the report at that time. However, an investigation since has revealed the fact that McKenzie has not been in his cell since Tuesday.

District Attorney Foley is investigating the case and may bring a charge against Carlson for allowing a prisoner to escape from his charge without making any effort to prevent it.

Carlson claimed today that McKenzie escaped while sawing wood outside the jail.

Quick work in releasing some of the animals and putting out the flames with a few pails of water prevented a bad fire.

BURTON PREDICTS MANY BALLOTS

Administration Backers in Ohio Hold Series of Conferences.

Columbus, Ohio, July 25.—A series of conferences between the Republican leaders who are accounted supporters of the national administration began at noon today, the result of which, it is forecasted, may be an agreement upon a candidate for governor before the party's state convention opens tomorrow. Senators Burton and Dick, State Chairman Wade H. Ellis and Col. Willis Bowland, influential Columbus politicians, were among the participants.

As the situation now stands, the most authoritative forecast of the result of Wednesday's balloting for governor is that made today by Senator Burton. He expressed the belief that unless a radical change takes place, either Judge O. B. Brown of Dayton or Warren G. Harding of Marion, former lieutenant governor, would lead on the first ballot, with Carmi Thompson, present secretary of state, a close third. The senator added that all would receive votes from the Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) delegation, of which he is chairman, including James R. Garfield, if the latter should be placed in nomination.

Burton Predicts Contest.

The senator said no nomination would be made on the second ballot, and declined to surmise who the nominee eventually would be.

Although the contests for minor places on the ticket have been lost, to an extent, in the excitement of the gubernatorial fight, it is commonly understood that Lieut.-Gov. Francis W. Treadway of Cleveland, Attorney General U. Grant Denman of Toledo and Justices August N. Summers and William B. Crewe of the state supreme court, will be renominated and that Cranville W. Mooney, speaker of the house of representatives, will be nominated for secretary of state providing he is not forced into the gubernatorial contest. The lesser places are in doubt.

Jasper Hart of Detroit, Minn., Struck By Passenger Train.

Detroit, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.) — Jasper Hart, an old soldier who has made this city and locality his home for several years past, was instantly killed Thursday night at about 12 o'clock by being struck by Northern Pacific passenger train No. 16. Hart was walking through the western Northern Pacific yards when struck by the cars and as to why he did not see the approaching train will never be known. His neck was broken and death was undoubtedly instantaneous. Nothing is known of the deceased's relatives.

LEG IN THE GEARING.

Employe of Fosston Woolen Mill Has Very Close Call.

Fosston, Minn., July 25. — While working around one of the spinners in the Fosston Woolen mill, Chris Holden's right leg below the knee was caught in the gearing, which cut through his overalls and squeezed the limb as in a vice until Matt Nelson, who was on the floor above and heard the commotion ran down the stairs and threw off the belt. The machine was stopped by the weaging of Mr. Holden's leg in the gearing, and had the belt not been loose enough to slip upon the drive pulleys, he would have been terribly mangled.

It was necessary to take the machine apart before the limb could be extricated and it was feared that as it was serious injury had been done. As soon as possible Mr. Holden was taken to the hospital, where it was found that aside from painful bruises he was not injured and later he was able to walk to his home.

PLAN BIG RESERVOIR.

One of Largest in That Section for Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 25.—One of the largest water reservoirs in this part of the state will soon be built in Eau Claire, according to the action of the council when they decided on going ahead with the project and authorized the city clerk to advertise for bids.

For some time past the commissioners have been considering this matter. Numerous plans and specifications have been drawn up, and it is said that not just the right kind to suit the commissioners have yet been presented. However, plans and specifications will be on file in the city building in due time when bids will be asked for.

The reservoir planned will be between 400,000 and 500,000 gallons capacity. It will be nearly entirely of cement construction and when completed and in working order will greatly aid in supplying the city with water. That it is badly needed at the present time is all the more evidenced during the dry period.

MILLER CASE NEARLY OVER

Action for Alienation Will Be Given to the Jury Soon.

"Curiosity Squad" Grows to Great Proportions as Case Nears End.

The Miller case is about over.

The defendants' side of the case was finished at noon today and it is expected that by tomorrow night the jury will be deliberating over whether or not D. A. Miller is entitled to $15,250 from Isaac Heistein, Henry Helstein, John Helstein, Joseph Littman, Morris Harley, Robert Arlinsky and Joseph Fox for the alienation of his wife's affections.

The case has been going on for ten days past and the curiosity squad has grown each day until now a deputy sheriff is needed to guard against crowding at the door. The evidence has for the most part, been unfit for publication.

Miller claims that the defendants conspired so as to make him fall in the estimation of his wife. The defense set up in court by the defendants is intended to show that Mrs. Miller was abused and that it was Miller's fault that she finally left him.

There is no attempt made on the part of the attorneys for the defendants to disprove that a job was put up on Miller to catch him in a hotel room with another woman, but they claim that the defendants had nothing to do with it.

Miller states in his complaint that a woman of ill repute, named Mamie Marsh, was hired by the defendants to lure him to a room in the Clarendon hotel on a preense of selling him jewelery. He was arrested on a statutory charge. He was kept in jail being unable to get bail and for being humiliated, losing his wife, and falling in the estimation of his friends, he asks damages in the amount stated.

HALE AND HEARTY AT RIPE OLD AGE

John Lewis in Ninetieth Year Visits Duluth for First Time.

John Lewis, 89 years old and spry as a man of 35, using no cane in spite of the fact that he has been through a number of battles and has scarcely a bone in his body that has not at some time or other been broken, is visiting at the home of J. O. Walker.

Mr. Lewis is from Pine city and is looking over Duluth for the first time. He thinks it the greatest town he has ever struck and regrets that he has not visited here many times before.

He does not show his age and delights in surprising people, telling them how many years he has been on earth. Mr. Lewis does not appear to be within a long way of the hundred mark, when in reality he has just ten years to go, being in his ninetieth year.

He says he has always eaten what he wanted to eat and gone to bed when he pleased. Like Mark Twain he gets up only when he has to. He does not even now believe in the early bed stunt and refuses to think of the feathers before 10:30.

He does not use glasses and he says he can eat anything he could when he was a boy. He came originally from Kentucky. He served in the Civil war and later in a number of Indian engagements. He has had many accidents but has somehow always managed to escape. Nearly every bone in his body has been broken at one time or another, but in spite of that fact his step is as light and his walk as jaunty as a man of many years under his age.

He says he is not too old for travel—that age is just what one makes it. He says he expects to do a lot of traveling and have a lot of fun yet.

He says he is delighted with Duluth and is coming back again.

CHILD FALLS FROM WINDOW

Injuries Sustained on Concrete Sidewalk May Not Be Fatal.

The 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs S. D. Fisher, 208 South Seventeenth avenue east, fell from the second story window to the concrete sidedalk, Saturday morning last, and received injuries which were feared to be fatal. Today the attending physician thought the child had a slight chance to recover.

Painters who had been working on the house failed to replace the screen on one window and the child, in playing about the house, crawled out on the ledge and lost its balance. Mr. Fisher is cashier for Armour & Co., at the local branch.

REPORTS ARE MORE ACCURATE

Work of Assessors Is More Satisfactory Than in Other Years.

As a result of the careful instructions given the assessors this year by County Auditor Halden before they started out on their work, the county of St. Louis has been saved much money for the reports are some complete and accurate than ever before.

In past years cows might be valued at $5 each in one town and $40 each in another. This year the reports as to stock, farm implements and farm improvements have been more uniform. In other years the books have been all gone over in the county auditor's office and straightened out. This year all that additional work will be unnecessary.

As to lands too the reports are far more accurate than ever before, according to those in charge of the work of entering them up on the county books.

The averages as a whole are good, and work in this way is greatly simplified.

CLAY COUNTY HARVEST.

Expected Yield Will Be Larger Than Was Anticipated.

Moorhead, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Clay county farmers are in the midst of harvesting their grain. Reports from all over the county are that the grain is not going to be as great a disappointment as was expected. Winter wheat this year is especially good.

Harvesting was started on the Grandin farm, near Georgetown, Saturday, and the winter wheat is reported to be going twenty bushels to the acre. H. McCarthy has in about 100 acres of winter wheat and he harvested yesterday. He can make no estimate of the number of bushels that it will go to the acre, yet he thinks that it will do very well.

Alderman W. J. Bodkin started three binders last week, hitched to a gasoline engine, and has a large amount of his spring wheat already cut.

MARINE NEWS

TELEPHONE IS FAILURE

Offices of Great Lakes Radio Company on Lakes Closed.

Unable to Transmit Vocal Sounds Through the Air Without Wires.

The Great Lakes Radio Telephone company, which had established an office in Duluth, as it had in several other important ports on the lakes, has closed its offices, and the probabilities are that it will never operate.

The high tower, erected upon the hill near the incline station, has been deserted, and the apparently costly instruments which were to startle the world by marvelous capacty to connect people on land and water, are silent.

The company started business in Duluth a little over a month ago, and when the tower was finished attempts were immediately made to send messages. The instruments on the lake-top clicked all right under the skilled hands of the operator, but the messages would not carry, even as far as to the lake shore, where they were to have been received.

Not only did the operators and those in charge of the local offices have difficulty in transmitting messages, even by the wireless telegraph means, but there was some trouble for the head officials, it is claimed, in the New York offices, where government investigation was going on.

The company claimed to be superior to all other wireless companies, for it had a means of communication by telephones. But the telephone system did not work, nor did the company make much effort, it is said, to use such a system.

The government contends that the company is not acquiring business by legitimate means when it claims to furnish communication by a telephone system. Many other companies, operating wireless telegraph systems, claim that the telephonic system is an impossibility at this time, although they are all busy tryng to invent such a scheme, and are hoping to perfect the system soon.

But the Dluth office, as well as the other lake offices of the Great Lakes Radio company, is closed, and no messages were transmitted to any boat on the lakes, nor between any two stations.

In the meantime, the company which established the telegraph system here a year ago, is still operating, and the mariners must be content to receive their news of the world, while on sea, through the telegraphic system, until some more successful company can give them telephones on board.

LISBON, N. D., MAN IS FOUND DEAD

Near Body Was Note Reading "I Am Sick, Send Me to Duluth."

Moorhead, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body found Saturday afternoon under the north bridge here by two boys, besides which was a card upon which was written in a foreign language: "Duluth, 1910, Emma Milson, I am sick; send me to Duluth," has been identified as Holder Holderson of Lisbon, N. D. He was about 50 years of age.

At about 12:30 Saturday afternoon, two young boys, Clarence Marsh and Arthur Nelson, reported that there was a dead man under the north bridge. They said that they had seen the man there on Friday, but had supposed that he was drunk, and had left him alone. Officer Crossman, whom the boys notified of the finding of the man, immediately investigated and found the man, with his clothes torn and foaming at the mouth, lying on his back, with a red handkerchief placed beneath his head.

Near the body was found a note, which later, when translated, read as stated. Beside the man was found an envelope bearing the name "Holder Holderson," and dated July 28, 1909. His papers on his person had not been touched and his gold watch and chain were still in his pocket. There was no evidence of foul play. A number of Fargo people were taken to view the body, but none could identify him.

Finally William Diemert and his bookkeeper identified the man as Holder Holderson of Lisbon, N. D.

SPEAKS THREE TIMES IN DULUTH

Prohibition Worker Spends an Active Sunday in Zenith City.

The secretary of the national Prohibition committee, W. G. Calderwood, who is also secretary of the Minnesota committee, spoke in Duluth yesterday, in the morning at the Central Baptist church, where he spoke on the topic of "Testimony That Men Give in Private Life and in Civic Life at the Ballot Box," in the afternoon at the union outing of the Duluth and Superior Good Templar lodges at Zenith Island, and in the evening at the Danish-Norwegian Methodist church in the West end.

In his evening talk Mr. Calderwood asserted that men generally have answers to the prayer that they honestly pray. "The elements of successful prayer are a deep desire, or faith, and works," he said. "Faith without works is dead." In closing he asked, "If you on Sunday pray with the lips 'Thy kingdom come' and on Tuesday morning with your fingers drop a ballot in the box that perpetuates the institution that is the greatest enemy to society and good government, do you pray?"

"If you on Sunday say 'Lead us not into temptation' and on Tuesday's election day drop into the ballot box a ticket that continues the organizations in power that protect the leading of young men by the scores and hundreds into temptation, herding them to hell and eternal ruin, do you pray?"

CLOQUET PREPARES FOR EAGLES' MEET

Nearby City to Royally Entertain Minnesota Grand Aerie Next Week.

Cloquet, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Preparations have already begun for the entertainment of the grand aerie of Eagles here next week, Aug. 2, 3 and 4.

The big arch for the electrical display, at the corner of Arch street and Avenue C, was put up yesterday. Three hundred delegates are expected.

The Corey Carnival company has been secured for the three days. The entire aerie from Chisholm will attend and will be accompanied by the Chisholm band. Two ball games are scheduled and the first picnic to be held on the new state forestry grounds will be given in their honor. The fireworks purchased by the local merchants for the Fourth and which were not used on account of dry weather, will be sold, unless conditions are such that they are still a menace, and there will be a fine display of fireworks in Pinehurst park and a sham battle on the lake.

MAY DIE OF BITE OF PET RATTLESNAKE.

New York, July 25.—Charles Banich trifled with a pet rattlesnake Sunday and as a result is in Bellevue hospital seriously poisoned. In striking at a mouse temptingly held out by Banich the snake missed and buried its fangs in the man's finger. Banich brought the snake from West Virginia ten months ago. Recently he had its poison glands removed and believed it to be harmless.

MORE GOOD THAN HARM

Damage Will Not Exceed $10,000---Incinerator Out of Commission.

The heavy thunder and lightning storms of Saturday afternoon did a vast amount of good as considerable damage to streets and property. The losses are estimated at $10,000 but the benefits cannot be expressed in dollars and cents further than that the two accounts at least balance each other.

The showers were about the first real rain which Duluth has had this summer. Over two inches of rain fell in a short time, coming down in volumes amounting to a miniature cloudburst.

The creeks and pools which have been stagnant for months, a standing menace to the health of the community, got the first thorough flushing since the spring freshets. The collections of filth were swept away, the sewers were cleaned, and the ponds filled with fresh water.

The ground was soaked and the gardens were given new life, representing a great gain to the truck farmers and agriculturists in this section, who have been almost in despair. Hay and grain, which have been backward, derived much benefit. The rain brought joy to the hearts of the dairymen. Their cows have had scant pasturage for many weeks, compelling them to buy feed. This has increased the cost of dairy products, particularly butter, which has been in the upper price scales for some time. It is anticipated that the consumer will soon be able to save something in the cost of living as a result of the rain, in both vegetable and dairy items.

The Damages.

The Radisson school on Park Point was wrecked by a bolt of lightning at the same time the house at 421 East First street was struck. The school house was partially demolished. The bolt tore through the roof and floor and ripped up several seats. Had school been in session several lives would undoubtedly have been added to the toll of the storm. The damage will amount to about $500. It is not yet known whether the building will be repaired. The school board expressed itself in favor of discontinuing it at its last meeting, but the news of the anticipated action roused a storm of protest from residents of Park Point.

About the same time the garbage plant on the bay front near Thirteenth avenue west was put out of commission. But whether it was from lightning or an explosion of accumulated gases from the furnace is unknown. The upper fifty-feet of the 168-foot stack was knocked off, breaking through the roof as it fell. The stack is six feet in diameter and can not be repaired within several weeks. The job is a big one and will have to be done slowly because of the height at which the men will be obliged to work. When the stack broke the doors of the furnace were blown open and hot coals scattered over the floor. No one was injured. Until the furnace is in working order again the city dump will have to be used on the old system, whereby the greater part of the garbage was buried. The men who are employed at the furnace will have charge of the work.

R. E. Patterson of the board of public works made an inspection of the city yesterday to ascertain the extent of the damage to the streets. The surfacing of several streets was washed away and gutters put through others.

The train shed of the Union station was covered with about two feet of water for some time. Many basements on the lower side of Michigan street suffered considerably from the water which flooded them. Other basements throughout the city also sustained water damages. The sub-basement of the Y. M. C. A. building was flooded to a depth of about two feet, nearly reaching the fire box.

TAFT'S YACHT IS DELAYED BY FOG

President Is More Than an Hour Behind Schedule of Cruise.

Rockland, Me., July 25.—The Mayflower, with President Taft on board, was sighted off Dork Harbor at 10:15 o'clock. The Mayflower was more than an hour behind her schedule, having been held up during the night by a heavy fog which enveloped the Maine coast for several hours. The yacht soon proceeded on her way toward Rockport and anchored off Beauchamp Point an hour later.

Wireless advices from the Mayflower today were that President Taft's ankle was rapidly improving. He strained it while playing golf last Saturday.

WOMAN BADLY BURNED.

May Forfeit Life for Starting Fire With Kerosene.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Lombness of this city will probably die from burns she received this morning by using kerosene in starting a kitchen fire. She was burned from head to foot, all of her clothing being burned off. Mr. Lombness in trying to save his wife also received severe burns about hands and arms.

WRITERS AFTER MATERIAL.

Well Known Contributors Going to Peace River Country.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 25.—Emerson Hough, novelist and political economist; Herbert Vanderhoof, editor of the Canadian Monthly; Professor G. H. Pettit, head of the department of Agronomy of the University of Illinois; Dr. Benjamin K. Miller, naturalist of Wisconsin, and Professor C. P. Bull of the university department of Agronomy, are members of a party of distinguished writers and scientists that left Minneapolis Sunday for the Peace River country in the Canadian Northwest on a trip that promises to attract wide-spread attention.

At Winnipeg the party will be joined by Arthur E. MacFarland of the Saturday Evening Post; Robert Dann, associate editor of Everybody's Magazine, and Gardner Hazen of Farm and Fireside.

Leaving Edmonton, under the guidance of James K. Cornwall, a fur trader, the party will strike a trail blazed about 1790 by Sir Alexander McKenzie, the first white man to cross the continent overland.

Fort Vermillion will be the objective point and the party expects to find many things of interest. The chief purpose of the expedition is to visit the Dominion government experiment station, which is at Fort Vermillion on the fifty-ninth parallel and is the furthest north experiment station in the world.

The trip will take five weeks.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Democrats Have a Good Gathering at Eveleth and Send Solid Lind Delegation to Minneapolis Convention---Judge Jaques Makes a Decided Hit---Lindgren, McKeon and Jesmore Boomed for County Offices---In Other Counties.

St. Louis county democracy, as represented in Eveleth Saturday at the county convention, set in motion the political engine that is relied upon to haul the train of candidates through the portals of success this fall. It was such a gathering as could not but impart confidence and the highest courage to the prospective nominees and the party workers. The enthusiasm for John Lind, as the man who is destined to take up the banner of the party that was taken from John A. Johnson's hand by death, was spontaneous and sincere and was interpreted as a warrant of what may be expected from St. Louis county Democrats in the approaching campaign.

Democrats Of St. Louis County.

The convention reaffirmed in its resolutions the platform of the Crookston development congress and in addition promulgated these sentiments and principles.

We believe John Lind is the best equipped man in the state for the highest office it has to bestow; and in recognition of his fitness, in deference to the universal demand of the Democratic and Independent voters of the state, and in testimony of our individual preferences, we instruct the delegates from this county to the Democratic state convention to vote for his nomination as governor of the state of Minnesota. We have no other choice.

We take pride in presenting the name of Judge Alfred Jaques to the people of the Eighth congressional district of Minnesota as a candidate for congress. We are for him for the nomination, and commend him to the Democratic and independent voters of the district as a man worthy of their support. No better representative of the political hopes and aspirations of the average man of these times lives in the Eighth congressional district. As an expounder of the political doctrines of Thomas Jefferson and their relation and application to present day problems, he is sound to the core, and wise far beyond the limitations of those who get their political philosophy from a partisan press or by inheritance. We invite every Independent voter in the district to reconsider his political affiliations after investigating the record of our candidate.

His private life is beyond criticism, his professional career has been successful by the standards and ideals of the best in his profession; in business relations, his integrity is unassailable; and in politics, his faith in popular government and in the capacity as well as the right of the people to govern themselves is as dependable as that of any signer of the great declaration. No one acquainted with his mental make-up and moral courage could imagine that the glamour of official life at Washington would dazzle his vision of the people who sent him there, or obscure his conceptions of the sacredness of a pre-election pledge.

If a majority of the voters of the Eighth district really desire a representative at Washington who has both the disposition and the backbone to break away from the domination of Speaker Cannon and his kind, we offer them the opportunity in the candidacy of Judge Jaques.

We are proud of the record made by Judge Martin Hughes on the district bench. The recognition of his non-partisanship in the performance of his judicial duties by the Republican county convention and his unanimous indorsement for re-election by the bar association of the Eleventh judicial district is at once a credit to him and an honor to our party. The democracy of Minnesota has always favored a non-partisan judiciary, and with two such available candidates as Judges Hughes and Judge Dibell for their own successors, we believe we voice the sentiment of practically the entire electorate of the county in declaring that the public interests will be served by their re-election, and we therefore indorse them both.

Mention of Judge Jaques' name aroused the delegates to a high pitch of enthusiasm and when the judge appeared, delayed by rain on his trip by auto from Duluth, he was received with an ovation.

The Democratic candidate for congress made the speech hit of the day. He warmed to his subject immediately and in the few minutes he held the floor expounded Democratic doctrine that was received with every mark of approval by his audience. The speech was frequently punctuated by applause and the speaker was paid compliment of the closest attention.

The convention indorsed Charles Jesmore for sheriff, E. A. Lindgren for county treasurer and T. J. McKeon for probate judge. Each of them addressed the convention and they were accorded an attentive hearing and rousing assurance that the delegates were with them, heart and soul.

No other county offices were mentioned in the convention and the general sentiment seemed to be that with these three candidates in the field, the Democrats of the county would better put forth all their effort in behalf of the men named and elect them, rather than scatter their strength in what might prove a futile effort to elect a complete ticket.

In common with practically all other counties, the Democrats of St. Louis county named as delegates to the state convention a group of men who, individually and collectively, are for John Lind for governor. The phase of the convention's work did not possess any of the elements of surprise, but was a foregone conclusion. At no stage of the proceedings was mention made of any one else as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination. The members of the delegation to the state convention are:

Reports from all over the state show that the sentiment is overwhelmingly for Lind. In a few counties, however, no candidate for governor was indorsed, Itasca being a case in point. The Itasca convention was held at Grand Rapids and was enthusiastic in its approval of the candidacy of Judge Jaques for congress, adopting a resolution reading as follows:

Conventions in Other Counties.

Resolved, That the Democrats of Itasca county, in convention assembled, do most heartily indorse the candidacy of Hon. Alfred Jaques of Duluth for nomination and election to congress as the representative from the Eighth congressional district.

We recognize in him the sterling qualities and substantial statesmanship that is at present so much needed in the national congress.

We feel that in him the district's vast interests would be guarded and advanced with a view singly to the prosperity of all the people of all sections thereof; that the splendid platform of principles upon which he is a candidate would be faithfully adhere to by his every act and utterance should he be chosen by the people to serve them at Washington; that he would not return to his constituency at the conclusion of a term with an apology for betraying his platform and pledges.

Reposing absolute confidence in his ability and integrity, we pledge every honorable effort to secure his election as the next representative in congress from the Eighth district of Minnesota.

A. B. Claire was chosen as the representative of the county on the state committee. This delegation to the state convention was selected: E. L. Buck, Cohasset; F. Caldwell, Popple; Fred A. King, A. D. Claire, Henry Hughes, L. W. Huntley, Grand Rapids; Charles Fullwood, Deer River; Pat Carmody, Keewatin; A. D. Brooks, Deer River, and L. Melhuf, Jessie Lake. A. D. Brooks was chairman and F. A. King secretary of the convention.

Cass county's delegation goes to Minneapolis uninstructed on the governorship, but unanimous for Lind. T. D. O'Brien is named as second choice.

The resolutions on Judge Jaques adopted at Eveleth and Grand Rapids are representative of those adopted in all the counties in the district, except Anoka, where no resolutions of any nature were adopted.

At Hinckley the Pine county convention declared for Lind and named these delegates to the state convention: Joseph Chalupsky, Charles Nelson, George H. Cunningham, Henry Daley, James Hurley, D. Greeley, J. J. Folsom, P. A. Christianson, Charles Reinholdson, Alvin Johnson.

These delegates were selected by the county convention at Brainerd: C. D. Johnson, J. M. Elder, M. T. Dunn, Con O'Brien, M. E. Ryan, T. M. Reilly, D. C. Henderson, Swan Johnson and Jens Molstad. M. E. Ryan was elected a member of the state central committee. A motion carried that the chair appoint a committee of three to act as the county committee for two years.

The committee on resolutions, J. M. Elder, Louis Stallman and M. E. Ryan, presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Appreciating the splendid position occupied by the sovereign state of Minnesota by and under the unceasing endeavors of our late lamented Governor Johnson, and believing the welfare of our state demands the same close attention to state affairs by his splendid policies and knowing all this will be done by retaining in power the party of Governor Johnson;

Be it resolved by the Democrats of the county of Crow Wing, in convention assembled, That we indorse the name of Hon. John Lind as the choice of the Democracy of this county as candidate for governor, and the delegates to the state convention are hereby instructed to vote as a unit for the nomination of John Lind.

Be it further resolved, That our esteemed fellow townsman and life-long Democrat, C. D. Johnson, be, and he is, hereby indorsed as our choice for candidate as state senator from this district.

Beltrami county's delegation, named by the convention at Bemidji, is headed by P. J. Russell of Bemidji, an attorney who was one of the foremost workers for reapportionment and Northern Minnesota development. The resolutions adopted at Bemidji demand reapportionment for Northern Minnesota, changes in law regulating the sale of state lands which separates the sale of timber from the sale of land; different methods relative to swamp lands, and other reforms.

men, have been called to the attention of the authorities.

May Ask for Troops.

The local militia at Brockville, which has been a storm center, is said not to be doing satisfactory protective work. The city council is expected to request the government to send a detachment of regulars from Kingston.

Governor Ready to Act.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25.—Unless there is a request from Sheriff Orr at South Bend, there will be no troops sent there to quell the rioting of the Grank Trunk trainmen, according to a statement from Governor Marshall this morning. The governor said, however, he was keeping in touch with the situation, and if there was any further rioting the state militia was ready to be sent.

Mob at South Bend.

South Bend, Ind., July 25.—Although a mob has gathered here, officials of the Grand Trunk railroad are determined to resume train service through this city today at any cost. Their plans include the operations of both passenger and freight trains and the resumption of yard engine service.

The latter measure, it is believed, will be the most likely to incite trouble, but the yards are glutted with cars and some switching is regarded as absolutely necessary. Many of the cars contain perishable freight and the loss to the railroad is increasing rapidly with the cars standing idle.

Passenger Trains Started.

The railroad resumed passenger service through the city early this morning, the Chicago-Detroit train, due to arrive at 1:30 a. m., coming into the city only about thirty-five minutes late. The train carried a force of armed detectives who sat at open windows with drawn revolvers as the train passed through the yards. The officers stood guard as the passengers alighted from the coaches, but their presence was not necessary, as no interference was offered.

The South Bend station was opened today, after having served as an emergency police station and hospital throughout the night. When train service was entirely abandoned yesterday the station was closed and locked and kept in readiness for the confinement of possible prisoners or victims of the mob.

The road's two westbound trains last evening were delayed just outside the city so long that the passengers and mail were taken off and annulled. Officials decided to stop the Lehigh Valley westbound express train, due at 8:05 o'clock, after it had stood on a siding east of the city for about seven hours.

Wounded Man Dying.

BLIND PIGS ARE NOW LOOKED FOR

Closing of Saloons at Walker Expected to Start Illegal Places.

Walker, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notice was received here today from Chief of Special Service Officer William Johnson, ordering all saloons in Walker and Cass county closed by Sept. 15.

By this order two saloons at Walker, three at Cape Lake and one at Pillager, all in this county, are put out of business. The boundary line of the proposed dry district comes within one mile of Bemidji, one-half mile from Grand Rapids, and less than a mile from Brainard and Wadena. The value of the property of the two saloon men here is fully $35,000 and practically puts both out of business. The order is not well received by the citizens of Walker, as it is feared that blind pigs will spring up and injure the moral tone of the town. The Indians have been unable to secure liquor here for more than a year past.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—In stooping position, as though crawling on his hands and knees, the lifeless body of John Ferry, a pioneer resident of Grand Forks county, was found this morning at the home of John Levin in this city.

Ferry had been ill for some time but last night seemed fairly well. It had been his habit to rise during the night for his medicine and he evidently was on that mission when death overtook him.

Braaten and Albert Moen of this place were obliged to give up the chase, the thief making his way into a swampy retreat where his pursuers were unable to follow him in their automobile and where they were unable to secure other conveyance without a long delay.

WONDERFUL WORKS OF SCIENCE

The Dreams of Yesterday Accomplished Today.

Astonishing Results Coming from the Study of Radium.

When Radium was discovered a short time ago the world little dreamed of the immense value to mankind this elusive substance would prove to be.

Chief of its many virtues and curiosities is its faculty of relieving mankind of old, perplexing, chronic diseases which have hitherto been a stumbling block to the most scientific thinkers.

The time may be counted in months since the wonderful discovery was made that Radium had the property of imparting its radio-activity to almost any substance.

Water, being one of the best absorbents of gas, it readily absorbs also the emanations of Radium, although it be separated from the water by being inclosed in a glass jar of aluminum tube and the tube placed in the water.

It has been discovered that this water becomes so impregnated with radio-activity that it is as efficient in the proper dose in relieving certain conditions of disease as Radium itself externally.

The fact has been ascertained that all the noted waters, such as Carlsbad, and other noted health resorts, owe their efficiency wholly to their degree of Radio-activity, which they rapidly lose when bottled and carried away, so that in two or three days they become inert. The most astonishing fact discovered by these scientists is that one does not have to visit any of these places for relief, because with a tube of the proper radio-activity this water may be made in such a scientific manner that two teaspoonfuls equal two quarts of the best radium water of the Joachimstal district, thus putting it on a scientific basis in regard to strength and dosage. In our home city of Duluth an energetic firm has procured the means of making almost unlimited quantities of this high potency water with the intention of using it in connection with Electro-Radio in the treatment of Rheumatism, Tuberculosis, Kidney, Liver and Stomach Troubles, as well as all other diseases of a depressing nature.

This wonderful substance, combined with Electro-Radio, as used by this firm, is working such wonders in this city that it bids fair to become one of the chief attractions to people visiting from a distance.

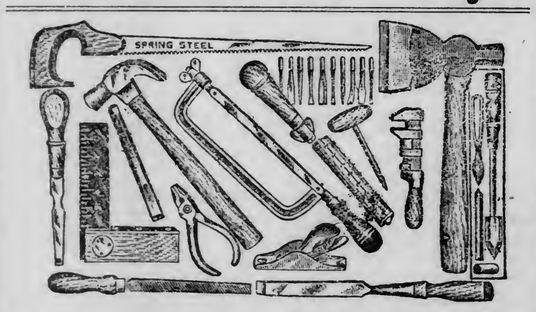

Already their offices in the Alworth building are filled to overflowing with invalids of all manner of diseases who are loud in their praises of the splendid results they are getting. Office hours, 9 to 12, 2 to 4, 7 to 8.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MANY NOTED ONES COMING

Finnish Temperance Meeting of United States at Eveleth This Week.

Prof. Riema Comes All the Way From Helsingfors to Attend Meet.

Eveleth, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. William Riema of the Finnish College of Helsingfors, Finland, arrived yesterday from Finland to attend the convention of the Finnish Temperance Society of America, which will begin here tomorrow afternoon, continuing four days. Other delegates from various towns in the United States have begun to arrive.

The convention has aroused much interest among Finns and temperance people in town and the meetings in Wahlonlahde hall will be well attended. The local societies, the Wahlonlahde temperance society, the Runeberg Temperance society and the Urania society have joined together to entertain the visitors.

Two Meetings Each Day.

The present plans call for meetings both afternoon and evening from Tuesday to Friday with a big picnic at Ely lake on Saturday, when prominent Finnish temperance speakers in the United States will speak. W. R. Shields of Illinois is one of them. Rev. P. Kiranmen, the local Finnish minister, is very busy of late getting things into shape for the coming of the delegates. The famous Finnish band of Ishpeming, Mich., will be here on Thursday evening to give a concert, while the Glee club of Ironwood will also give a concert during the week. The local Finnish Singing society has volunteered to furnish a concert one of the evenings.

Most of the delegates arriving today and tomorrow will be from the range and the Copper country of Michigan, but the other parts of the United States will also be represented.

THREATENED TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Virginia Man Has Been Acting Queerly and Is Brought to Duluth.

Virgina, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ernest Johnson, a laborer, was taken to Duluth today to be examined as to his sanity. Johnson has been acting strangely for several days, threatening to take his own life and other crazy stunts.

Mrs. Alma Rued was given a sentence of sixty days in the county jail in default of the payment of a $25 fine imposed upon her by Judge Carey. She was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct together with Bob Williams, colored, who was also fined $25, which he produced. Mrs. Rued is a white woman and this is her second arrest upon the same charge.

ELY CAPTURES DECISIVE GAME

Beats Winton in Exciting Contest By Close Score of 1 to 0.

Ely, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ely defeated Winton Sunday in the third of a series of three games for $250 by the score of 1 to 0 in what was the fastest and most interesting game seen on the local grounds in years. Each team had a game to its credit and the playing of the deciding game drew a large crowd from both towns and the neighboring country. Both teams were strengthened for the occasion, Ely by the addition of Schaefer, Summers and Olson, and the Winton team having Reddersdorf, formerly of the Duluth White Sox, on the rubber.

It was a pitchers' battle between Reddersdorf and Seraphine, with the honors about even, brilliant playing on both sides preventing several runs.

Ely scored the only run of the game in the fourth, when Martin reached first on an error, stole second, went to third on Summers' out and scored on Schaffer's long fly to center. Winton was dangerous in two innings; once in the fifth, with two on bases and none out, but a brilliant stop by Martin in deep short, cutting off what looked like a sure hit, prevented any scoring, the next man dumping one down third-base line but a quick throw by Schaefer retired a man at third and the next man being an easy out.

Again in the sixth they had a runner on second with none out, but the next man flyed out to center, the runner being held at second; he went to third on an infield out, but Byers lined out to center, retiring the side. Seraphine, for the home team, pitched beautiful ball, allowing but two hits, and was especially tight in the pinches. Reddersdorf also pitched well.

The game was also played in record time, taking only one hour and ten minutes for the nine innings. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Ely	1	2	1

Batteries—Reddersdorf and Byers; Seraphine and Schaeffer.

Summary: Base on balls—Off Reddersdorf, 1; off Seraphine, 2. Struck out—By Reddersdorf, 7; Seraphine, 2. Sacrifice hits—Olson, Schaeffer, Burns. Stolen bases—Summers, Martin. Time of game, 1 hour, 10 minutes.

INSTALLING SIGNALS.

Automatic Block System on the Iron Range Road.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The General Signal company is installing its automatic block signals along the right-of-way of the Duluth & Iron Range road. They are of the latest make, being three position upper quadrant electric signals. They are located at Brimson and Rollins, and there are two stations, or signals between Highland and Two Harbors, which will replace the manual operated blocks within this territory. The signals will govern trains in both directions between Brimson and Rollins and southbound trains only from Highland to Two Harbors. With the installation of these automatic signals this will do away with the block stations located at Rollins, Brimson, Kane, Holmes, York, Stewart and Waldo.

HEAVY RAIN BOTHERS PAVING WORK IN EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The heavy rain of Saturday played havoc with the paving work on the main street and the contractors are set back several days by the additional work made necessary. The two blocks at the upper end of town have been paved and they stood the rain in fine shape. Most of the street from Jackson to the Fayal road is almost up to level. William McBride, the successful bidder for the cement sidewalk work, has his working outfit here and the laying of the walks will commence at once. Most of the sidewalks have been put down to grade and the city will have the cement walks in very shortly.

The laying of the sewer along Douglas avenue is rapidly nearing completion.

ONLY NINETY WERE STUNG

Very Small Attendance at the Campbell Shows---Headed for Range.

A small and more or less select audience of about thirty people saw the performance of the Campbell Brothers' shows Saturday afternoon and about sixty spectators were present in the evening. The rain and the general impression that the town got from the show's parade were a combination that put the kibosh on the attendance. The traction company, which usually makes elaborate preparations to provide good car service for circus patrons had the right "hunch" and did not put on even one extra car. The regular service was sufficient to care for the "crowds."

Campbell Brothers' shows came out of Fairbury, Neb., and from the looks of the equipment the drought is severe and the weather dry and dusty in that region. Fairbury evidently legislated soap out of town. The Duluth authorities enforced the provision of the show's license, providing for an admission price of 25 cents, but it is probable that folks on the Ranges will be given an opportunity to "see" a raise.

young man, has had many deserving promotions.

His first advance in the railroad work was that to the position of operator, which he held for several years, when he was promoted to station agent. His ability in handling passenger and freight business was here recognized by the company, and in a comparatively short time he was made traveling passenger agent out of St. Paul. This position he held for three years, when he was again advanced, this time being made traveling freight and passenger agent of Minnesota and North Dakota.

Having acted in this capacity for one year, he was once more raised in the ladder of railroad success, being placed at Winnipeg, Man., as general agent of the Canadian Northwest, where he remained for three years. His next position was that of general agent of the state of Montana, with headquarters at Helena.

Moved to Duluth.

Duluth, with its vast rich territory, was a field that the company had long endeavored to make one of its best locations, and in selecting a most capable man for this field, Mr. Fenton was selected four years ago.

During the four years that Mr. Fenton has been in Duluth he has made many friends, not only in the railroad circles but in the business and social fields. He has taken an active part in the many clubs of the city, some of which have honored him in many respects.

He is a member of the following clubs in Duluth: Kitchi Gammi, Boat club, Northern Railway club, and the Commercial club. He is a Mason, a member of the Knights of Pythias, and at present the head of the Knights of Khorassans.

Since taking hold of the Duluth end of the Omaha business, many improvements have been made in the service out of this city. In the freight line, to which Mr. Fenton has devoted special attention, the company has seen a material increase, while under Mr. Fenton's charge. This increase, it is claimed, is in far greater proportion than the business increase of the city, showing that it is largely due to effective and intelligent management.

Mr. Fenton will succeed Fred C. Gifford, who has resigned to become general manager of a new railroad in Missouri, as well as taking charge of a large lumber company in that state.

During his brief business career in Duluth, Mr. Fenton has made his home at 325 Thirteenth avenue east. His family, which at this time is out of the city on a visit, will move to Minneapolis, the new home, within the next month.

In leaving this city Duluth business men feel that they are losing one of the best friends that the city has had among the railroad men, for he has continually been booming Duluth. While the Omaha road had advertised this city before his coming here, Mr. Fenton took up the work more extensively, and through his efforts induced the officials to place this city before the traveling public in a brighter and more attractive way.

matter for a lottery may legally go through the mails in Denmark, but the person who sends it through the mails of the United States, courts trouble, even if it is guaranteed by the king.

From the advertising matter, one may judge that the lottery is a fair enough proposition. The capital prize offered is 1,000,000 francs, or about $200,000. The prize capital in all is about 5,000,000 francs, or $1,000,000. Apparently the lottery is conducted fairly enough for the person who chucks his money into the gamble, but even if it is not an out and out swindle, gambling propositions of the kind are barred from the mails.

Several of the letters have been received in Duluth. They set forth the prizes to be drawn, laying special stress on the capital prize, offer consolation to the unsuccessful by stating that "You never can tell" and urge the recipients to send $10.50 for a whole ticket, $5.25 for a half ticket or $2.65 for a quarter ticket. "Faint Heart Never Wins," the circular says.

Postmaster Cook has heard nothing from the copy of the circular he sent to Washington, but the postoffice department is probably conducting an investigation.

MORE HEAT IN GOTHAM

of humidity tended to alleviate conditions. Despite this, prostration cases began to be reported early.

Heat Fatal to Nine.

Nine deaths which occurred in the last twenty-four hours are attributed to the heat. Thousands of tenement dwellers were unable to stand the heat of the crowded districts during the night and fled to the parks for refuge. A degree of confort was found in the open spaces, where the breeze that sprang up in the night had a chance to get in its beneficent work.

Reports from Brooklyn hospitals this morning furnished four of the list of dead from the effects of the torrid wave.

Chicago Gets 102 Degs.

Chicago, July 25.—Sunday was the hottest day in Chicago in nine years. The weather bureau thermometer on the street level registered 102 deg. at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The thermometer at the government weather station on the federal building registered 97 deg.

Average summer weather prevailed here today. The mercury at 9 o'clock stood at 79 deg. Reports of several deaths and many prostrations of yesterday reached the authorities today.

Five Die in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Five deaths were reported Sunday as being due to the heat here. The maximum for the day was 92 deg. at 4 p. m. A breeze from the southwest lowered the humidity from 82 in the morning to 64 at night.

OHIO PARTY MUSS WAITS ON GARFIELD

reforms, coupled with an indorsement of the president and his policy, will satisfy the "progressives."

Seek Compromise Candidate.

Senators Burton and Dick have not been actively in league with the campaign for the nomination of Judges O. B. Brown of Dayton, who is supported by George B. Cox, and it was stated that an acceptance by the "progressives" of some candidate other than Mr. Garfield himself on a possible modification of the platform suggested by Mr. Ellis would do much to bring about an agreement of the leaders, aside from Mr. Cox himself.

Granville W. Mooney, speaker of the lower house in the legislature, last night told Senator Burton that he did not desire to be considered as the compromise candidate. He is making a campaign for secretary of state. In regard to this Senator Dick commented:

"No man, aside from the president himself, could decline a call to the governorship by a united party."

Longworth Not Entered.

George B. Cox, chairman of the Hamilton county delegation, announced this morning that Congressman Nicholas Longworth would not be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination under any circumstances.

FARGO STATE FAIR STARTS FOR WEEK

Displays of Wealth of Neighboring State Are All in Position.

Fargo, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is state fair week in Fargo. The opening day found the exhibts in place. There are some most attractive specimens of all forms of live stock being shown. The machinery exhibit is the largest ever shown in the state and the Women's building, the Merchant's pavilion and other structures are packed. The fruit and vegetable exhibits are educational for many people in the state who did not know North Dakota's ability and progress in these lines. The attendance today is up to the expectations.

Some of the special features that attract most attention are the model of the huge dreadnaught, the North Dakota battleship, eleven feet long and an exact replica of the big fighting machine; the display by the state fish and game commission, consisting of many forms of stuffed native wild animals, and live exhibits with a good showing of fish; the exhibit of grains by the state that is usually shown at the big state fairs for immigration purposes, including the prize winning corn display that won in the Omaha show last wnter. One interesting exhibit is by the North Dakota Children's home and it is predicted preliminary arrangements will be made during the week for the adoption of many children.

Woodmen Day Tuesday.

Tomorrow is Woodmen and Democratic day. Many leading Woodmen will be here with practically every camp in the state represented. The state Democratic central committee meets with the candidates. Wednesday is to be devoted to the editors and the old settlers. Many of the publishers and pioneers will take advantage of the occasion and special programs have been arranged for each.

Thursday is Republican day and Dan Patch day. The Republican nominees will met here to select a chairman of the state central committee. Dan Patch will give an exhibition mile. Minor Heir will endeavor to break all state records for a half-mile tracks and Lady Maud C and Hedgewood Boy will go after the pole team record.

Friday is Fargo-Moorhead day. The places of business will be closed in both towns at 1 o'clock and everybody will turn out to the exposition.

Saturday is the Soldier day. Every company in the North Dakota regiment with the Lisbon battery and the First Regimen band, will rendezvous here from Friday night to Sunday morning en route to the national encampment at Sparta, Wis.

You can be sure about some things only by answering some want ads—some important things, too!

S.S.S. NO HARMFUL MINERALS PURELY VEGETABLE

There are certain mineral medicines which will temporarily remove the external symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and shut the disease up in the system for awhile, but when the treatment is left off the trouble always returns in worse form. But that is not all; the delicate membranes and tissues of the stomach and bowels are usullay injured by these strong minerals, and frequently stomach trouble, chronic dyspepsia, and mercurial rheumatism are added to the destructive blood poison. S. S. S. is the only remedy that can be used with perfect safety in the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison, and with the assurance that a lasting cure will result. This medicine, made entirely of non-injurious roots, herbs and barks of recognized curative and tonic value, removes every particle of the virus from the circulation, and by enriching and strengthening the blood removes every symptom permanently. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up the disease in any way, but cures it by removing it from the system. Home Treatment Book, and any medical advice free to all who write.

THE HOUSE THAT MADE GOOD

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Miss Ada M. Campbell of South Bend, Ind., has been elected general secretary of the Young Women's Christian association of this city. Miss Campbell's principal work has been the establishing and building up of the association work at Elkhart, Ind. From there she had gone to a training school to make Bible work her specialty. No word has been received from her relative to her acceptance of the Duluth position, but members of the board are sure that Miss Campbell will be able to accept. It is hoped that she will arrive in Duluth about Aug. 1 to take charge of the work. Mrs. Peetham, who has been in charge for more than six years, will leave the work the last of this month and will go at once to Montana, where she will join her family to spend the summer.

MINNEAPOLIS WEDDING.

Miss Stratton to Become the Bride of W. W. Burris.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stratton of Minneapolis last week announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Stratton, to William Wayne Burris of Pixley Cal., formerly of this city. Mr. Burris is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burris of 1123 East Superior street. The following item from the Minneapolis Journal of yesterday will be of interest to many here:

"The announcement made toda; by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stratton of the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to a former Duluth man, William Wayne Burris, now of Pixley, Cal., will be of interest to a host of young college people and friends of the family. Miss Stratton, who is an Alpha Phi, went to the university and she supplemented her studies last year at Columbia university, where she took the normal art course. She is an artist of great merit, having won a prize at the Minneapolis School of Fine Arts for two consecutive years. She returned late in June from New York with her sister, Miss Ethel Stratton, who had gone East to meet her.

"Mr. Burris was also a student at the University of Minnesota and he belongs to the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. He shares in the ownership of a large ranch in California, his partner being also a Duluth man, and there he has built a bungalow for his bride.

"Miss Katheryn Burris, a sister of Mr. Burris, and Edward Bradley of Duluth will be married the second week in August when Miss Stratton and her fiance will go to Duluth to be guests at the wedding, and, perhaps, Mr. Bradley and his bride will arrange their honeymoon trip so that they will be in Minneapolis for Miss Stratton's and Mr. Burris' wedding."

HONOR GUESTS

At Many Affairs By Minneapolis Hosts.

The following social item from the Sunday Minneapolis Journal will be of interest to many here:

"Miss Martha Coutant of Geneva, N. Y., and Miss Hannah B. Shepard of Boston, two National Park seminary (Washington, D. C.) girls, are guests of Miss Ethelyn Hunkins, of Irving avenue south, who attended the seminary during the winter of 1909. They have been entertained by Miss Hugo of Duluth, another college friend. The O. O. O. E. T. C. club which is composed of six men and six college girls, entertained at a progressive dinner Thursday evening, beginning with the first course at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Calhoun on Aldrich avenue south, where their daughter, Miss Eugenie, was hostess in the Japanese tea room. The decorations were Japanese.

"For the second course the young people went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hunkins, Miss Hunkins being the hostess. The course was served on the piazza, otherwise called the Hunkins private dining car, and the arrangements were so as to give the impression of an up-to-date dining car on a limited train with deft waiters busying themselves to attend to the wants of the guests.

A college spread was course No ?, and it was served by Miss Helen Crane at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Crane, on Humboldt avenue south. The dining room was a completely equipped college room where banners, class mottoes and other college decorations prevailed, and where partners were obtained through the medium of an auction.

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. M. Pyke on Humboldt avenue was called Hotel Holdup, and for the fourth course the young people dined at regular $5, $10 and $15 per day rates. Miss Emily Pyke, the hostess, was assisted by a staff of French waiters, a lady's maid and even a page attended to the wants of the guests. Those who signed their names on the hotel register were Miss Emily Pyke of Vassar, Glen D. Thayer of Minneapolis; Eleanor Coffee, Arcola; Winthrop M. Wadsworth, Minneapolis; Arthur Strong of the N. G. M. club; Miss Eugenie Calhoun, Lafayette club; Miss Helen Crane, Minneapolis; Miss Hannah D. Shepard, National Park seminary, Washington; Glen W. Carpenter, Arcola; Piermont J. Best, N. G. M. club; Miss Ethelyn Hunkins, Minneapolis; H. W. Richmond, Minneapolis; Leonard S. Scorgie, N. G. M. club; Miss Martha E. Coutant, Geneva, N. Y. The French waiters, Misses Betty Martin and Carol Lyon and Frank Toombs, Robert W. Pyke and Morris Stowell. The N. G. M. members belong to a fraternity into which members are initiated on a promise never, never to get married.

"Miss Eleanor Coffee of Arcola will give a luncheon Friday for Miss Coutant and for Miss Shepard."

Camping Party.

Mrs. B. J. Farrell is chaperoning a camping party at Pike lake. Those who are on the outing are Misses Sadie Calhown, Georgia Rodger, Alice Ferrell, Florence Wickey, Eva Hathaway, Maud Grogan, Edna Mardort, Eva Schaller and Leila Farrell.

Suffragette Parade.

London, July 25.—Saturday was another field day for the suffragettes. An enormous crowd of women from all parts of the world, after parading about the streets, gathered at the historic meeting place in Hyde park and passed resolutions announcing a determination at all costs to force the woman suffrage bill through the house of commons at the present session.

A notable feature of the procession was furnished by the contingents from America, France, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Canada and other British colonies. The United States was represented by twenty-five women, each of whom carried the stars and stripes. The local suffragettes in their advance advertising featured the American division, announcing as the star participants Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Dr. Anna H. Shaw, Miss Inez Milholland and a few others who have become widely known through their advocacy of the cause.

Luncheon at Club.

Miss Ruth Willcuts was hostess Saturday at a luncheon at the cafe of the main house of the Boat club in compliment to Miss Stevens of Marinette, Wis. The decorations were pink sweet peas and the appointments were in pink. Covers were laid for twelve.

OPEN LESSONS

In Swimming to Be Held.

Annette Kellerman, the English lady of perfect proportions, and queen of divers and swimmers, may look to her laurels, for swimming at the Young Women's Christian association this summer is among the most popular diversions that Duluth girls have attempted. During July and August, Miss Margaret Whipple is the instructor and her classes and methods have become immensely popular and many of her pupils will graduate accomplished swimmers.

For the pleasure and instruction of many who have not joined the classes open lessons will be held Thursday morning of this week at 10:30 o'clock and Friday evening at from 7 to 9 o'clock.

No, eager one, only girls and women will be admitted to the demonstration lessons.

Swimming was popular this summer without outside stimulus but since the journal prepared especially for ladies has placed its seal of approval on Annette and her charms, and she admits herself that swimming did it, The Y. W. C. A. classes will probably be overcrowded.

Any Duluth woman or girl interested in the swimming classes is invited to attend the demonstration classes Thursday morning or Friday evening.

Venetian Fete.

The Venetian fete, one of the pretty events of the summer, will be held this evening at the main house of the Boat club. The parade of decorated canoes with the gently bobbing lanterns, will be started from the float in front of the main house as soon as it is dark. Many hundred of the members and their friends will enjoy the affair either as participants in the parade or from the verandas or tennis courts of the club.

THE DOCTOR

The Drink Habit.

The craving for drink can easily be cured if only the victim will make a determined effort. It is a calamity when the person is a slave to the drink habit. In many cases it is hereditary—not that the ancestors have necessarily been drunkards, but the family is of unstable nervous organization. Sometimes a pernicious education by fostering habits of indulgence in early youth has led to subsequent excess.

As to the cure of craving for drink, it is impossible to do anything if the victim will not make an effort to abstain. Anyone who is willing to try, however, will find the task made much easier by taking plenty of fruit, drinking strong coffee, and also by taking two tablespoonfuls of the following every four hours:

Potas, bromide, two drachms; tincture of capsici, half a drachm, and make up to eight ounces with infusion of gentian.

A week of total abstinence, combined with this treatment, would quite destroy the craving.

Causes of Giddiness.

There are various causes for giddiness, knowledge of which should assist in avoiding it. Giddiness is frequently due to an abnormal supply of blood to the head, but in reality it is generally due exactly to the brain.

Giddiness results very generally in the loss of balancing power, when the person will fall to the ground. If due to anaemia, the fall, causing the head to be lowered, allows of the blood being driven with greater ease to the brain, which thus regains its functual power, and the giddiness passes away.

Another frequent cause of giddiness is a weak action of the heart, which thus propels the blood imperfectly through the cerebral vessels.

Flatulence, by distending the stomach and interfering with the heart's action, is very liable to give rise to giddiness, and finally the sudden change from a stooping to an upright posture, which temporarily interferes with the circulation in the brain, will also bring about this very disagreeable sensation.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PLAGIARIST

By Geraldine Fox.

She was a waitress in one of those restaurants where the tables all have imitation marble tops and the girls all dress alike, when Terrick first met her. She looked so little and fragile and out of place that Herrick felt impelled to cheer her up.

He tried and she smiled. But Herrick noticed that she smiled for him and not out of any particular enjoyment at his wit.

At 8 o'clock that evening she met Herrick. He took her to a big restaurant, where the lights gleam on jewels and where the girl hung back afraid pleading that she was not dressed properly to go among so many richly gowned folks.

Herrick watched with amusement as her eyes grew round with wonder at the things she saw. The great chandeliers threw a subdued glow over the walls trellised to represent the vines of an arbor. Above the spotless linen gleamed the naked shoulders of women and the polished shirt fronts of the men.

When the great orchestra commenced to play in their hidden nook behind a screen of palms an expression rested on her face which puzzled him.

"Mary, you promised to tell me your name," he said gently.

"Oh, so I did," said she, absently. "It's Ralph."

Then she floated away again into the realms of her fancy, carried subtly by the music, forgetting Herrick and her surroundings and not touching her food.

Herrick, being a writer for a newspaper, had dabbled in literature, and he was ever on the lookout for material. His aim was to write the great play. Every incident was scrutinized as material; every person searched as a possible character, and now, that Mary had fallen under his observation with her shy prettiness, her somber fancy and her queer ways he believed that she had a secret in her life which might be of use to him.

"Every waitress has a soul," said Herrick, and he patiently and regularly took her out and watched her and encouraged her to talk intimately until one day when he was almost beginning to despair, he stumbled upon a treasure. That was when she told him the story of her life. What a dream! What a tragedy! And she told it in the most unsensational, prosaic way, hardly seeming to understand, much less to have lived through its most terrible passages. Herrick listened with breathless interest. Surely the girl must be soulless and devoid of passion to be able to relate it without emotion, lifelessly, as if she had learned it by note from some book which was loathed. But as she ended her story the bells of a church near which they were walking broke into a peal for the evening service. The rays of the declining sun were full on her face, and as he glanced at her he saw there the same expression which had so often occupied his thoughts. Now, however, he guessed the riddle. Mary had a soul which benumbing troubles had sent to sleep.

Then the temptation came to the young man to awaken it, but he looked at the features, which only required animation to render them beautiful, and turned his back on the snare.

How long he would have continued to resist I do not know, for he was at that time lonely and despondent, but the very next day he was selected from the staff of his newspaper to go as war correspondent to the East, and Mary became a nebulous incident in his past. He had no time to bid her good-bye, and though he managed to write her a little note of explanation before he utterly vanished from her life, he could give her no address, even if he had wished her to reply, which he did not.

Scenes which can only be described as bloody visions of carnage, drove all thoughts of the little waitress out of his mind, and it was not until some months after his return two years later, that he allowed his dim recollections of her to take the practical form of revisiting the restaurant where she had been employed. But she had left, he was told, and no one knew anything about her. As he drank his tea the memory of her became more distinct, and he thought him of her life story, which he could not get out of his mind for the rest of the day. It was when he was just falling asleep that night that the idea of making capital out of it flashed upon him.

The next morning he started his play. He worked at it for nearly a year. When it was finished he took it to an actor-manager of his acquaintance, who laid it in his desk and promptly forgot all about it, until Herrick began to annoy him to such an extent by letters and visits that he read the play to get rid of the persistent author. He was greatly surprised.

"You've hit a good thing," he said. "I know it," replied Herrick. "But you wouldn't listen to me. It's new, I tell you."

"It's never been done this way before," said Herrick; "but that's not the point. What are you going to do with it?"

And in the end the actor-manager agreed to buy it and produce it in the autumn.

Three days before its production the manager sent for the author.

"Devine has been here," he said, mentioning another theatrical manager.

"He's got wind of the plot of your play somehow, and he swears he has bought one with the same story. It's foolish, but he insists."

"That cannot be," said Herrick easily. "The plot was my own. Only one other person knew of it, and the other person was the real figure in that plot, a mere girl."

The manager shrugged his shoulders. "At any rate," said he, "we shall have the first innings."

Herrick's play was a triumphant success. The critics were of a mind over it. All agreed that it was a masterpiece. Herrick was flushed with success. Fame had come upon him in a single bound.

The day following the first production he was taking with the enthusiastic manager of the theater when, Devine burst in upon them.

For a few moments the rival manager was apparently unable to talk, so angry and excited was he.

"Will you have the kindness, sir, to tell me where you stole the material for your play," said he, addressing Herrick, directly.

"The material was my own: the theft must have been done from me, although I could not think it possible."

"You have ruined a career, you have —" burst out Devine.

Herrick's friend broke in, saying: "There is no call to accuse Mr. Herrick until we thresh the matter out."

Herrick for the first time thought of something. He turned eagerly to Devine.

"Tell me," he said, "who is the author of your play."

Devine glared at him for a moment. "A woman," said he. "A Miss Ralph —Miss Mary Ralph."

HINTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

By MILDRED WYCKOFF

Red and Shiny Noses.

"I am so troubled about my nose; it's very red and shiny. This has been the theme of many letters I have received lately, and in order to help these poor sufferers I make a few suggestions.

The first thing to discover is the cause, and it is one of the following: Defective circulation, tight clothing, indigestion, and in nine cases out of ten it is through the latter.

Defective circulation often needs the advice of a doctor, but it usually only during the cold winter months that persons afflicted in this way complain of red noses. Usually good strengthening food and keeping the hands and feet warm will remedy this condition. Bad circulation is also often caused through tight clothing, and if you would reduce the redness of your nose you must on no account tight lace. Arm holes, gloves and shoes must also be quite loose and comfortable.

If, however, despite these precautions, your nose still continues to be of a rosy hue, you may at once put the cause down to indigestion, and the only way of curing this is by taking plenty of exercise and studying the diet.

Outward applications are of little help unless the system is in a proper and healtay condition and when this is so the following will help to whiten the unwholesome organ:

Apply a little camphor water, and allow it to dry, then gently rub a little good cold cream in the nose.

A shiny nose will, however, soon be cured, if the following recipe is applied as often as necessary: Boracic acid, 1 drachm; rosewater, 4 ounces; mixed well.

Things Worth Knowing.

Cold cream is an old-fashioned emolient but hard to beat. Apply it to the face at night, rubbing it in well and afterwards rubbing with a towel. People who value the appearance of their nails will never use a bristle brush, which roughens the skin under the nail and causes it to retain the dirt. A rubber brush cleanses without roughening the nails.

MATTER-OF-FACT PEOPLE

By KATHERINE FORREST HAMILL.

I don't think you will be very much surprised if I whisper in your ear that I am not overfond of what is called "matter-of-fact people," the sort of people who pride themselves upon their common sense and their absence of sentiment and imagination.

In my own heart I feel these people are blind and deaf and the stupid ones of the earth. There is "more than meets the eye" everywhere, and people who pudge only by what they see, really see nothing.

I was at an afternoon meeting of ladies some time ago, and the speaker was a "very matter-of-fact" person. Cold, blue eyes, fish-like mouth, figure like a plank, and tailor-made from her bonnet to her boots. I could not imagine a little head ever dropping to sleep on that breast, or a little face hiding itself in that skirt.

Yet it was not the outside of the woman that repelled me. I have grown old enough to be very careful of yielding myself to such impressions, for I know how misleading they can be.

But it was the way she spoke of the failures of life—those who have failed physically, and those who have failed morally—that appalled me, hinting, indeed, that it would be better for the earth if it could rid itsef of those, as she painted a picture of the world as she thought it ought to be, with only the moral, the healthy, and the fit inhabiting it. A tidy, dreary desert of a world, emptied of pity and tenderness and love.

As she spoke, my mind went back to a book of George MacDonald's that I read when a girl. It was called "Thomas Wingfold." In this book, two young and handsome people—a man and a woman—in their walk, came across a couple of dwarfs, these also a man and a woman—an uncle and niece. The dwarf woman was just four feet high. She was crooked and lame. Her companion was pigeon-chested, short-necked and asthmatic—a goblin with big eyes.

The first pair looked upon them with pitying contempt, and the man said: "Such creatures have no right to existence! The horrid manikins! They ought to have been strangled when they were born, for the sake of humanity!"

As the story unfolds, however, we find that two of God's most beautiful angels had their dwelling place in the poor misshapen bodies.

The pain they suffered made them pitiful for all the aches of humanity; their deformity made them, not sensitive, but delicate, and careful never to wound or give offense, loving all things. They bore the scorn of contempt of their fellows without resentment, and accepted the will of God concerning their life.

Most wise and tender to all those who came to them for aid, they were like a prince and princess of sweet nobility in the shell of a cruel enchantment.

The pair who looked on them with pitying scorn were handsome in form, but stupid, selfish, and blind in soul, not fit to tie the shoelace of the dwarfs. And the day came when one of them, smitten awake by sorrow and despair, was glad to turn to the little people for shelter and hope amid the wild storm of life.

Were the dwarfs the failures in life?

SECRETS OF THE KITCHEN

By HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

Any housekeeper who knows how unpleasant it is always to be obliged to set the same round and routine before her guests would be thankful for anything that enlivens it, that varies it with a new sensation; and it has often struck me that it would be a good plan if our country tourists made friends now and then with some of the simple families of the old farm houses and learned where the areana of their kitchen secrets differ from their own.

We all know how good it seems to come home to our own table and the manner of cooking to which we have been accustomed, even after the most luxurious of hotel tables; and we all know how useful it is, when the appetite is poor, once in a while to spend a day or two away from home and taste the customs of other kitchens and dining tables.

Some little quaint thing that nobody ever heard of, or at any rate ever tasted, is a treasure to the tired brain of the provider, and even if it is not a complete success it has changed the current of monotonous dishes; and, as in other things, it is sometimes better to have failed than not to have tried at all.

Meantime there is some reason for the self-satisfaction of noted cooks, even if not quite to the extent of the one who considered the inventor of a new sauce as the equal of a great general; for the one who puts together a new dish is certainly to a larger degree than it would seem, in enlivening, in gratifying, in pleasing a family benefactor.

And it is, indeed, still more becoming to look about us and do the best we can with all the material at hand, since there has been such a change in relation to income and outlay in the increase of prices of all the commodities of life, a change that has made it difficult for the master of the house not to do the small and pitiful thing and has caused many a housemother to groan in spirit seeing the quarterly bills mounting and not knowing where the money is to come from to meet them.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

Whose Is the Hardest Lot?

A clever, but somewhat short-sighted person once exclaimed: "How simple it is to be a woman!" It is a remark which almost every young lady has made at some time or other, and it has a wonderful power of irritating men. Besides, it is not true.

This discussion on who has the hardest lot always crops up at some time or other between lovers—and, needless to say, after marriage. The wisest thing to do in this matter is to realize the truth—men and women have different duties. Women, probably a greater number of petty tasks and worries; men, the great and telling duties and responsibilities.

The ideal for young lovers, for engaged, and for married couples is to be companions, and to leave aside the old discussion on "who does most." If you guide your little boat together, and assist one another according to your particular abilities, you will keep the boat afloat in safe waters and steer clear of mud holes.

Advice to the Young Man.

If the lady has been engaged before, endeavor to meet her late suitor—you may hear something worth knowing.

* * *

If you go for a walk, keep walking.

* * *

Never by chance mention the subject of women's suffrage.

Always let her imagne you are hard up. ((In ninety-nine cases out of every 10, of course, this is, in all probability, true).

Don't dress too well; be neat, but neglige.

Always speak well of and praise your many lady victims.

* * *

Always remember that you can never refer too many times to her good taste in dress.

It is well now and then to hint that you personally like her in simple dresses.

* * *

Invariably stop and look in furniture shop windows. Scratch your chin, look serious and walk away with a sigh.

FADS OF THE FASHIONS

Many of the newest satin and silk coats and skirts in color are worn with a black shirt, but this has always the saving touch of white or half-tone next the fleshline.

The rage for artificial flowers is still general, and single blooms of Gargantuan proportions, doubtful genus, but telling effect, adorn hats and toques.

* * *

White and black hats are being largely worn, and now fruit is also finding a fresh lease of favor for millinery adornment. The newest idea in tie latter is a bramble of delicate green, with enormous berries of rich blue-black.

* * *

Coats are said to be going to be short, but that may be only a tailor's cry for a complete change. At present, at any rate, they continue to be long, often fantastic in the forms, cut away below the waist, for instance, or with the skirts buttoned back like an old-fashioned soldier's tunic, often opening very low in front, and fastening with only one or two buttons.

* * *

If either long boots or shoes and gaiters are worn they are apt to make the ankles look thick and clumsy unless a piece of the calf is shown as well in order to give the just proportion. Hence with long boots or gaiters skirts ought to be short enough to show a little way above the ankle.

* * *

Hats are beginning to turn up in front in a pathetic and unexpected way, and a three-cornered shape is making its appearance, with one corner placed a little to one side.

* * *

Sometimes the sash may be prettily draped over the shoulders, but its right place seems to be around the waist, which is reappearing once more in a position where habit has accustomed us to expect it. With long ends falling to the side or to the back, with short ends fringed or ornamented, swathing to the side or to the back, with short ends fringed or ornamented, swathed elaborately or tied simply in a bow, the sash is back again around the waist.

SHOULD WOMEN HAVE MORE STATUES?

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

Someone with nothing to do has discovered that women have not their fair number of statues. This is described as an injustice. Domineering man, armed with the vote, has grabbed for himself the lion's share of statuary, as of everything else.

The offense is the more grievous because, while everyone knows it is difficult for the sculptor to make anything of trousers, skirts give him a fair chance. Therefore we have to take the scarcity of feminine figures on pedestals as an example of the way in which man will fight against the very nature of things for his greedy vanity.

Of course, if any woman feels that nothing but a statue will do justice to their merits, she must be left to her opinion.

A wiser criticism might argue that the fact that there are so comparatively few statues representing women is a matter at which the sex should rejoice rather than grieve. A statue is not inevitably a thing of beauty, or a joy forever, and if statueless women must needs be worrying over the fame they have been denied they should not forget to meditate upon what they have escaped.

Statues, moreover, are not necessarily a tribute to pure merit. Putting on one side a few notable exceptions, will any one maintain that the statues either in our own or foreign cities are so chosen as to do honor to greatest men?

A person of importance in his day has a statue erected by admiring contemporaries. But posterity very frequently declines to hold the same opinion as contemporaries concerning any man's greatness. The statue is not removed. Posterity will not bother about it.

But very frequently posterity does wonder why the fellow was chosen for a statue in place of that other person so much more distinguished.

Such is the way of the world.

And if we began putting up statues to women, do you suppose we should show any more sagacity in dividing the greatest?

If women, however, are concerned because their sex is so sparingly represented in the stone and bronze figures they may find comfort in the thought that so many of the world's statues are wretched caricatures of the men they represented, or else the men were very homely and very slouchy specimens of humanity.

Then, and this is something that should be a source of real comfort, there is here and there a statue of a woman, and posterity never has questioned the greatness of the woman thus honored.

STORY OF AN INK STAIN.

London Chronicle: Pens and furniture used in the signing of famous treaties and documents recall Archibald Forbes' experience after Sedan. After witnessing Napoleon's interview with Bismarck at a wayside cottage and his subsequent surrender, Forbes and a fellow war correspondent slept at the chateau which the fallen emperor had occupied the night before. The bedroom was just as Napoleon had left it and by the bed the open book with which he had read himself to sleep. It was Lytton's "Last of the Barons."

Sitting at the adjoining writing table, Forbes wrote his dispatch while his companion, a Frenchman, gnawed at a ham bone, their sole remainder of food. Irate at the little eating it furnished, he flung it across the room and upset the inkstand into which Forbes was dipping.

When Forbes revisited the chateau a month or so later the ink stain was pointed out as caused by Napolean's rage on learning the German terms of peace.

MAKING AUTOMOBILE PARTS.

The large number of manufacturers who have been planning to produce automobile parts promises to be materially increased by the announcement of the automobile builders that they are unable to secure enough parts to make the output planned for 1910.

Today the movement is taking in many manufacturers whose previous training has been in other directions, and according to the Iron Age the departure may be too radical to be wise. Enthusiasm for the new product may mean the neglect and serious injury of the old.

At the present time the successful automobile part brings the handsome profit which a specialty usually commands. But, as with every other business, the time must come when competition will get down to the normal basis, with profits reduced to the usual level.

Thousands of inventors are working on new means to accomplish the same ends and improvements are coming in quick succession. The automobile builder will not himself become a competitor for many of these new parts, for he has learned the wisdom of relying upon the specialties of others.

The possibility must also be taken seriously into account that the present tremendous pace of the automobile industry may not be maintained. It is doubtful if the country can continue to absorb anything like 150,000 or 200,000 cars annually, even with a greatly increased foreign market for American built machines.

While the requirements of the rapidly developing automobile industry have been a very great blessing to the manufacturers of machine tools in the days of distress, a minor drawback is now becoming apparent. When work dropped off so suddenly after the panic many tool builders kept their shops going at least a part of the time and gave preference of employment to married men.

The younger machinists were allowed to shift for themselves, and it develops now when efforts are being made to collect full crews that a very large proportion of these younger men have found congenial and remunerative employment as chauffeurs of automobiles. The majority seem lost forever as a part of the labor constituency of the machinery industry.

THE REASON FOR THIS SALE

The last of May, Mr. Miles, the manager of our Piano Department, attended the Piano Makers' Convention and Exhibition at Richmond, Virginia, where many hundreds of pianos were exhibited. After the exhibition was over we bought a large number of these pianos at practically our own price, and it certainly was a wonderful purchase, for the pianos shown there were naturally the very best the makers could produce, so when you consider quality and price this sale is really the opportunity of a life-time. While this is a very large collection of instruments, do not delay, for they will soon be distributed.

TAKE A VACATION.

Probably nothing is more characteristic of the American people as a nation than the ambition or the energy that keeps men at work in their business or profession in all kinds of weather and under all kinds of conditions. Without doubt, too, it is in this that would be found the secret of the higher standards of living that prevail in this country as compared with other nations, for it is the industry and the stick-to-it-iveness that have sprung from this characteristic that have won the average of wealth which makes the higher standard of living possible.

But with all the admirable and enviable results that have sprung from that attention to business, has come another outgrowth that has been diagnosed by our less restless cousins across the sea as "Americanitis," or as we ourselves term it, just plain "nerves." It is a complaint that is found more frequently in this country than in any other, we are told, and it is in seasons like the present one that the trouble begins.

In many cities, on hot summer days, liverymen refuse to allow their horses to be taken out in the intense heat. Throughout the country the farmers as a rule are careful to give their animals enough rest to enable them to recuperate from the fatigue of regular work. In mills and factories the machinery is given opportunities to cool off and to lie motionless for a time. But in the midst of all these precautions the human animal, as exemplified in our American business life, keeps steadily at work in heat and cold, drouth or flood, and when the jaded system refuses to respond to the will power that is seeking to drive it on at high tension it is too often the practice to try to oil the breaking machinery with stimulants.

Many a man who even makes a practice of changing razors occasionally in order to give his favorite blade "a rest" pays no attention to the similar needs of his own body. It is this lack of care that brings on "Americanitis." It was that same difficulty that led to the breaking down of E. H. Harriman, so his physicians declared, and the same thing is the basis of many physical and mental ills and foolish exactions on brains and bodies.

The answer to it all is—take a vacation. Get away from work if only for a week. Forget it. Read on other subjects. Think of other things. Get out and exercise your legs and arms and back, if you spend most of your working time indoors. Do anything, in fact, for a change, and the more complete the change the greater will be the benefit.

If you fear what competitors may do in your absence, remember that you will have better chance at them later through the refreshment and renewal of vigor you will get from your own outing. But whether there are competitors or not, whether your business is flourishing or stagnant, remember this: Your body can bear only so much and your mind is capable of only a certain degree of strain. When you get beyond those points you are in danger of either physical or mental shipwreck. And the way to avoid the suffering and expense and humiliation and all else that goes with such disaster is—to take a vacation.

THRIFT AND PARSIMONY.

Recently a confidential clerk in a New York banking house died, leaving an estate valued at nearly $3,000,000, every penny of which was acquired by savings out of his wages or by the returns from conservative investments of those savings.

That looks like a difficult achievement, but it isn't very hard. Anybody can do it who is willing to pay the price of self-deprivation which it entails. The New York World, commenting on the case, tells how easy it is:

"Suppose an office boy of 16," says the World, "has in two years saved by pinching self-denial $100. He can loan it at legal interest on good personal security or invest it to yield 5 per cent. In the former case, if the yield is kept reinvested it will grow to $3,200 by the time he is 75, in the latter case to $2,100. But the boy keeps on saving. His wages are raised from time to time, and as his second, third and succeeding $100 come more quickly, each in turn is set on its way to grow into thousands. At 35 he has a salary of perhaps $2,500, and saves $1,800 of it or more. The savings of that single year, kept invested at legal interest, will grow to $20,000 in forty years. But already he has many other dollars at work for him—or rather for his unloving heirs. As his salary grows he saves and invests more and still more. Probably he will see frequent chances of profitable usury. But he will never take a risk. He is a faithful and trustworthy, though not a brilliant, employe. He does not become dissipated or gluttonous, and so has no use for the doctors. His employers appreciate him and he coins their appreciation into more living, growing gold. Of course, he never marries. He spends nothing on enjoyment or self-culture or travel. In the end he dies a lonely death, and from the famous will case that follows the lawyers profit mightily. There are probably a few boys today who will do this very thing. It is in them to do it. But is it worth while?"

Of course it isn't worth while; but that is no argument against decent thrift. Though thrift and parsimony may seem close kin, they are not the same thing by a good deal. Such a career will result in saving and making money, but in its disposal of the possibilities of life it is recklessly extravagant. For the one end of accumulating money, the man who follows such a career abandons everything else in life worth while. He denies himself the cheer of companionship, because such a man must be lonely; for companionship, in one way or another, costs money. He denies himself the joy of marriage and the cheer of walking side by side with a good woman as lifelong comrade. He refuses himself the gladness of having children about him. He exchanges the world and all its tremendous possibilities for a pot of gold that is of no use to him here or hereafter, and that heirs who care nothing for him will fight over when he dies.

But that is a story of parsimony. The story of thrift is another thing entirely, and so is the story of profligacy. A man need be neither a profligate nor a miser; but if he understands his duty to society, to his family and to himself, he will cultivate thrift.

THE DECLINE OF THE DRINK HABIT.

If the Prohibitionists don't look out, the drink problem will be solved by natural economic forces before they get a chance to solve it by their device of prohibitory laws.

There are a great many honest thinkers, too, who believe that the drink problem is more likely to be solved through the growth of temperance from moral and economic impulses than it is by passing laws prohibiting the sale of liquor.

It has become very evident in recent years that no man, no matter what his position, can keep up the pace of modern competition and divide his time and attention between his work and drinking.

To engage successfully in any modern trade, profession or business a man needs a clear head, firm nerves and good health—and the use of intoxicating liquors robs him of all these things.

Employers, having recognized that they couldn't keep up the pace and stay in the game when drinking robbed them of time and strength, more and more tend to draw the line strictly against employes who drink. Practically all of the railroads, nowadays, have strict rules against drinking, and these rules are rigidly enforced. There was a time, not so many years ago, when railroad men were noted drinkers. Now the drinking railroad man is the exception.

For instance, the other day the Northwestern elevated railroad of Chicago posted the following notice to employes:

> No employe is allowed to use liquor in any form when on duty, and no employe will be allowed to work when there is any evidence that he has used liquor in any form before coming to work, and the smell of liquor about him will be sufficient. Employes who are noted as having used liquor when on or off duty, or who are found to frequent saloons when off duty, will be deemed habitual users of liquor and are subject to dismissal from the service. Employes who go into saloons when on duty in any capacity will be discharged.

The first rule that came into effect, naturally, was against the use of liquor when on duty. It should be fairly obvious to anybody that a trainman under the influence of liquor, no matter how slightly, is in no condition to care for the lives of passengers and the safety of property. Experiments with the effect of alcohol on judgment show that even the slightest quantities have serious results.

The next extension of the rule included drinking when off duty. It used to be held that an employer had no concern with a man's actions outside of business hours; but it was soon recognized that a man with a "hang-over," or with nerves unsteady and judgment clouded by the reaction from a debauch, is quite as unreliable as a man who has had several drinks.

The commercial traveler used to be a 'hail fellow well met," one whose duties it was to buy drinks for his customers—perhaps to get drunk with them. That custom has passed out of existence. The typical commercial traveler nowadays is not a drinking man—not only because he can't drink and keep his health and efficiency, but because he can't drink and "make good." Customers buy of sober men, and wholesalers no longer employ "rounders" as commercial travelers if they know it.

These changes are typical of all branches of business and industry. The demand is for sober, clearheaded and healthy men. Men who keep their nerves wrecked and their health shattered by drinking soon fall behind in the race. The pressure of economic necessity is proving a mighty force for temperance and sobriety.

A PLUNDERING MONOPOLY.

One of the grossest abuses of the patent laws has recently attracted attention. The United Shoe Machinery company has declared a stock dividend of $6,500,000. It has done this in order to avoid the announcement of a higher dividend rate on its capital stock of about $20,000,000, after declaring dividends during the past eight years totaling more than $28,000,000, or an annual average of 17 per cent.

These immense profits are made by machines that are patented. It is right and proper that under the patent laws the person who discovers a useful invention should have the exclusive use of it for a time and be properly recompensed by that exclusive use. But there should be a reasonable limit, and when a patent is so used that it becomes a monopoly and bleeds the public, there should be some means to terminate the patent or regulate its use. The United Shoe Machinery company is a case in point. Under the patent laws and the New Jersey corporation laws it has been enabled to impose an onerous burden on the manufacturers of shoes, and naturally these manufacturers have passed along the burden to the wearers of shoes.

The company secures its monopoly in this way: It does not sell its machines but leases them and binds the lessee not to use them on any work that other machines are used on. Thus it secures a monopolistic protection for the use of its own machines and suppresses the manufacture of other machinery. It is no use to appeal to the courts, because the patent laws grant the authority that enables the company to perpetrate this abuse of the government's bounty. It is another case where privilege, and not the people, rules, and the only way to put an end to such monopolistic abuses is to amend the patent laws so that they cannot be used for plundering the people.

"Shall the people or the politicians elect our officials?" demands the Atlanta Journal. Generally the people elect them after the politicians have indicated their choice.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR DULUTH.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There is one industry which seems to have been neglected in Duluth, and that is the canning industry. I have just returned from a trip through the East, and in the part of the country where I visited, the canning industry was one of the biggest. Why should Duluth import all her canned corn, and canned peas, and canned tomatoes. Corn, tomatoes and peas can be grown here just as well as any other place. The canning factories employ a large number of people and we ought to have the benefit of it. In the winter, after they have completed their run on vegetables, they turn their attention to fruits and other products and can apples and even fish. In the early summer months they could run on berries and small fruits. There is enough produce grown around Duluth at the present time to keep the factories busy for at least six months in the year. It is a very profitable industry, and in Canada they have recently formed a $20,000,000 canning trust, the owners of factories selling out for nearly twice the amount of capital they had invested.

A factory here would have to be opened on a small scale, but I believe it would be a paying investment for some energetic man.

DULUTH'S WATER FETE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If some of the Western cities like Seattle had an annual fete of the magnitude and beauty of Duluth's water carnival, they would talk abut it for six months in advance and for a month afterward. I am glad to see that it is being held earlier this year. It should be seen by a larger number of tourists. It is one of Duluth's best advertisements.

INCREASE THE FEE FOR SMALL SHOWS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I believe the city council made a grievous mistake when it adopted the amendment to the amusement license ordinance providing that tent shows charging not more than 25 cents admission and 25 cents for reserved seats might appear in Duluth on payment of a license fee of $100. The city's experience since that amendment was adopted should be an effective argument in securing its repeal.

I believe that greater restrictions should be put on the small shows than on the larger circuses. The small show might be barred entirely by a heavy license fee and nobody would be injured—in fact, I believe the community would be better for it.

The small show, which plays the tank towns almost exclusively, comes to Duluth and pays a smaller fee than is required of a big show. It charges less, but taken proportionately, gives less for the money collected than does a big show. It brings to the city a gang of thieves and pickpockets, so that people fear to leave their homes during the day and fear to visit the showgrounds with anything valuable on their persons.

The big circus comes to town as a strictly business enterprise, which plays the larger cities where the methods of the small town shows are not tolerated. It charges more than the small show, but gives proportionately more for the money. Thugs and thieves are not tolerated and the police have no trouble with hangers-on. People are safe to leave their homes to see the parade and to visit the show grounds. The attractions of a good circus are not lost on old or young and everybody likes to see one good tent show come to the city every year.

The big show may be regarded as a benefit; the small show as a detriment to the city. Yet, the benefit is hedged around with greater restrictions than the detriment. Is that fair? I think not.

The council should repeal the amendment to the amusement license ordinance and the small town show should be required to pay the same license as the larger tent show. Perhaps that would keep some of the small town affairs out of the city and that is a condition to be desired.

A Hymn to Columbia.

Columbia! Men beheld thee rise
A goddess from the misty sea.
Lady of joy, sent from the skies,
The nations worshipped thee,
Thy brows were flushed with dawn's
first light;
By foamy waves with stars bedight
Thy blue robe floated free.

Now let the sun ride high o'erhead,
Driving the day from shore to shore.
His burning tread we do not dread,
For thou art evermore
Lady of love whose smile shall bless,
Whom brave deeds win to tenderness,
Whose tears the lost restore.

Lady of hope thou art. We wait
With courage thy serene command,
Through unknown seas, toward unbeheld fate,
We ask thy guiding hand,
On! though sails quiver in the gale!
Thou at the helm we can not fail,
On to God's time-veiled strand!

Lady of beauty! thou shalt win
Glory and power and length of days,
The sun and moon shall be thy kin,
The stars shall sing they praise.
All hail! we bring thee vows most sweet
To strew before thy winged feet,
Now onward be thy ways!

When Mother Took to Slang.

Once mother broke out into slang!
We'd often heard her say
Naught else was talked around her
From dawn till close of day;
And mother she was merry:
"Oh, drop it now!" quoth she;
"Cut out the grouch; come, be a sport;
Or else the joke's on me!"

When mother took to talking slang,
It was a mournful day,
And dad and all us children
Just listened in dismay;
But mother she was merry:
"Oh, drop it now!" quoth she;
"Cut out the grouch; come, be a sport;
Or else the joke's on me!"

When mother took to talking slang,
The household speechless grew,
And father groaned, and sister moaned,
And all us children, too;
Still mother dear was happy:
"You love it so," said she;
"I've learned it good and plenty,
And I hope you're pleased with me!"

But This Was Long Ago.

Chicago Tribune: Caesar had sent the message: "veni, vidi, vici."

"I could send seven more words without any additional expense," he said, "but I can't think of seven words beginning with 'v' and ending with 'i' that will quite fill the bill."

Later he reflected that he could have used a picture postcard and saved at least 44 cents.

SWEET SIXTEEN.

Washington Herald: We are entirely out of sympathy with Prof. G. Stanley hall, who so often finds and harps upon specific faults in the fair sex. Like him, we admit there are faults, but we can't see what good is to come over railing about them. The latest theme of the learned professor is "giggling girls," as if it were not the eternal prerogative of girls to giggle. He declares that the giggling girls of 16 who bedeck themselves with rats, puffs, false curls, and such like paraphernalia are woefully irreligious, and thinks that something ought to be done to protect and develop their souls.

Of course, the axiom about fools rushing in where angels fear to tread applies with some force to the temerity of Prof Hall. We suppose that giggling girls do wear the sort of things he mentions, though we have no proof of it other than an occasional glimpse of such things in the shop windows; but even if they do, we hardly think that can be taken as an evidence of lack of soul.

What is the harm in a puff? Or in those dainty curls (that so often do not quite match) that hang down so gracefully upon their wearer's neck, imparting a greatful sense of lightness and fluffiness and ease and emphasizing the beauty of the giggling girl? The giggling maid of 16 is precisely like her grandmother and her mother in her inherited instinct—or, perhaps, it may be reason—to look as nice as possible. At an early age the delightful feminine realizes that it is a part of her mission on earth to brighten the face of the world with her beauty; to drive away dull care with the giggles. Today it is rats and puffs and those things about which Prof. Hall talks so glibly; in mother's yesterday it was leg-of-mutton sleeves, peroxide, and what not, and in granny's time it was crinolines and maybe a patch or two above the powder.

But the instinct has always been the same, and no mere man need bother about developing the soul of these 16-year-old gigglers. That will come in time, just as surely as the rats return to their holes and the puffs are laid away. It needs no psychologist to tell us that with the passing years the girl of sweet 16 will substitute the religion of dress and good looks and giggles for something of a more substantial sort; in all probability the religion that comes with the rocking cradle, to which blessed state so many sweet 16's find themselves brought at last.

Really, professor, there is no cause for psychological worry. Sweet 16 will just as readily wear her false curls and puffs to church as elsewhere; the rats that she deftly conceals beneath her golden locks will not hinder the progress of the soul. The bud will blossom into a flower in time; the hair will be brushed back from the forehead, and the sweet 16 of today will fulfill her destiny and probably become the mother of weary psychologists who will temper the silly season along by discoursing learnedly on subjects that belong in the young lady's boudoir rather than in the professorial laboratory.

Contentment.

Summer time is calling me
To the mountain and the sea;
To the forest and the vale;
To the pleasant sylvan dale;
To the moorland and the fen,
From the busy haunts of men.
But, alas, I cannot go
Where the cooling breezes blow.
I must stay where I am at
In my little city flat!

Yet am I content, for I
Have great pleasure standing nigh,
Substitutes for all and each
Easily within my reach.
Doesn't matter what the call,
I have substitutes for all—
Garden closes, babbling brooks,
Mountain-climbing, shady nooks.
So you need not waste on me
Any of your sympathy.

If for flowers I repine,
Violets and Columbine,
Roses fair and hollyhocks,
Lilies white and golden phlox,
I can find them one and all
On the paper on the wall.
If I'd scale a mountain high,
Rising nobly to the sky,
I have climbing in great store
To my little 'leventh floor.

Would I hear the woodland notes
From a thousand swelling throats,
Pouring out their pretty tunes
In their unaffected runes,
From the dawning till the light
Fades into the starry night?
Songs like these are not for me,
Yet I've music, for you see
There is singing night and day
From ten flats across the way.

Do I seek the silver fin?
There are sardines in the tin.
Do I yearn for lowing kine?
Potted beef will do for mine.
For a sea breeze would I plan?
There is my electric fan.
Do I seek a shady spot?
Well, the cellar's quite a grot—
So it goes. Whate'er the call,
I have substitutes for all.

The Fight for the Square Deal.

Kansas City Times: Let no one who holds himself a patriot get weary of the term, "the square deal." That term has been a mighty force since Theodore Roosevelt made it a moral and political watchword. Homely, forceful and comprehensive, it is a consistent and inspiring motto for any people, but especially for the people of a democracy. It especially epitomizes the aspirations of the country in the great conflict now on between the people and the predatory interests, as clearly as the anti-slavery and the pro-slavery advocates were defined in the fifties and the sixties.

But How About the Vocalist?

Albany Journal: A consular report says that many American pianos are being sold in Brazil. Let us then be thankful that they will not remain at home.

JOHN LIND.

It Will be Lind.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: John Lind's letter refusing to become a candidate for governor is not regarded as a finality. It is the belief of practically all of the Democratic leaders that Mr. Lind will be nominated, and that he will accept. This view is also shared by the Republicans. Particularly in the country districts is felt the need of a strong, honest, forceful candidate and a platform free from equivocation and promising reforms demanded by the progressive spirit of the times. The voters are disgusted with the reactionary platform adopted by the Republicans and they like the Republican candidate little better.

John Lind is pre-eminently the bravest man in public life in Minnesota. His former administration is notable in the number and character of political reforms adopted, and this year there is no disposition to take a backward step nor to give the state over to the control of the corporations.

The demand for Lind is so insistent that the leaders of the Democratic party could not prevent his nomination if they desired, and there is no apparent movement in that direction.

Lind will be nominated by acclamation, and there need be no fear that he will refuse to heed the call of duty.

Stands Out Openly.

Biwabik Times: All the evidence at hand indicates that John Lind will be the Democratic candidate for governor of Minnesota. Mr. Lind held the job for one term and stands out openly on several important questions before the people. If he gets the nomination there will be something doing in the campaign, as quite a number of people believe that he would make a better governor than the man now in the seat.

Lind Opposed by Interests.

Little Falls Herald: Reports of this or that interest being opposed to John Lind's nomination are in circulation. The more of that there is, the larger would be his majority.

Call of the People.

Perham Independent: The call of the people for Honest John Lind for governor becomes stronger every day and it will have the force of an avalanche by election time and sweep aside all opposition.

He is a Good Man.

Aurora News: Every day it looks more and more as though it will be between Eberhart and Lind for governor, and if such proves to be the case it will be a hot contest. John Lind has previously been the Democratic candidate for this position on three occasions. Defeated by Clough, he two years later defeated Eustis, only to fall before Van Sant two years later. The star of John A. Johnson then came out, and for some eight years John Lind was in political eclipse. But he is a good man, a fine talker, and will give the Republican candidate a hard run.

What Will Happen to Lind.

Red Wing Free Press: Johnson positively refused a third term nomination and yet he was nominated by acclamation and elected by an overwhelming majority. That's just what will happen to John Lind. Wait and see.

The Class in Civics.

New York Globe: Mayor Gaynor is a master of pithy utterance and his brief epistles on the art of government are an increasing delight. But he surpassed even himself in the following letter to the Rev. O. R. Miller, who asked the mayor to "order" that the prize fight pictures be not exhibited:

> Office of the Mayor, July 7, 1910.—Dear Sir: I thank you for your favor of July 6. If it lay in my power to say whether the pictures should be exhibited it would not take me long to decide. I do not see how it can do any one any good to look at them. But will you be so good as to remember that ours is a government of laws and not of men? Will you please get that well into your head?
> I am not able to do as I like as mayor. I must take the law just as it is, and you may be absolutely certain that I shall not take the law into my own hands.
>
> You say that you are glad to see that the mayors of many cities have "ordered" that these pictures shall not be exhibited. Indeed! Who set them up as autocrats? If there be some valid law giving any mayor such power then he can exercise it; otherwise not.
> The growing exercise of arbitrary power in this country by those put in office would be far more dangerous and is far more to be dreaded than certain other vices that we all wish to minimize or be rid of. People little know what they are doing when they try to encourage officials to resort to arbitrary power.
> Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

These words are worthy of being engraved on brass or on other enduring substance for the guidance of the public and of administrative officers. The Brooklyn clergyman, in his zeal to get rid of a minor evil, would introduce a great one. As the mayor suggests, he is in need of instruction concerning a fundamental government. If mayors can act outside the law in one respect they can in others. Men who ask a mayor, or a governor, or a president, to take the law into his own hands and to make one where there is a deficiency are possessed by a dangerous spirit of lawlessness. Democratic imperialism—this is a far greater menace than the display of prize-fight pictures.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Cheap advice becomes dear when you follow it.

Any man who can understand a woman is a fool to think so.

There's hardly any ideal a girl can't have about a man till she's married to him.

Just as soon as people get old enough to be sensible all the fun goes out of life for them.

A woman can marry a man for his money and have a grievance against him because it isn't more.

Such a Bore to Dress.

New York Herald: a belated traveler who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin down in the Little River country in Oklahoma, says that soon after the frugal meal a tall, gaunt youth of 18 and an equally sallow and gaunt girl of 17, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon the mother, taking her pipe from between her teeth, said reprovingly:

"Go 'long an' wash your feet, Levi; you and Looly, both! Hain't you 'shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?"

They obeyed, but as Levi took the wash pan from a bench by the door he said with a grumble:

"I'd 'bout as soon stay home from a party as to have to fix up for it."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Life: Englishman—Did you have a pleasant voyage from London to New York?

American—No. The purser gave us our customs house declaration slips on the second day out.

Chicago Tribune: "I've noticed that all unusually tall women are graceful."

"Thank you, Mr. Feathertop."

"Why, Miss Flossie—aw—you're not unusually tall, you know."

Chicago News: Mrs. Packem—Henry, what punishment should be meted out to a man who proposes to a woman and then refuses to marry her?

Packem—He should be compelled to marry her.

New York Sun: Achilles was lamenting his vulnerable heel. "But you can talk all right," they assured him. Thus he saw the main requisite for a fight remained.

Houston Post: "If I had the wings of a chicken—"

"You couldn't fly far with the wing of a chicken."

"I don't want to fly; I want to eat."

Brooklyn Life: Post—I discovered today that Parker and I have a common ancestor.

Mrs. Post (a Colonial Dame)—For goodness' sake, don't tell anyone.

Washington Herald: "Are those people from Chicago assimilating any of the spirit of Boston?"

"Oh, some. They now sterilize the strap whenever they castigate their offspring."

Cleveland Leader: Employer—Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do, young man.

Employe—Yes, sir. Is there any job you want me to tackle, sir?

Boston Transcript: Watts—So your father-in-law insists on your going to work, eh? What did he say to you?

Potts—He told me I must find something to do besides him.

"There Is Ever a Song Somewhere."

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
There is ever a something sings alway;
There's the song of the lark when the skies are clear,
And the song of the thrush when the skies are gray.
The sunshine showers across the grain,
And the bluebird trills in the orchard tree;
And in and out, when the eaves drip rain,
The swallows are twittering ceaselessly.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above dark or fair;
There is ever a song that our hearts may hear—
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear—
There is ever a song somewhere!

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear—
In the midnight black, or the midday blue;
The robin pipes when the sun is here,
And the cricket chirrups the whole night through.
The buds may blow and the fruit may grow,
And the autumn leaves drop crisp and sere;
But whether the sun, or the rain, or the snow,
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above or dark or fair;
There is ever a song that our hearts may hear—
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear—
There is ever a song somewhere!

—James Whitcomb Riley.

A Matter of Taste.

Atchison Globe: At a party in the country lately kissing games were played. A young man who was present says the girls fight now as they used to. But we'd rather kiss a fighting country girl than a fighting town girl. When a girl resists, a man usually kisses her hair, and there's a sort of dead taste to jute that you don't notice in real hair.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

Is not an experiment. Six years ago it opened its doors with a modest plea in behalf of its aims and its methods, and the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college and to higher institutions of learning amply justify the claims it then made in its behalf, and its past successes will only stimulate its staff to higher efforts.

It admits boys and girls, and covers the field from the primary grades to college. Its teachers are specially trained for the work and, except in the primary grades, are men. Its course of study is broad and elastic, and besides the regular studies includes Manual Training, Experimental Science, Music and Drawing.

It has satisfied others; it will satisfy you.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CASS LAKE WORKED UP

Many Allege That the Saloon Closing Order Is Favoring Bemidji.

List of Railroad Towns That Are Affected By the "Dry" Ukase.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sweeping order by Chief Special Officer William E. Johnson, closing the saloons in this territory has been received here and local saloonkeepers have until Sept. 15 to get rid of their supply of liquors. Three saloons will be affected by the order here, and each saloon is run in connection with a hotel, as follows—the Endion, conducted by Samuel Sutor; the Tedford, conducted by Charles Tedford, and the Pine, conducted by George Hanson,—the three leading hotels of the town.

Great indignation is manifested here for the reason the boundary lines of the new "dry" belt do not include Bemidji, which is centrally located to all the three reservations. Many openly declare there's a "nigger in the woodpile."

The order from Chief Special Officer Johnson recites the order of the commissioner of Indian affairs in detail relative to the enforcement of regulations in Minnesota, quotes from the treaties with the Sioux and Chippewas and then continues:

Wide Scope of Order.

"On account of the limited appropriation available for the suppression of the liquor traffic among the Indians it is advisable to concentrate the work as far as possible to the territory within and adjacent to existing Indian reservations and it is believed that active operations by you in the following designated territory within the limits of the ceded Indian lands in the state of Minnesota will possibly be sufficient to accomplish the desired end:

"1. Throughout all of Becker, Cass, Clay, Hubbard, Mahnomen and Norman counties.

"2. Throughout that portion of Beltrami county lying west of range 34 and south of the north boundary of the treaty of February 22, 1855, described above.

"3. Throughout the portion of Clearwater county lying south of the north boundary of the treaty of February 22, 1855, and west of the eastern boundary of the treaty of October 2, 1863.

"4. Throughout that portion of Crow Wing county lying north of the Mississippi river.

"5. Throughout that portion of Itasca county lying south of township 147 north and west of range 26 west of the Fourth principal meridian.

"6. Throughout that portion of Ortertail county lying north of township 136.

"7. That portion of Polk county lying south of township 150, and west of the eastern boundary of the treaty of Oct. 2, 1863.

"8. That portion of Red Lake county east of range 44, south of town 152 and west of the eastern boundary of the treaty of Oct. 2, 1863.

"9. That portion of Wadena county lying north of the Mississippi river.

Shipments of unfortified wine for sacramental purposes, to clergymen only; and shipments of liquors to licensed druggists whose business is conducted in such a manner that they are not liable to the payment of the internal revenue tax as "retail liquor dealers," should not be interfered with by you.

"Liquor dealers within the defined district whose business has not hitherto been closed, will be given until Sept. 15, 1910, to close their business and remove their stock from said district.

"Federal or state statutes prohibiting the sale of liquor to Indians should be vigorously enforced. Liquor dealers within the defined district whose business has not heretofore been closed will be given until Sept. 15, 1910, to close their business and remove their stock from said district.

Railway Towns Applied.

"The following is a list of railway towns within the boundaries of the treaties wherein the introduction and sale of spirituous liquors are prohibited by law:

Cass Lake, Baker, Beltrami, Benoit, Barnesville, Brooks, Burwell, Climax, Cisco, Comstock, Crawford, Dilworth, Downer, Dugdale, Eldred, Erskine, Fertile, Finkle, Flamming, Fosston, Girard, Glyndon, Halstad, Harold, Hendrum, Kittson, Kragnes, Lambs, Lees Station, Lengby, Lockhart, McIntosh, Melvin, Moorhead, Nellsville, Plummer, Redlands, Russia, Rustad, Ruthruff, Sabin, Shelly, Winger.

"The following is a list of the railway towns within the boundaries of the treaty which prohibits the introduction of ardent spirits, wines or other liquors:

Ada, Akeley, Audubon, Averill, Backus, Bagley, Ball Club, Begou, Bena, Borup, Bowstring, Calloway, Cass Lake, Cuba, Dale, Deer River, Detroit, Dorset, Dumas, Ebro, Farris, Felton, Frazee, Gary, Georgetown, Guthrie, Hackensack, Hadler, Hawley, Helberg, Hitterdal, Hoberg, Horton Station, or Latonia P. O., Hubert, Hunter, Island Lake, Kabekona, Lake Alice, Lake Park, La Porte, Leaf River, Leech Lake, Lengby, Luce, Mahnoman, McHugh, Menahga, Merrifield, Mildred, Muskoda, Oak Lake, Ogema, Nada, Nary, Nevis, Nisswa, Nushka, Park Rapids, Perley, Pequot, Pillager, Rosby, Santiago, Schley, Sebeka, Shevlin, Solway, Stockwood, Sylvan, Syre, Twin Valley, Ulen, Vergas, Walker, Waubun, Westbury, Wheatville, Wheelock, Wilton, Wilkinson Station or Marcus, Winger, Winnipeg Junction.

"For reasons stated above officers engaged in enforcing the provisions of the teatires quoted will concentrate their efforts in the district defined in the commissioner's letter.

"It is hoped that the liquor dealers in the towns surrounding and contiguous to this district will so conduct their business that a further extension of the boundaries of this district will be unnecessary."

This closes every saloon in Cass county, there being only five running at present, three at Cass Lake and two at Walker.

TWO-CENT CLUB FORMED.

Novel Organization in Palatka, Mich., to Encourage Thrift.

Palatka, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A "two-cent" club has been organized here. The object is the saving of money. Each member pays in 2 cents the first week of the fiscal year, 4 cents the second, 6 cents the third and so on in arithmetical progression until fifty-two payments are made. At the end of the year the amount on hand, including fines and the interest on loans, is divided among the members. The largest payment in the course of the year will be one of $1.04, and the smallest 2 cents. No member is permitted to take more than ten shares. Each payment must be made before the end of the week, otherwise a fine is imposed.

HAVE MANY GRANGES.

Number in Northern Michigan Indicates Growth of Farming.

Marquette, Mich., Juy 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—While mining and lumbering are the chief industries of Upper Michigan, agriculture is making rapid headway throughout the region and in some portions of the peninsula it already has assumed the commanding position

A fact significant of the growth of the farming industry is the organization of no less than twenty granges in Delta county alone, and there are fewer farms than some of the other counties. These twenty granges have an approximate membership of 1,300, yet not more than half of Delta's farmers, it is estimated, are affiliated with them. Both Chippewa county and Menominee county have large rural communities, they leading the peninsula in that respect, in fact, but everywhere farming is making vigorous strides and the tillers of the soil are annually gaining large additions to their numbers. The upper peninsula is a vast domain and there are many hundreds of thousands of acres still uncultivated.

UPPER MICHIGAN SNAKES.

Reptiles Are Reported Being Unusually Numerous This Summer.

Channing, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—John and Joseph Corsi, boys of Iron Mountain, claim the snake-killing record of the Menominee iron range. They were picking berries near the shores of Lake Antoine when they stumbled into a large nest of reptiles. They succeeded in despatching a score of the snakes and more than that number got away.

Half a dozen spotted adders have been killed the past fortnight in the vicinity of St. Ignace, at the edge of the Straits of Mackinac. These deadly reptiles were upwards of three feet long. This is the first time that spotted adders have been reported in the Upper Peninsula and their presence cannot be accounted for. Pine snakes heretofore have been the only reptiles of the poisonous variety in the region, and there have been very few of these. The largest one yet reported was an eight-footer, which was killed in Dickinson county some years ago.

DROP DAMAGE SUIT

Against Warroad Mercantile Company for Six Lives Lost.

Warroad, Minn., July 25. — The damage suit for $5,000 brought against the Warroad Mercantile company., by the Nels Johnson estate was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff. This was a case where gasoline was sold instead of kerosene and six people lost their lives.

HELPS CLEARWATER CROPS.

Rain of Vast Benefit to the Section Around Bagley.

Bagley, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A welcome rain fell here, greatly relieving the crop situation, though crops were still holding out here remarkably. Potatoes are looking fine and with this rain will yield a good crop. Wheat is thin, but it has immense heads, measuring from five to seven inches. A head measured yesterday six and three-quarters inches long, contained sixty-six large perfect kernels and was filled to the very top. The hay crop is a little late in the wild meadows, but green and still growing, and promises almost an average yield. Tame hay was poor on high land, but many fields on rather low land have cut as high as two and one half tons to the acre of clover and timothy. Corn is holding out finely, although it began to show the effects of drouth before the rain came. The present prospects are for a twenty-bushel to the acre crop of wheat, a medium crop of hay, about a half crop of oats and less of barley. Winter wheat is mostly cut and so is rye, both yielding fine.

NEW MARINETTE PLANT.

Lignum Chemical Company to Build Factory in Wisconsin Town.

Marinette, Wis., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lignum Chemical company will locate a plant here. The company will begin the construction at once of a large chemical plant for the manufacture of alcohol, acetic acid and all bi-products from shavings and saw dust. The plant will be one of many to be located at different points in the United States by New York and Chicago capitalists. F. G. Hood, formerly a Pontoga lumberman, is president and general manager.

Engineer's Injuries Fatal.

Rochester, Minn., July 25.—Ed Loomer, the engineer who was seriously injured in the accident in which a freight engine and cars went through the bridge at Sanborn, Minn., died in the hospital here.

Fireman Schaffer, who was injured, is in a serious condition.

REUNION AT CENTRAL.

Former Residents of Copper Country Town Have Celebration.

Houghton, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former residents of Central, at one time the largest center of population, manufacturing and copper mining in this county, gathered at the old location on Sunday in a home coming and reunion. Divine services, presided over by the Rev. John Sweet, a prominent minister of Detroit and formerly pastor of the Central Methodist congregation, were held. Former residents of the town were present from all parts of the country, many being from Boston, New York, Chicago and Detroit and Minnesota points. The reunion was largely attended.

FIRES ARE CHECKED.

Country Around Sandstone Rejoicing Over Coming of Rain.

Sandstone, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The brush fires which have been raging all around here, and enveloped the town in smoke for several days the past week, were checked at last through the heavy downpour of rain last Saturday afternoon, and the settlers east and north of Sandstone feel greatly relieved over it, as they have been fighting hard to keep the flames away from their homes and crops. In many localities the hay crop was entirely destroyed, and in some instances, particularly around Partridge, some corn fields fell a prey to the flames. However, the rain was greatly welcomed by all, and it will help materially in starting the grass anew in the burned-over district, and will also be beneficial to the potato crop and mangels. A strong wind accompanied the rain, but no serious damage is reported. It is thought a farm house east of here, the Gus Nelson home on the Anderson place, was struck by lightning during the storm, as smoke was seen issuing from that direction, but the report could not be verified on account of the interrupted telephone service.

EIBON RELEASED.

Accused Pine County Man Has Secured Adequate Bonds.

Sandstone, Minn. July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Having secured adequate bonds as fixed by Justice of the Peace Russell, John Eibon, who has been held in the Washington county jail at Stillwater on the charge of being implicated in a shooting affray near here, has been released.

Near Lisbon, Sheldon and Enderlin wheat will yield more than half of what it did last year.

Fargo, N. D.—Mrs. M. E. Huntley, aged 67, widow of Charles Huntley, died Friday at the home of her son, A. D. Huntley, from a complication of diseases brought on by stomach throubles, from which she had suffered for a long time. Her husband died four years ago at their former home at Cooperstown, N. D.

Williston, N. D.—The Missouri river at Williston has reached the lowest stage for several years at this time of the year, and from all along the river comes reports that ferries are being operated under difficulties and that the stage of water is the lowest for years during the month of July.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls—The contract for building the new schoolhouse at Ray was awarded to Frank La Gasa, his bid being $1,065. C. I. Fee secured the contract for the Beaver township building at $500.

Crookston—The Great Northern will run a special train next Wednesday and Thursday between Crookston and Fargo to accommodate the visitors from this city and along the line wishing to attend the North Dakota state fair in Fargo.

Detroit—The Detroit Telephone company has purchased the local exchange of Mahnomen and the same will be connected up and run in conjunction with the exchange here. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawley will move to Mahnomen and take charge of the business, Mr. Dawley looking after the system on the outside and his wife in charge of the board.

Warren—The Marshall county fair will be held Sept. 14, 15 and 16 and the officers of the fair association are busily at work making arrangements. This year's fair will be better than ever and the agricultural exhibit will demonstrate to the world what Marshall county soil is capable to produce even in a dry year.

Blackduck—P. R. Scribner, who looks after the interests of the Duluth Log company, was here last week looking after the loading of some cedar.

St. Cloud—Thursday a field of rye of seventy acres, this side of Big Lake, was burned over and the rye, which was in stack, was destroyed. It is supposed that the fire was started by spark from a passing locomotive.

Fergus Falls—Jesse Freeman, the second youngest son of County Commissioner Freeman, died last week from appendicitis. The boy had been suffering for about a month, and seemed better sometimes and worse at others. An abcess formed and his physicians decided to operate upon him. The operation was performed, but he sank gradually and died the following day.

Little Falls—A change has been made by the local mills in their buying schedule, which they will herafter buy at 5 cents above market prices, or, in other words, the Minneapolis quotations minus the freight to that place. This will be quite an inducement for all the farmers of the county to market their wheat here. These prices will be in effect during the ensuing year.

Warroad—Sever Sockness, who pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the Rosseau county district court ten years ago last May, had his sentence commuted by the state board of pardons to twenty years. This permits Sockness an intermediate parole from prison and he will be released Aug. 1.

Pine City—A very hapy reunion took place at the home of F. M. Otis of Brookpark, last week, it being the first time in fifteen years that his children have all been together under the parental roof.

St. Cloud—The village of Cold Spring has a horse thief sensation. On Wednesday night three valuable animals were taken from the premises of Henry Peters and thus far no trace of them has been discovered. Whether the horses were taken from the barn or from the pasture is not known, but Mr. Peters says they are missing and is very anxious to have the thieves apprehended.

Stillwater—George Fallen has been received at the state prison under a sentence of four years in Wabasha county and Thomas Chapik for a year and three months from St. Louis county, both for statutory offenses against women.

Milaca—Haying has begun in full swing and every piece of stumpage has been taken up. While the yield of tame hay will not come up to the average by any means, still the growth in the lowlands is good. This consists mostly of wild hay and land formerly swampy can be cut over this year on account of dry weather.

Duluth and Superior split even in a double bill at Hislop park, Superior, yesterday. The Red Legs pinched the first contest, 3 to 1 and O'Brien's crew just naturally won the second contest, 4 to 1 by all around better playing.

Both were good games and a large crowd of fans was present both from Duluth and Superior. Richard K. Thorsen worked from the mound for Superior during the first half of the tragedy. Richard had them bending at a great rate and he kept his four hits well scattered during the nine innings of play. Of these hits Kohl pounded out two.

Young Hughes, the pitcher, who joined the White Sox on their last short swing around the circuit pitched good ball for Duluth. He was unfortunate in allowing the players from the other side to bunch hits in the seventh. The bunching finally counted for two runs.

Both games were snappy and those who made the journey to Superior for the purpose of looking over the O'Brien crew with its new players, are now more than satisfied that the Zenith City team will finish higher up.

For the first three innings of the first game only three men on each side faced the opposing pitcher. The fielding was clean and it looked like a long drawn out pitchers' battle. The scoring started in the fifth. Chase hit for a bag. Caldwell fouled out and Bancroft fanned. Thorsen lifted one to Marion who dropped it after a hard run, Chase scoring.

In the next inning Kohl batted in a run for Duluth. Hughes, who was the first man up had singled and stole second. He came home on Kohl's hit. Kohl was caught at third.

The other two runs made by Superior came in the seventh. Both Caldwell and Thorsen hit safely after Chase had grounded out. Landry hit a long one that scored both runners.

In the second game Superior got its only run in the first. After that inning the Sox played the better ball, fielding and hitting like fiends.

JOHNSON SAVES THE GAME FOR DOCTORS.

I recommended it to some friends and two of them have been greatly benefited by it."—Mrs. MAE MCKNIGHT, Oronogo, Mo.

Another Grateful Woman.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered terribly with a female weakness and had backache, bearing down pains and pains in lower parts. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly and used the Sanative Wash and now I have no more troubles that way."—Mrs. AL. HERZOG, 5722 Prescott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

FLAYS HEADS OF HIS PARTY

Senator Cummins Makes Bitter Attack on Aldrich and Cannon.

Iowan Brands Them as Traitors in Speech in Kansas.

Peabody, Kan., July 25.—Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, in his speech before the Chautauqua here, asserted that Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon were traitors to their party, if not to the country, when they gave their support to the Wickersham railroad bill as it came from the attorney general's office and demanded that it go through congress.

"That bill was a direct repudiation of the Republican party platform of 1908 and it was directly in the interest of the railroads and not in the interests of the great common people of the country," said Mr. Cummins. "Speaker Cannon and Senator Aldrich and men of their class seem to think the Republican party was formed to make men rich. I think it was born to make men free. They think it was born to make millionaires; I believe it was born to drive misery out of this country.

Will Not Follow Traiter.

"Senator Aldrich has vigorously opposed all regulation of the railroads by congress ever since the bill to create the interstate commerce commission was introduced in 1887. I was born and always have been a Republican, but I cannot and will not follow the leadership of a traitor to his party and the people."

Senator Cummins spoke in a big tent where the heat was intense, but he continued his address for two hours to a large audience.

"I am a recruiting officer," he said, "for the army that will destroy the political leadership of Speaker Cannon and Senator Aldrich. I want to enlist men and women in this army for its best work will be done in the homes.

"I am not here to talk to men who believe as I do, for it is only the sick that need a physician.

"I am not opposed to the railroads. No man who values the public welfare can be hostile to the railroads, but justice to all means to pay the righteous dues as fixed by the laws of trade by competition.

Billions in Water.

"The railroads of this country are capitalized at $17,000,000,000. The highest estimate I have ever heard placed on the actual mount of independent capital put into their roads was $8,000,000,000. There is nearly $9,000,000,000 of impure and adulterated water.

"You have to pay more than you ought to pay for the service you get in order to pay dividends on this vast capitalization. The railroads charge excessive rates and accumulated a surplus, and this they put back into the roads in improvements, and now ask you to pay additional interest on this surplus, secured by extortionate rates. In ten years they have added $3,000,000,000 to their capitalization in betterments and extensions without the investment of a single penny of independent capital. We must pay interest on this surplus investment that represents no actual value, secured through extortionate rates.

Cannon and the Railroads.

"The first legislation to regulate railroads came in 1887 with the passage of the interstate commerce bill. Speaker Cannon was in the house then. He made no effort to restrict the growing power of the railroads or enact legislation in favor of the nation. He was silent and he has been silent ever since. Not a single instance can be shown in the Congressional Record when Cannon lifted his voice in favor of the common men and women.

"Cannon has been so busy trying to look like Abraham Lincoln that he has forgotten what Lincoln was trying to do for the people of his country. He has never been able to convince the people that his heart was right with them. The work of Bristow, Madison, Murdock and others will be remembered long after Cannon is eternally forgotten.

"Senator Aldrich was a senator in 1887. He was not silent but he vigorously opposed the interstate commerce commission bill, and ever since he has opposed every bill that attempted to regulate and restrict the railroads.

Prevented New Law.

"In 1897 the supreme court decided that the interstate commerce commission did not have the power to make rates. There was an instant demand for the passage of a law that would permit this. Cannon, Payne and Dalzell in the house and Aldrich and Hale in the senate were the leading spirits that prevented a law passing until the session of 1904.

"Then the voice of the American people became so strong that they could no longer ignore it, and they were forced to admit that the law needed strengthening. A bill was passed, as harmless to the railroads as it was possible to make it. Cannon and Aldrich never helped in the passage of that bill and they opposed it with all their power. The question that Aldrich and Cannon always seem to ask when a railroad measure is up is, 'will it hurt the railroads?'"

MAKE REPORT ON IMMIGRATION

Canadian and American Governments Gathering Up Statistics.

Winnipeg, July 25.—According to figures given out by the commissioner of immigration, the arrivals since March 31 this year in Western Canada were 93,000, of whom 46,500 came from the United States.

Will Come Back.

Washington, July 25.—Indications of a returning tide of Americans and immigrants from Canada to the Southeastern states next fall and winter are attracting the attention of immigration and industrial authorities. Industrial experts say the movement to the Southeastern states will begin next October. A record-breaking migration in this direction occurred last year, drawing upon the population of the central states, especially Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. Many of these people went to Southern Georgia and Florida and Southern Alabama.

From Iowa, Nebraska and Oklahoma many people have left for Calgary, Alberta and other parts of Canada, where they bought lands at from $5 to $8 an acre. The farmers averaged $1,000 money for improvements. The Canadian government reported that there were numerous Americans taking up their lands. Those who took up the homesteads in Canada, of course, had to declare their citizenship intentions, but many bought land outright.

Go to Gulf States.

Representatives of a number of colonization companies have been investigating available tracts in various portions of the gulf states during the last few months. A recent report to the land and industrial department of the Southern railway showed that since last May several thousand acres of land in Southern Alabama had either been purchased or was about to be obtained for Northwestern firms and corporations for locating settlers.

FROM NAVY TO THE ARMY; THEN PRISON

Graduate of Annapolis Is Held for Deserting the Service.

New York, July 25.—For the second time in the history of the United States army, Castle Williams, the military prison of the department of the East, on Governors Island, houses a graduate of one of the two national academies. The first was former Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, whose embezzlement case is still notorious. The second is not named by the war department, but in his time he was a popular midshipman and ensign aboard a battleship of the Atlantic fleet.

When he came up for promotion to the rank of junior lieutenant, he failed to pass the required examination and was permitted to resign. He was devoted to the service, and at the advice of friends decided to enlist for a commission in the army.

For a year the "rookie" stuck to his duties manfully. Then he became an absentee without leave, and finally the absence lengthened into desertion. Three months ago he was captured and the government paid his capture $100. Now he wears clothes marked with a yellow P. E.

The prisoner has not yet been court-martialed, but when the maneuvers at Gettysburg are over a court will be convened and the prisoner's name will then, of necessity, come out. Officers on Governor's Island refused to discuss the case, although they would not deny that they have such a prisoner.

WAR ON MOSQUITOES BUILDS UP REGION.

Washington, July 25.—As a result of a war on mosquitoes in certain parts of Italy, a healthy, cheerful looking race and fat, rosy children have succeeded a population which a few years ago consisted of a few miserable peasants, their skins yellow as saffron and their bodies bent by disease and suffering.

This is the report made by the department of agriculture by Dr. L. O. Howard, who has returned from a recent visit there. Most travelers, he says, recollect this region as a vast tract of marsh land, where mosquitoes and malaria were bred. The country, having been drained by the government, now is being extensively farmed and is beginning to support what eventually will be a large population.

The work was inaugurated and pushed to a successful conclusion by Dr. Angelleccili, who is regarded with almost superstitious reverence by the common people of the country.

Jacob Schiff In Alaska.

Cordova, Alaska, July 25.—Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, and a party of Eastern friends, have arrived from Shagway on the yacht Ramona. Mr. Schiff and his party were the guests while here of the officials of the Copper River & Northwestern railroad, which they inspected.

EXTENSION IN THE EAST

Canadian Northern Entering Richest Field of Grand Trunk Road.

Buys Branch Line and Is Preparing to Invade Montreal.

The Canadian Northern road is not confining its activity in the matter of extensions to Northern Minnesota and Western Canada, but is energetically seeking an outlet to the sea on the east.

The growth of this young railroad is one of the marvels of the railroad world, and it is no place more strikingly illustrated than in Eastern Canada. A Duluth man who returned yesterday from the East was speaking of the activity of the Canadian Northern in Central and Eastern Ontario.

"For years and years the Grand Trung road has considered Central Ontario its private dominion," said this Duluthian. "It has had a monopoly on the business between Toronto and Montreal, having the most direct route, and it has tapped all the rich farming country along Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river, which the Canadian Pacific, running farther north, missed.

"But the Grand Trunk is going to have a dangerous rival in the field. The Canadian Northern is pushing its line eastward from Toronto at a very rapid rate. They told me down there that it has its line already built to Trenton, a little town at the head of the Bay of Quinte, 101 miles east of Toronto, or about a third of the distance to Montreal. It is reported on excellent authority that the Canadian Northern has just closed a deal for the purchase of the Central Ontario railroad. This is a little line, about 132 miles in all, running north and south from Trenton. The northern half runs up to the iron mines of the Coe hill district, which were put out of business years ago by the discovery of the rich Mesaba range, but which are now being operated again. The southern half of the road runs to Picton, a little town on the Bay of Quinte, in one of the richest farming sections of Ontario. I understand it is the plan of the Canadian Northern to extend this line to Kingston, through the very richest of farming country that has never been tapped before by a railroad. This will give them a line from Toronta to Kingston only four miles longer than the Grand Trunk. This work could be done very rapidly, and I see no reason why the road shouldn't have a line from Toronto to Kingston within a very few months. This is 165 miles, or half way to Montreal. The road would then be extended down the river, parallel with the Grand Trunk, to Montreal, and the Canadian Northern will then have a seaport.

"Montreal is booming at the present time, and they claim a population there of close to 750,000. This move would put the Canadian Northern in a position to compete with either of its powerful rivals, the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, and that wonderful system, the Canadian Pacific railroad. The Canadian Northern reminds me very much of the Soo road here. It is a kind of free lance. They go ahead and build their road without much fuss, and they are up and coming all the time. They are making the Canadians sit up and take notice, and the Grand Trunk, always one of the most conservative roads, is showing new life, in anticipation of some very keen competition, when the Canadian Northern invades its richest field.

"This extension, of course, will not directly affect Duluth, but it shows how important the entrance of the Canadian Northern to this city will be."

A MODERN FALCONER.

In the halycon days of old the boss of the country rode out to round up a square meal with his falcon when he wasn't decapitating insurgents and clapping into gaol those folks who decried the cost of living.

A. D. Thomson, the grain man, is inclined to think that the boys with the falcons didn't have anything on him. Mr. Thomson and members of his family were riding in the country the other day when a big black hawk circled near. As a partridge made a hopeless dash across the road the hawk shot downward like a dart, sank its talons into the prisoner and snapped off its head.

As the hawk arose a few feet away Mr. Thomson threw his whip, startling the bird which dropped its prey. The hawk was driven away with rocks.

As Mr. Thomson remarked at dinner that evening the hawk exercised an Epicurean discrimination in its choice of partridges.

OFFER COMPROMISE TO THE MINE UNIONS.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25.—T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, announces that a compromise proposition has been made by the coal mine operators of Illinois to the striking miners and will be submitted to a referendum vote of the miners. The compromise makes several concessions to the miners, though it does not grant their full demands. A wage increase of 5.55 per cent is offered for day work, and an increase of 3 cents a ton will be paid to men in mines where shot firers are employed, and this the miners' officials regards as the greatest of the concessions offered by the operators.

TO PAY GENERAL FOR HIS SERVICES FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Washington, July 25.—For services rendered nearly fifty years ago, Brig. Gen. Harry R. Anderson, a retired artillery officer, is to receive from the government $250. Gen. Anderson served as a cadet at West Point from July, 1864, to January, 1865—six months and eighteen days. The controller of the treasury has ruled that this service in the academy was actual service in the army.

WITTPENN WILL OPPOSE WILSON IN CONVENTION.

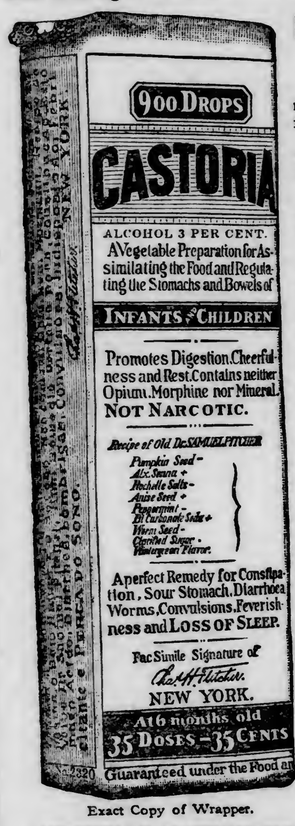

Asbury Park, N. J., July 25.—Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton, will not be nominated by acclamation for governor of New Jersey on the Democratic ticket. Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn of Jersey City, who announced himself a candidate for the nomination some time ago, made this plain Sunday, when he said he would surely go before the convention and fight to the end.

In a recent statement Mr. Wilson said he would accept a nomination if it came as a clear tribute from an unmistakable majority of his party.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, July 25.—The whole iron industry is in the depths of summer dullness, the United States Steel corporation having dropped its activities to 60 per cent of its total capacity. Some of the small independent steel companies are doing relatively more, but others less. The American Steel & Wire company has stimulated the wire trade somewhat since it openly dropped $1 per ton under the previous cuts of $1 to $2 per ton; but in other finished lines, business is decreasing in volume. Even in fabricated structural orders steel are small, the aggregate new business last week being only about 15,000 tons. The railroads are still legthargic. The Carnegie mills are to roll 75,000 tons of rails for foreign orders.

Business in pig iron last week again was light. Sales throughout the country were but little more than 40,000 tons.

No. 2 foundry from Buffalo is being delivered to New Jersey and New York consumers at $16. The Philadelphia territory is being invaded by Western Pennsylvania furnaces at $16, delivered for No. 2. Pipe works have quietly filled a portion of their recent inquiries with Alabama iron at $4.95 delivered on the Delaware, or $10.50 Birmingham for No. 4. The principal transaction in steel making iron was about 10,000 tons of basic and Bessemer taken by Ohio producers for delivery at Newport, Ky. Basic in the East was flat.

GORED BY A BULL.

Man Living Near Warroad Has Very Close Call.

Warroad, Minn., July 25. — Charles Olson of Algoma, had a narrow escape from being killed by a vicious bull a few mornings ago. He started out for Warroad to get a load of flour, using the bull as one of the draft animals on the wagon, and because the beast was in bad training was leading him, while his son was driving. Everything went well until they were about half a mile away from home, when the bull suddenly became vicious and turned on Mr. Olson; throwing him down at the side of the road and goring him with its long horns, and it would only have been a matter of a few minutes before Olson had been killed had not the boy secured a club and used it judiciously on the bull. A few well directed blows caused the animal to direct its attention to the boy and gave Olson a chance to get out of the way.

Mr. Olson has used the bull as a draft animal for some time and has had trouble with it before, but it has never before had the nerve to show actual fight. Although quite seriously injured Mr. Olson will recover.

TWO DROWN AS RESULT OF SCRAMBLE FOR PURSE.

Youngstown, Ohio, July 25.—In a scramble among five boys and girls in a boat over the possession of a pocketbook, two were drowned in Lake Cohasset Sunday. Harry Rosenbloom fell overboard in the scramble, and in falling caught Susie Merman's skirts, pulling her in after him. Both drowned before the others in the party could reach them.

THREE PEOPLE AND HORSE ARE DROWNED.

Denison, Texas, July 25.—Harry Smith, a prominent business man; Mrs. Bessie Bird, a widow, and her infant child were drowned Sunday in Randell reservoir, five miles from here. No one saw the accident and it is thought they drove into the reservoir to water their horse, supposing it to be shallow. They fell into 16 feet of water. The horse also drowned. The bodies were recovered.

LOCKED OUT BY BURGLAR

F. A. Smith Finds His Screen Door Fastened Against Him.

Supposed Intruder Thought to Have Escaped Through Window.

Locked out of his home, presumably by a burglar, F. A. Smith, residing at 224 South Seventy-third avenue west, called for the police at an early hour this morning, and had two officers break in for him.

Smith and his family had left the house early in the evening to visit friends in the neighborhood and did not return until about 2 o'clock this morning.

Finding the screen door locked from the inside, Smith was somewhat puzzled, but before he attempted to break in he called for the police and kept watch with his family until Officers Olson and Anderson arrived on the scene.

The screen door was broken down as all other doors were locked. The house was searched but nobody was found. It is thought that the intruder made his getaway through a window.

Smith told the officers that when he had left the place, that the window blinds had been left down, but that upon his return they had been pulled up. He is of the opinion that someone entered the house and locked the door for protection, should the occupants return.

A hurried search at the Smith home last evening, however, failed to show that anything had been taken. The police are investigating.

STREET LEFT IN BAD CONDITION

Forty-First Avenue Property Owners Agitate for Repairs.

Property owners along Forty-first avenue west will begin anew the agitation for repairs to be made to the street, which was cut up by the flood, July 21, 1909.

The largest ravine, which the water cut through the street has been partly filled up, but above Fourth street, traffic is out of the question.

People who have homes on the street believe that the board of public works should take some action on the matter and are clamoring to see something done about fixing the avenue.

When the rain come down over the hill, Forty-first avenue was torn up more than any other street in the city. In one place where a fill had been made over an old creek bed, the action of the water made an 8-foot ravine through the street.

STEAMER MASTER IS FINED $200

Captain of J. J. Hill Violated Rules in St. Mary's River.

For failing to blow one blast of the whistle while passing abreast of Everens Point in St. Mary's river, at 8:32 a. m., July 15, A. J. Talbot, master of the steamer J. J. Hill, was assessed $200 by Collector of Customs L. M. Willcuts today.

The violation of the rules governing navigation in St. Mary's river was reported to the collector of customs by the revenue cutter at the Soo. The Hill is owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company.

HE WANTED A LAWYER.

Gen. John Dwan of Two Harbors and a Duluthian were accosted on the street today by a rather excited young man who demanded to know where "the lawyer's office" might be. As the distinguished member of the bar from Lake county didn't volunteer the information craved by the young man, his companion of the moment was about to say something, when the seeker after guide-book information broke in with something like this:

"There's doctors' offices over there," with an eloquent gesture," but don't want doctor. Want lawyer. Them ain't them, is they? Lawyers don't go under the name 'doctor' here do they? Want a lawyer, not a doctor. Where's the lawyer's office?"

The stranger was directed to throw a brick into almost any office window and then go after the brick. A lawyer would be there to collect the damage charges, in all probability.

The stranger had no difficulty in finding a lawyer, however, without resorting to the brick expedient.

THE ORIGIN OF PUNCH.

In Germany punch is the national drink for the night of St. Sylvester, when Germans finish the year by drinking punch, a usage observed even by the kaiser himself. Punch is what they drink when they have colds.

Moreover, we are told that the English brought punch from India. It takes its name from pansche, a Sanscrit word for five, because such is the number of the ingredients, arrak or rum, tea, sugar, lemon and hot water. It was in 1695 that the English first celebrated the New Year with punch.

A contemporary relates an amusing story in connection with punch. When Frederick VII. came to Flensburg, in Schleswig, he gave a banquet to the notables of the district. After the dessert he desired a court official to inquire how the guests had enjoyed his hospitality. They hesitated to express an opinion, but at length one, bolder than his fellows, resolved to speak freely.

Everything was excellent save the punch. The magnates of Schleswig had drung for punch the warm water charged with perfume which had been placed before them for ablutions.

ROAD MAP IS BEING MADE

Automobile Club at Work on Guide for Car Owners.

Sign Posts Will Also Be Placed on Important Roads.

Automobiling in and about Duluth will be made more pleasant for local enthusiasts of the motor car, as well as for the many tourists who will spend their vacations in this city, for the Duluth Automobile club has planned to have a chart of the city and vicinity made, which will show all the roads fit for good riding.

More than 500 miles of good roads for cars can be found within a radius of fifty miles of Duluth, and these will all be included in the proposed map. When completed, this chart will be the best guide for motorists, giving them a clear idea of the territory through which they will travel, with any danger which may be expected on the road.

Those desiring to make a day's spin through the country about Duluth can easily plan where to go, and how to get there through the information given on this map. All the rides that can be made in one day, east, north, west or south of Duluth, will be mapped out clearly.

Special attention will be given to the roads to the Twin Cities and to the range towns. Each road will be sign-posted in such a manner that travelers can be warned before hand of all the difficult places, all the dangerous passages, all the hills and all the valleys.

Such charts have been prepared by automobile clubs of other cities, and found to be of benefit to all owners of cars, and to the promotion of the good-rads movement.

It is believed by the members of the Duluth club, that those owning cars will appreciate the work now being undertaken by it, and that they will lend their assistance in some manner to carry out the scheme. Among the leading members of this club, are men who have been ardent workers for the better system of county as well as state roads, and in this work, they feel that they should receive the co-operation of men, who, though not members of the Automobile club, nor owners of cars, have been interested in improving country roads.

Work has already been begun on the charts, and it is expected that the club will have them out in a short time.

CLOSE LOWER THAN OPENING

Losses of the Day Not Fully Regained in Covering Rally.

Coppers opened fairly strong and advanced. The upturn was quickly checked by a bear raid and by weakness in the industrials. Toward the close, when shorts took profits, the market rallied, but values closed fractionally lower than the opening. The copper market was relatively stronger than the other markets.

Butte Coalition declared a dividend of 25c a share, payable Sept. 1. Books will close Aug. 12.

The United Metals Selling company has sold between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper. None of the copper was sold below 12½c a pound, and later sales are said to have been made at a shade above 12½c. A large amount of copper was recently sold for domestic consumption.

The Warrior Development company is now shipping its ore to the Old Dominion smelter at Globe, Ariz., instead of to the El Paso, Tex., smelter. The company is sending out 100 tons of high grade ore daily. The average copper content is about 9½ per cent. The company has begun to drill for low grade disseminated ore.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said: "Copper prices are holding at about last week's level. Lake is 12⅝ to 12¾ cents and electrolytic is 12¼ to 12⅜ cents a pound. So far as I am able to learn no very large lots of copper have changed hands recently; but the aggregate of current small transactions make up a very fair volume of business. Consumers are buying only enough copper to meet their present requirements. So far as can be learned there has been only a very slight falling off in the domestic demand. The tendency of the times seems to be toward a larger consumption all over the world.

"There is likely to be a very large increase in the buying demand for copper in the immediate future. A number of the considerable producers have definitely decided to curtail their production without the formality of a trade agreement. At the same time it is known that negotiations are on again for a merger of large producing interests. Increasing curtailment will certainly stop the downward course of prices. Consumers will appreciate this, and probably will buy copper heavily, anticipating an advance.

"There was a decrease of 2,907,520 pounds in the foreign visible supply of copper during the first fifteen days of this month, notwithstanding the much heavier exports from this country during June. On July 15 the foreign visible supply stood at 229,956,160 pounds. This compares with 254,139,200 pounds on March 1, a decrease of 24,183,040 pounds in four and a half months. In the four months from March 1 to July 1 the surplus in this country increased 44,561,143 pounds. The fact that consumers both in this country and in Europe are carrying much smaller working stocks than they were earlier in the year, taken together with the statistics here presented, encourages the belief that quite as much copper has been consumed so far this year as has been produced.

"While overproduction is popularly blamed for the present depressed condition of the copper trade, it does not seem to me that all the fault lies there. It will be recalled that there was a most decided shortage of production four or five years ago, which found expression finally in a market price of 26 cents for the metal. Of course such an abnormally high price brought competitors into the field usually supplied by copper. Galvanized iron, zinc, lead, tin, etc., were used as substitutes in many places. This competition alone would have had a profound effect upon the market for copper; but immediately following the wild price advance came one of the most disastrous panics that this country has seen in many, many years. Consumption of copper was greatly reduced, as was that of all other commodities.

"Production, meanwhile, continued as usual, and during the panic period was created the greater portion of the surplus now existing. The question therefore arises whether it was the substitution of other metals for copper in building operations, etc., resulting from the abnormally high price reached by the metal in 1906, and the great falling off in consumption caused by the panic of 1907, which are responsible for the present surplus of copper, or whether these two factors should be dismissed from consideration entirely and overproduction be accepted as a satisfactory explanation of the existing surplus.

"Twice before in the history of the trade the world's surplus of copper has approximated the amount now existing. When the Secretan syndicate collapsed in 1889, the surplus was 167,000 long tons, or 374,080,000 pounds. That surplus was due in part to overproduction and in part to the maintenance for a long period of fictitiously high prices for the metal. Again in 1901, after the Amalgamated corner collapsed, there was approximately 400,000,000 pounds of copper unmarketed. It is an interesting fact that the surplus accumulated in each of these periods went out of existence naturally, being absorbed by the consuming interests, whose sole encouragement was two or three years of low metal prices.

"In the history of these two corners in the metal, which resulted in the accumulation of big surplus supplies, and the manner in which those accumulations disappeared, is found an unanswerable argument that the world is able to consume copper in almost unlimited quantities when the price is maintained for a period at around 12 cents. Unless precedent fails us, consumption, both in this country and Europe, especially in the latter, will go on increasing rapidly as long as the price of the metal remains around its present level. The surplus will be absorbed, all of the coming increase in production taken care of, and within a year or two, or at the longest three, the price of copper will advance again, whether there is curtailment of production or not. The safety and stability of the whole copper situation exists in the fact that mines enough have never been developed to over-supply the world's consuming ability for a long sustained period after the price had declined to 12 cents or lower."

STREET MUST BE REPAIRED

Council Will Call Upon Soo Road to Pave Michigan Street.

Sandstone Block Pavement Without Concrete Base Will Be Laid.

The council will probably pass a resolution at the meeting tonight calling upon the Soo railroad to fix up West Michigan street, between Eighth and Twelfth avenues west. The thoroughfare, which is one of the most heavily traveled in the city, is in fearful shape. The roadway is full of ruts and holes and at times is practically impassable. The road promised at the time it was given a franchise, to replace the street in its original condition.

When they put in the tunnel, the engineers found it necessary to excavate a considerable portion of the street. Since then it has been worse than a country road after having been used by a logging company in a rainy season. The upper side has recently been torn up by a contractor who put in a sewer. It is also practically useless. The railroad company has already offered to pave the street with sandstone blocks, but has objected to putting in a concrete base. It is understood that the council will instruct the company to go ahead without the base.

The installation of a workhouse at the point of rocks for the removal of the cliff is not expected to come up this evening. The board of public works has not prepared any estimate of the cost and the city attorney has also been called upon for a report as to the legal powers of the city in the matter.

The ordinance allowing theaters with a seating capacity of less than 300 people to have one rear exit is also due, having been laid over from the last Monday night meeting.

BANK IS IN TOUCH WITH MISSING CASHIER.

New York, July 25.—Counsel for Erwin Wider, who has been formally charged by officials of the Russo-Chinese bank with stealing $80,000 worth of bonds, admits that he knows where his client is and intimates that Wider and the bank are now in touch.

The bonds have not been negotiated, although it is strongly hinted that they have been typothecated with various Wall street brokers. Neither has the case been reported to the police, and Wider's lawyer hopes that if the bonds can be restored to the bank there will be no prosecution.

For salary Wider got $1,200 a year. He owned an automobile and paid $35 a month for his house in the Bronx.

THINK ROPKE GOT $1,140,000

Trust Company Officials Make Statement at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., July 25.—August Ropke, assistant secretary and bookkeeper of the Fidelity Trust company, one of the soundest financial institutions in Louisville, is believed to have made away with $1,140,000, the entire surplus of the concern, according to a statement made by John W. Barr, president of the trust company. Ropke was a heavy speculator and lost large sums, it is said, on Wall street and the Chicago board of trade.

The loss will be met by an issue of stock aggregating $1,000,000, which will be issued to stockholders at par.

Stockholders Will Supply It.

There is no apprehension in financial circles over the outcome of the shortage. The stockholders have already agreed to subscribe the full amount of the new issue.

August Ropke, the central figure in this, one of the largest defalcations in recent years, is a German, about 45 years old. He lived unostentatiously and indulged in only one luxury, as far as his friends know, and that was an automobile. But the craze for speculation seized him and he began dabbling in stocks and grain several years ago.

Ropke has been in the employ of the bank eighteen years and it is understood the investigation into the books will cover the entire period. Ropke is in jail here.

Bemidji, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sunday was a field day for the members of the Public Ownership party, (Socialist), of Beltrami county, a picnic being held at Diamond Point, which was largely attended.

The Bemidji band furnished music and there were many games and contests. A platform had been erected in the park and there were a number of speeches. Rev. George E. Barrett of Puposky, the Socialist candidate for governor, delivered a speech, provoking much enthusiasm. Among the other speakers was Torkel Holland of Lengby, one of the most ardent Socialists in the state.

In the evening, a lecture was delivered at the Armory by T. A. Latimer, A. M., instructor in the University of Iowa, a speaker of considerable note. The armory was crowded and there was much enthusiasm.

The arrangements were in charge of J. H. Grant, chairman; Dr. Larson, Earl Gell and others.

It is stated that the Public Ownership adherents will put a full ticket in the field as candidates for county offices.

CLOUDY

About 79,920,000 people who were not in Duluth yesterday missed an ideal summer day—one of those days that bring up visions of running brooks, shady trees and arouse longings for the back-to-nature quiet of the virgin forest. The rain Saturday was a little more vigorous than was seemly, but it cleared the atmosphere of smoke and the rays of the sun struck the earth with dazzling brightness yesterday morning. Today is another fine summer day—the regular vacation kind. Showers may fall again tonight.

Cloudy weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:39 and it will set at 7:50, giving fifteen hours and eleven minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"With the exception of the Lake Superior region, Canada and along the Pacific coast temperatures of 90 deg. or more were quite the rule during Sunday. A disturbance now central over the St. Lawrence valley caused light to heavy thunder storms there and in the lake region during the last twenty-four hours. Showers also fell in the meantime over Gulf states, the Lower Mississippi valley and Southwestern states. A depression that has developed over Saskatchewan has resulted in further showers over South Dakota and rising temperatures over the greater portion of the Rocky Mountain region and the Dakotas. The barometer remains high over Gulf states and off the Washington-Oregon coast. This condition, in connection with the low pressure areas in the North and Northeast, rather favors a continuance of warm weather throughout the country generally."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate westerly winds becoming variable tonight; partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday.

Chicago, July 25.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer in west portion tonight.

Minnesota—Generally fair weather, except possible local thunder storms tonight or Tuesday; warmer in west and south portions tonight.

Iowa—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer in central portion tonight.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight.

Montana.—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler in southeast portion tonight.

IN PULPITS OF DULUTH

Rev. M. O. Stockland Declares Himself Against Women's Suffrage.

Rev. J. W. Powell Preaches on Man's Opportunities in Summer.

In declaring himself against women's suffrage, Rev. M. O. Stockland of the Grace M. E. church emphasized the fact that he is old fashioned enough to believe that a woman's place is the home, where she will receive the love, reverence, devotion and protection of man, and where she wil reign as queen, rather than in the business world, where she must expect the same treatment that men receive.

"According to the Bible, Mother Eve was the first woman's rights agitator," said Rev. Stockland, "when she sought to emancipate herself from her womanhood and become liberated into the Godhead."

In his sermon on "Woman's Besetting Sin" Rev. Stockland pointed out that selfishness is her greatest sin and illustrated this by several simple everyday occurrences in which women, who are forcing themselves upon the business world, are continually demanding the same respect from men that they would expect in the home. "The glory of the American," he said, "is his high regard for womanhood, and I am afraid that as a class the American woman has taken an undue advantage of this."

In his second sermon of the series on "The Messages of the Summer," the subject of which was "The Ministry of Beauty," Rev. J. W. Powell declared that God is both beauty-loving and beautiful. The three chief boons brought to men by the summer season, said Rev. Powell are, first, the privilege of increased contact with nature; second, the exuberant beauty of the season of flowers, and third, the opportunity for wholesome recreation and pleasure.

Rev. Hugo J. P. Selinger of the West Duluth Baptist church decried the social conditions of the times, emphasizing that they are no better today than they were 2,000 years ago, when the new religion was started. In the sermon on "Snake Bites," he said that instead of the glorious achievements of a reign of brotherly love in the world, the high-flung heaven-sent idealism, there is still venom, hatred, malice and exploitation.

The final judgment of man rests upon the results he is able to accomplish, said Dr. A. W. Ryan of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, yesterday morning. He showed that the social and commercial conditions cannot be ameliorated by the mere assumption of piety but only through the earnest efforts

* * *

"The successful man in the business world today is successful because he believes in the business he is in and its possibilities," said W. E. Harmann of the St. Luke's Episcopal church, yesterday. "He believes the success in his field is sure if he will devote to it good, hard honest work and untiring efforts."

* * *

Rev. B. V. Black of the Union Church Disciples, expressed the belief that there is a great need in the political life of today of an unfailing trust in righteousness and the supreme belief that truth will triumph over sin. "The resurrection of Christ," he said, "did not only establish eternal life, but demonstrated it. This demonstration revealed the greater truths, that of the eternal supremacy of right and the immorality of truth."

The Glad Task.

Insure good health and a cheerful disposition, which are essential in order to perform our tasks gladly, by the daily use of Golden Grain Belt beer. BUCK COMPANY MAKES PEACE WITH LABOR MEN.

St. Louis, Mo., July 25.—Formal announcement is made by J. T. Templeton, secretary of the Buck Stove & Range company, of the end of the fight with organized labor. The employes of the plant are to be organized. The secretary, however, did not state if the present workmen would be required to join the union.

The announcement in part says:

"The present management is, and always has been, friendly to organized labor. We believe labor has a right to organize for its protection and advancement."

POLES CELEBRATE TANNENBERG BATTLE.

New York, July 25.—Over the lapse of 500 years, an echo of the great battle of Tannenberg, in which the Teutonic Knights were defeated by the Poles and Lithuanians, was heard Sunday when nearly 40,000 Polish residents of New York and its surrounding towns gathered at Midland park on Staten Island to celebrate the anniversary of the victory. An all day outing marked by special ceremonies, including the celebration of mass, and a program of addresses was the feature of the reunion.

CHICAGO HAS $300,000 LOSS IN SUNDAY FIRES.

Chicago, July 25.—Damages amounting to $300,000 resulted from three fires Sunday. Flames swept through a half block of homes in Lakeview, wiping out twenty buildings; the Gragin grain elevator of the Northwestern Malt & Grain company was burned to the ground, and the plant of the C. F. Ogren Brewing company was destroyed.

The heaviest individual damage, $150,000, was suffered by the North-Western Malt & Grain company.

SAVED, BUT LOSES HIS BROTHER IN EXCITEMENT.

New York, July 25.—Thomas Brown, who cannot swim, was fished out of the same hole in the Harlem river last night where his elder brother, Robert was drowned a year ago, but in the excitement atending his rescue another brother, Peter, who had gone to his aid, was allowed to sink unnoticed to his death.

Ten men, a keg of beer, an overturned boat and three drownings is the story of another outing that ended disastrously. One of the drowned was Gaetane Booze.

Five other drownings in the waters near New York made up a normal average for a hot Sunday.

Attempted Suicide.

St. Louis, Mo., July 25.—Bound together with two steel chains and fifteen feet of rope, and weighted with a valise filled with sand, two revolvers, an axe, an oil stove and other old junk to insure their sinking, Brice Woomack, a wealthy farmer of Troy, Mo., and Mrs. Mollie Anderson of St. Louis jumped from a skiff into the Mississippi river here Sunday. They were rescued by people on the bank and when brought to land were arrested.

Woomack is charged with theft of the skiff from which he and the woman leaped.

"YARB" DOCTOR, NAMED IN HYDE TRIAL, IS DEAD.

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—Dr. Chessing Hatred Chase Jordan, the self-styled 'South American specialist," who figured in the Swope poison case, died at his office in Kansas City, Kan., Saturday night. Dr. Jordan is said to have received $10,000 for his professional services to Mrs. Logan and Chrisman Swope, the latter of whom Dr. B. C. Hyde is charged with poisoning. His death was due to bronchitis.

RAINS PUT OUT BRUSH FIRES NEAR FLOODWOOD.

John Stokke, who runs the town of Floodwood in the capacity of mayor, left Duluth this morning for Zim, Minn., a station on the Missabe. He was accompanied by several insurance adjusters who will inspect what is left of pulp wood and ties which were partially destroyed by a brush fire two weeks ago. The stuff was owned by the Coolidge-Shaasler company of Minneapolis of which Mr. Stokke is the representative in Northern Minnesota.

Mr. Stokke said the recent rains have put out the brush fires near Floodwood and between that town and Duluth.

HARRIMAN ESTATE WORTH $71,000,000.

New York, July 25.—Edward H. Harriman was worth $71,000,000 at the time of his death. The records of the state controller's office, into which inheritance taxes are paid, show that Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, who has acted as Mrs. Harriman's advisor since her husband's death, paid on March 5 last $675,000, the amount to which the state is entitled under the transfer tax law. A little arithmetic shows to those familiar with the law that the estate on which this tax was paid was valued at $71,000,053.

TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST WITH STEAMER.

Tokio, July 25. — The Tetsuri-Maru, plying between Kobe and Dairen, sank Saturday night off Chindo, Korea. The steamer had 246 passengers aboard, of whom forty were saved. The others are missing. Warships have been sent to the scene.

Foundling on Doorsteps.

Enderlin, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wrapped in a coarse woolen blanket and laid in a small wooden box with some hay, a new born baby was deserted at Anselem at the doorstep of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Krueger. No clue has been found as to the persons who deserted the infant, but the officials are at work on the case and have hopes of landing the guilty parties.

Brothers Are Drowned.

Erie, Penn., July 25.—Harry and Alvin Winfield, brothers, were drowned in Erie harbor Sunday when their sailboat capsized. They had just taken a picnic party safely across to the peninsula and were returning for another load of young people when a gust overturned them. Alvin Winfield's sweetheart was among a number of girls who, helpless, witnessed the accident from the shore.

Vigorous at Age of 110 Years.

Norfolk, Va., July 25.—Well, vigorous and able to take a long walk each day is Richard Cooper, an inmate of Norfolk City home, who says he is 110 years of age. City officials say she has clearly established that he was born in Norfolk county in October, 1800. Cooper, up to two years ago, was an active oyster man.

Cardinal Gibbons' Birthday.

Baltimore, Md., July 25.—Cardinal Gibbons was 76 years old Saturday. He spent the day at the country home of a friend near Westminster, Md., where he often goes for rest and quiet. The cardinal received many letters and telegrams of congratulations from all parts of the country.

EARLY MORNING BRAWL ENDS IN FATAL STABBING

Frederick Brandt Under Arrest for Killing Emil Lueck.

Men Fought Over Card Game ---Prisoner Pleads Self Defense.

Following trouble over a card game at a German society celebration in Maccabee hall, 21 Lake avenue north, Emil Lueck, 24 years old, was fatally stabbed about 1 o'clock this morning by Frederick Brandt, 48 years of age.

The fight took place in the middle of the street at the conclusion of the entertainment. Lueck died about two hours later at St. Mary's hospital.

The body of the dead man was terribly mutilated, being cut in fourteen different places. Several of the gashes are long and deep. One in the upper part of the left leg is about eight inches long and two inches deep. Another ripped the abdomen, another is directly below the heart, several were in the chest, another ugly wound was in the back, and both arms were gashed.

Brandt was arrested shortly after the fight by Patrolman Andrie. At the police station this morning he didn't deny the cutting but declared that it was done in self-defense.

Brandt's Story.

"Lueck was laying for me in front of the hall," asserted Brandt at headquarters today. "He struck me on the shoulder as I was leaving the hall and I tried to run away from him. The blow sent me reeling off the curb and, recovering myself, I did my best to get out of his reach.

"When I reached the middle of the street someone else I didn't recognize hit me in the face. He smashed me back into Lueck's arms. The two of them piled onto me. I got out my pocket knife, as I had to defend myself. I was underneath on the ground and couldn't get the blade open all the way. To force it open I jerked it across my leg and got a cut myself.

"The stabbing was done so quickly that I do not remember hardly anything about it. The affair was over in a second, it seemed to me. It was over just like that," he stated, snapping his hands together twice. He was informed that there were fourteen stab wounds in Lueck's body. He seemed to be considerably surprised at the fact and didn't understand clearly how that could be. He said that the blow in the head half-dazed him and that it might be possible that such was the case.

"I had to defend myself," he continued. "I didn't hear him make the remark personally, but I have been told that someone outside the hall heard him say something to the effect that 'just wait until that ——— of a Brandt comes out and I'll nail him.'

"We didn't have any trouble during the course of the evening. No one was under the influence of liquor. Lueck and several others were playing cards, and about a quarter past 12 I told them it was time to stop. I had promised the janitor that I would see to it that all the lights were cut, the door locked and everybody out of the hall before I left. When I give my word I keep it. So when they wanted to play another game I turned out the lights, putting an end to the discussion in that way. That must have been what made Lueck angry.

"I think that he went out at that time. But he evidently waited for me outside. I and several other members of the committee stayed behind to check things up. I was chairman of the committee. Two of the members of the committee and a third man went downstairs with me."

"Couldn't they separate you and stop any trouble?" he was asked.

"I don't know what it was, whether they weren't able to get there or didn't care. There was quite a crowd about."

Brandt said that he didn't want his "old folks" to hear that he was in trouble. He explained that they are in Erie, Pa., but didn't think that they could help hearing of it. He has a wife and one child. His son is living with his grandparents on his mother's side.

It is claimed that Lueck didn't get medical assistance for half an hour, it being alleged that several physicians refused to answer the call at that hour of the night. He was hurried onto the operating table at St. Mary's hospital at the earliest possible moment, but he had lost so much blood and was so horribly cut that he had no chance to recover.

Lueck is the son of Robert Lueck of 505 East Fourth street, and was employed as a driver by the Peerless laundry. Brandt has been in the employ of the Duluth Show Case company as a hardwood finisher. He is a member of the Oddfellows lodge. Several members of the lodge called on him at the police station this morning.

"If I hadn't had some friends call on me this morning before you came, you couldn't have talked to me at all," he said when seen by an interviewer. "But they cheered me up a lot and I feel much better.

Lueck's body was taken to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan. The funeral arrangements have not been completed further than that the services will be held Wednesday.

RAIN FAILED TO AFFECT SLOPE

Wire Screening Saves County a Tidy Little Sum of Money.

M. S. Watt, the gardener in charge of the improvements being made on the courthouse grounds is very proud of the fact that the heavy rain of Saturday afternoon, which almost amounted to a cloudburst, took only a very small amount of earth from the .65 per cent grade on the Third street side.

Mr. Watt says that the wire screen which was laid in the grade in terraces, saved the county upwards of $3,000. The wire, which is closely woven, is laid across the hill every few feet. This prevents sliding. The contractor says that the earth and trees and shrubs recently planted would certainly have been washed out had it not been for the wire screening.

The hills on the back of the grounds were not damaged in the least while the slope on Fourth avenue west and First street where the grade is not nearly so steep lost considerable surface dirt. It is being smoothed over and filled up today.

PROTECTION FOR FARM BUILDINGS

John Jenswold Has Barrels of Water Ready on His Farm.

John Jenswold, Jr., who owns a large farm a few miles east of Thomson, on the Duluth-Thomson road, has started a method for fire protection in the farming districts which are threatened each year by forest fires.

About the many buildings which he has upon this farm, he has instructed his employes to place a large number of barrels filled with water for immediate use in case the forest fire should come within range of them.

The fires of last week, which were quenched by the big storm last Saturday, were within three miles of his farm, and for a while there was some fear that it would invade this territory. Mr. Jenswold made a trip to his land after the rain and then gave orders for this protection.

Although the fires have been raging in the vicinity of Cloquet there has been little damage, said Mr. Jenswold, in the southern part of Carlton county. This part is being rapidly settled up and the many farms are being cleared quickly, thus diminishing the danger threatened by forest fires.

Good Templar Launch Sticks on Sandbar and Delays Festivities.

Temperance Advocates Hear Program of Speeches at Zenith Island.

The Good Templar lodges of Duluth and Superior took a day's outing at Zenith island yesterday, to which they were conveyed by launches. The launch from Superior struck a sandbar and the arrival of some of the refreshments and people was delayed for quite a period of suspense to those who were already on hand and waiting for sandwiches and ice cream.

The program of music and addresses began at 4:30 p. m., a little later than scheduled on account of the delay of the Superior contingent. Mr. Nelson of Lyngblint lodge was chairman of the committee on arrangements. L. A. Simonson announced coming events of interest to temperance people of which there are many. On Wednesday evening Carrie Nation of Kansas will speak at Lincoln park. In the same place on next Sunday afternoon, Hon. E. E. Lobeck will speak, also John A. Shields, the field secretary of the state prohibition committee. Mr. Shields will meet the members of prohibition clubs of the city at the Y. M. C. A., Monday evening, Aug. 1, at which time there will be a conference by legislative districts. He will be in Duluth and on the range for two weeks. He will speak at an open meeting of the Swedish Good Templars in Victor hall, West Duluth on Tuesday evening, Aug. 9. On Aug. 7, the North Star lodge of West Duluth will have an outing at Merritt's grove.

Mr Simonson introduced Israel Bergstrom, who after a few remarks gave way to the main speaker of the afternoon, W. G. Calderwood, secretary of the National prohibition committee and secretary of the Minnesota committee. Mr. Calderwood gave a brief review of the progress in temperance sentiment, showing how functions of society at which twenty-five years ago it was thought necessary to have intoxicating drink, now banished them. Bartenders and saloon men are now being barred from most of the fraternal orders. The speaker said that the question of prime importance now was the settlement of this great question in the civic life. Never was there a time such as now when it was necessary for the patriotic citizens to kill this enemy of civic progress by lending their influence and vote in political life, he said. "The Good Templar order has for its national platform, yes for its world platform the very same platform adopted by the Minnesota lodges and framed by a Minnesotan by the name of Quigley, then living in Hastings," said the speaker. "That platform placed the members of the order squarely against the traffic in drink, the use of it by individuals, and the manufacture and sale of it. Standing on that platform the Good Templars had fought and will fight for state and national prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants."

Secretary Calderwood spoke in the Central Baptist church yesterday morning and last evening in the Danish-Norwegian Methodist church in the West end. He met members of the prohibitions clubs of the Fiftieth district Saturday evening at which it was decided to file a candidate for state senator and a representative. It is understood that both of the men to fill these places are men of considerable influence in the city and district and have consented to allow their names to be used. The names are not yet divulged, but those interested say it means a great advance in the prospects for the prohibition principle.

Raymond C. Flory, the organizer of the campaign for James M. Burwick in Lake and Cook counties was in Duluth yesterday to confer with Mr. Calderwood. He says that conditions in that district are very encouraging.

CROOKED AUDITOR IS SHORT $42,143

Convicted Dickinson, N. D., Official Started Crime in Small Way.

Dickinson, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Auditor J. S. White, now serving a sentence in the North Dakota penitentiary, was short just $42,143 when the discovery of his work was made and he was arrested. This is brought out in the report of the expert accountants, which shows that the former auditor's first thefts were committed on March 2, 1903, continuing until Oct. 5, 1909. The first illegal warrant drawn by White was for very small amounts, being only $1.10 and $2. These small warrants were found from time to time until the fall of the same year when eight were issued in consecutive order totaling $1,570. From that time on the amounts gradually became larger and larger. On one day last year the unauthorized warrants amounted to nearly $3,000.

Of the warrants that were issued in this manner the several banks of Dickinson now hold $11,143.21, which the county refuses to pay. The county also has started suit to recover the amounts paid on the other warrants that were issued and which the county paid.

INDIAN VOTES REJECTED IN FORT YATES PRECINCT.

Mandan, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a decision by Judge Crawford the vote cast in the Fort Yates precinct and included as a part of the returns of Morton county, is thrown out. This was the first year that the Indians had been allowed to vote. It was claimed that the Fort Yates district was not an organized part of Morton county and that contention prevailed. The decision will have no material effect upon the standing of any of the candidates.

The First National Bank of Carrington is the plaintiff and charges that Floyd made a collection on a note for $250 and failed to turn the proceeds over to the bank. It seems that the note was originally made out in favor of Floyd and that he had turned it over to the bank as collateral. The bank had been unable to collect the note and it was turned over to Floyd again upon the statement by him that he could secure the money due.

After an examination at the hospital following the accident, high hopes were expressed for her recovery. All her relatives thought that she would soon be out, and so favorable were the reports that Mr. Cook, a prominent lumberman, left yesterday for Chicago on a business trip.

As they jumped they hurled Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Walsh, as well as Robert Eben, the coachman, to the pavement at Fifteenth avenue east and Greysolon road. ORIGIN OF MILITARY SALUTES

The custom of firing a salute in honor of admirals, captains and other naval dignitaries as well as other forms of greeting originated in the desire to show to the person saluted that the saluting person was unarmed and could do the other no injury, says the New York Sun.

This was a very important matter in the olden days when most people went armed and violent encounters were quite common. When any one approached another it was necessary to assure the latter that no harm was intended, and this sign of good faith was made by the newcomer's disarming his weapons in such a way that they would be useless for immediate action.

The present courteous raising of the cap or hat had its origin in the removal of the basinet, or small metal helmet, an act which showed an absence of fear by leaving the head of the wearer open to attack and which likewise occupied his right hand, so that he coud practically make no assault.

The dropping of the swordpoint to the ground now as when the sword was in more active and ready use temporarily of no service, says St. Nicholas, "The bringing of arms to present" in salutation of superiors is a custom of precisely similar origin.

The ancient custom of entering the presence of royalty uncovered likewise originated in the desire for safety. So also did that of retiring backward from the royal presence. In either case the person admitted to the throne, with his swordarm occupied in holding his helmet, could not easily reach or use his weapons. These precautions in mediaeval times were very necessary, when it is considered that the king, prince or duke, being seated, would not be able to defend himself immediately or even readily against sudden attack.

The word "salute" itself has the idea of "safety" in it, as it comes directly from the Latin salus, signifying "health," then "welfare." To "salute" is to wish health and safety. The root of the word goes back to the Sanerit sar, which meant to "protect" or "guard."

Naval salutes are interesting to landsmen as well as to jack tars The artillery salute is the survival of one of those ceremonial practices which formerly had some definite meaning, and is meant to signify not only an honor to the flag or representative of a friendly nation, but also that the vessel saluting has no hostile intent.

Shotted guns fired by the full armament of the ship were used in the seventeenth century, as if to say: "Now every gun is empty and we are unarmed." Blank salutes became the eighteen century fashion, but, like many other customs of that polished, formal period, were carried to a ridiculous extreme.

When in due time it became the practice to give a special salute for a certain rank or occasion the odd number of guns—in which all salutes are measured—was selected in order that the salute might open as well as close on the "honor" side of the ship, the vessel's starboard. When the United States first attained national standing the existing national salute of twenty-one guns was adopted, in accordance with the usage of other countries, by our army and navy.

So in international usage the national salute for every country is of twenty-one guns; while the American national salute, used in our own country, is one gun for every state, forty-six guns now being fired on state occasions. The earliest instance of this domestic salute was that which history records as given at the raising of the first American flag, when Capt. John Paul Jones fired thirteen guns, one in honor of each of the thirteen original states.

The number of guns fired in an artillery salute varies in accordance with the rank of the officer or personage saluted. The president's salute is, of course, twenty-one guns. Admirals of the navy, generals of the army, governors of the states, ambassadors from foreign countries, and justices of the supreme court are saluted by a salvo of seventeen guns. Salutes gradually diminish to the number of guns fired until they reach the lowest grade, seven for a junior commanding officer or our consul at a foreign port.

Custom varies in European countries, but all foreign rulers have more powder burnt in their honor than is consumed in the American presidential salute. King Edward and Queen Alexandra are saluted with a salvo of fifty-one guns, and members of the royal family and important state and military personages receive a fewer number, the details of which are, of course, set by law. Kaiser Whilhelm outranks ony other contemporary sovereign, being saluted by the largest amount of noise, the imperial salute consisting of 101 guns. This is the standard for emperors and for some kings. The birth of an heir to the throne of a state is signalized by 101 guns also, as happened only recently when the little princess of Holland was born.

STATE OFFICERS ON LAKE OF WOODS

State Drainage Commission Looking Over Northwestern Angle of State.

Beaudette, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state drainage commission consisting of Governor Eberhardt, Secretary of State Julius Schmall, State Auditor G. Iverson, and State Engineer George Ralph, accompanied by Judge Quinn of Fairmount and others arrived at 4 a. m. today on their way to rived at 4 a. m today on their way to the Northwest Angle in the private car of W. H. Gemmell, of the Minnesota and International railway.

They were met by a delegation from the villages of Spooner and Beaudette consisting of the leading business men of both communities. Unfortunately the party had no time to spend in these two villages and they did not have any chance to inspect the towns as the fog was very heavy, it not being possible to see more than a block.

The party consisting of about twenty had breakfast at the Cathcart hotel on the banks of the Rainy river, and left about 8 a. m. on the steamer Clipper for Northwest Angle where the party will look over the state lands in there, with a view to their improvements. The party will visit Oak and Garden islands in the Lake of the Woods on the trip, and are expected to reach Warroad on the return trip about Wednesday evening.

Sunday was spent at International Falls, the party leaving there for this place via Fort Frances over the Canadian Northern railway.

SELLING TO THE ARMY.

The Way to Get Business Is to Send Catalogues to the Posts.

The two chief supply departments of the American army are the commissary and the quartermaster's. The former furnishes all food stuffs, toilet articles and similar supplies.

The latter with few exceptions furnishes all other things needed in the service, principally camp and garrison equipage, ranging from railroads and steamships to cooking utensils and household articles.

In short, says the Bookkeeper, the quartermaster's department comes nearer the goal of a well-managed department store than any other branch of the service.

Our army is located in 300 or more widely scattered military posts in the United States, Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. At each permanent post or temporary camp there is a commissary and a quartermaster officer who are charged with the supply of the troops serving thereat.

These officers may not buy the requisite supplies for their respective departments in the open market, except in very rare instances. They must obtain them through depot commissaries or depot quartermasters situated in the principal market centers of the country upon written requisition duly approved by intermediate commanders.

These requisitions state specifically what is needed, and here is where the catalogue comes into helpful use to the officer or his subordinates. From it he chooses the make, description, quality, etc., of the particular items he wants, oftimes naming the maker and giving the catalogue number from which the information is taken.

Hence the purchasing agent at the depot in the large city, going daily into the market to buy, calls for the identical article asked for, and as though obeying the mandate of the modern advertiser, "accepts no substitute." Large depots continually carry ordinary commodities in stock, such stock often aggregating $1,000,000 in value. The list usually ranges from road rollers and other heavy hardware to carpet tacks and washing soap.

The government, it is said, is inevitably the last institution to adopt modern conveniences or new inventions. Today, when vacuum processes are cleaning the interiors of our homes, the old unsanitary corn broom still sweeps the barracks and the officers' quarters at the military garrison.

It is also quite true that in these days of extensive advertising the army now and then indulges in the inconveniences of the age. When the bicycle held full sway as a pleasure and business conveyance no quartermaster found it possible to get one for official use. Now they are regularly supplied upon requisition, as are automobiles.

All firms doing a national business should send their latest catalogues each year to the quartermaster of each military post as well as to the quartermaster depots in the larger cities. Most maps show the name and location of our garrisoned posts; this failing, application should be made to the war department for a list showing them.

When once you get the army in the habit of buying your products, as is now the case with reference to certain brands of soap, washing powder, lamp chimneys, stationaray, inks, paste, plumbing supplies, etc., it will go on buying them to the exclusion of all other makes for an indefinite period, or until your quality degenerates or is succeeded by more modern contrivances. Uncle Sam is a customer hard to lose once you have made good with him; also the pay is sure yet sometimes slow.

In this latter regard settlment of bills should never be pressed, as it usually requires weeks, if not months, to get vouchers supporting payments ready for the disbursement. Contrary to good business sense, the government requires a signed receipt before making payment. It frequently occurs that a business house may not receive its check for a long period after signing a receipt certifying that payment has been made in full. Comparatively little of what the army buys is bought under annual contract. Purchases are usually made at frequent intervals on circular proposal, any one having the right to bid.

LONDON'S RAT CATCHER.
London Daily Mail: John Jarvis of Camberwell, who has just been appointedn official ratcatcher to the London County Council at a salary of £48 12s 6d per annum, is a ratcatcher not only by profession but by instinct.

Since 1803 each male member of his family has devoted his life to catching rats, and so it was with the greatest confidence that yesterday Jarvis issued a challenge to all the ratcatchers of the kingdom to catch more of the vermin in a given time than any man living provided that neither dogs nor ferrets were employed in the hunt. Furthermore, he said that with the assistance of his uncle, J. Dalton, he would undertake to catch 1,000 rats in three nights.

As Jarvis made these challenges he fondled half a dozen tame white rats, while his 7-year-old daughter at his side played with a couple of ferrets. "I have no son to carry on the business," he said, "but Kit there and her younger sister both know pretty well all there is to know about catching rats. Kit often accompanies me on my hunting expeditions, and she very rarely makes a mistake. You see any one can kill rats, but very few understand how to catch them alive. Dead rats have no market, but for live ones I can get from 2s to 8s a dozen.

"The means I use for catching them alive is a family secret, known only to my people for the last four generations. I won't tell you exactly what that secret is, but I don't mind letting you know that it acts very much in the same way as chloroform does on a human being. Chloroform would not do because rats don't like it.

The bait I use is even attractive enough to awaken a sleeping rat. A few moments after I have laid the staff down the floor swarms with the vermin. One nibble is enough to 'dope' any of them, and all I have to do to revive them is to dip their noses in water. Sometimes I don't even trouble to use the bait. Over my back I fling a huge sack connected with a trap-door arrangement at my side. I wear noiseless boots and black clothes.

"As I walk down the passages with a bullseye lantern attached to my side the rats, scared by the light, scamper past me. As they run I can pick them up left or right hand and drop them ito nthe trap-door. Gradually they work their way around to the sack on my back. My, how they fight! Sometimes when I fancy I have a hundred I find half of them are killed by the time I arrive home.

"Not only do they fight each other but in the basement of one of the big hotels a swarm of them actually attacked and killed one of the best dogs I ever owned.

"Once as I groped through the old Gaiety theater a huge rat leaped out at me, and fixing its teeth in my arm worried me for quite five minutes. When I had settled him I had him weighed. He turned the scale at 1 pound 9 ounces. That was the biggest rat I ever found, but in Wigmore street lately I have come across several weighing over a pound. I have found some big ones in Park lane too. I have had as many as 3,000 rats in my yard."

Jarvis is employed in various large buildings at fixed salaries.

HOW ROYAL LADIES PROPOSE.
When a reigning queen is to be married she must broach the subject first to her future consort. The same rule holds good with regard to all royal ladies who marry commoners. Queen Victoria has told how she managed to "put the question" to Prince Albert—how she first showed him Windsor and its beauties and the distant landscape and then said:: "All this may be yours." The queen of Holland, on a like occasion, simply sent a sprig of white heather, begging Prince Henry to look out its meaning in a book of flowers and their meanings. The duchess of Argyll took the following means of proposing to the marquis of Lorne: She was about to attend a state ball and gave it out that she would choose as her partner for the first dance the man she intended to honor. She selected the marquis, who subsequently became her husband.

But perhaps the most interesting of all ways chosen was that of the duchess of Fife. She took the earl, as he then was, to a drawer and showed him its contents. There he saw a number of trifles he had given her at different times, including sprigs of several kinds of flowers, now dead, he picked for her at different times. He was much impressed at the sight, nor did it require words on her part to make her meaning plain.

HIGHER AT THE CLOSE

Shorts Find Difficulty in Covering and Prices Advance.

Flax Strong After Early Weakness---Prices Still Soaring.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 25.—Wheat values were erratic today. The trade was nervous in the early part of the day. When a few eleventh-hour shorts tried to buy back their stuff toward the close, they found the market almost bare of offerings, and values climbed back to opening levels and the market closed with net advances for the day. Some of the bulls who were out of their wheat late last week tried to get in again at the low prices on today's break and found the market suddenly tight. The advance in corn helped to cause pit sentiment to veer near the close. Traders played for a break and got it, but when it came few of them were able to profit by it, from the standpoint of the man who was out of his wheat and wanted to climb on the land wagon again.

July wheat gained 1c, September 1c, and December 7/8c.

Flax was strong after an early weakness. The market ascended on a few buying orders, which found offerings scarce. July, September, October and November flax each advanced 7c.

Cash wheat closed 1c over July. Oats closed 1c up, rye and barley were unchanged and July durum lost 1/4c. September was unchanged.

Wheat values wavered between bullish and bear news today and toward noon decided to follow the latter. Statistics were somewhat bullish. The visible wheat decreased 468,000 bu. Wheat on passage increased 720,000 bu. Broomhall's estimates that shipments this week will be under requirements. From Russia came reports that the weather in Southwestern Russia is excellent and that harvesting is progressing satisfactorily. In Southeastern Russia the situation is still serious because of drouth. The Russian wheat crop this year is estimated at 30 per cent below the yield of 1909.

The Northwest was inclined to be bearish today as traders were playing for a break in order to put out further lines of wheat. The long interest has shrunk considerably lately. Most of the long holdings are owned in the Northwest. The Southwest and Chicago have been putting out a few lines of shorts. This situation may redound to the credit of the Northwestern bulls later. Any buying movement in Chicago or the Southwest would be reflected by sharply advancing values.

The winter wheat movement will act as a drag on values this week. The railroads are making special efforts to rush winter wheat to primary markets before Aug. 1 and the movement will throw a large amount of real wheat on the market that the speculative trade will have to reckon with. Although wheat seemed to catch the bull contagion of corn on several occasions early in the day the market lacked sufficient buying power to sustain values, which toppled from every bulge. None of the hard spots were sustained and on every stiff place there was some liquidation, especially in the far distant months. Wheat opened easy and did not display much life during the day. Trading was dull after the early hour.

North Dakota wheat, in some places, is being cut a month after it headed out. Several commission houses and elevator people got messages today saying that velvet chaff was being thrashed in some localities in the Northeastern part of the state and that the yields were much larger than had been expected, running from 12 to 30 bu near Grandin and from 10 to 20 bu near Fargo. On the other hand The Herald got a message from Fargo which said some fields which looked good for from 10 to 15 bu an acre two weeks ago are now drying up. These fields, said the message, were not touched by the rains which were fairly general throughout the state in the last two days.

A few messages from Southern Minnesota said that wheat was ripening prematurely and that in some places the berry appears to have shrunk.

Speculators look for bullish news from abroad this week, but some folks think values will decline a little more in the next few days under pressure of new winter wheat which can be put down in the Northwestern markets under the prevailing prices for No. 1 northern by from four to six cents. A few days ago the difference was greater. Minneapolis mills are grinding winter wheat to some extent. The flour business is dull and shipping instructions are difficult to get. Elevators here are not buying any wheat and the cash market is dull.

The flax market was spotty with a weak undertone. Trading was dull. The rains in the last two or three days dampened the ardor of the bull speculators who are in control of the market. There are some shorts in the September option who are hopeful that they will be able to get out without being squeezed. They think the government's estimate on flax was much too low. The bulls think whatever shortage there is will be felt keenly this year because the crushers are going into the new crop year with very little seed on hand. The government's estimate on flax probably has never been distinguished for its accuracy. Montana, the bears think, will report this year a greater increased acreage alone than the government figured for the entire flax producing area. The government estimated the increased acreage in the flax growing state at 361,000 acres.

Flax is even more spotted than wheat, if such could be possible. Reports indicate that in the same field a part of the plant is in bloom while a few feet distant there are stunted patches although both plants went into the ground at the same seeding. The flax crop this year promises to be almost as puzzling as that of last year.

In the Southwest the flax plant is under harvest. The yield is said to be running from to 16 bu an acre. Kansas, the leading flaxseed state in that region, will raise much more seed than last year. Some people think the production will be twice the yield of last year.

The prices for linseed oil are higher but there is no demand for the stuff.

MARKET GOSSIP

Reports from France indicated a good crop in the South, but a poor crop in the Middle and North. Weather is unfavorable. The South of France is not a large wheat producer.

• • •

Broomhall's cable on the Russian situation: "Russia—weather in the Southwest fine, but hot; harvesting progressing and threshing already commenced. In Poland district, the outlook is unsatisfactory, and in Southwest and South centers fair, elsewhere badly filled and yields below average. The estimate for the entire spring wheat crop is fully 30 per cent below 1909. Roumanian weather unsettled and generally more unfavorable. Threshing has made good progress, however, and arrivals from the interior are large. Market strong owing to good demand.

Snow's weekly report to Bartlett-Frazier on winter wheat says thrashing reports now coming in continue to show yields a little above the July 1 condition, but not sufficiently to seriously discredit earlier condition returns. Except as injured by rain since harvest, the quality is reported as excellent. Spring wheat harvest has begun and the question of rain is now a closed incident. The crop promise has been heavily lowered since July 1, but in such a year of extremes there is a danger of exaggeration which only thrashing results can determine.

The Armour Grain company put out its before harvest estimate of the wheat crop of the entire big spring wheat states. The total according to their estimate is 150,000,000 bu. This compares with the ten-year estimate of 172,000,000 bu. The biggest wheat crop harvested in the ten-year period was that of last year, 232,000,000 bu, which exceeded the big crop of 1905 by 40,000,000 bu. The smallest crop in the ten-year period was in the drought year of 1900, when the three states raised only $5,000,000 bu.

Broomhall cabled: "Wheat at opening was affected by easier American cables and reported general rains throughout Canada and values were ½d to ⅝d lower. Following opening market developed a firm undertone under covering of shorts and lighter offerings and prices advanced ¼d to ⅜d. There was good outside speculative buying on world's shipments and lightness of all new crop offerings. Toward midday selling to realize developed and most of the advance was lost. There was more pressure to sell cargoes and land parcels and general demand was quiet. Cargoes off coast and on passage were 15d and were more freely offered. At midday market was nervous and generally firm, ⅛d to ¼d up from opening and ⅜d to ⅝d lower than Saturday. Corn firm and ⅛d higher with light Plata offers and decreasing local stocks. Demand quieter and following opening market was dull. Wheat on passage increased 720,000 bu, corn increased 193,000.

Winnipeg, Man., July 25.—Sir Wilfred Laurier, the premier, in a recent speech to farmers, said that elevator interests of Duluth, driven by legislation from there to Fort William, Ont., will be driven back to the United States by new Canadian laws.

There was a fair export trade today in durums.

Walter Poehler got a message from Grandin, N. D., today which said velvet chaff is being cut and that the yield of wheat in that region is running from 12 to 30 bu and that it will average 16 bu to the acre. Barley will average 10 to 12 bu and oats 15 to 25 bu.

• • •

W. E. Tucker of Lonetree, N. D., near Minot, manager of the farmers' elevator a Lonetree, was the guest of H. J. Atwood today. "Wheat in our neighborhood," said Mr. Tucker, "is all in. We won't get much more than seed if we raise that much. Flax is so spotted that it is difficult to tell anything about the crop with any degree of accuracy. In the same field some stuff will look good and other patches will be withered. Not much plowing up is being done in our locality as it has been too dry. Toward Grand Forks there has been considerable plowing up. We won't raise feed in our state and we'll have to import it. The banks are tightening down if a man wants a loan. He has to tuck his quarter section of land under his arm and trot up to the bank with it. Retail merchants have ceased to give credit and are doing business on a cash basis. The farmers are fairly well fixed, however, and they can stand this crop failure much better than if it had come a few years ago."

REMARKS.

Light to heavy showers fell over the lake region and Ohio valley.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

T indicates inappreciable rainfall. *For yesterday. †For 24 hours ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

NOTE—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received, and the average rainfall from the number of stations reporting .10 inch or more. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Corn Pit Is Scene of the Greatest Excitement.

Chicago, July 25.—Excitement was at a higher pitch today in the corn pit than at any time this season. Hot winds and dry weather in general throughout the Southwest was the reason. Prices made a sensational jump, reaching in some cases as much as 4⅞@¾c. An official forecast declared that high temperatures would prevail for probably a week and that during the interim no general rains were expected. Trade was on a huge scale, so broad that individual operations were lost sight of. Liberal selling set in as quotations rose. The effect was to check the advance, but not to diminish the almost frantic desire to buy. A dispatch from Kingman, Kan., predicted that if the torrid winds continued two or three days more the corn crop would be ruined. In Oklahoma the crop was said to be badly burned already. The market opened 1⅛@1¼c to 4⅝@¾c higher with sales at the same moment as much as 3c apart for an identical option. September started 1⅞@¼c to 3⅛@¾c up at 64c to 66c. A period of comparative steadiness was reached at 65c.

Lower cables tended to keep down quotations. Cool, cloudy wather in the Canadian Northwest had a similar influence. Country acceptances of bids were the largest of the year. The close, however, was firm at $1.06@1.06⅝ for September, a net gain of ⅞@⅞c to ⅞c.

Wheat was strengthened by the buoyance of corn. Business was not of unusual volume, but there was good buying, chiefly by local operators. The fact that world's shipments were small received some attention, and so did an estimate that the spring crop in Russia is 30 per cent below that of a year ago. At the outset prices were ⅛@¼c lower to ¼@⅜c higher with September covering the extreme range at $1.05½ to $1.06. An advance to $1.06¾ followed, and then a reaction to $1.06⅛@1.06⅜.

The bulk of purchasing was for country account. Local traders who sold out expecting a break. The close was firm with September at 66⅛@66¼c.

In the oats pit a rush to buy resulted from the flurry in corn. Hedging sales increased and took the edge off the enthusiasm to some extent. September started ¼c to ½c higher at 39c to 39¼c, touched 39½c and fell back to 39¼c.

Provisions were weak, the hog run west being larger than a year ago. First sales showed a loss of 5c to 12½c and a further decline ensued. The opening in the September option was at $21.52½ for pork, $11.65 for lard and $11.45 for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices Advance in Sympathy With Corn News.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 25.—Bullish reports on the Southwestern corn crop caused the wheat market to advance sympathetically today. Trading in the local pit was of small volume. July closed 1½c lower than Saturday, September ⅜@½c higher and December 1@1⅛c higher. Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 250,000 bu for two days. Minneapolis today received 329 cars af wheat against 158 cars a year ago; Duluth, 56 cars against 21 cars, and Winnipeg, 133 cars against 22 cars. July opened $1.25; high, $1.25¾; low, $1.24¾; closed, $1.24⅞. September opened $1.14½; high, $1.15¾; low, $1.14¼; closed, $1.15⅝. December opened $1.12⅝; high, $1.14⅛; low, $1.12½; closed, $1.14⅛.

Cash wheat was easier today on account of the liberal offerings. Demand was good for choice grades only. No. 1 northern sold on a range of 1@2c above the July contract, the higher premium being for choice wheat to go out. Closing cash prices: No. 1 northern, $1.26⅜@1.28¾; to arrive, $1.24⅞@1.26⅜; No. 2 northern, $1.24⅜@1.26⅜; to arrive, $1.22⅞@1.24⅜; No. 3 wheat, $1.20⅜@1.23¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 63@64c. No. 3 white oats, 43½@44½c. No. 2 rye, 72@74c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,844 tons. Demand continued strong and in excess of the supply. Prices were unchanged. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $20.00@20.50.

The flour market held steady over Sunday. Shipments were normal, prices firm and demand slow. Shipments, 44,599 bbls. First patents, in wood, $5.30 per bbl, Minneapolis, $6.10@6.30; second patents, $5.90@6.10; first clears, $4.65@4.75; second clears, $3.40@3.70.

Flax—Receipts, 7 cars; year ago, 6; shipments, —. Demand remained strong for both spot and to arrive but fixed at 2c over the Duluth September price. Offerings were more liberal. Closing prices, $2.52 bid.

Barley—Receipts, 30 cars; year ago, 26; shipments, 10. There was no change in the barley market today. Demand was about steady and prices held firm. Offerings of malting grades ewer light. Closing range, 55@65c.

Cotton Market.

New York, July 25.—Cotton opened firm at a decline of 5 points on July, but generally unchanged to 19 points higher, with the new crop active and strong on bull support, a broadening outside demand and covering. Shortly after the opening July rallied to the closing figures of Saturday. DECLINES IN STOCKS

Close Weak and Active at About Lowest Point of Day.

Decrease in Earnings of the Steel Corporation for June Quarter.

New York, July 25.—The stock market showed the effects of moderate selling pressure in the opening dealings. The declines were within fractional limits for the most part, but Erie second preferred lost 1½. Rock Island and Consolidated Gas 1¼ and Atchison and La Clede Gas 1. There were large fractional declines also in Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Southern Railway preferred, United States Steel preferred, American Car and some of the minor stocks.

The demand from uncovered shorts was sufficient to pull up prices after the opening to about a parity with Saturday's closing prices. Increased selling orders then appeared and the market yielded again. United States Steel had a very broad market, about 65, but sold a fraction below that. New York Central and International Harvester were lifted a point but lost it. American Locomotive and Westinghouse Electric lost 2¼, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 2, Illinois Central and Wabash 1¾, Rock Island preferred and Chicago Great Western preferred 1½, Pennsylvania and United States Steel preferred 1⅜, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific 1 and many others a point or more. There was some recovery before the hour ended.

A sharp decline in the price of corn offered a new subject of solicitude to the stock market. Tomorrow's statement in London was an occasion for anxiety abroad. A decrease in earnings for the June quarter is expected in tomorrow's report of the United States Steel corporation. Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis lost 2¾, United States Rubber 2¼, Allis-Chalmers preferred 2, Atchison 1⅝, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk 1½, American Car and Atchison preferred 1⅜ and United States Steel 1¼. Trading became dull on another rally. The coppers showed resistance to the depression. Bonds were easy.

The tone of the market became steadier. Union Pacific recovered all its loss and National Lead rose 1 over Saturday's closing price. Norfolk & Western fell 3, American Agricultural Chemical 2½, North American 2 and Delaware & Hudson and Brooklyn Union Gas 1½.

A drive against the coppers forced Amalgamated Copper 1⅝ under Saturday and American Smelting and Utah Copper 1. This proved unsuccessful in dislodging stock and a quick rebound followed. The general list rose higher than on the previous rally. Union Pacific got a point over Saturday, Sloss-Sheffield Steel lost 4½, Westinghouse Electric 3¾, Mercantile Marine preferred 3¾, Colorado & Southern and American Cotton Oil preferred 2¾, and Texas & Pacific 2¾.

The market closed weak and active. Atchison in the last hour of the session sold off 3¾ and Rock Island 2 in response to strength of corn. There was a drop in Sloss-Sheffield Steel of 5, American Locomotive 4¾, American Hide and Leather preferred 4, Consolidated Gas 3¾, American Car 2¾ and Rock Island preferred and International Pump 2½. The recession of the general list in sympathy reached about the early low point. Great Northern certificates rose over a point.

TWO ATTEMPTS MADE TO WRECK TRAINS IN GRAND TRUNK STRIKE

Freight Car Partly Burned By Sympathizers With Men.

Trains Without Full Crews Are Stopped By Indiana Officials

Union Leaders in Toronto to Confer With Lee and Garretson.

South Bend, Ind., July 26.—Although two attempts were made to derail passenger trains and one freight car was partially burned by strike sympathizers, the Grand Trunk strike situation here today opened quietly. As was the case Monday, union men engaged in other trades were at their own employment and the mob was small and easily controlled.

Attempts to derail passenger trains were unsuccessful, the obstructions in each instance being discovered in time to avert an accident. Rumors have been current that the trains running are not equipped with full crews, and the railway commissioners, it is said, are coming here to investigate.

One train running from Port Huron, Mich., to South Bend, was stopped last night by Chief of Detectives William Cassidy because it lacked the proper number of brakemen. Although the train ordinarily stops in the yards in the western part of the city, the officer would not permit it to go beyond the local depot. The distance is but two miles.

Meeting in Toronto.

Montreal, Can., July 26.—The center of interest in the Grand Trunk strike today apparently shifted to Toronto. There local union leaders expected to meet President W. G. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and A. B. Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors.

BELFAST FIRE IS FATAL TO THREE

Former Chicagoan and His Wife Are Seriously Injured.

Belfast, Ireland, July 26.—Fire swept through the Kelvin hotel today, burning to death three employes, while several guests received frightful injuries. Five of the guests were dangerously burned and others are in a serious condition.

Among those surviving who suffered most were Rev. William John McCaughan, for nine years pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Chicago, and his wife.

The McCaughans were caught on an upper floor, and in attempting to find an exit through the hall were terribly burned. Their escape through the usual exits being cut off by the flames, the minister and his wife finally threw themselves from an upper window.

Skulls Are Fractured.

Both struck the pavement with great force, and when they were removed to a hospital it was found that the skull of each had been fractured. The condition of the two is critical.

Dr. McCaughan resigned his pastorate in Chicago in May, 1907, to become pastor of the May Street congregation in this city.

The fire burned out the interior of the hotel. The flames spread so rapidly that the three employes had no opportunity to escape and many of the guests were compelled to jump or drop from the windows of their rooms. Several received serious injuries in addition to more or less dangerous burns.

DEMOCRATS TO TEST THE LAW

Validity of North Dakota's 30 Per Cent Clause Attacked.

Fargo, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.) — At a meeting of the Democratic candidates and members of the Democratic state central committee here this morning, it was decided to take the matter of representation on the state ticket into the supreme court.

Only the senators, congressmen, governor and lieutenant governor and members of the railroad commission received 30 per cent of the vote cast for the Democratic candidate for secretary of state two years ago.

Unless the supreme court decides favorably, the other candidates can get on only by filing petitions as independent candidates and cannot go under they party designation. This will cause a split in the columns of candidates.

The Democrats will test the validity of the 30 per cent clause. In the meantime they will have petitions prepared for the candidates who failed.

The meeting also adopted resolutions indorsing Governor Burke for the presidential nomination in 1912.

THEODORE D. ROBINSON.

New York, July 26.—There is another Theodore in the political field. The nephew and namesake of ex-President Roosevelt is a candidate for congress in the district which includes Herkimer and Oneida counties. He is Theodore Douglas Robinson and his father is Douglas Robinson of New York, a real estate agent and operator. Col. Roosevelt has promised to deliver a speech for his namesake if he captures the Republican nomination.

STOCKS HAVE HEAVY SLUMP

Declines Range From Two to Thirty Points in Wall Street.

Forced Liquidation Is Cause of Severe Dropping of Prices.

New York, July 26.—A process of forced liquidation was responsible for some very severe declines in prices in the stock market today and in some lines new low levels for the year were reached. The effect was most pronounced in stocks that pay no dividends, but that they have been affected by hopeful prospects of initial payments or those that had newly begun payments and had a narrow surplus of earnings over dividend requirements.

Calls for additional margin and discrimination against collateral in loans forced these stocks on a market in which no demand existed. The move was the consequence of last week's unexpected dividend reduction in National Lead, coupled with the fall in the general stock market that has followed.

Steadied by Covering.

Some steadying effect was caused in the market leaders by the demand of the shorts to cover, even while the less prominent stocks were declining precipitately. The break in corn helped to steady prices.

EARTH'S AGE ONCE MORE COMPUTED

Scientist Says It Is Not Under 55,000,000 Years or Over 70,000,000.

Washington, July 26.—Old Mother Earth, like femininity through all time but with far greater success than most of her sex, has defied man to learn her age. Scientists still admit their defeat. Their latest estimate credits her with "not above 70,000,000 years or below 55,000,000 years."

This estimate, given official sanction through publication by the Smithsonian institution, is the result of studies by Frank Wigglesworth Clarke and George F. Becker of the United States geological survey. Mr. Becker discusses the "age of the earth."

The age of the earth has always been a subject for discussion among men of science and largely without any agreement.

Some of the Guesses.

The more recent discussions as to the earth's age have placed the time as follows:

Lord Kelvin, in 1862, made it 20,000,000 to 400,000,000 years, with a probable 98,000,000 years.

Clarence King and Carl Barus in 1893 guessed 24,000,000 years.

Lord Kelvin, in 1897, revised his figures to 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 years.

Do Lappparent, in 1890, suggested 67,000,000 to 90,000,000 years.

Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution in 1893, placed the maximum age at 70,000,000 years.

J. Joly, in 1899, estimated the age of the ocean as 80,000,000 to 90,000,000 years.

W. J. Sollas, in 1909, placed the age of the ocean at 80,000,000 to 150,000,000 years.

COMPLAINTS OVER DELAY

Business Men Say Contractor Is Not Rushing Garfield Avenue Work.

Will Enter Protests If Extension of Time Is Granted.

Business interests are complaining bitterly over the slowness of the improvement of Garfield avenue.

They state that Contractor McDonnell should have many more men at work than he has at present and that the job should be much further advanced than it is now.

Teams can hardly get through. One side is completely torn up and the other might about as well be, for it can scarcely be used. It is a mass of ruts and mudholes. One team cannot pull an ordinary load through it. One of the large draylines has an extra team to meet every wagon. At almost any time two or more teams can be seen hauling on a load, and then it is all that they can do to get it through.

"The work is going altogether too slowly," said R. E. Patterson of the board of public works. "The contractor hasn't over twenty-five men on the job. He is evidently not trying to push it ahead, although the street is pretty nearly impassable and not at all fit for travel."

Garfield avenue is one of the heaviest traveled thoroughfares in Duluth. It is the only avenue or street between Duluth and Superior and hundreds of tons of merchandise are carted over it daily under normal condi-

MELON RATES ARE ATTACKED

Minneapolis Firm Says They Are Excessive and Unfair.

Washington, July 26.—Freight rates on melons shipped from Southwestern points via East St. Louis, Ill., to points in Minnesota, were attacked today in a complaint filed with the Interstate Commerce commission by the Gamble Robinson Commission company of Minneapolis. The rates are alleged to be excessive and discriminatory, and the commission is asked materially to reduce them.

BRYAN IN NEW BATTLE

Takes Part in County Option Fight in Nebraska Democracy.

Democrats and Populists Both Hold Conventions in Grand Island.

Grand Island, Neb., July 26.—Delegates gathered early about the tent where the Democratic state platform convention is being held today. The presence of William J. Bryan, who arrived on one of the early trains, and the belief that he is to make one of the most notable speeches of his career in what is regarded as a crucial contest for his political leadership, also served to draw hundreds of spectators, who formed a great fringe outside the open tent. With the arrival of Mr. Bryan all the dominant figures of the convention are on the scene.

Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, now arrayed against his former political leader in the pending county option contest, headed a large delegation from Omaha today which loudly proclaimed the candidacy of Mayor Dahlman as a successor to Governor Shallenberger.

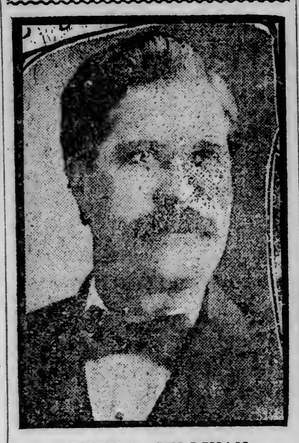

Much Partisan Feeling.

The headquarters of Congressman Hitchcock of Omaha and Richard L. Metcalfe of London, candidates for the nomination for United States senator, were crowded during the morning and much partisan feeling was evinced, although the convention will take no action on the candidacies for state and national offices.

Cosson Recall Law Is Among Issues to Be Taken Up By Delegates.

Ottumwa, Iowa, July 26. — Recent primaries having settled the matter of candidates except two supreme court judges, delegates to the Democratic state convention expect to dispose of other business at a one-day session tomorrow.

A new state central committee will be chosen, with Nicholas Reed, the present treasurer, in all probability, as chairman. Judge H. G. Van Wagenman of Sioux City, and P. B. Wolfe of Clinton, for the supreme court bench so far have no opposition in sight. Jerry B. Sullivan, who was defeated for governor by the present Senator Cummins, and who is now chairman of the Des Moines school board, will sound the keynote of the campaign as temporary chairman.

Congressman William D. Jamieson of Shenandoah, who did not seek renomination in his district, is slated for permanent chairman. Judge Martin J. Wade of Iowa City, probably will read the resolutions committee.

Norris Breaks Quarantine to Attend Meeting at Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., July 26.—United States Senator Norris Brown was elected permanent chairman of the Republican state convention.

Lincoln, Neb., July 26.—So far as the public is aware, there was no change in the situation this morning as regards the Republican state convention. Congressman G. W. Norris arrived from his home in McCook at an early hour this morning. He had been quarantined on account of scarlet fever in his family, and had to climb out of a second-story window and submit to fumigation by the health authorities before he could come at all.

The talk in the lobbies this morning strongly indicated a fight on the permanent chairmanship on the floor of the convention. Anti-county option leaders declared that in many instances the instructions for county option by county conventions were irregularly

THREE DEATHS FROM BASEBALL

Montclair, N. J., Has Series of Fatalities From the Game.

Montclair, N. J., July 26.—Baseball has claimed its third victim in Montclair this year. R. D. Edwards, an officer of the Mapleside school here, is dead as the result of an accident which occurred in a baseball game on Independence day. Edwards was standing close to the plate when one of his team-mates knocked out a home run. As the batter started for first he threw his bat behind, striking Edwards on the head. Death was due to cerebral inflammation.

TROOPS CHASING REBELS IN CUBA

Government Is Much Alarmed Over Uprising at El Caney.

Havana, July 26.—The government is much alarmed over the insurrection at El Caney, province of Santiago. Following a midnight council at the palace, troops were today rushed to the disaffected district. The insurgents are reported as retreating to the hills, pursued by troops already in the province.

Last night the government learned that Gen. Miniet and Col. Jane, revolutionary veterans, had taken to the woods at the head of about a score of followers. Miniet is a man of influence and it was feared that many malcontents would rally around his standard. The council of war was hastily called at the palace and the situation thoroughly discussed. It was determined to rush troops to El Caney.

Early this morning trains carrying 1,300 troops, infantry and cavalry, left Camp Columbia under command of Gen. Monteagudo of the Rural guard. Gen. Monteagudo had orders to reach El Caney in the shortest possible time.

OHIO AIR IS NOT CLEARED OVER NIGHT

Garfield Is in Stronger Place in Race for Nomination.

Long Conference Is Held By Burton, Dick, Ellis and Others.

Nicholas Longworth Defends the Payne Law in Opening Speech.

Columbus, Ohio, July 26. — A long conference between Senators Burton and Dick, State Chairman Ellis and allied Republican leaders, which broke up at 3 o'clock this morning, left the contest for the gubernatorial nomination for tomorrow's session of the state convention as wide open as it has ever been.

Statements made by the conferees, however, immediately after adjournment, added the name of James R. Garfield as one of the possibilities. That of Judge O. B. Brown of Dayton, who has the support of Chairman George B. Cox of the Cincinnati delegation, was not mentioned by them.

It was stated that the field now consists of Mr. Garfield, Warren G. Harding, former lieutenant governor, and Carmi Thompson, secretary of state, so far as the leaders who are not interested in the Brown candidacy are con-

TWENTY-FOUR ARE DEAD FROM HEAT

New York Gets Some Relief, However---Chicago Expects Cooler Weather.

New York, July 26.—Although five deaths attributed to the heat were early reported, measurable relief for heat-stricken New Yorkers was in sight today after a night which was one of the season's hottest, its discomforts tempered only by occasional fitful breezes. Nineteen deaths from heat were reported yesterday, making the total twenty-four for the last twenty-four hours.

At 8 o'clock the official thermometer stood at 80 deg., 1 deg. higher than yesterday at that hour, but the air was much dryer, with a humidity of only 54 per cent and a smashing breeze of twenty-two miles velocity.

As the morning advanced heat prostration cases were frequently reported. Infant mortality during the heated period has been high, but health officials are quoted today as believing that the worst is over for the babies.

Expects Cooler Weather.

Chicago, July 26.—Relief from the scorching heat in which this city has sizzled since Sunday morning, is in sight, according to Henry J. Cox, United States forecaster, and at 11 o'clock the thermometer stood at only 83 deg. A humidity of 70 per cent, however, caused the day to seem even hotter than yesterday.

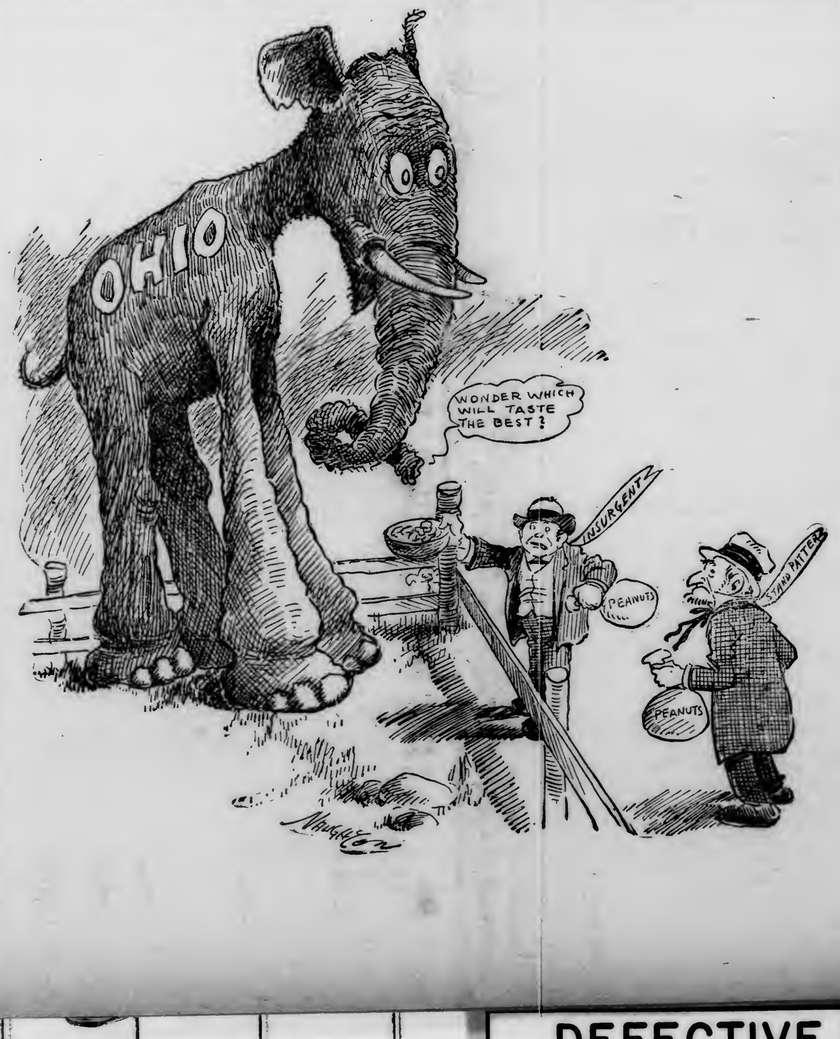

Thunder storms are predicted for tonight.

Electricity AND Medicine

Combined will cure the most obstinate diseases. In the treatment of complicated diseases of men, one is useless without the other.

These two together relieve the most difficult blood, skin and other diseases of men, but unless the treatment is given by competent and skillful specialists, the results will be far from satisfactory.

The only way for weak men to become strong, healthy and robust is to come and see us and then place your case in our hands.

And here are the reasons: Because we are graduates of the best American and European colleges of medicine; because we have the best equipped offices in the Northwest; because we have devoted a lifetime to the cure of ailing men; because hundreds of healthy men will vouch for our success in their cases; because we guarantee to cure every case that we accept.

Space does not permit us to tell you more here. Come in and get our advice. It won't cost you a cent. Out-of-town patients write for symptom blank.

CONVICTED BY A THERMOMETER.

Glasgow Medical Journal: In connection with the death of Dr. Whitelaw of Kirkintilloch an interesting story is told of his early career. Being called up one night he was walking along with the messenger when he was set upon and knocked down in a lonely part of the road.

His pockets were rifled and he was left lying on the road severely injured. One of the articles stolen was a clinical thermometer with which he had that evening taken the temperature of a patient. He remembered the temperature registered, also that he had not shaken down the mercury before putting the thermometer back in his pocket and he communicated these facts to the police.

Some time afterward a thermometer registering the identical temperature was discovered in a pawnshop in Glasgow and by this means the police were enabled to track the doctor's assailants and to arrest them.

HOMES MUST BE VACATED

Tenants on New Right-of-Way Are Given Notice to Move.

Dearth of Desirable Residences, Real Estate Men Claim.

Homes along the recently acquired right-of-way of the Canadian Northern road for its subsidiary line, the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railway, must be vacated within thirty days, according to a notice sent out to tenants this morning.

Real estate men at West Duluth say that this will mean that there will be a great dearth of desirable residences at West Duluth and claim that there are not enough vacant residences to house the families, who are ousted by the railroad.

The notice to move, comng as a surprse to most of those who will be affected, may work many hardships among working men who will, perhaps, be obliged to move out of walking distance to their place of employment. However, all tenants have the right to stay until a month from the time that their rent is paid up.

In view of the fact that all of the right-of-way has as yet not been bought up, the announcement of the company was a complete surprise to West Duluth people, who were not prepared to make a change. Most of the tenants of the company will be leaving about Sept. 1, and it is expected that there will be a grand rush for desirable houses between now and that time.

Real estate men say that their best houses are now rented out and that their offerings are not of the best and most desirable class. It is expected that there will be much home building this fall in consequence of the action of the railroad company.

West Duluth people hope that the houses on the newly acquired railroad property will be disposed of in the same manner that the Wisconsin Central sold its houses at the West end, when it acquired right-of-way. The Wisconsin Central had its agents conduct an auction in front of every residence and sell the house to the highest bidder.

The notices to move were sent out by the N. J. Upham company, as agents for the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railroad. The letters were in circular form and were also signed by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, attorneys for the road.

COLD WATER CONVENTION

Swedish-Finnish Temperance Society Will Meet in Duluth.

Final preparations are being made at West Duluth for the annual convention of the Swedish Finnish National Temperance society, which will be held July 28, 29 and 30 at Wade's hall, Central avenue and Ramsey street.

Delegates to the big "Cold Water" affair are arriving from all parts of the Northwest, but most of the representatives from outside lodges will be here Wednesday, the opening day of the convention.

Noted temperance speakers of the state will appear on the program.

Prof. P. J. Youngdahl and E. E. Lobeck are among those who will take part. About sixty lodges are affiliated with the society which has its largest stronghold in Minnesota and Michigan.

Mrs. J. E, Evans Denies That She Attacked Her Neighbor.

Mrs. J. E. Evans of 902 South Seventy-third avenue west was arrested this morning on a warrant charging assault, in which her neighbor, Mrs. Michael O'Connor is the complainant.

The action is the outcome of a fight which took place last week in a cow posture near their homes. The Evans woman was laid up for a few days and the warrant was not served until she was able to appear in municipal court this morning.

Mrs. Evans pleaded not guilty and the case was put over until Aug. 2.

SWIMS WITH BROKEN LEG

Knocked From Skidway, Joseph Sullivan Saves His Own Life.

Mill Employe Handicapped By Injured Limb and Heavy Boots.

With his right leg broken just below the knee, Joseph J. Sullivan, 35 years old, residing at 520 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, saved his own life this morning, by swimming several rods to the nearest log jam, where he pulled himself out.

Sullivan is employed as a laborer at the Alger Smith mill on Garfield avenue and was working on the skidway at the time of the accident, which occurred about 7:30 o'clock. A log struck his right leg with sufficient force to fracture the bone and to send him backwards into the water.

Sullivan was almost stunned by the blow and it was with difficulty that he maintained his presence of mind. He was handicapped by big spiked boots which he wore, besides having one limb out of commission.

The nearest log boom was almost a block distant and Sullivan swam for this. Seeing that he was making progress, fellow workmen did not jump in to assist him and he swam the entire distance without any help.

Climbing upon the logs, Sullivan told his fellow workmen that his leg was broken, much to their surprise. He was taken at once to the Duluth hospital, Central avenue and Ramsey street, where he was given medical attention.

Sullivan will be laid up for a few weeks.

CLAIMS HE WAS "TOUCHED" FOR $18.50.

Claiming that he was robbed of $18.50 while he was sleeping in a boarding house run by Frank Baudin at 310 South Fifty-eighth avenue west Friday evening last, Frank Trueheart, last evening asked the West Duluth police to lend their assistance in bringing the culprit to justice.

Trueheart claims that on Friday evening, he cashed a check for $19 and bought 50 cents worth of whisky, on which he became intoxicated. He claims that while he was sleeping off his "drunk," that he was "touched" for the change.

NO MORE WORD FROM STEAMER

Scotland Yard Official Tells of Message Regarding Crippen.

London, July 26.—The London police have received no word since last Saturday morning from the steamer Montrose, aboard which are two passengers suspected of being Dr. H. H. Crippen and the doctor's typist, Ethel Clara Leneve.

Supt. Froest stated today that the advices which Capt. Fendall of the Montrose had received from Scotland Yard would not justify him in placing the passengers in question under arrest. No further news of the suspects is expected by the authorities here, until the steamer reaches Rimouski, Can., whether Inspector Dew, aboard the steamer Laurentic, is traveling to have a look at the passengers of the Montrose.

Tells of Correspondence.

To set at rest the many rumors afloat, Supt. Froest of Scotland Yard described the situation from the police standpoint today. He said when he received the wireless message from Capt. Kendall of the Montrose stating the master's belief that he had Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve on board, he replied with a message in which he gave the captain the latest description of the man wanted and of the woman who is supposed to be in his company.

Capt. Kennedy responded in a second message saying that he was confirmed in his original belief that the man known on board the ship as Rev. John Robinson was really Dr. Crippen and that his companion, who was traveling as John Robinson, Jr., was no other than the Leneve woman.

Since these wireless exchanges between Scotland Yard and Capt. Kendall not a word has come to the police from the steamer, said Supt. Froest, who added that nothing sent by Scotland Yard to Capt. Kendall would justify the latter in taking any action against the suspects.

CORN CONDITION NOW IS CRITICAL

Another Day of Intense Heat Is Endured in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., July 26.—Yesterday's intense heat was duplicated today and the corn crop is in a critical condition. The greatest damage to the corn is in the extreme Western counties. The board of agriculture estimated this year's crop at 120,000,000 bushels and the loss to date at 20,000,000 bushels.

ORIGIN OF GOLF.

London Globe: Now that the changed conditions of our climate have made golf, which was formerly practically confined to the three other seasons, almost as much a winter game, it is rather curious to remember that in Holland, where many people think golf came from, it was only played in winter.

All the literary and pictorial records of Dutch golf represent it as a winter pastime [illegible] there is [illegible] evidence that the Dutch ever played it on dry land. There is a miniature in a Book of Hours in the British museum which shows some children playing golf at a hole in the ground, but it is Flemish and not Dutch. The Dutch game indeed has little resemblance to our golf except that the weapons are similar. The Dutchmen play at an upright mark, a post or stone or door, instead of a hole.

Golf as we know it is more akin to the ancient French game of jeu de mall, which is still played in the South of France in the neighborhood of Montpellier, and it seems probable, if golf is not a purely Scottish creation, that it is a modification of the old French game. There was much intercourse between France and Scotland all through the Stuart period, and the French influence on Scottish manners and customs, and even on the language, was very great. On the other hand, although Holland had much trade with Scotland at the same period, there is practically no trace of Dutch influence on anything Scottish.

It is possible, however, that the Scottish form of golf club was taken from the Dutch. So far as can be judged from the old pictures, the Dutch clubs were identical in form and construction with the old makes of Scottish clubs. Of course, it is equally possible that the Dutch copied the clubs from the Scotch, and as a matter of fact there is an old Dutch poem in which a "kolfer" is described as using a "Schottse cleik," or Scottish club. But however that may be, the old Dutch clubs would pass the rules of golf committee today as "legitimate" weapons, whereas it is to be feared that the weapons used in the French "jeu de mall" would be condemned as croquet mallets.

Whether the Dutch or the French are our golfing ancesters is perhaps doubtful, but it is certain that at the present day they are our golfing children, for the golf now played in Holland and France is the true Scottish variety directly imported. In Holland the game appears to languish, but in France its progress is nothing less than astonishing.

PEERS INTO THE FUTURE

But Alleged Fortune Teller Could Not Foresee Her Arrest.

Prisoner, Arrested on Suspicion, Is Wanted in Minneapolis.

Declaring that Mrs. Anna Hawks, arrested last week on the charge of telling fortunes without a license, is a remarkable woman with great powers, Attorney A. N. McGindley appeared in police court for her yesterday afternoon to enter a plea of guilty. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed, which was paid.

Attorney McGindley stated that she has an unusual ability in the way of foretelling the future, amounting to almost a second sight. He said that she wasn't a fortune-teller, but possessed an intellect that was very exceptional.

Mrs. Hawks was arrested at her apartments at 724 West First street, on information obtained by Officers Rothie and Gilbert. While feeling the "bumps" on the head of the latter, the policeman says that she told him he would make a good detective. He asserts that she also told him that he had some part of an inheritance coming to him, which he states was true, as a relative recently died leaving him a share of the estate.

When Mrs Hawks appeared before the court to enter her plea of not guilty, she denied, with tears streaming down her cheeks, that she was a fortune-teller. She did not appear yesterday afternoon, the plea being changed by her attorney.

Detectives Terry and Toewe did not know that Andrew Mattson was wanted on a warrant in Minneapolis when they arrested him yesterday afternoon, but after he had been locked up at police headquarters they learned that there is a warrant out for him in Minneapolis, accusing him of wife desertion. It appears that Mattson, a jewelry engraver by trade, became infatuated with another woman and eloped with her several days ago, coming to this city. The detectives saw him trying to pawn a diamond valued at $135, and when he was unable to tell a satisfactory story, placed him under arrest. It is claimed that he left Minneapolis with all his wife's jewelry, cut glass and silverware, leaving her in rather hard circumstances. The woman in the case had left the city when Mattson was arrested. It appears that he needed money, and being unable to obtain it as soon as he expected, tried to pawn the diamond the night before. Mattson will be taken back to Minneapolis this evening.

George Jones was arrested this morning by Patrolman Smollett on the charge of not properly covering a blast at 16 West Superior street, where rock is being taken out for the basement of a new building which is to be erected on that location. Two of the rocks flew over the high board fence and across the street, breaking a large plate glass window in a store opposite. Many complaints have been made of the careless blasting in the heart of the city and it is exceedingly fortunate that no one has been injured. Jones entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried later.

Hendrick Saari, arrested early Sunday morning on suspicion of having tried to break into the residence of Joseph Felix at 410½ Lake avenue south, paid a fine of $10 and costs in police court yesterday.

Joseph St. Jacques was arrested by Patrolman Perry this morning for petty larceny. It is claimed that he was caught red handed attempting to steal a box of cigars from J. Crinklaw's saloon on West Superior street. It is alleged that he also helped himself to several bottles of whisky in the place.

• • •

W. E. Crackell, arrested Saturday for forgery, demanded an examination when arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon. His hearing was set for Thursday morning. It is alleged that he obtained $1.85 on a check to which he forged the name of J. E. Miller. The police say that he admits his guilt.

AMMUNITION SHIP AND CARGO BURNED

Bluejackets in Navy Yard Save Supply Vessel From Going Too.

New York, July 26.—Intense excitement prevailed for a time at the Brooklyn navy yard today when an ammunition lighter which was berthed alongside the supply ship Culgoa caught fire from some unknown cause and was destroyed almost completely, together with her ammunition, after being towed out in midstream. The Culgoa was only slightly damaged. The ammunition, which was in the form of powder, flashed up and burned, but being in unsealed cans did not explode.

When the fire broke out the bluejackets in the yard were rushed into service as firemen. They were very busy men for a few moments and their efforts probably saved the Culgoa from destruction.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL INQUIRY RESUMED

Death of Ira G. Rawn Fails to Stop the Proceedings.

Chicago, July 26.—Despite the death of Ira G. Rawn, former president of the Monon road, who was to have been the chief witness, taking of testimony in the Illinois Central car repair cases was resumed today before Thomas Taylor master in chancery. It is part of the present purpose of the hearing to determine whether any money is due the road from officers and employes involved in the car repair contracts and the amount.

CANOE RACES BEING PLANNED

First Annual Race Will Take Place at the Boat Club.

Canoe races, the first of the kind ever held in Duluth, will take place at the main house of the Duluth Boat club a week from Saturday. The affair will be made an annual event and watch fobs with the emblem of the club will be given the winners.

There is more interest in canoeing this year than ever before. Those employed at the several branches say that on pleasant evenings canoes are at a premium in spite of the fact that the club now has several hundred of them.

The races will be for men. There will be two men in a canoe and the races will be known as the "doubles". The distance will be half a mile, one quarter of a mile each way with a turn.

Already a great amount of interest is being displayed and those in charge hope to have at least thirty entries.

Play in the tennis singles is going along nicely on the courts at the club, two or three games taking place each day. It is expected that the event will soon be down to the fours and then some exciting contests will take place. There may have been a few close sets up to date but for the most part the sets have been won by long odds.

Drawings were made yesterday in the doubles. Sixteen pairs are entered and play will begin at once. The men arrange their own games and play at the time most convenient for both sides. The winners of the tournament will meet Graff and Grady, the present cup holders.

The drawings follow:

Gall and Kincaid vs. La Bree and Bissonnette. Libbey and Barnes vs. Close and McBride, Marshall and Dickerman vs. Serf and Robinson, Amundson and Colton vs. Le Seur and O'Donnell, Ingalls and Mather vs. Gravatt and Gravatt, Davis and Kennedy vs. Falk and Cheney, Wilson and Abbott vs. Conner and Rosenkrans, Sinclair and Klichli vs. Craig and Stillman.

To Play Eau Claire.

The White Sox returned home today and this afternoon a series with Eau Claire will open at Athletic park. Schmirler or Worman will pitch for Duluth today and the only other change in the lineup will be Jimmy Anderson in left field in place of Redlin.

FEEL EFFECT OF STRIKE HERE

Freight Business of Grand Trunk Shows Falling Off.

Local officials of the Grand Trunk Railway company are of the opinion that if the strike, which is now in full force throughout the eastern part of Canada, continues much longer, the company's business from this section of the United States will be seriously hampered.

Already there is a slight decrease in the freight business, although there is no noticeable decrease in the passenger traffic, which is carried on almost entirely by the Northern Navigation company, a subsidiary company.

No trouble has been experienced from the strikers, the local men claim, and the merchandise handled is delivered in the usual manner. However, the officials think that with the continuation of the strike the public may believe that it is not safe to ship goods or travel over this line, and the business will go to other roads leading from Duluth to the same territory.

CHARGE IS NOT KNOWN

Duluth Man, Arrested for Durand Authorities, Threatens Suit.

Acting on a telegram from W. E. Plummer, district attorney at Durand, Wis., the police this afternoon arrested Wesley J. Hall, president of the Hall-Kreidler Music company. The Duluth police do not know on what charge Mr. Hall, if is the right man, is wanted, and Mr. Hall himself professes to be in the dark also.

The telegram merely requested the Duluth police to arrest and hold Hall for the Wisconsin authorities. When arrested he declared that he had done nothing for which he might be wanted and that a damage suit would grow out of the arrest. The Wisconsin authorities are expected to arrive in Duluth when the matter will probably be cleared up.

SAY WIDER GOT $520,000 MORE

Russo-Chinese Bank Robbery Now Estimated at $600,000.

New York, July 26.—"Wanted—Erwin Wider, about 32 years old; 5 feet 5 inches in height; weighs about 135 pounds; swarthy of complexion, with a small black mustache, curled at the ends; wears rimless nose-glasses, talks with a German accent and is timid in address."

Such is the general alarm sent out by the police for the missing cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank. When the bank first made public the fact that its strong box was short, the amount was given as $80,000, all in negotiable bonds, a list of which was furnished. Now the amount has suddenly jumped to $600,000, of which the additional $520,000 is said to be in stocks partly owned by the bank and partly by its customers.

No positive statement has been made yet as to where these stock certificates now are, or with what intent they were stolen. No list of the certificates or the owners in whose names they stand on the books of the companies by which they were issued is available.

PUDDING POISONS 500 OLD SOLDIERS.

Bristol, Va., July 26.—Probably 500 old soldiers at the Mountain branch of the national soldiers' home at Johnson City were poisoned by bread-pudding which they ate Saturday evening. Two deaths at the home have occurred and it was rumored that they resulted from the poisoning, but officials of the home denied the report.

Bemidji "Sooner" Fined.

Bemidji, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attracted by some shooting in the rice beds of Lake Irving, west of the city, S. C. Bailey, local game warden, came across Henry Bertram of this place in a boat with some companions. They had no game but agreed to plead guilty to attempting to kill ducks and Bertram accordingly pleaded guilty for the party before Acting Judge Pendergast and was fined $10 and costs which he paid.

Drinking Water

Most rural dwellings depend for their drinking water upon "the old well." A wealth of romance has been weaved around the well in both song and story, but modern medical science has shown that, nine times out of ten, "the old well" is a breeding place for countless typhoid germs and other virulent bacilli.

The cause for this is readily understood by the fact that the sewage from the outhouses and waste matter from the kitchen permeate their way through the ground to the well.

The same is true, and in a larger way, with the streams from which the villages, towns and cities draw their supplies, and it behooves every one to be careful with his drinking water, especially at this time of the year, when so much is used.

To keep the system in such good condition that these germs will be unable to obtain a foothold, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey which as a tonic stimulant and body builder is one of the greatest strength givers known to science. It aids in removing disease, and by its building and healing properties assist in restoring tissues in a gradual, healthy, natural manner. As a nerve tonic it has no equal. It cures dyspepsia and biliousness, aids digestion, brings restful sleep, stimulates the blood, invigorates the brain and assists in freeing the entire system from the dread germs of malaria and low fevers.

It is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by druggists, grocers and dealers everywhere or direct, $1.00 per large bottle. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

W. E. GREENE TO PRESIDE

Duluth Attorney Will Be Toastmaster at State Bar Banquet.

Association Will Hold Annual Convention at St. Paul Aug. 3, 4 and 5.

Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene will act as toastmaster at the annual meeting and banquet of the Minnesota State Bar association, which holds a three-day session at St. Paul beginning on Aug. 3. The banquet will be held at the new St. Paul hotel.

The state association will be invited to hold the 1911 session at Duluth. Last year the lawyers met here and so good a time did they have that all the members are anxious to come to the Zenith City again.

The banquet this year, winding up the sessions, will be held on Aug. 5. Mr. Greene spoke before the association last year and the impression he created was so good that he was selected as toastmaster this year.

Nearly all Duluth attorneys are members of the state association and a large number of them will go down to attend the sessions and the banquet.

Wednesday, Aug. 3, the president's annual address will be given and open discussions will be held on the following subjects: "Judicial Elections." "The Rule as to Opening and Closing in the Trial of Civil Actions." "Employees' Compensation for Injuries." "Traveling Expense Allowance for District Judges." "Proposed Reforms in Minnesota Practice." "A Constitutional Convention for Minnesota."

Thursday there will be both morning and afternoon sessions. The main subject for discussion will be proposed measures for the relief of the supreme court, either through an increase in the number of justices, or by an intermediate court of appeals, or a limitation of the right of appeal. If there be any time remaining, general matters will be debated on this day.

At 10 a. m. Friday, the annual address will be delivered by John J. Esch of La Crosse, Wis., a member of congress, whose subject will be, "Federal Control Over Stock and Bond Issues of Interstate Carriers." Following his address the election of officers will be held and committee reports received.

The out-of-town lawyers and their wives will as the guests of the Ramsey County Bar association, enjoy several outings planned in their honor.

SNAPPY FARCE AT THE LYCEUM

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" Is the Stock Company's Bill.

Farce of the door banging, marathon racing type, holds the boards at the Lyceum this week, the Forbes Stock company presenting "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," a genuine Willie Collier vehicle.

Some critic has said that a pair of good legs is the first requisite of an accomplished farce actor, and there appears to be more or less of truth in it. Action is the most important factor in a good farce, and the audience must be carried along from one complication to another without being given time to digest the tangled plot. Laughs are what the author has in view, and the more steady the stream of merriment, the more successful the farce. Complication must follow close upon the heels of complication, so rapidly that each seems to bring the climax of the muddle, and the author who can continue to pile up amusing situations after the limit has apparently been reached, the one who may consider he has written a successful farce.

This seems to have been accomplished in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The plot begins with one little white lie, and all of the characters are drawn deeper and deeper into the mire, incident crowding on incident, and ridiculous situations follow each other so rapidly that the audience is left fairly breathless with laughter. Farce is an ideal summer entertainment, and Mr. Forbes showed good judgment in presenting such a bill immediately following such a play as "Rattles."

In brief the story of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" concerns the adventures of Jack Temple and his friend, Frank Fuller. Mr. Temple goes for a ride on a Ferris wheel and when the machinery breaks is compelled to spend the night at the top of the wheel with one other woman in the car. Seeing that there is no chance of his wife believing the truth, he invents a friend, John Brown, with whom he claims to have spent the night. He then induces his friend, Frank Fuller, to impersonate Mr. Brown. Mrs. Fuller, it develops, was the woman with whom he spent the night in the car. There proves to be a real Mr. Brown at the address given for the fictitious Mr. Brown and the real Mr. and Mrs. Brown add some interesting complications. The author piles up the complications and entanglements until he is forced to cut the knot just before the final curtain. It is a very snappy, lively and amusing farce.

Mr. Forbes and his company presented the bill in an excellent manner last evening. Mr. Forbes showed his versatility by the facile manner in which he stepped from such a role as "Rattles" to the Willie Collier type of farce hero. A light comedy role is always a difficult one to handle well and Mr. Forbes accomplished this. Frank Fielder was cast as Mr. Temple and did the best work he has yet done in Duluth. He had a little difficulty with his lines, but it was scarcely noticeable and will doubtless be eliminated by tonight.

Miss Justina Wayne was cast as Mrs. Temple, a role entirely differelt from anything she has yet essayed here. The fact that she could step into such a role at short notice and give a capable interpretation of it shows her ability. May Desmond handled a small part, that of Mrs. Fuller, well, and Evelyn Watson was equally entertaining as the ingenue, Kate Woods Fiske was "the sticky lady," the real Mrs. Brown, and added no small contribution to the general hilarity.

A bit that deserves more than passing mention was contributed by James McKurdy in the role of Wigson, the butler. It was exceedingly well handled and Mr. McKurdy succeeded in monopolizing most of the scenes he was in. Mr. Forbes showed good judgment in allowing this little part to be featured as much as it was, for it added no small measure to the success of the performance.

The other members of the company in minor roles acquitted themselves well. For laughing purposes "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is a decided success.

THE MOVING PICTURE HOUSES

The programs at the Orpheum and the Lyric this week are excellent, consisting of moving pictures and illustrated songs. The houses have been crowded at every performance. The performances are interesting and educational and are the latest in moving pictures.

The entertaining programs follow:

Orpheum—"A Flash of Light," "Hall Room Boys," "The Wicked Baron and the Page," "Moonlight Flitting." Miss Nelson sings "Hello, Miss Liberty."

Lyric—"A Wireless Romance," "The Sheriff," "A Hunting Story," "Jupiter Smitten," "Jolly Whirl." Miss Erd sings "Love Keeps the Whole World Young."

HARRY W. PIERONG TO BE MANAGER

Says Duluth Will Get Best Vaudeville in New Orpheum.

"Duluth will get the best that there is in vaudeville," said Harry W. Pierong, manager of the new Orpheum theater. Mr. Pierong is at the Spalding. He will return to St. Paul, and when he comes back to Duluth it will to become a full-fledged citizen of this city.

Mr. Pierong entered the theatrical business in 1900 with an exposition at the Coliseum in Chicago. He was associated with the management of Paine's fireworks at Manhattan Beach for five summers, from 1901 to 1905 inclusive. In the winter he had charge of traveling companies. In 1905 he accepted the management of the Euclid avenue opera house in Cleveland. He left the theatrical field temporarily, to become deputy treasurer of Cuyhoga county. In 1907 he became associated with L. N. Scott in the management of the Metropolitan in St. Paul. He accepted the managership of the Orpheum road show and was appointed two seasons ago to the management of the Orpheum in St. Paul.

The Orpheum circuit is familiar to theater-goers. It started from one house in San Francisco and has grown until it comprises sixty theaters in the United States, not including its affiliations and the foreign houses with which it is associated. The Duluth Orpheum will probably open on Aug. 22.

AEROPLANE GIRL IS THE FEATURE

Flying Act Makes Big Hit With Patrons of Bijou Theater.

"The Aeroplane Girl" is the feature of this week's excellent bill at the Bijou theater. It is one of the best vaudeville attractions ever put on at the local house.

In some mysterious manner the aeroplane glides from the stage and over the heads of the audience while the girl contained therein sings several songs and invites the audience to take a ride with her. The wings of the aeroplane flap as it moves out over the audience and it has the appearance of a very large bird.

The house is darkened while the act is taking place and only the girl in the aeroplane is seen gliding up and down and to and fro. In spite of the many invitations extended by the girl last evening no one seemed to care to take a chance.

The performance opens this week with an act by Will Lacey. He does some wonderful tricks on a bicycle. His act is not of the usual stereotyped order but is all new and interesting. One of his stunts is to waltz to the music of the orchestra on a single wheel.

"Vacation Time", a one-act comedy, made a hit. Besides being very funny, the prisoners—for it is a story of jail life—sing several delightful selections.

"At the Threshold", a one-act playlet which tells the story of a burglar, was greatly enjoyed. The act has special scenery and is one of the most pretentious put on at the Bijou in some time.

Hetty Urma sings. She also dresses like a boy. She is good to look at and her song, "The Time, the Place and the Girl", was encored several times.

The illustrated song and the motion pictures are enjoyable features of a thoroughly good warm-weather program.

FRANCE MAY TAKE DUTY OFF WHEAT

Prices Are Abnormal Owing to Damage to Crops.

Paris, July 26.—The damage to the French wheat crop and the rise in the price of wheat in America have sent the price here up 3 francs per hundred kilograms in the last thirty days. Wheat is now selling here at 23.5 francs per hundred kilograms. ON THE IRON RANGES

BOYS HAVE CLOSE CALL

Apply Match to Partly Filled Barrel of Gasoline on Chisholm Street.

A Terrific Explosion Results and the Four Youths Are Badly Injured.

Chisholm, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Applying a match to a partly filled barrel of gasoline yesterday afternoon four boys had a very close call from being killed by the resulting explosion.

Their names and ages are:
Henry Tomphor, 12.
Claude La Lone, 11.
Emil Rehza, 11.
John Dodgke, 12.

The barrel belonged to Henry Tomphor, the father of one of the boys, who runs a saloon, and stood at the corner of First avenue and Maple street. About 4:30 yesterday afternoon the boys, happening along, conceived the idea of touching off the supposedly empty barrel, expecting the gas it contained to cause a slight explosion.

Terrific Explosion Results.

One accordingly lighted a match and applied. The resulting explosion alarmed the village and crowds hastened to the spot. There was not enough left of the barrel to make a toothpick, while even the hoops were torn and shattered like bits of paper. The boys were lying about writhing in agony and crying from pain and fright.

An examination revealed that none was fatally injured, although all were badly bruised. Their clothing was torn and their hands and face more or less lacerated, but no bones were broken.

Young La Lone was so badly cut about the face that he will be scarred for life. The Tomphor boy was cut about the head, his hands were lacerated and he was otherwise bruised. The other two were not badly injured.

All were hurried to their homes and they are being carefully nursed by the mothers, who are giving them plenty of good advice about the danger of getting too close to gasoline with lighted matches.

HEROINE OF BIG FIRE.

Miss Elizabeth Crellin of Chisholm Has Taken a New Position.

Chisholm, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Elizabeth Crellin, who for the last three years has been the chief operator for the Mesaba Telephone company has resigned to enter the employ of the Oliver Iron Mining company as operator at the Monroe telephone station.

During the great fire in Chisholm in September, 1908, Miss Crellin had a narrow escape from burning. It was thought that all in the building where the central station was had gotten out, but when a sister of Miss Crellin had inquired it was learned that Miss Crellin was yet in the building. She had been kept so busy answering telephone calls that she seemed not to realize the danger she herself was in. Shortly after she got out the building fell down.

HIBBING MAN IS SEEKING HIS WIFE

Claims Woman He Saved From Jail and Married, Gave Him the Slip.

Hibbing, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cameron Deluce, who on the 18th inst. paid the fine of $14.75 of a woman who had been fined in the municipal court and then married her, Monday came before the local police and asked their assistance in locating his wife. Deluca told a story of desertion. He says his wife only lived with him three days when she disappeared with another man.

John Walch who was arrested Sunday night for drunkenness, was fined $29.25 or thirty days. Walch was unable to pay his fine and was taken to Duluth this morning. C. Harry Person and Severe Linn, arrested on the charge of fast driving, were each fined $1.50. Both paid. Abraham Bloodes, charged with being drunk and disorderly, pleaded guilty to the charge and paid his fine of $28.75.

John Cola and Jim Dolca were arrested early Monday morning by Officer Morris O'Donald of Stevenson Location. For some time past many complaints have been made to Officer O'Donald in regard to those two men frequenting places in Stevenson and causing considerable trouble by starting fights in which revolvers have been used. Early Monday morning Officer O'Donald heard shots and seeing two men approach waited for them and immediately placed them under arrest. The men proved to be Cola and Dolca and each carried revolvers from which several shots had been fired. The men were arraigned before Judge Thomas F. Brady in the municipal court Monday afternoon and were each fined $75 and costs. The fines were paid.

CRIPPLE ATTEMPTS LIFE.

Tries to Hang Himself in the Hibbing Jail.

Hibbing, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Acrey, a cripple who was arrested late Sunday evening in an intoxicated condition, attempted to commit suicide in the jail by taking the strap which held his wooden leg in place, tying it around his neck and then fastening it to the bars above his head. Acrey hung suspended in the air when Turnkey Everett, hearing the shouting of other prisoners in the jail, opened the door to ascertain the cause. Acrey had not had time enough to do himself harm and Monday in the municipal court denied all knowledge of having made any attempt on his life while in the drunken state. After being severely lectured by Judge Brady, Acrey was given twenty days in the county jail at Duluth. He was taken there this morning.

aldermen left thinking that the resignation would be withheld for a while. Much money has been raised by selling advertising in a program to be sold during the tournament.

TREE COMES DOWN UPON WOODCHOPPER

Swan River Logging Company Employe Badly Injured When Tree Drops.

Chisholm, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Johnsa, a Finn, in the employ of the Swan River Logging company met with a serious accident while felling a tree. Contrary to the woodchopper's expectations the tree fell in a direction he had not thought, and before he could get out of the way, the tree struck him and badly mangled his left leg, and tore one or two toes off his right foot. Johnsa is a single man. He is 32 years of age. He was taken to the hospital in Hibbing.

The heaviest rain in twelve months fell here Saturday. The streets were drenched and the water ran in the gutters in floods. The forest fires of the last few days which were beginning to cause alarm are all out and the whole section is greatly refreshed.

The members of the Methodist Sunday school picnic did not get home from the grounds in time to save themselves from a thorough wetting. No serious consequences, however, were reported.

SLAYS CUB BEARS IN BERRY PATCH

Chisholm Man Uses His Rifle to Good Advantage on Bruins.

Chisholm, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Edward Dumont of Chestnut street was picking raspberries in a patch four miles north of town Saturday, he was surprized by a big she bear with her four cubs walking into the patch presumably to get a share also of the berries. Discovering Mr. Dumont, Mrs. Bruin got "grouchy," but when Dumont had finished firing, two cubs were dead and the old bear with the two other young ones had decamped.

Mr. Dumont had a good many callers at his house to see the interesting trophies he had captured from a raspberry patch.

It is reported that despite the very dry season there is to be a good crop of wild raspberries in the country north of here.

EVELETHIAN IS AMONG MISSING

There was a report that he has been seen in Duluth, but this has not been corroborated. The police are looking for Marinci and have communicated with the police all over the range and Duluth. Marinci leaves his wife and two children here without any visible means of support. He has been getting into the good graces of the local Italians for the months he has been here, and his sudden disappearance with so much money and debts was a great surprise.

E. C. Clow, who for the past eleven years has been deputy collector and inspector of customs of the local United States customs office, has resigned his position with the government and will in the near future enter business for himself. For several years he has been in poor health and recently underwent an operation, following which the surgeons urged him to take a long rest. He has planned to enter business, and believed that now, when he must take a long vacation, would be as good an opportunity to leave the service and prepare for his new venture.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"There nothing that God and me can't subdue" said Mrs. Carry A. Nation this morning with a ring of earnestness in her voice and an uplifted arm that brought swift reminder of lurking Biblical quotation of the faith that can move mountains.

Mrs. Nation came to the city this morning and stopped at the McKay hotel only long enough to visit the bar, to discover as she said "a filthy place, pictures of naked women and a boy of about twenty-one smoking cigarettes," and waiting only long enough to announce her disapproval of such things she took her way hence. She stopped at The Herald office for directions to a place that she might stay where there was no bar and she was sent to the Y. W. C. A., where they took Mrs. Nation in. After emerging from a bath, she consented to an immediate interview. Every interviewer since Mrs. Nation has appeared on the national horizon who has met her has had his little fling. It is easier to write a facetious interview than a serious one. But no ray of humor makes up a part of Mrs. Nation's credo. She has an earnestness of purpose and a serious outlook that puts to momentary shame anything less intense.

Mrs Nation was asked about the work that brought her to the Northwest. "I'm on a chautauqua circuit now," she said "I used to be such a notorious character that nobody wanted Carry Nation on a chautauqua. But it's different now. I'll speak at Two Harbors tonight and here in Duluth tomorrow night. I'll talk on 'Wher I Smashed. Why I Smashed and What I Smashed.' It will be a regular smashing lecture."

Even her last statement was said seriously. Mrs. Nation talked as she frankly and freely finished dressing and the job wasn't all done even at the end of the interview.

She has a pet scheme of founding a college at her home in Arkansas and she wishes to sell her fruit farm to put the money into the prohibition college upon which she has set her mind. "We will educate the young people and send them out, two and two as the Savior did," said Mrs. Nation, "to teach the great cause of prohibition. Not only the prohibition of drink but of tobacco using, of all the evils of the flesh and most of all, prohibition against the secret orders."

"The Masons, too?" queried the interviewer.

"Yes ma'am," said Mrs. Nation with earnestness quivering in her voice. "The Masons most of all."

"I should think you'd get discouraged with all the Masons against you," ventured the interviewer.

"No ma'am," said Mrs. Nation just as earnestly, and she spoke firmly with uplifted arm and made the statement that heads the interview, "There's nothing that God and me can't subdue. No ma'am."

Mrs. Nation feels that the Mason sweats away his right as an individual and the lodge members are led as in a herd. She thinks the things they vow just approach the unspeakable and a thing that a man can't tell his wife must be pretty bad. The secret orders must go, says Mrs. Nation, and she offers to present any Mason with one hundred dollars if he can give an affidavit that what she will tell of the Masons tomorrow evening in her lecture here, is not true.

"I am a believer in the individual," said Mrs. Nation, "and no man who swears that he will have his tongue torn out by the roots nor his breast cut and heart taken out, or his body slashed and his vitals burned to ashes, is keeping the rights of the individual."

"Why does he say that he will have all those unpleasant things done," asked the interviewer.

"Rather than tell the truth about his lodge," said Mrs. Nation, snapping her lips tight shut. "He vows that all that may happen to him before he'll even tell his wife what happened at the lodge? Yes, ma'am!"

Mrs. Nation has five grandchildren. "Are they going into the temperance work?" inquired the interviewer.

"Bless you, no!" said Mrs. Nation. "They're going into matrimony."

VENETIAN FETE.

Annual Event Attracts Thousands at Club.

Thousands of Duluth people again enjoyed the annual water carnival of the Duluth Boat club, which was held last evening on the waters of St. Louis bay, and the spectacle again delighted the city with its fairylike loveliness. The special god of weather favors the boat club members, for in recent years the evening set for the annual fete has proved delightful, and last evening the very carnival spirit was maintained even by the weather, and the flashes of lightning in the Eastern sky alternated with the flaring red fire and the fireworks set off at the club grounds. But the rain held not fall.

The parade was headed by a gaily lighted scow, on which was stationed the band that played during the parade. Canoes and rowboats, lighted with hundreds of pretty Japanese lanterns and trimmed and festooned in gay crepe papers, formed in the parade, and the hundreds of lanterns bobbed on the dark waters of the bay and reflected in the water made up a scene of distinctive beauty. On a scow reel lights were burned, lighting up the harbor at intervals. The tennis court and the clubhouses were lighted with the festive-looking Japanese lanterns, and delayed Fourth of July celebrations added to the picturesque beauty of the night.

The Alvina, T. F. Cole's yacht, was illuminated with hundreds of electric lights, making a blaze of light on the bay, and on board the yacht Mr. and Mrs. Cole, assisted by Miss Elcey Cole, entertained a large party of their friends.

The Gopher also joined in the spirit of the occasion and was illuminated, and the two boats flashed signals during the entire evening. The Newsboy, with hundreds of passengers, was another brightly lighted craft to add to the prettiness of the occasion. There were 110 of the club craft decorated and in the parade.

The judges were Bently P. Neff, B. C. Church, W. B. Cross, Elbert Dresser and Walter McCarthy, and they awarded the prizes to the Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele, whose canoe decoration was designed as an aeroplane; the second prize to David Williams, and the third to John Rondeau. Frank Libby's canoe received special mention.

The verandas of the clubhouse, the bleachers in the tennis court, the walk about the courts and every available space on the club grounds were filled with the spectators. Others from the city lined the government piers to watch the pretty scene, and thousands from the hilltop were also spectators.

After the fete an informal dancing party was held on the tennis courts and Flaaten's orchestra played for the dancing.

WOMEN SMOKING.

Seems Fair Enough to Some of Them.

Whether Mrs. Alice Lee Roosevelt Longworth has a right to smoke cigarettes or not, quite concerned Pittsburg club women last week. Most of them believed that she had not the right. The St. Paul Dispatch interviewed a few St. Paul women about the matter and Duluthians will be especially interested in the views of Rena Vivienne, who is visiting there for a short time. According to the Dispatch, Miss Vivienne said:

"Why not? Oh, no, I don't think women ought to smoke in public, and I don't do it because I'm a singer. That bars me for scientific reasons, but I can't see any reason for not allowing women to smoke when it's considered all right for men. They're getting more and more rights all the time—just being flooded with them, in fact, and why shouldn't they take this one along with the rest?"

The Dispatch also quotes the state president of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs:

"Said Mrs. C. G. Higbee, president of the Fourth District Federation of Women's Clubs: 'Minnesota club women are first and foremost for law enforcement; if the law which prohibits smoking of cigarettes is a wise one, they think it should hold good as well in the case of women as in that of men and boys. If, on the other hand, cigarettes are harmless and even desirable for one-half of the race, then by all means let women avail themselves of the privilege, too.'"

CHARM OF A BEAUTIFUL VOICE

By MARGARET WATTS DE PEYSTER

Of all the charms a woman can possess, perhaps none is more fascinating than a beautiful voice. She may have a lovely face and form, and be always most fashionably and artistically dressed, but if her voice is harsh, or thin, or shrieking, or strident, we want to get out of her way as soon as we can.

We admire the peacock's plumage and its proud carriage, but when we hear its piercing voice, like that of many angry and terrified cats in one, we more than ever recall the exquisite tones of the humbler-looking lark, to hear whose thrilling notes we will get up very early in the morning, or of the mocking bird, whose wondrous song delights the ear.

The women in society, and those who have to earn their living by acting, singing, speaking or serving in a shop have all to use their voice a great deal, and to keep them pleasant in pitch and modulation, as well as in expression. Those who live quietly at home, or whose occupations are sedentary, have little idea what a strain this is on the voice, which is a difficult instrument to manage unless it has been well trained, and is kept in training, so that proper control over it may be maintained unconsciously.

The first part of the training, and one which must never be forgotten, is to acquire the art of invariably breathing through the nostrils and not through the mouth, and this is a golden rule for everybody, for among other things this has the effect of strengthening the voice, preventing it from bleing unsteady, and its tones from changing abruptly at the wrong times, and it assists the clear articulation which is essential when one wants to please by means of one's voice.

The inhalations should be noiseless, slow, and deep, and it is a good exercise to mentally count while taking in the fresh air, then to count aloud while exhaling, and see how far one can go quite steadily in one breath, giving it out slowly and without a jerk to the very last.

When the proper management and control of the breath has thus been acquired, the next thing to do will be to cultivate tone, so that though speaking quietly and sweetly, the voice is so full of expression that the listener understands the entire bearing of every thought that is put into words, and thereby the sympathy of comprehension is gained.

There is a great power as well as charm in an expressive voice, and this can be developed where it has not been bestowed by nature, or cultivated to a higher degree of excellence if already possessed.

Reading aloud, either to oneself or to a real friend who will offer kindly but just criticism, is another excellent exercise that helps to cultivate the voice in its efforts to be expressive and well regulated. Those who can read well can usually speak well, and if well-written books are chosen for this part of the voice training, the student at the same time unconsciously learns to use the right words in their right places, and to speak without hurrying in order that they may clearly enunciate, and so give their true value to them. Thus, in cultivating the beauty of voice, one is also enlarging the mind, and educating oneself in more ways than one, as well as giving the beauty of increased intelligence to the face.

RHYME AND REASON

By FRANK L. STANTON

If You Just Pulled Through.

A country bright to live in an' lots o' hope in view,
You're doin' more than middlin' if you just pulled through!
Old times are ended, facin' of the new,
Not a cause fer growlin, if you just pulled through!
Sun to light the mornin' stars for every night,
Still you are a-livin' in the blessedness of light.
From the winders way up yonder if you just pull through.

Word From Br'er Williams.

It don't take much to make de country happy: an' ez fer de 'Merican spirit, all it wants is a day to celebrate, an' it'll sho do de rest. Jest a excuse ter be happy is all de people want.

The Prosperity Wave.

The ship to the sea is a-faring,
And breasting the billows so brave;
She's speeding along,
And the winds sing a song
As we climb the Prosperity Wave.

For joy all the sailors are singing;
For what though tempests should rave?
They glimpse the bright strand
Of a glorious land
As they climb the Prosperity Wave.

Rise Up!

Rise up, little children, at the breaking of the day,
The way is to travel, and you've got to go the way;
No time for sorrow, and no time to stay—
Rise up early in the morning!

Rise up, little children, singing of your hymn;
The road is to travel and the river is to swim,
And the lamp—it won't be burning if you never keep it trim—
Rise up early in the morning!

Rise up, little children—you have to go the way
To the river—name o' Jordan—and the trumpet blowing day!
No time for dancing when the fiddler is to play—
Rise up early in the morning!

The Middle of the Road.

The middle of the road is a dusty place, but there's where the morning's in your face and you feel life's thrill as you run the race.

Of course, Jordan is a hard road ter travel, but you can't expect to get to heaven on a smooth road in a soft-cushioned automobile.

A Puzzle.

Hard to understand him—
Not a man can land him—
The puzzle of the country round about;
Caln he's still a raisin'
When the fire's blazin',
And then he makes a racket when it's out!

THE EVENING STORY

The Turn of the Worm

By Austin Philips.

Miss Higley put out an impertinent tongue and grimaced at her own reflection in the glass. Had she been a man she would have sworn; being a woman, she merely made a face.

Nature had given her a head whose pleasant shaping clearly intended that its hair should be parted in the middle and knotted on the nape of the neck. Miss Markham, to whom she acted as paid companion, insisted that she should wear it heaped high atop of her crown. And Miss Higley, at whose christening most of the fairies had left half-way through the ceremony, felt that life on the particular morning in question was a bitter, hollow mockery.

So, in a rage with fate and circumstances, she went down stairs to the breakfast room.

After a decent interval, the sour-looking parlor maid brought in the letters on a silver tray. Miss Higley thrust forward a forgetful hand. The servant looked shocked. She put the letters on the breakfast table in two precise little heaps, one before the austere armchair at its head, the other on Miss Higley's plate. Then she went out of the door with malicious slowness.

As the door closed, Miss Higley made a dive for the letters. She ran them through and picked out one which bore a familiar postmark. Her face grew soft, and she kissed the address with furtive lips. Before she opened the envelope she looked in the glass again—this time to obtain a becoming satisfaction from the ripeness of her blush. Then she thrust a knife under the flap, slid it along, put the knife down, and pulled out several sheets of paper closely covered with a man's handwriting.

She read the letter straight through from beginning to end, which when she began was merely pleasant-looking, seemed to have jumped with express transition into postive beauty.

And the joy of life came back to her on the floodtide of hope; so that with a display of feet and ankles, whose beauty, unlike the beauty of her face, was consistent and unvarying, she executed a happy little waltz.

Then she sank, panting, into her place at table, just as Miss Markham made a majestic entry into the room.

Miss Markham humphed. She had a habit of humphing, acquired from a Scottish lawyer who had once been in love with her money. And, having once tasted her conversational bitters, she began upon her breakfast with indisputable zest.

As she ate she read; did each a little inelegantly, perhaps; yet, nevertheless, achieved the dual task.

Presently she laid down her knife and fork and looked up.

"Mrs. de Winton has asked you to Newlandhurst on the 20th," she said.

Force of habit led Miss Higley into feigning an awed appreciation of the lady's condescension.

"That's very kind of Mrs. de Winton," she answered in reverent tones.

Miss Markham sniffed. (She had more than one parlor trick, as her paid companion had come to know.) Then she went on:

"And she wants you to bring your music."

Miss Higley, who had consistently taken her music to Mrs. de Winton's little evenings for the last two years, was, vocally, their pièce de resistence. Without her the parties would have been much as the play of Hamlet without the prince of Denmark. She found it then a little difficult to simulate surprise at the news.

But the competence of custom helped her to success.

"Really!" she murmured in well-acted numility. "Really! How good of Mrs. de Winton."

"I shall sing the old songs!" she whispered with a tremor of her half-shut lids "There is nothing quite like the old songs, after all!"

The fine insincerity of her almost whimpering tones carried conviction to Miss Markham's mind.

She pushed back her chair and rose from the breakfast table amid a jangle of keys. Half appeased by her companion's humility, she was happy in the thought that for the next half hour three domestic servants were going to be flogged into insubordination by the lash of her nagging tongue. It was the day for turning out the spare room, and in the pleasant anticipation of her favorite amusement she forgot to scratch the overmeek young woman whom she had left behind.

And then in undisturbed possession of the breakfast room, Miss Higley resumed her uninterrupted day dream.

Mrs. de Winton's Saturdays were famous in Barnden, and her house, Newlandhurst, was undeniably the mecca of its particular brand of culture.

Miss Higley, when first she had been brought to Newlandhurst by Miss Markham, had sung—and sung with understanding and expression—such songs as she had learned to sing when—in more fortunate times, her voice had been carefully trained by a competent master. But the songs had shocked her hostess, her manner of singing was not approved of, and after one unfortunate evening she had taken to rendering the unexceptional ballads of the more fashionable composers with no more expression than was absolutely necessary.

But the murmur of expectant approval died away into snocked silence.

For Miss Higley wore an empire gown, a gown of purple softness, with a purple petticoat, which peeped out as she walked—such a gown as an art student might have worn in the wild irresponsibility of youth. Her hair was parted in the middle and knotted becomingly at the back of her head.

And Miss Markham, who had only seen her cloaked before they started, blushed from head to foot with scarlet shame

It was no longer the modest, demure, long suffering Miss Higley who walked across the room towards the music stool, but a confident and extremely prepossessing young woman with a becoming consciousness of her charms.

Then she began to sing, and, fortunately, only one person knew what the song was. For she sang a song of the boulevards, rich in argot and double entendre; a song which had been the rage at the time of her never to be completed musical training.

The singer swung around on her music stool and smiled wickedly at her audience. Then the stool slewed back again and she drew a sheet of note paper from somewhere inside the collar of her gown. Her fingers careered across the keys with gay leaps, and she preluded her next song with a few bars from a one popular musical play.

To a tune which they all knew she had written a set of words that satirized the suburb, gave a sly dig to its smugness, and held a scratch for every one who, in the last two years, had made her life miserable with oppressive patronage or dignified disapprobation.

And the suburb listened—silent and open-mouthed.

"Stop her!" burst out an indignant matron at last.

But no one took any notice of the protestation. Those who had been pilloried wished to see their friends in similar places; those who had so far escaped felt certain that the excellence of their own qualities would insure their omission from the catalogue of crime.

And all felt that it was something to have been present, even passively resistent, at a social enormity, on so stupendous a scale. At the back of everybody's mind, too, there was always a hope that she would say something really awful.

After a while Miss Higley stood up. Still playing, she pushed the music stool backwards with her heel. The piano faced the open windows of the room, and she looked through them into the garden beyond.

Evidently she saw what she wanted to see.

"Chorus!" she cried in clear, bold tones.

Then dragging the music stool forward with her toe, she sat down again and played with redoubled energy.

And out of the garden from beneath the open window, there came a pleasant baritone to mingle with Miss Higley's mezzo.

"Smug Suburb-i-ah!
Smug Suburb-i-ah!
You are a sanctimonious crew
And most particular what you do—
But yet you're awful humbugs, too!
In Smug Suburb-i-ah!"

The last bars crashed and shook; the voices died away upon the final note, and Miss Higley rose up to her feet. She bowed to her hostess and walked towards the door.

As she opened it she turned round.

"Thank you for listening to me!" she said. "But I must go now; my husband is so impatient!"

And she went out into the hall.

WOMAN SHAVES FOR A BARBER'S LICENSE.

Hartford Courant: Something like $6 worth of hair cuttings and shaves were given free to a number of the male employes, clerks and even, it was said, state officials at the capitol yesterday from 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., when fifteen candidates appeared before the state board of examiners of barbers and took a practical examination in the tonsorial art. But the real hero was the man who was shaved by the only woman who has ever appeared before the commission.

Mrs. Anna Schwartz of New Britain was the barberess, and the way in which she shaved the cheeks and chin and trimmed the locks of her subject proved her an expert. The man said he was never better shaved nor had his hair been more accurately trimmed.

A VERDICT

After a Fair and Impartial Trial

The jury of awards, which consisted of the most competent judges of the country at the Yukon-Alaska World's Fair Exposition of last year have awarded to the W. W. Kimball Co. the highest honors which possibly could be bestowed upon an institution.

It found that the Kimball Co. stands paramount in their respective manufacturing industry of the highest standard of upright and grand pianos and pipe organs.

These celebrated instruments are on exhibition and for sale at the Korby Piano Co. (the distributing store for the W. W. Kimball Co.).

There are possibly two other makes of pianos that are nearly in the same class with the Kimball Piano for which you would pay at least $200 more for because of the retailers 'porfit.

The Kimball Co., because of their almost unlimited resources can sell direct from the factory to the consumer, thereby saving for the purchaser at least from $150 to $200 on a strictly high-grade piano. Then why not buy a Kimball when you can get the Kimball for the same price the ordinary retailer would ask you for only a medium grade piano?

We have several pianos of various other makes which we are offering for sale for less than one-half the price that sensational advertisers of retail stores ask for them. Give us a call and be convinced.

CURE OF ECZEMA AND DANDRUFF

By One Box of Cuticura Ointment and One Cake of Cuticura Soap. Head Perfectly Clear.

"I am pleased to inform you that I have been cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Since I was a boy I have suffered with dandruff, not only from the itching but from its disagreeable appearance in a scaly form all over my head. I had to brush it off my clothes all day long. I used every kind of preparation supposed to cure dandruff, also soaps and shampoos, but it seemed to me that, instead of improving with these remedies, the dandruff increased, even my hair began to fall out and the result was that two months ago eczema developed on my scalp.

"I suffered so from this that as a last resource I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. They had the most gratifying results for I had used only one box of Cuticura Ointment and a single cake of Cuticura Soap when I was cured, the eczema and dandruff were gone and my head perfectly clear.

"I can assure you that so long as I live no other soap than Cuticura will be used by me and all those near to me. I will also add that I will always use Cuticura Ointment as a dressing for the hair. I feel that you should know of my cure and if you desire you may use this as a true testimonial which comes from a sufferer of thirty years' standing. I will be happy to tell any one of my experience in order to assist those who may be suffering from the same disease. J. Acevedo, General Commission Merchant, 59 Pearl St., New York, Apr. 21, 1910."

Cuticura Remedies afford the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. A cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and a box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WOODMEN AT STATE FAIR

Tuesday Brings Many Members of Order to Fargo's Annual Show.

Governor Burke, Congressman Hanna and Other Public Men Speak.

Fargo, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Woodmen of North Dakota are very much in evidence in Fargo today as this is Woodmen day at the North Dakota state fair. The attendance is large and all exhibits are in position.

The program for the Woodmen included some congressional features as Congressman Hanna of Fargo gave the opening address to which T. D. Casey of Grafton responded. The latter is one of the Democratic nominees. H. T. Helgesen of Milton, one of the Republican nominees, was also a speaker. Governor Burke, Supreme Lecturer Whelan and Former Mayor Sweet of Fargo were other speakers. The oratory occurred before the grand stand at the fair grounds and was preceded by a parade from down town.

This evening there is to be a Woodman's banquet in the Agricultural college armory. Among those who will respond to toasts will be Governor Burke and Lecturer Whelan.

Dan Patch on Exhibition.

The race program was made exceptionally interesting this afternoon because, in addition to the regular card, Dan Patch was introduced and went an exhibition mile in the rig in which he was driven when he broke a world's record. This was followed by a one-heat race between Minor Heir, Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. of the Savage stables.

The amusement program is very full and the exhibits in all departments are attracting a great deal of attention.

VICTIMS' GRAVES ARE NOT LOCATED

Monument to Wood Lake Heroes Not to Be Above Their Bones.

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thorough search for four graves of soldiers killed at the battle of Wood Lake in Yellow Medicine county, Sept. 23, 1862, has failed to locate the spot and the state's monument on the battle field will be erected with no definite location of the graves. The contract for the monument, which is to be a tall granite shaft, has been let and the monument will be unveiled Sept. 23, on the forty-seventh anniversary of the battle.

The battle of Wood Lake was the decisive battle in Gen. Sibley's second campaign against the Sioux Indians. It resulted in the capture of the Indians, thirty-eight of whom afterward hanged at Mankato, and in the rescue of hundreds of white women and children who had been made prisoners by the Sioux.

Three Regiments Took Part.

The six, seventh and ninth Minnesota regiments participated in the battle. After the engagement the bodies of four of the soldiers killed were buried on the battle field. The Wood lake commission, appointed by the legislature to erect a monument, has been unable to locate the graves although the commission has done much excavating on the battle field. The commissioners are E. T. Champlain of Mankato, Mathias Hall of St. Paul and L. W. Collins of Minneapolis, all survivors of the battle. Mr. Champlain left for the battle field yesterday to seelct a definite location for the monument on the acre of land which has been purchased by the state.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN WRECK.

Train Robbers Foiled in North Dakota Hold-Up Scheme.

Bismarck, N. D., July 26.—Two attempts were made to wreck Northern Pacific coast trains in broad day light Sunday. Train No. 15, arriving here at 3:15 p. m., reported several angle irons tied to the track near Apple creek, a small station five miles east. They were seen in time for the train to be stopped.

Train No. 8 due two hours later from the West, was warned of No. 15's experience and was on the lookout, and also discovered angle bars and fish plates plied up on the track. These were removed and the police notified, but when they reached the place there was no clue.

The place where the obstructions were found is ideal for a holdup.

GEORGE BEDDOW SENTENCED

Former Assistant Cashier of Ironwood Bank Gets Five Years.

Marquette, Mich., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless George H. Beddow secures a new trial and on the second trial is acquitted of the charge of falsifying and misapplying funds of the suspended First National Bank of Ironwood, of which, he was assistant cashier, he will spend five years in the federal prison at Leavenworth Kan., as Judge Denison in the federal court here has imposed that sentence.

Pending an appeal to the appellate court Beddow has been released on $10,000 bail.

GOOD WOOL PRICES

Realized By Bowman, N. D., Wool Growers' Association.

Bowman, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wool shipping season for 1910 is practically at a close and the members of the Tri-County Wool Growers' association, having its headquarters here, are extremely well pleased with the results. Through the work of their association the wool growers in this section of the state secured 20 cents a pound for their wool while the average high price attained elsewhere was 18 cents.

This association advertised for bids for the entire clip of the members, aggregating in all about 500,000 pounds. A Boston firm of woolen good manufacturers were the high bidders and their contract calls for the delivery of the clip by Aug. 1.

At Dickinson this year the clip totaled only 300,000 pounds, whereas only a few years ago it averaged from 1,500,000 to 1,800,000 pounds.

WIN BY ONE VOTE.

Remarkably Close Result of Mountrail, N. D., Primary.

Stanley, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Results just announced by the Mountrail county canvassing board reveals two decidedly close contests for county offices in the recent primary election, only one vote differing between candidates on two places.

For county treasurer, W. C. Holland was the victor against Fred Wheelock, the vote being 796 to 795, while for county superintendent of schools Miss Jennie Kane defeated Miss Kathryn Duffy by a vote of 1,026 to 1,025.

MAY INVESTIGATE DEATH.

Although It Was Claimed Huus Drowned, Case Looks Suspicious.

Steele, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rumors that the death of Peter Huus, the laborer, whose body was taken from Williams lake several weeks ago, was not accidental, may result in an official investigation although at the present time there appears to be little to work on. Huus was in bathing, took cramps and was drowned, according to the first reports which came out, but later rumors have been circulated that when the body was taken from the water there was a clot of blood in the head and that the hair was matted with blood. Huus had been bathing in the lake with several other men and they claimed that he drowned while they were some distance from him, and none of them were aware of his fate till they began dressing and he was then found to be missing. Three days later the body arose.

ASKS HEAVY DAMAGES FROM SOO RAILROAD.

McHenry, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an action in which the Soo railroad has been made defendant, August Hast, a farmer residing near here, asks $10,000 damages and in addition thereto he asks the value of a team, a wagon and for lost time because of an accident which occurred last November. Hast was run down on the railroad crossing near this city.

PEMBINA COUNTY FAIR.

Hamilton, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a program that will be the most complete that has ever been offered, the Pembina county fair will be held here next week, the dates being Aug. 2, 3, and 4. There are bright indications that the attendance will be very large and Hamilton people are making preparations accordingly. Good premiums have been offered in practically all departments and the result will be that the displays will be very good throughout.

SOO BRAKEMAN HURT.

Emberlin, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Accidentally falling between two box cars, Amos Williams, a Soo brakeman, was terribly mangled and the chances for his recovery are extremely doubtful. He sustained a dislocation of the right arm, the hand was crushed and the left foot so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Intrenal injuries in the vicinity of the kidneys are the most serious.

STATE OFFICERS VIEW BEAUTIES OF RAINY LAKE COUNTRY

PARTY LEAVING STEAMER AT INTERNATIONAL FALLS.

International Falls, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the enjoyable events of the visit here Sunday of Governor Eberhart, State Auditor Iverson, Secretary of State Schmahl, Immigration Commissioner Welsh, State Engineer Ralph and several railroad officials, was the trip amid the beauty spots that fringe the shores of Rainy lake in this vicinity.

This photograph was taken as the party disembarked from the steamer at the local dock, all lining up while the camera man got busy. Governor Eberhart is in the front row, slightly to the left, wearing a light suit and straw hat.

All expressed themselves as immensely pleased with the steamer ride and were loud in their praises of the beauties of this section. At 6:45 p. m. the party left by the Canadian Northern for Spooner and the Lake of the Woods country to look over state lands, state ditches and other things in that section.

THE WASTE OF WIDE ROADS.

Governor Carroll of Iowa proposes to add 8,500,000 bushels of corn to the annual crop of his state simply by lopping off ten feet on each side of the average country road.

The same economic gain could be made in Minnesota and in most other states, without sacrificing the roads in the slightest degree.

The custom of having wide roadways originated in days when land was plenty and cheap. There was no use in stinting the allowance for roadways when the government was giving away fertile prairie acres in Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota. Land then had only a nominal cash value because anybody could get all he wanted free. So it was that the wide roadway began.

Having begun, it kept on for no better reason than that it had been so before. It wasn't until a very recent time that anybody began to figure out what it means to have superfluous width in the roadways.

Governor Carroll believes that a road forty feet wide is just as good as a road sixty feet wide; that it would serve every purpose, and could be more easily and cheaply kept in repair. Besides, releasing the superfluous twenty feet in each road would add immensely to the state's products. He figures it, in the case of Iowa, at $4,750,000 a year, or $3 for every man, woman and child in the state.

The governor outlined his plan recently before a convention of the Iowa Implement Dealers' association. The average country road, he pointed out, is sixty feet wide, whereas forty feet is enough. The result is that the middle and sides of the road grow up in weeds and make unsightly highways, besides becoming a breeding ground for weeds which scatter seeds through adjacent fields.

There are 100,000 miles of country roads in Iowa. This equals 800,000 acres of land. Governor Carroll's plan would result in cutting off 266,667 acres and restoring them to the wheat and corn fields. Assuming $100 to be a fair average price for Iowa land—hundreds of farms are sold at $150 to $200 an acre—the land thus restored to farming would be worth $26,666,670.

The situation in Minnesota is the same. For years the Minnesota law required county and township roads to be four rods wide, or sixty-six feet, and by agreement of property-owners they might be six rods wide, or ninety-nine feet. In 1905 the law was amended so that new roads may be three rods wide, or 59.5 feet, if so petitioned for.

The average road in Minnesota, therefore, is at least sixty-six feet wide. While some of these roads are well-developed thoroughfares, it is doubtful if there are any where the full sixty-six feet is improved. There is no need anywhere of having country roads as wide as a full city street. In the majority of cases three is a single roadway in the center of this wide space, and the rest is grown up to weeds.

Reducing Minnesota roads to forty feet would add a tremendous acreage to the producing fields of this state, and would immensely increase the annual yield of the soil.

"KISS NOT."

Crowding for a front place in the ranks of reform is a new organization which is to be admired more for its courage than for its discretion.

It is the World's Health organization, and its primary object is to wage war upon the practice of kissing.

It doesn't oppose kissing because it is immoral or because it is dangerous. It attempts to make no case on the theory that the kissing habit has landed many an innocent youth behind the bars of matrimony. It does not try to check the world's impulse toward osculation by a warning that kisses have broken up families, divided husbands and wives and brought many promising young people upon the rocks of disaster.

No, it uses no such arguments. Its whole campaign is based on the assertion that there are microbes in the kiss, and that disease and death lurk in the luscious lips that were made for kissing.

The World's Health organization—we know nothing of its membership and nothing about it but its declared purpose and the fact that its postoffice address is Cincinnati, Ohio—has tackled a tall problem. We admire its courage. There are so many things it would be more fun to attack, and not half so much work, that it is impossible to withhold from the beginners of this campaign the tribute of praise for ambition and enterprise. Joshua told the sun to stand still, according to biblical story, and it stood still. Joshua, however, would hardly have had the nerve to command the world to stop kissing.

The kiss has had a large part in history. It has nerved brave men to mighty deeds. The memory of a mother's tender kiss has kept men pure. The kiss of a trusting child or of a loving woman has dragged men out of the depths and set their feet in high places. The hope of a kiss or the promise of one has set kings at war and plunged thousands to death. From the Judas kiss of the false friend to the warm, pulsing kiss of a sweetheart, kisses have swept the scale of human passions; they have made history, and they have unmade history already made. They have built careers, and they have ruined careers. They have saved men and women, and they have destroyed. They have wrought romance, and they have worked tragedy. They have pulsed with the purity of angels, and they have scorched with the breath of devils.

And here comes an organization, with its address at Cincinnati, Ohio, that proposes to stop kissing for all time to come!

Well, it has its work cut out. Even if all the world admitted that all it says about microbes is true, still it would have its work cut out. The man who wouldn't brave danger in such a cause is not likely to be put in peril of microbes from a kiss. The person who would propose the abolition of a kiss merely from sanitary reasons must be so bloodless and so forbidding of countenance that a kiss has no meaning to him—or her.

Everybody nowadays has a wholesome horror of microbes. Nobody wishes to drink out of a public drinking cup with its myriads of germs. Nobody wants flies to bring microbes into the house on their feet.

But microbes, flavored with youthful passion and served in a scarlet dish of ripe lips—who can deny himself so delectable a dish, and what peril is too great to hazard for it?

TIPPING THE SLEEPING CAR TRUST.

When you go a-traveling you must tip the sleeping car porter. Whether you wish to do so or not, you must do it if you would travel in comfort.

But don't get it into your head that you are doing a generous thing by the porter when you hand him your quarter or half dollar. You are not tipping the porter. You are tipping the Pullman sleeping car trust.

There was a lawsuit in New York the other day in which a Pullman porter was forced to testify as to the wages paid him. He said that the company employing him paid him $25 a month, and that the tips he collected amounted on the average to $75 a month, making $100 altogether. This was a fair rate of compensation, but the public paid 75 per cent of it directly, besides paying the exorbitant prices for berths that enable the Pullman company to deal so lavishly with its stockholders.

According to this showing, the annual wages of the sleeping car porter are about $1,200. Of this amount the company pays $300, and the traveling public pays $900.

If the Pullman company has 10,000 porters, the traveling public is contributing annually $9,000,000 to the Pullman trust, which is enough to pay a 6 per cent dividend on a capital of $150,000,000. That is a pretty large tip for the public to be called upon to pay a rich corporation, but the public pays it, and if it is discontented about it it keeps its discontent to itself.

The Pullman company started with a capital of $1,250,000. In 1890 the capital had increased to $54,000,000, and it was increased to $74,000,000 in that year to buy the Wagner Palace Car company, its only competitor.

Dividends always have been regular and highly satisfactory to stockholders. In spite of the many increases in the capital stock, the earnings not only kept up the dividends, but in November, 1906, they had created such a surplus that a stock dividend of 36 per cent was declared, and $26,000,000 was added to the capital, making it $100,000,000.

It is said that very little money ever has been put into the company by its stockholders. Dividends and capital increases have come out of the contributions of the public. The public generously piled up a large surplus, and when that surplus became capital, the generous public obligingly paid large dividends on the watered stock.

Part of these handsome profits came out of the high-priced berths, but a large part has come out of this contemptibly small habit of forcing the porters to get their wages largely from the traveling public.

When you tip the porter, remember that you are tipping the sleeping car trust.

NORDENSKIOLD MADE THE NORTHEAST PASSAGE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Please answer in your paper when Nordenskiold passed through the Northwest passage, or if he did not do it.
Yours truly, READER.
Duluth, July 25.

Baron Nordenskiold did not go through the Northwest passage. His great exploit as an Arctic explorer was in 1878-9, when he circumnavigated the Eurasian continent, leaving Karlskrona on June 22, 1878, and wintering in the ice near Bering strait, after a successful northeast passage, thus accomplishing a project planned three centuries before. He reached Yokohama on Sept. 2, 1879, and returned to Europe by the Suez canal.—Ed. Herald.

THE FERRY BRIDGE AND COMMON SENSE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Can you, or some amateur or professional Sherlock Holmes discover if there is any good reason why the aerial bridge should not be run on a little more rapid schedule on such occasions as that of last evening when the annual Venetian fete was held at the boat club? Hundreds of citizens were inconvenienced by the ordinary schedule that was maintained during the busy hours when the guests were trying to cross the canal. The street car company provided an increased and adequate service for the accommodation of those who desired, and carloads of people were dumped at the bridge to await the usual long twenty-minute schedule. Is there any reason for it? During such an event wouldn't common sense dictate more frequent trips? When the time for the regular trip had arrived, automobiles and hundreds of passengers piled on in a manner to make the more timid remain on the city side of the canal rather than attempt the crossing.

Couldn't a special meeting of the city council or the water and light department or the city health force or the board of park commissioners be held and make arrangements for such times? Tomorrow evening again there will be hundreds of boat club members making the trip. Can't some one warn or notify or plead with the bridge powers to use ordinary common sense in the number of trips to be made?

In the Morning of Life.

In the morning of life, when its cares are unknown,
And its pleasures in all their new luster begin,
When we live in a bright-beaming world of our own,
And the light that surrounds us is all from within;
Oh, 'tis not, believe me, in that happy time
We can love, as in hours of less transport we may—
Of our smiles, of our hopes, 'tis the gay, sunny prime,
But affection is truest when these fade away.

When we see the first glory of youth pass us by,
Like a leaf on the stream that will never return;
When our cup, which had sparkled with pleasure so high,
First tastes of the other, the dark flowing urn,
Then, then is the time when affection holds sway
With a depth of tenderness joy never new,
Love, nursed among pleasures, is faithless as they,
But the love born of Sorrow, like Sorrow, is true.

In climes full of sunshine, tho' splendid the flowers,
Their sighs have no freshness, their odor no worth;
'Tis the cloud and the mist of our own isle of showers
That call the rich spirit of fragrance forth,
So it is not mid splendor, prosperity, mirth,
That the depth of Love's generous spirit appears;
To the sunshine of smiles it may first owe its birth,
But the soul of its sweetness is drawn out by tears.
—Tom Moore.

The Ballinger Way.

Chicago News: In its latest issue Collier's Weekly publishes a letter written, by a subordinate of Secretary Ballinger of the interior department which probably shows the spirit of the Ballinger administration of that great branch of the national government. The writer of the letter is W. H. Batting, a nephew of Senator Hepburn of Idaho and the interior department official in charge of the land office at Coeur d'Alene. The epistle is addressed to the editor of a newspaper which had formerly been awarded advertising patronage at the disposition of the land office.

The letter was sent in explanation of the withdrawal of advertising patronage from the newspaper in question. "Naturally," write Mr. Batting, "under a Republican administration such notices go to the Republican newspapers." That is a frank presentation of the spoilsman's view of politics that might have passed muster in the day of Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren, but it was scarcely to have been expected from an official of the Taft administration. But Batting goes further, making the test of Republicanism support of the stand-pat group as represented by Ballinger and Cannon. Two of the specific counts against the offending editor are as follows:

1. At the time of the hearing of the case against eth Washington Water Power company the Spokesman-Review published an editorial in which the good faith of Secretary Ballinger, Senator H—— and myself was questioned in connection with that case. This same editorial was copied (verbatim, I believe) by your paper.

2. At the time of the contest in the house of representatives against Speaker Cannon you published an editorial attacking Speaker Cannon and also our representative, Hamer.

The letter closes with the following remarkable words:

The above constitutes the basis of my action in not having recognized your paper as a proper medium for the publication of notices. If, however, in the future conduct of your paper these political acrobatics are eliminated, I will be glad to reconsider the matter and extend to you the full consideration to which you may be entitled.

This letter was written as late as April 18 last, when the Ballinger investigation had been under way for months. Collier's makes the comment that subordinates of his may be discharged by Secretary Ballinger for too much zeal in the public service, but that nothing is likely to happen to Batting for writing this disgraceful letter.

Whatever may be the measure of Ballinger in such matters, the Taft administration ought to be too sensible and too honest to tolerate such a petty and yet such a dangerous application of the spoils idea. Batting's effort to control the editorial expressions of small weekly newspapers through advertising notices at the disposal of the land office division of the department of the interior is simply vicious.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mayor Mike's Fear.

Zumbrota News: Our own mayor has gone on record as being opposed to the exhibiting the fight pictures here in Zumbrota. Possibly Mike is afraid that old Steve Bell would come over from Pine Island and start a race riot.

Is a Refreshing Sign.

Roseau Region: Politically, no sign is more refreshing today in Minnesota than the public awakening in the larger cities to the necessity of getting strong, independent and honest men to represent them in the coming legislature. Some of the leading daily papers in these cities are taking hold of the matter in a way that reflects credit on them and will go far toward correcting conditions that have been in the past so apparent. And the country will cheerfully support this movement, knowing that if the cities succeed in ridding themselves of representatives noted for their incompetency, men ignorant of the resources and needs of the state and always found on the shady side of public questions and in their place send men of recognized ability, the state at large will profit just as much as the cities. With few exceptions, the cities have allowed themselves to be represented by men whose statesmanship is limited to the narrow circle of their vulgar selfishness, deficient in that mental and moral power so essential in a representative who is to be of any real service to his constituency. The most important questions that will be considered by the next legislature concern the entire state and unless the cities succeed in sending men who are capable of passing intelligently upon measures of this kind, it will be no easy matter to secure justice in matters such as reapportionment and development of the state's resources.

Protection of the Northern Minnesota Indian.

Mesaba Ore: Just what will be the end of the government outrage of the people of Northern Minnesota is one of those things that no one can find out. The government, this great beneficent, kindly government of the people for the people and by the people, has served notice that it will separate the few Northern Minnesota Indians from their schnapps if it has to shut up every saloon and confiscate every drop of booze in the limits named in an Indian treaty that was made before the railroads entered the territory of Minnesota. In our humble opinion the government might find more useful employment for its officious airelings. The game has become so exceedingly raw that no man traveling through Minnesota has any personal rights that are respected by the petty officers who are carrying out the instructions received from Washington headquarters. Saloons are closed and the property destroyed; private homes are entered and your medicine confiscated, even your "grip" is opened and if you have a bottle it is taken from you and if you protest against such a flagrant outrage you are slapped into jail. It is pretty nearly time to put a stop to such dam-foolishness, don't you think? There will be an uprising of indignant citizens pretty soon that will make an Indian outbreak look like a moving-picture show.

Back From Canada.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Thousands of Americans after a season or two of voluntary exile are coming back across the border from Canada. They do not come dispirited and impoverished. They have heard the call of home. Some of them do not come far, but they make sure they are on this side of the line before they fix upon an abode. They had been drawn to Canada by the lure of vast expanses, and in some way had absorbed a belief that crops were better and markets surer, and conditions generally more favorable. That Canada in many respects is a good place for the industrious settler is not disputed, but that it is superior to the adjoining section of the United States does not appear. So having given it a trial, these sometime Canadians flock from their alien holdings to find welcome and opportunity among their own people.

The working American who becomes an expatriate is an exception. This is as true of the American by adoption as of the native. The foreigner coming to these shores from a land in which authority and oppression are synonymous terms, and poverty, the common lot, is made perpetual by governmental exactions, finds himself here on a new plane. He is a citizen, a factor in the republic, an element in its expressed opinion. He soon absorbs the spirit of the country and learns to have a pride in his status. His children born here, so far as their devotion to patriotic principles is concerned, might have descended from the Mayflower. As to the native, his patriotism is an instinct. While he may be ready to quibble about details, and find fault with policies, at any time the test is applied he knows there is nothing else appealing to him so strongly as his own country, described long ago by the Chinese as "the land of the beautiful flag."

To the man born or trained in a republic mightiest of its type the world has ever seen, life as a colonial would present no attractions. It would seem to him the surrender of individuality. Canada is stupendous in area, great in wealth and possibilities. It is a kindly, orderly neighbor. But imagine the heart-tugs of an American who, looking aloft, beheld a flag not the stars and stripes. The experience would be enough to arouse the impulse to desert even a fairer region than the Canadian stretches afford.

There is no reason why the American who could prosper in Canada should not prosper in the United States to an equal degree. The acreage of Canada has nothing to offer that is not offered in as full measure by the sovereign states of Montana, Idaho and Washington. The American does not want permanent station on foreign soil. "Home" to him must always be the United States, and soon or late, glad and grateful for the call, he will come home.

Buttermilk.

Wilbur D. Nesbit in Chicago Post: Nothing so demonstrates the rapid strides of modern science as buttermilk.

Buttermilk used to be made in a churn, which was worked on the back porch of a farmhouse by a fat hired girl who was expecting to be married as soon as she could save $200 from her wages of $6 per month.

In those benighted days buttermilk was a thick, white fluid, velvety to the taste, and plentifully intermingled with little chunks of butter.

It was obtained by dipping a long-handled dipper into the churn in the cool shade of the milkhouse, and when drank under those circumstances the world was perfect, there was not a cloud in the sky and the little birds sang gleefully all the day.

Buttermilk nowadays is made by catching a quart of skim milk in a bottle, which is brought by a man wearing a union button, and who never saw a cow except on a condensed milk billboard.

A pill is then administered to the skim milk.

The pill is purchased at the drug store. Water is added to the milk. We almost said added "once more."

After forty-eight hours the result is called buttermilk and is drunk by folks who smack their lips over it and tell what Dr. Metchnikoff said about longevity.

Modern buttermilk is as blue as a rejected lover and as thin as Dr. Cook's explanations.

If the fat hired girl had set a churnful of such stuff in the milkhouse the hired man who was waiting for her to save up the money would have resigned his position as conductor of the sulky plow and would have gone as a missionary to the South seas.

Tom Watson Back Again.

Washington Star: Tom Watson for congress again, and as a Democrat? Can the report be true?

It was in the fifty-second house that a young man appeared from Georgia and attracted attention both by his appearance and by the views he enunciated. He looked like an ascetic. Thin of face and figure, earnest and soulful of expression, he went into action like a house afire. All subjects attracted him. It was soon the case that no debate was complete without him. He would have his say, and somehow he could always secure attention. He established no following. He impressed himself on no legislation. He served but one term. But he "landed." Mr. Watson was a member of the house and he made it impossible for anybody to forget it.

He was listed as a Democrat, but his opinions caused old Democrats to wonder. They did not bear the party hallmark. As it afterward turned out, Populism, which was soon to conquer him, was already circulating in his system. The wonder grew. Presently the Republicans shared it. They wanted to know if this auburn-haired Georgian, with a vocabulary full of racy colloquialisms, and a delivery a little more suggestive of the rural pulpit than of the stump, was pointing the way to a new brand of Democracy. Thomas B. Reed, then the Republican leader on the floor, exercised his wit very happily on the subject.

Mr Watson did not return. He went over to Populism, but Georgia, after a struggle, remained Democratic. He abandoned the law. The Populists abhorred lawyers, as persons who served the "interests." He returned to the land. The Populists liked farmers, as persons without guile. But agriculture was not fitting for a man of Mr. Watson's gifts and temperament, and he became an author and journalist. He wrote books, and ran for office as a Populist on the side, keeping himself in the public eye both as author and office-seeker, and accepting the regular defeat in the political field with the philosophical calm of one who having expected nothing knew how to receive the result.

At last we have Mr. Watson in his old colors again. Populism is dead. Bookmaking has lost its charm. Politics and Democracy survive. Is he in his old form? Is he as full of fire and language and strange opinions as of yore? If so, the Georgia Democrats should send him on. Let us have him here in Washington once more, as a maker of phrases, a stirrer of strife, and a contributor on general principles to the gayety of national lawmaking.

The Fight for the Square Deal.

Kansas City Times: Let no one who holds himself as a patriot get weary of the term, "the square deal." That term has been a mighty force since Theodore Roosevelt made it a moral and political watchword. Homely, forceful and comoprehensive, it is a consistent and inspiring motto for any people, but especially for the people of a democracy. It especially epitomizes the aspirations of this country in the great conflict now on between the people and the predatory interests.

In his stirring speech at Winfield, Kan., last Saturday, Senator Joseph L. Bristow confined himself almost wholly to two illustrations of private designs on the people—two of the very many illustrations furnished in the last two sessions of congress. One of these attempts was successful, the other failed. One fight was won by Aldrich and the Guggenheims and the Ryans, and the other was won by the people, through a combination of progressive Republicans and Democrats.

One should read the ugly truth about Aldrich's deliberate promotion of the rubber trust by means of an increase in the tariff on rubber manufactures. That increase has advanced the cost of all rubber manufactures, already outrageously excessive, to such an extent that the trust is paying big monthly dividends on an enormously inflated capital. Aldrich himself, his son, the Guggenheims and other of that ilk are the beneficiaries.

Yet why should not Aldrich do for himself and his son and his immediate friends what he permitted others of his friends to do for themselves, through him and the congress he controlled in the tariff session?

In the recent session the fight against the Wickersham railroad bill was a successful fight. In the light of the insurgent ripping the measure was made to withstand, the country now knows that the original bill had only enough good points to sugar-coat a dozen outrageous "jokers." But the insurgents were not deceived by the sugar. They exploded the bill, cut out its rotten features and forced enough good mendments to make the law, as finally enacted, a good piece of legislation, giving the people additional control over the railroads instead of giving the railroads almost unlimited power over the people, as first proposed.

Yet here are only two detached examples of the kind of legislation the people must protect themselves against if they are to check the encroachments on their rights, their property and their opportunities: two skirmishes in the great conflict that is gradually defining the friends of the people and the friends of the predatory interests as clearly as the anti-slavery and the pro-slavery advocates were defined in the 50s and the 60s.

What Is a Government?

Ellis O. Jones in Life: A government is an institution established by an entire nation for the purpose of determing what part of the nation shall make money out of the other part.

By tariff schedules and rates the government decides to what extent dealers in protected articles shall prosper.

By franchises and land grants it decides who shall reap the benefit of transporting people and goods.

By patents and copyrights it places itself on the side of the inventor and the writer.

By building battleships it shows a friendly interest in the owners of the steel mines and mills.

By depositing public money in banks it materially reduces the financial difficulties of financiers.

A good government is one which does all these things in such a way as to satisfy both the beneficiaries and the victims.

Sermon on the Hog.

Ottawa, Kan., Republic: My son, consider the hog. He toils not, neither does he spin, but he is worth close on to 10 cents a pound on the hoof, and he is getting so exclusive that only the very best circles are able to entertain him. He waxes fat at his leisure, knows no labor and travels to market in a special car. Just at first thought the hog seems to be considerable of a personage, but still he is only a hog and he really isn't worthy of emulation. There are a good many persons who adopt his ways, however, and fatten on what other people have gathered together. Their ambition runs more to gross weight than to quality, and like the hog they are despised. A hog isn't worth a thing until he is placed on the market. He serves no useful purpose while he lives, and it is only as he gathers fat that he adds value. He is the symbol of greed and bad manners, has a bad disposition and is a social outcast—but he is selling at nearly 10 cents a pound and that is why he is sometimes emulated.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

If John Lind Is Eliminated, John Jenswold, Jr., of Duluth Is the Slated Candidate of Minnesota Democracy, Says the Latest Rumor---"Pussyfoot" Johnson's Activities Made Subject of Clearwater County Resolution---Three Candidates for County Superintendent.

There seems, after all, to be a possibility that John Lind will not be the nominee of the Democratic party for governor. This statement is made advisedly, and as the result of the publication of a letter written by Mr. Lind to a personal friend who has not been named. This letter was read at a meeting of Democrats in the Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis and points the way to the nomination of John Jenswold, Jr., of Duluth for the highest office in the gift of the people of the state. Mr. Jenswold is so eminently fit and qualified to serve the people of Minnesota as chief executive, and his fitness and qualification are so widely and generally recognized that the probability of his nomination, with John Lind eliminated from consideration—if he really is—is almost a certainty.

If Not John Lind, Then John Jenswold, Jr.

The letter to which reference is made follows:

"It is some time since I had occasion to call upon you for a political favor and I am going to do so now, and I sincerely hope that you will regard it as the most earnest call I have ever made.

"When I left some of the Democrats were still talking of nominating me for governor, notwithstanding I could not possibly accept. To nominate me under those circumstances would be disastrous to the party and very embarrassing to me. We can win with a good man — I mentioned two in my letter to Mr. Day.

"Don't let us throw away our chances. I can not make a campaign in my own behalf and I will not, but will be glad to contribute my best efforts to the success of the party nominee.

"I am willing to do anything and sacrifice anything for the cause of the success of our party, but I cannot make a campaign. I have a nervous dread of the very thought of holding office again, and I simply cannot accept.

"Now I hope that you will spare no effort to save me the necessity of being compelled to decline the nomination were the convention to name me."

* * *

Even though this letter be authentic and representative of Mr. Lind's most personal feeling on the question involved, it does not change the situation so far as the sentiment throughout the state in favor of his nomination is concerned. The question that remains is as to whether the opinion of the delegates attending the convention will be changed in the slightest degree by the publication of the letter.

Situation Is Not Altered.

Indeed, it would seem that the letter cannot be counted upon to effect a reversal of sentiment, because the general belief has been throughout the discussion of the Democratic nomination that Mr. Lind can be made the party's standard-bearer only as a result of drafting. His disinclination to run has been known at all times. This letter but reiterates what has been said before, although in stronger, more definite terms.

It remains to be seen whether the Democrats of the state will consent to having Mr. Lind continue in retirement from political activity.

The Clearwater county Democratic convention adopted a platform plank that is a bit out of the ordinary, in that it takes a rap at "Pussyfoot" Johnson, the federal agent who has been closing the drinking places of the North country. The resolution follows:

"Pussyfoot" as Latest Issue.

"Be It Resolved By the Democrats of Clearwater County in convention assembled; That, we heartily favor the passage of a law by the legislature of this state, granting to the people of the several counties the power, at their option, of voting for the granting or withholding of liquor licenses therein; but we view with great alarm and distrust autocratic liquor regulations foisted upon some communities and withheld from others by a pretended enforcement of a certain treaty of the United States with the Chippewa Indians, which makes the caprice of the Indian bureau the law of the land, and by its operation permits the protection of individuals engaged in the liquor traffic in some favored localities and destroys others in those under ban without regard to their proximity to the actual Indian country, and we assert and believe that fifty years of innocous desuetude is sufficient to take the life out of any treaty ever made with Indians, and we believe its resuscitation after the statute of limitations has so long run against it may be justly condemned as a resurrection without life."

The following delegates were elected to represent Clearwater county at the state convention: E. A. Schneider, Winsor; Martin Nelson, Shevlin; William A. McLennon, Bagley; Axel Ringborg, Bagley.

There promises to be a lively three-cornered fight for the Republican nomination for county superintendent of schools, the third prospective contender being A. L. Sulcove, who was assistant superintendent for four years and retired from that office last February. He is now a practicing attorney in Duluth and is one of the most active Republicans in the city, taking a large part in the work of organizing the party workers.

Three Candidates May File.

The other candidates for the nomination are N. A. Young, who is assistant superintendent now, and C. H. Graham, one of the leading educators on the range. Mr. Young is establishing his legal residence at Eveleth, as no one can be a candidate for this office unless he lives outside the city limits of Duluth. None but residents of the county outside of Duluth can vote for the county superintendent of schools. It is not known where Mr. Sulcove will make his residence if he decides to file as a candidate. He has not definitely decided to make the run, but his friends confidently expect that he will do so.

In response to requests of delegates and others, the list of delegates to the Democratic state convention from St Louis county is republished. It is given here for the reason that some of the delegates named may not be notified of their selection through official channels and because the party leaders desire to have the county represented by all the delegates.

Following are the delegates:

At large—A. C. Weiss, Andrew Nelson, M. B. Cullum, Duluth; Charles Jesmore, Eveleth; Thomas York, Hibbing.

Duluth—C. O. Baldwin, Joseph P. Shartel, J. P. Buckley, Louis Levine, William Curtis, George M. Fay, P. McDonnell, W. E. McEwen, F. J. Voss, Bert Fesler, Frank Crassweller, M. H. McMahon, John Jenswold, Jr., T. T. Hudson, C. D'Autremont, E. A. Tessman, T. B. McManus, M. L. Fay, Frank Jordan, M. Lynch, Harris Bennett, E. A. Ribenack, C. J. Hector, Daniel Horgan, D. D. Murray, David Nelson, William Bernard, Charles Hoar, W. B. Getchell, P. H. Martin, James Hart, M. J. Elliatrault, John Hogan, T. J. McKeon, H. P. Curran, Patrick Hanimel, James Walsh, F. L. Ryan, N. Sidney A. Anderson of Fillmore county has been selected as the man to run against James A. Tawney for the Republican nomination for congress in the First district, it is said he is a young lawyer. It is reported that if the insurgent leaders decide that some other man should attempt the task, Thomas Fraser of Rochester will enter the race. However, Mr. Fraser has been mentioned for the place before but has so far declined to announce that he is a candidate, and it seems more likely that Mr. Anderson will be the insurgent candidate.

J. T. McCleary is expected to file as a candidate for congress from the Second district early in August. Both Franklyn F. Ellsworth, the insurgent candidate, and Col. Ward, the Fairmont veteran, took McCleary's interference in the fight in that district as an impertinence and as a result "the little schoolmaster" will go into the field as a rather lonesome contender. It is even contended that he is no longer legally a resident of the district and therefore cannot be a bona fide candidate.

It is reported that Ed Woolway has decided to withdraw as a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff. He filed several weeks ago but has made no campaign, neither has he planned any, it is said.

"Foley Kidney Pills Have Cured Me."

The above is a quotation from a letter written by H. M. Winkler, Evansville, Ind. "I contracted a severe case of kidney trouble. My back gave out and pained me. I seemed to have lost all strength and ambition; was bothered with dizzy spells, my head would swim and specks float before my eyes. I took Foley Kidney Pills regularly and am now perfectly well and feel like a new man. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." Sold by all druggists.

the administration of Governor Shallenberger, the convention will confine its efforts to drafting and indorsing the platform on which the party will make its canpaign in the state this year.

It was indicated early that the temporary organization of the convention would be made the permanent one, and that Constantine J. Smyth of Omaha as temporary chairman would deliver the keynote speech of the convention.

Confer With Populists.

The conferences of the Democratic leaders during the night were attended by several of the Populist delegates, whose convention also is being held here today, and efforts to adopt platform planks that will not conflict radically were made. It was deemed probable, however, by Populist leaders, that the county option features shunned by the larger convention would be one of the Populist planks.

WILL CLASH OVER OPTION

adopted and would be repudiated by the delegates on this ground.

Insurgency and Liquor.

The principal questions that will receive consideration at the hands of the delegates are "insurgency" and the control of the liquor business by the county option plan. Appearances are that the "insurgents" and "optionists" control the situation. To a great extent the two ideas are supported by the same people and a victory for one carries with it the success of the other.

The indorsement of "insurgency" not only by the election of Congressman Norris as permanent presiding officer of the convention but also by a strong declaration in the resolutions adopted is said to be planned by the anti-Cannon partisans.

In assuming the temporary chairmanship of the convention, United States Senator Norris Brown spoke only along general political lines, making no allusions to the questions uppermost in the minds of the delegates—the indorsement of the "insurgency" of some of Nebraska's congressmen and the county option plan of regulating the liquor traffic.

Ridicules the Democrats.

Mentioning the Democratic state convention being held today at Grand Island, Neb., Senator Brown declared that it is useless for Democrats to fight over a platform, as a Democratic platform is "neither useful nor ornamental," said he.

"The men who make it forget it, and the men who are elected on it are expected to repudiate it."

Senator Brown took up the record of the Republican party in national affairs, dclaring that "never in the history of the republic has the congress of the United States in a single session enacted so many important and progressive laws as did the Republican congress just adjourned."

Defends Payne Law.

Of the new tariff law he said:

"No one has ever pretended that that act was perfect. Its warmest friends have always admitted its imperfections. But notwithstanding its imperfections, with the information congress had at the time it was a better law than the law it superseded, and is entitled to the commendation and support of the American people as a step toward the relief of the public from the duties of the Dingley law, which the country had outgrown."

DEMOCRATS AT OTTUMWA

Claude R. Porter, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate. While Mr. Porter received many visitors he was credited with devoting considerable time in drawing up a platform to be submitted tomorrow.

The platform will point out alleged failures of the Republican state and federal administrations to enact legislation of real benefit to the people, charging that the Republicans failed to carry out platform pledges with regard to the tariff. Democratic success will be predicted, based particularly on the bitter strife between the so-called conservative or "stand-pat" element and the progressives headed by Senator Cummins.

Will Consider Recall.

Just what action will be taken on certain state issues will be considered at conferences tonight. Among these is the Cosson law, which in effect is a recall measure. Under it an office holder, upon complaint of seven citizens, must defend his acts in court. Mayor Phillips of this city, is at present on trial under this law.

The state mulct law, which licenses saloons upon petition of voters, also may come up for discussion.

COMPLAINTS OVER DELAY

tions. The business men and the railroads subscribed $50,000 towards the pavement and they feel that they should not be required to wait all summer to get something for their money.

The first delay was caused by the demand that the enlarged water mains be put in before the pavement was laid. The water commissioners said they had no money and didn't see how it could be done. The mayor pointed out a way and the contract was awarded to P. McDonnell, who also has the contract for the paving.

The business men state that he has plenty of room in which to work; that the avenue has ample vacant lots adjoining on which tools and materials can be placed, and that railroad facilities are excellent. They can see no good reason for dilly-dallying along. They think that every effort should be made to finish the work at the earliest possible date.

One of them stated today that he doesn't make a practice of "kicking," but that he can't help getting a bit hot under the collar in this case. "I believe that Mr. McDonnell has been very successful in wheedling extensions of time for his city contracts out of the aldermen without having the penalty attached. Should he ask for any such extension on the Garfield avenue job without the penalty, I know that for one, I shall enter a strong protest. And from what I hear I'll not be alone. At the rate he is going now he cannot put up the argument that he did all he could and that the delay was unavoidable. There generally is a time limit in the city contracts and I shall make it a point to find out what it is in this instance."

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of kidney and bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by all druggists.

LAST DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS

Duluth has seen its last "unsafe and insane" Fourth of July celebration.

The city's last pyrotechnic display, postponed from the Fourth because of the dry weather, took place last night. But the red fire was not nearly as plentiful as it has been in past years. Late in the evening there was a good display in the East end, and until midnight there was a scattering fire of rockets and Roman candles throughout the city. The ordinance prohibiting the sale or use of firecrackers or fireworks takes effect Aug. 5. After that time it will be illegal to sell them, to offer them for sale, or to set off any explosives of any kind.

INSURANCE MAN GETS TWO TO FIVE YEARS.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 26.—Willard H. Peck, secretary of the People's Mutual Life Insurance Association and League, convicted of perjury, has been sentenced to serve not less than two or more than five years in Auburn state prison. The justice granted a certificate of reasonable doubt and bail of $7,500 was provided.

MAY RESCIND ACTION ON RADISSON SCHOOL.

In reference to complaints made through the newspapers of the action of the board of education in deciding to close the Radisson school and transport the children from the district to the Whittier school, W. E. Magner, chairman of the board, says he has heard nothing direct from the people on Park Point.

He says that if the board is convinced that the action taken is not in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the people in the Radisson school district, it will probably be rescinded. However, he thinks that conditions are such in the Radisson school that the people of the district would prefer to have their children transported to the Whittier school where better accommodations may be provided.

SHOWING FAMOUS PAINTING FOR CHARITY.

The painting, "The Shadow of the Cross" is on display in a store room on Superior street at Fourth avenue west for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital. It will be there the remainder of the week. The picture was brought here from Winnipeg, where it was viewed by large crowds.

The owner of the picture, Dr. W. L. Wright of Washington, D. C., well known art expert, purchased the painting from the creator, Henry Hammond Ahl of Springfield, Mass., after the artist discovered the freak or phenomenon which causes the shadow of the cross to "stand out" while the countenance of Christ is eclipsed when the picture is placed in a darkened room.

The paint which the artist mixed, underwent clemical changes after being placed on the canvas which caused the picture to be famous in several countries. The canvas is exhibited for charitable institutions without cost to them.

LOOT JEWELER'S WINDOW IN FULL VIEW OF CROWD.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 26. — While West Main street was crowded last evening, burglars forced an entrance into the jewelry store of J. F. House, located in the center of the business district, and stole more than $1,000 worth of watches, diamonds and other jewelry. Every article in the show window was removed, notwithstanding the fact that crowds of people were passing while the robbery was taking place.

Commerce Commission Notifies Northwest State Railroad Officials.

Conference at St. Paul Comes to Abrupt Termination.

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The conference of railroad commissioners of Minnesota and North and South Dakota at the state capitol, ended abruptly today with the receipt of a telegram from Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, which said that the carriers will have a conference in Chicago tomorrow and that unless the proposed increase in grain tariffs in Middle Western states are voluntarily postponed to Nov. 1, they will be suspended by the commission.

FOREST FIRES ARE REPORTED

Colorado Conflagrations Are Beyond Control---Montana Situation Bad.

Denver, Colo., July 26.—Disastrous forest fires are raging in two sections of the state, and forest supervisors report both beyond control. Fire fighters have been sent from Denver and nearby towns.

The fire in the Routt preserve, in the northwestern part of the state, is the most serious.

It has burned a line around 50,000 acres of the finest pine timber in the state.

Bad in Montana.

Missoula, Mont., July 26.—Reports from forestry officials and milling companies in this district make the forest fire situation as bad as any time since the fires started. The high winds fanned up old fires and carried several new ones over much territory.

The fifth fire on Nine Mile creek, fifteen miles west of this city, has broken out. Sixty men fought all night and all day against a new blaze along the Milwaukee right-of-way.

Alberta Forests Burning.

Winnipeg, Man., July 26.—Charred cinders and ashes fell all day yesterday on Calgary, Alta., from fierce forest fires near Morley, fifty miles distant, where the Eau Claire Lumber company's valuable limits on Ghost river are burning fiercely. So intense is the heat and the clouds of smoke are so thick that the fire rangers and fighters battling on these limits are powerless to check destruction. A dispatch says the Lineham Lumber company's limits on Sheep creek, near High river, are on fire and the whole foothills country is ablaze.

Fire at West End.

Fire which started from an overturned kerosene stove damaged living rooms over 1722 West Superior street to the extent of about $200 at noon today. Three families occupied the flats in the upper story. The quick work of the firemen prevented a serious conflagration and the fire was confined to one room. The lower story of the building is occupied by the West End Auto works.

MANY POSTMASTERS AT CROOKSTON MEET.

Crookston, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of third and fourth class postmasters were on hand today when the convention began at 10 a. m. in the city hall. Mayor McKinnon welcomed the visitors while Congressman Halvor Steenerson also delivered an address. Committees were appointed and a recess taken until 1:30 p. m., when the presentation of papers by different postmasters was taken up. Before adjourning officers will be elected.

Tonight there will be an automobile ride, band concert and reception at the Commercial club.

COPPER MARKET IS DISORDERED

Declines in Sympathy With Bear Raid on Railroads.

The copper market was disordered today when the railroad market became severely demoralized on heavy liquidation not only by professionals but by the public. The chief cause of the severe declines in railroad issues was the continued hot weather in the Southwest which is doing great damage to the corn crop. Corn not only provides heavy traffic but it is the cause of large and diversified freight shipments such as lumber, farm machinery and other materials, luxuries and necessities which money produced by corn buys. Coming on top of the disaster to the spring wheat crop the damage to the corn crop is exceedingly serious and as reports of blighting weather poured into the East from the Southwest traders began to unload stocks of railroads traversing the great American corn belt.

There was little news in the copper world to influence values. There was some professional selling early in the day in North Butte which unsettled the copper market and made it more susceptible to the demoralizing influences of the railroad market.

Trading in coppers was light both in Boston and here. The character of the activity here was better than for some time. The undertone to the market was weak, but there was a quiet demand for high grade issues. Butte Ballaklava sold at $11.50; Greene at $6.87½; Live Oak at $16.50; North Butte at $21; Red Warrior at $2 to $1.93¾ to $2; Shattuck at $22 to $22.87½, $23.12½ and $22.50; Zenith Lead & Zinc at 32c; Calumet & Corbin at 35c; Keating at $1, 99c and 97c.

THREE LUCKY WINDFALLS.

A Whale, a Postage Stamp and a Quarter Found at Right Time.

The conversation in the little bohemian restaurant had turned on the question of how a man who is down and out may get on his feet once more.

"I ran up against the queerest windfall that ever came my way in Peru," remarked a lanky Australian, removing the pipe from between his teeth. "I had left Sydney three months before to make my way to New York. Worked before the mast on a tramp steamer that took me as far as Valparaiso, Chile, and earned enough on the trip to pay my passage to Iquique.

"Now, Iquique's right in the heart of the nitrate fields and is the most desolate port in South America. It's an awful place in which to go broke, and that's just what happened to me there.

"I got desperate at last and hid myself on board a coasting steamer bound for Callao. I won't begin to tell you what I suffered as a stowaway. It's enough to say that the captain discovered me when we were four days out from Iquique.

"We were opposite a barren and uninhabited streach of the Peruvian coast, and he was so barbarous as to stop the boat and put me ashore. He gave me two loaves of bread and a flask of water, and with that to sustain me I started out to walk to a town about twenty-five miles further on.

"The next morning I was trudging along, hungry and thirsty and half dead from exhaustion, when I caught sight of a mountainous black mass stranded on the beach about 300 yards away. On approaching nearer I found that it was a sperm whale. The thing had a vile odor, and with barely one look at it I hurried on.

"I reached town that same afternoon, and some kind soul staked me to a meal. In the course of conversation I mentioned the dead whale, and what do you suppose he did? He spread the news among his neighbors, an expedition was organized, and upon their finding my story to be correct they clubbed together and handed me $50 in real money.

"They said the whale oil would mean a small fortune to them, and as I had discovered it I ought to get my share. That $50 paid my way to Panama, where I easily earned enough to take me on to New York."

An artist with a tawny beard nodded his head gravely.

"Great story," he remarked, "but do you think it beats an experience of mine? I slept for three nights in Madison square with an unknown source of wealth in my pocketbook the whole while.

"The fourth day I made a final despairing search through my clothes for some stray coin that I might have overlooked. I opened the pocketbook, and an old West Indian stamp fell out.

"I recalled having picked it upon Broadway a few months before. There was a stamp dealer's place just across the way on Twenty-third street, and just for luck I went over and tossed the stamp on his counter.

"Worth anything?" I asked

"He picked it up, examined it under a magnifying glass, and raised his eyebrows.

"'Him,' he remarked. 'Jamaica, one penny, coat of arms, pineapple watermark. Yes, it's quite rare. I'll give you $25 for it.'

"He could have knocked me over with a feather. I could hardly mutter. 'All right, I'll sell it.' As soon as he gave me the money I chased straight down to this same restaurant and had the feed of my life. But just think of the hardships I might have escaped if I'd known what that square of red paper was worth from the beginning."

"I'm a believer in luck," said a short story writer. "It would have been impossible for you to rediscover that postage stamp until your fortunate star was in the ascendency. I believe so firmly in luck that I wasn't afraid to give it a fair trial when I was broke."

GINGER IN THE MORNING.

London Mirror: Always eat ginger in the morning. That is the newly discovered cure for the got out of bed on the wrong side feeling that afflicts so many Englishmen in the morning, writes. "I have been the victim of my own ungovernable temper and have never been able to get myself amiable before lunch time. Last week a friend presented me with a jar of preserved ginger and my good fairy suggested to me that it would be nice as a relish at breakfast in place of marmalade.

"Since I have been taking it my frame of mind in the morning has rapidly improved and now I am able to start the day as cheerily as a typical country farmer. Is it the ginger that has worked this cure?"

A well known doctor said that if people would only eat ginger at breakfast their health would improve in many respects and they would start the day much readier for work than they do now.

"Ginger," he said, "contains an essential oil which acts as a fine nerve tonic. It promotes digestion, is an excellent stomach tonic and is extremely good for the liver.

"The liver is the organ which makes people so morose in the morning. Until it has been well stirred up by the day's work it is in a lethargic condition, and frequently the brain is in the same state, for its blood supply is not right.

"Now if people who experience these symptoms would only take plenty of ginger at breakfast their livers would act properly and their digestion would improve to an extent they cannot realize until they try the cure. They would go to business in a normal state of temper.

"I am perfectly certain that if more ginger were eaten the world would be a very much better place to live in, for nine-tenths of the people who are now unbearable until they have worked the bile out of their systems would then be as jolly and bright in the morning as they are at an evening party now."

IT WAS THE TIDE.

"It was a mistake," said Mayor Stoy of Atlantic City, discussing a recent governmental difficulty. "These people failed to understand the difficulty, just as a man from Okoboji, in Iowa, failed last week to understand the tides.

"This man sat on the beach, close to the water, munching a bag of peanuts. A fat lady, one of the end-of-the-season bathers, gamboled in the waves near him. She shrieked, hopped up and down, and flapped about with arms and legs, and meanwhile the waves crept nearer and nearer the Okoboji peanut eater.

"He regarded the advancing water sternly. All of a sudden, a stronger wave than usual swept up the beach, and — splash! — the man was dashed with spray.

"'Hi!' he shouted, scrowling blackly at the happy bather, "hi, Fatty! stop that there bobbin' about before ye drown a feller, will ye?'"

GIRLS AND OUTDOOR GAMES.

Black and White: Women in their innumerable difficulties. One of these difficulties is skirts, a second is waists, and a third—almost insuperable—is hair, including hairpins.

Watch a girl playing tennis or cricket, and after a more then usually brilliant effort she invariably puts her hands to her head, as if she expected something to fall off if she did not. Energetic play is usually attended by dishevelment of the unruly locks and a shedding of hairpins that causes the pretty athlete distress.

Her pleasure in the game is marred by a sense of insecurity and a constant fear of consequences. No woman can wield a racquet or essay a run with an undivided mind. Half her brain is occupied by the fearful surmise, by the way, which is probably too painfully justified by the fact.

FORMER WASHINGTON SOCIAL FAVORITE NOW A DANCER

ROSE PRESTON.

MISS PRESTON IN ONE OF HER POSES.

The fad for fancy dancing developed in Washington many years before it reached New York and from that city spread over the United States. One of its sponsors at the capital was Mrs. John B. Henderson, wife of the former senator of the United States from Missouri. One of the chief devotees of fancy dancing in its early days was Rose Preston, the beautiful daughter of the minister from Hayti and one of the most popular girls in the diplomatic set. When Minister Preston died, and his two daughters were thrown on their own resources, they organized classes in dancing. Now Miss Rose has decided to go in for dancing professionally and is taking drawing room engagements.

DULUTH STREET RAILWAY FILES $2,500,000 MORTGAGE

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—The Duluth Street Railway company of Duluth filed a first mortgage in the secretary of state's office today, in favor of the Central Trust Company of New York, for $2,500,000 in twenty-year 5 per cent gold bonds. The money will be used in improvements. The registration tax in St. Louis county was $8,333.

Manager Herbert Warren stated, when asked regarding the mortgage, that there were no extensions in immediate prospect. "The money will not all be available at once," said Mr. Warren. "It will be used from time to time as we need it for improvements to the system and extensions. Some of it will go toward paying for work already done. The idea is to have the money on hand, to be called upon in case it is needed."

While Mr. Warren did not admit it, it is believed that one of the purposes for which the money will be used will be to extend the street railway lines to the site of the steel plant.

MORE HEAT IN THE CORN BELT

Crop in Kansas Suffers Fourth Day of High Temperature.

Topeka, Kan., July 26.—With continuing hot weather today, reports from the western section of the state indicated that corn was suffering but was not beyond saving. The temperature was 102 at 1 p. m.

Above 100 Degrees.

Wichita, Kan., July 26.—The temperature ranged above 100 deg. in Central Kansas again today, making the fourth successive day of high temperature and scorching winds.

Grain raisers and farm owners in the vicinity are receiving most discouraging reports from the fields. It is the opinion today that little corn will be raised on any but the lowest fields.

STEEL CORPORATION EARNINGS REPORTED.

New York, July 26.—According to the report made at the directors' meeting today, the total earnings of the United States Steel corporation for the quarter ending June 30 were $40,170,960. The net earnings of the corporation for the quarter ending June 30 were $33,880,755.

The directors report that unfilled orders on hand June 30 were 4,267,794 tons.

EARNING POWER OF THE PEN.

Few Poets and Novelists Can Write a Living.

It is whispered that hardly half a dozen of the thousand living British and American poets earn their bread by their pens and that even some able novelists and many brilliant essayists follow some more or less prosaic gainful occupation.

Instead of the old-time patron of literature there are now small government places, posts in the universities and colleges, secretaryships to public and semi-public bodies, curatorships in museums and a hundred and one like occupations for poets and novelists of less than the greatest popularity. Few of the literary men in the public service of either country climb very high.

It is only after a distinguished success in letters that a poet or historian is appointed American ambassador to the Court of St. James. Augustine Birrell's essays, which certainly never yielded him a living, helped him into parliament and to a post in the British cabinet, but his has been an unusual career.

Men of Birrell's literary attainments rarely get much above a specialist's subordinate post in the British public service. Charles Lamb's long service in the semi-public India house, with easy hours, a fair salary and retirement on a pension of something like $2,250 a year, is a career to be envied by the British poets and essayists of today. Since the days when Burns was an exciseman the revenue service has been a frequent refuge for the poets, perhaps because they are usually poor, but honest.

Accident brought a young American poet to the attention of Theodore Roosevelt a few years ago and he soon obtained a small post with short hours and easy work in the customs service, but promised promotion never followed. The politicians care little about the poets, perhaps because the latter are apt to be untrustworthy partisans.

Few of the poets get very high in university life. Now and then one has a full professorship, but most of those who enter the teaching force of American universities or colleges remain long as sub-professors and instructors, with salaries as low as $800 or $1,000 a year. Sometimes when nothing else can be done for a poet he is asked to deliver a course of lectures at a university or a college, which means, perhaps, occasional employment for a single winter.

Composers of music, sculptors and painters occasionally have such lectureships. The composers may if they will fall back upon the irksome but often profitable occupation of teaching music. McDowell sought to keep away pupils by charging $12 a lesson, but still they came. It is not believed that any poet ever received such a price for teaching the art of poetry to private pupils.

Poets and essayists swarm in the magazine offices of this country and England, where they have to pass upon the matter submitted by their fellow men of letters. On well known critical essayist is the literary adviser of a New York publishing house. A poet of some success edits an American magazine for boys and girls. A young American novelist while editing an ephemeral humorous weekly lived in a church tower because he found such lodgings cheap.

The poets used sometimes to eke out their small incomes by teaching French, but in New York competition in that business has been ruinous. It is said that young frenchwomen in this city are giving lessons in their own tongue at 25 cents an hour. There is a sprinkling of young poets living in hall bedrooms all over Manhattan and earning their bread in editorial and secretarial posts, as subordinates in museums, as tutors and as instructor in fencing and the like.

Some novelists whose names are familiar to the reading public and whose books are highly praised by sound critics cannot depend upon their writings for bread. If a novelist does not please women he is rarely a financial success. Indeed some novelists who rank very high with intelligent, critical men are feared by the publishers.

The manuscripts of such novelists go from publisher to publisher without finding a profitable market. If the host of nameless writers whose books never see the light could know how often the work of men widely known on both sides of the Atlantic is declined or bought for a trifle the nobodies would take comfort. The manuscript novels of some men, even, who have written highly successful books are sometimes bought for a few hundred dollars, with the promise of a royalty on sales above a thousand.

It is said that Joseph Conrad, who is held among men of keen critical taste to have written a few of the best English sea tales and two or three really great short stories, cannot count upon his literary work for a living. Some of his books have hardly sold above the thousan mark in this country, while the novels that women like run to thirty, forty, fifty, a hundred thousand.

Maurice Hewlett, who is much less a man's novelist than Conrad, is glad of a modest post under government as yielding an assured income. Several popular English novelists who are treated with respect by critics on both sides of the Atlantic and who find an easy and fairly profitable market for their complete novels receive little or nothing in advance when they publish a volume of short stories.

Kipling and Hardy are among the few living writers whose short stories have sold well in collected form, and Hardy has ceased to write long stories. Publishers say there are hardly three American writers whose volumes of short stories would excite more than a languid interest in any publication office, though there are many who receive high rates for short single stories from the magazine publishers. Like the poets, the writers of short stories must usually have something on the side.

HUNTING THE RORQUAL.

Whale Off Newfoundland Coast—Whalers' Equipment and Weapon.

The fluctuations of the whaling industry in Newfoundland are most amazing. A little over ten years ago, on June 25, 1898, the first whale was killed by modern methods in those waters, and yet within five years the flotilla grew from one steamer to eighteen, and the annual kill from forty-three to 1,478. The result was a slump, after conditions akin to those of the "South Sea Bubble" or the "Dutch Bulb mania being created in a mild form. The industry went to pieces in a single year or two, nearly all the steamers were sold off, and $1,500,000 was hopelessly lost.

One concern had expended $70,000 in the purchase of a steamer, the building of a "whale factory," and the operation of these for two years, and never killed a whale at all, says P. J. Magrath in Canada. Another lost a similar amount and had a catch of but four fish; a third caught only eight, when it required at least sixty to make the venture pay, and it had paid so well a year or two before that dividends of 35 to 50 per cent were realized. Now the industry is recovering again, and the few concerns that have survived stand to make a substantial profit.

Scientists tell us that the whale is not a fish but an aquatic mammal that can remain below water only a brief period, as it must relieve its respiratory organs. It suckles its young as do the beasts of the field; it is warm blooded, and its flesh is like meat. The whole family consists of two groups—the toothed whales and the bone whales. Of the former are the cachelo or sperm whale, famed for its spermaceti or cetaceum, and the orca or killer whale, which, like the other, yields a liberal supply of oil as well from its blubber coated carcass. Of the bone whales there are the bowhead or right whale, the monster of the North, and the rorqual or racer whale of the temperate regions.

The bowhead inhabits the arctics and the cachelot the tropics. The cachelot and bowhead in these torrid and frigid waters of the globe have been hunted remorselessly by whalemen for centuries, but the rorquals, which are much speedier, have enjoyed a comparative immunity. Some thirty years ago the Norwegians utilized steam vessels for hunting them, and finding that the old style of putting out rowboats to harpoon them was not feasible devised a harpoon gun, fired from the bow of the vessel and carrying an explosive charge, which made the chase and slaughter of these leviathans much easier.

For the hunting of the rorqual a steamer of about 10 0tons is used, a staunch steel boat, making twelve to fourteen knots and equipped with powerful machinery for "playing" the fish. She employs a crew of ten men, and has a harpoon gun working on a swivel on her bow. Into this is fitted a harpoon, attached to a light but strong rope and "carrying" for about 100 feet.

The rorquals, unlike the bowheads or the cachelots, are not easily frightened, and the steamer when she sights one or a herd steals slowly up on her quarry, and when within firing range lets fly this projectile, which usually pierces its way into the mighty carcass, the harpoon head being hollow and filled with gunpowder, exploded by a time fuse. This ordinarily bursts in the body of the huge fish, inflicting injuries so serious that the victim speedily dies. But occasionally the harpoon fails to strike a vital part, or it passes through the whale's body near the tail and bursts in the water on the other side. In such cases the wounded whale will speed away at an amazing rate towing the steamer behind as if only a cockboat.

There is one instance recorded of a huge blueback towing a whaler in this fashion for twenty-six hours and covering some 200 miles before being weakened sufficiently to enable the vessel to approach and put another shot into the creature, which ended its activities. Instances are more common of steamers being towed for ten or twelve hours, and there is one case where a whaleship was for several hours wrestling with two wounded whales in this way and being so seriously damaged that she had to go into dock and effect substantial and costly repairs.

The whaleman's harpoon is a terrible one. Behind the explosive head are four flukes, which are fixed against the sides of the shank when the harpoon is being fired, but which after it has entered the whale and the huge fish jerks on the holding rope when struck start out grapnel-wise and prevent the whale from tearing itself away from the deadly contrivance in its furious movements after being struck.

At other times it lasts for an hour or so, sounding the ocean's depths or bounding high out of the water in its agony. The whales are to be seen in hundreds on the Grand Banks all the summer through, where they play among the fishing schooners, utterly indifferent to the presence of vessels or skiffs. A single ship has killed as many as six whales in a day, and in the present season the best record (twenty-four fish for a week) was made.

BIRD PETS IN A ZOO.

On a recent official record of the London Zoological Gardens is the entry in the death column of a hoopoe that was prchased just four years and a half ago. The entry is noteworthy for two reasons: It registers a very long span of life in captivity in a bird which many aviculturists have found difficult to keep, and it chronicles the death of what was to many of the visitors a very charming pet.

When it came to the Gardens, says the Queen, it had two cage mates, both of which it survived. All three were delightfully tame and confiding, and would come to call to the wires of the bird house for a succulent mealworm. They even sought food from the general visitors, who out of pure kindness offered them breadcrumbs and biscuit, and seemed surprised that the gifts were not accepted.

Death claimed the second, but the third lived on to what for a hoopoe in confinement was a good old age. Dr. Gunther, who is an accomplished aviculturalist, has kept many of these birds and four years was the longest period for which any lived in his care. One that had six years of cage life to its credit is recorded from Germany, but that bird was, so to speak, the Methuselah of hoopoes.

To see this delightful pet at its best one had to go inside the aviary. It knew at once what was expected, for it would walk round in stately fashion, with expanded crest, uttering a low "Hoop, hoop," scanning the ground eagerly for the expected reward. If this was not immediately given it would fly up and circle round the visitor, taking the proffered worm from his fingers or extended hand. When this was disposed of it would often settle on his shoulder, and evince its satisfaction by fondling him with its bill. And when he passed on to another compartment of the great aviary the bird would fly up against the door that closed behind him, and come eagerly to the front of the aviary as he returned by the public walk.

Though the hoopoe is gone there still remain other delightful pets in the aviary. A woodpecker will leave its carpenter work and fly to the front to greet an acquaintance. Some of the hangnests and many of the exotic thrushes are quite as friendly.

Insect food or berries appeal strongly to the waxwing, unfortunately a cripple, that will bustle along, aiding its advance with outspread wings, at the sight of a box which it knows contains toothsome morsels. Perhaps the best way is for every bird lover to select a pet for himself, and endeavor to win its confidence; the process may possibly take some little time, but assuredly it yields a good deal of pleasure.

LESS RUBBER IN THEM.

A man walked into a shoe store on a rainy day to get a new pair of rubbers. He got a pair to fit and then he said to the salesman: "How much?" and the salesman said "90 cents."

"Ninety cents," says the man, "why the last pair I got I only paid 85 for."

"I know," said the salesman. "Rubbers have gone up."

"Shoes too?" said the customer.

"No, not yet," said the salesman, "but rubber boots have gone up 50 cents."

"I wouldn't mind the 5 cents extra on the rubbers," the customer said, "if they were any good, but I wear 'em out now in no time. I used to wear a pair of rubbers six months or a year, but now I go through a pair in two months; wear off the heels so that they leak there and crack the tops. Rubbers are not what they used to be."

"That's because there's so little rubber in them," said the salesman. "They mix in now so much other stuff. We've been complaining of them for twenty years, but it doesn't do any good.

"You see, in recent years the consumption of rubber has increased enormously and the cost of rubber has gone up the same way. I suppose that really they can't afford to put so much rubber into a shoe now as they used to."

The customer stood up in his new rubbers and started off, leaving his old dubbers on the floor behind him.

"You want to leave your old rubbers?" said the salesman.

"Why, yes," said the customer, "there no more use to me."

"That's so," said the salesman, "there isn't much good in a pair of leaky rubbers."

"Is there any good in them?" the customer asked.

"The porters gather 'em up anr sell 'em for 6 cents a pound. The rubber in them can't be used again in making rubbers, but it can be worked up again for some rubber uses."

TARIFF MERE MARKET POOL

Bristow Says Aldrich Worked to Boom Deals in Stocks.

Senater Makes Address at Topeka and Dolliver at Holton, Kan.

Topeka, Kan., July 26.—In an address here last night United States Senator Joseph L. Bristow declared that United States Senator Aldrich forced an increase in the cotton tariff schedules when the cotton manufacturers in this country were not asking for it. Senator Bristow charged that the increases were made for the purpose of booming the stock market.

"It is interesting to know," declared Senator Bristow, "why Mr. Aldrich insisted upon increased cotton duties when the mill owners and manufacturers testified in the hearings before the ways and means committee that they were not needed. But an examination of the stock issues for the United States for the year 1909 furnishes the reason.

To Boom Stock Market.

"These increases were not made for the protection of any legitimate manufacturing enterprise in the United States, but to boom the stock market. Last year there were issued $90,000,000 additional cotton and woolen stocks—$64,000,000 that had been previously authorized but not issued and $26,000,000 of new stocks.

"How much of this stock represented actual investment I am not advised, but under the impression that these increased duties on cotton goods and maintenance of the excessive duties on woolens, would give at least a temporary impetus to the business, these stocks found a market. So these increases, driven through by Mr. Aldrich, were in the interests of the stock gamblers and speculators and not in the interests of legitimate manufacturing enterprises.

Increase in Duty.

"The duty on coton goods valued at more than 7 cents per square yard was increased on an average of 20 to 25 per cent in the face of the testimony of H. P. Lippitt, representative of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of New England, before the ways and means committee, that the cotton manufacturers did not want any increased schedules."

Continuing, Senator Bristow said:

"This method of tariff legislation is almost as reprehensible as the increase on the duties on lead and rubber.

"The woolen schedules carried on the ordinary woolen fabrics of ladies' dress goods, duties ranging from 115 to 145 per cent; on woolen blankets from 118 to 165 per cent, and on other woolen cloths and fabrics used by every family duties usually as extravagant. No attempt was made to ascertain the difference in the cost of production on these fabrics at home and abroad, but imperative demand was made by Senator Aldrich that the woolen schedule be not touched, declaring it to be the keystone of the protective arch."

Cummins Roasts Monopolies.

Holton, Kan., July 26.—Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa, speaking before a sweltering Chautauqua audience here, said a systematic arrangement of competition, and that alone, could cure America's economic troubles.

"The inroads which the monopolies have made on our industries in the last few years," he said, "have made it necessary for the Republican party to declare just what the doctrine of protection is, solely for the purpose of introducing competition. Those intrusted with that duty have not revised the tariff as was promised in the Republican platform. It now becomes the true Republican's duty to explain what might have been accomplished had its representatives been faithful to their trust.

Railroads an Example.

"What man cannot see the ills monopolies are bringing upon us? Take the case of the railroads. They charged excessive rates and accumulated a surplus. This they put back into the roads' improvements and they now ask you to pay additional interest upon this surplus obtained through extortionate rates. In ten years the railroads added three and one-half billions of dollars to their capitalization on betterments and extensions without the investment of a single penny of independent capital. We must pay interest on this surplus investment."

Members of the association are here from every state in the union and preparations have been made for the entertainment of 1,000 delegates.

FINANCES ON RAGGED EDGE

City Comptroller Warns Council to Conserve the General Fund.

Says Some Contracts for Improvements Have Been Illegally Let.

Contracts for improvements costing $11,990.34 have been illegally let by the city, according to a communication sent to the city council last night by City Comptroller W. S. McCormick.

He also warned the council to exercise extreme care in making appropriations from the general fund, as but an extremely small balance remains to meet the general and unforeseen expenses for the remainder of the year.

The contracts to which the comptroller referred do not conform to the city charter requirements, as they were awarded sufficient funds in the permanent improvement revolving fund. In most cases the comptroller states that the work has already been finished or is under way, but that he has refused to countersign the warrants.

According to the figures submitted there is an unappropriated balance of only $1,436.02 in the fund. The total balance is $203,036.69. Of this amount $152,892.12 is due contractors and $48,709.55 must be applied to other jobs, having been collected as advance assessments. The comptroller states that unless this method of letting contracts is stopped it will lead the city into serious difficulties.

The estimated revenue of the general fund for the remainder of this year is $115,648.96, while the estimated expense is $109,699.46, leaving but $6,000 to meet general expenses. It is explained that this is partly due to the increase in the contagious disease and city hospital expenses. The comptroller further urges earlier collection of sidewalk assessments.

Mayor Cullum called the attention of the aldermen to the vast amount of unnecessary work that the city engineering department is called upon to do at the expense of improvements already under way. He states that last year the department supervised work which was estimated to cost $356,000, while it was compelled to prepare plans and specifications for jobs estimated at over $2,000,000. The mayor said that this is an unnecessary waste of money; that it keeps the office force and field staff busy on work which is never done; that essential work suffers, and that the city stands the loss. He suggested that no plans or specifications should be called for unless the work were not only necessary but likely to be done.

Alderman Shartel introduced a resolution calling upon the health commissioner to investigate the keeping of the city ambulance to ascertain if complaints relative to slowness of the ambulance service are well founded. If he finds that they are he is directed to improve it.

* * *

The complaint of the Massachusetts Realty company relative to Brewery creek was referred back to the health commissioner. The council takes the stand that if any sewer connections have been made into the creek, it is up to the health department to order them out as plenty of power is vested in the department.

ITALIANS LEAD INCOMING ALIENS

Immigration Statistics Are Given Out By Federal Government.

Washington, July 26.—A total of 223,453 Italians and of 128,348 Poles, the two countries furnishing the highest number of arrivals, and of only 19 Koreans, constituting the country least represented, are among the factors in the grand total of 1,041,570 immigrants admitted into this country during the last fiscal year. This is 289,784 less than the previous year. The final figures are made public by Commissioner General Keefe.

IS INFANTILE PARALYSIS DUE TO TOBACCO HABIT?

Mason City, Iowa, July 26.—That the use of tobacco in any form by parents is apt to result in infantile paralysis in their offspring, in fact that the greater number of instances of the disease in America are directly traceable to the use of tobacco, is the startling statement made by Prof. A. C. C. Pfuhl of the Berlin university.

Professor Pfuhl declares emphatically that the disease is due to the use of tobacco, in a letter from Presho, S. D., where he is visiting, to Mayor Kirschman of this city, who at the present time is much interested in the disease.

Two weeks ago Dr. T. U. McManus of the state board of health, made a visit to this city and as a result an expert will be here in a few days from Washington, D. C., sent here at the instance of General Wyman of the Public Health and Marine Hospital service of the United States, before whom the matter was laid. It is the plan to secure facts concerning the spread of the disease and its action.

Carson City, Nev., July 26.—Under sentence to die on the gallows next Friday for the murder of his wife, O. G. Petty committed suicide in the prison yard of the Carson penitentiary yesterday.

The sleeping man was hit by west bound train No. 67.

ARMY PRISONER PROVES TO BE KENTUCKY MAN.

New York, July 26.—The identity of the former naval officer who is held at Castle Williams, on Governor's island to await trial on charges of desertion from the army, in which he had enlisted as a private after resigning from the navy, has been disclosed by officers of the department of the East. He is Clarence F. Landram of Kentucky, once an ensign in the navy.

The records show that Landram disappeared from Fortress Monroe last March and surrendered at a Brooklyn recruiting station the following April. When news of his plight got out among his friends in Louisville and Washington, representations were made to the war department that his erratic actions would tend to show he was not responsible. Accordingly a medical board was appointed June 30 to investigate the case. The board convened on July 5 and is still sitting. Its findings will be sent to Washington and made public there.

DON'T STAY IN THE HOUSE

Unsightly Skin Affections Which Cause Embarrassment Are Quickly Cured By Poslam.

"To tell the truth, I was ashamed to go out," says Mr. John Rogers of Atlanta, Ga. "My trouble was eczema on each side of my nose and caused lots of trouble and expense. I used every preparation I could get hold of but they all seemed to make it worse until I tried poslam. I can truly say every trace of it has disappeared and does not seem to return. Poslam is a wonderful remedy. I keep some at hand all the time."

The success of poslam is not at all surprising when it is considered that even a small quantity stops itching immediately and proceeds to heal at once. The very worst cases of eczema, as well as acne, herpes, tetter, piles, salt rheum, rash, crusted humors, scaly scalp and every form of itch yield to it readily. Blemishes such as pimples, red noses, muddy or inflamed skin disappear, the complexion being cleared over night.

A special 50-cent package of poslam is prepared for minor uses and this, as well as the regular $2 jar is on sale by all druggists, particularly the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, and the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior.

A sample of poslam, which will afford a convincing test, will be sent by mail, free of charge, to any one who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHTER

Farmers in Northwestern Minnesota Will Harvest Fair Crops This Year.

Yield Will Be 75 Per Cent, as Large as Last Year.

The farmers of Northwestern Minnesota will fare much better than they thought a few weeks ago they would and, judging from present conditions, the yield in the district around Crookston will be fully 75 per cent as large as it was last year, according to R. W. Hitchcock, editor of the Hibbing Tribune, who returned today from a visit to that section of the state.

"The farmers showed an unusually large acreage this year and the loss will be heavy on account of the drouth," said Mr. Hitchcock. "The outlook now is much better than it was a few weeks ago, however, and the farmers expect to harvest 75 per cent as much grain and produce of all kinds as they did last year. Last year's yield in that section was exceptionally good, so that the farmers are now looking forward to a measure of prosperity. Before the drouth was broken, they thought the crops would be irreparably damaged, but the outlook at present is such that they are well satisfied to get off as they did.

"Method will have much to do with the success of the individual farmer and the effects of scientific farming are visible all through the Northwestern section of the state. Many fields are in excellent condition, while adjoining fields are in wretched shape. Concrete evidence of the effect of scientific methods are to be seen all through the district. I believe that the agricultural school at Crookston has done an incalculable amount of good. The farmers are interested in the improved methods being taught, and the results some of them have obtained under adverse conditions are evidence of the fact that their interest is well placed.

"The crops along the eastern edge of the Red River valley are in very fair condition as the effect of the drouth was not so serious there. Near Warren, the farmers pinned their hopes almost exclusively on wheat and their prospects are not nearly as bright as the outlook for those who planted a greater variety.

"The farmers as a whole have adopted a philosophical attitude. Conditions might be much worse than they are and they are rejoicing over the breaking of the drouth, although their yield will not be nearly so great as they had hoped early in the year."

cerned, and that they would not introduce a "dark horse" into the race.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

CLOUDY

J. Pluvius threatened last evening, but he wasn't in action any more than a few minutes, and his activities ceased in time to allow the Venetian carnival to take place. Today is another beautiful day—one of those kind that makes one wonder why anyone should prefer to live anywhere but in Duluth in summer. The highest temperature yesterday was 80 deg., while the mercury dropped to 60 deg. last night.

Sultry weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:40 and it will set at 7:49, giving fifteen hours and nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Hot weather continues in Atlantic states, the Central valleys and over most of the west, except along the Pacific coast. Temperatures of 100 deg. or more occurred Monday in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Northwestern Texas and Arizona. Barometric pressures remain high over Florida and North Pacific states. Disturbances central over Alberta, the extreme Southwest and the Gulf of St. Lawrence caused scattered and generally light showers in New England states, the Western lake region, Gulf states and the Ohio, Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys during the last twenty-four hours."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes: Moderate variable winds. Unsettled with thunder showers tonight or Wednesday.

Chicago, July 26.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Minnesota — Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in northwest portion tonight.

Iowa—Generally fair weather, except possibly thunder storms in east portion tonight or Wednesday.

North and South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight.

which the "progressives" will bring before the resolutions committee and is "the least," it was stated, "that the progressives will be satisfied with." The statement in part follows:

"The influence of special interests in politicis to be met by a public utilities commission and general corporation commission; strict supervision of banks, fixing of personal responsibility of directors, severe penalities for misuse of corporate funds for political purposes.

"Publicity in campaign expenses, provision for the prompt removal and vigorous prosecution of unfaithful public officers.

"Some of the industrial needs to be cared for by a comprehensive workingman's compensation law; child and woman labor laws.

Plank on the Tariff.

"A tariff plank emphasizing the need of a vigorous, effective commission and prompt action."

The plank relating to the national administration will be substantially as follows:

"We reaffirm our adherence to the great policies announced in the last national Republican platform. We express our confidence in the patriotism and sincerity of President Taft in his efforts to fulfill our party pledges. We indorse his actions in obtaining much that was promised and we pledge him our loyal support in his endeavor further to carry forward those policies and to make them effective by proper legislation and administative action."

While Mr. Garfield declined absolutely to discuss himself in connection with the governorship, it was understood that unless these planks are incorporated in the platform substantially as drawn, he would decline to be considered.

Speech by Longworth.

Representative Longworth, in his address as temporary chairman of the convention, said:

"Ohio is the battleground this year of titanic forces. Forces which will sway for good or evil the fate of the nation. It is a conflict of principles first, but personalities also. Personality will not mean everything, but it will mean much.

"Our Democratic opponents have nominated as head of their ticket a strong man—make no mistake about that. Whatever may be the principles he stands for, principles which in our opinion would spell, if adopted, the ruination of this country, Judson Harmon is nevertheless a big, forceful individual; a keen, shrewd politician, always on the job; a man of unlimited ambition, with amazing confidence in himself and in his lucky star.

Attacks Democratic Plan.

"Not content with nominating himself for governor, he has nominated himself for president also. There is nothing small about him. It appears that if elected he does not intend to serve out his term as governor; the program, as frankly announced at the Democratic convention, is that he shall resign after a few months and turn over the office to the candidate for lieutenant governor, a gentleman by the name of Pomerene. But will the people indorse this program? Will they consent to be used as stool pigeons to further the ambitions of these men? For one, I cannot believe it.

"Laying all other questions aside, there is one thing in Judson Harmon's career that disqualifies him for the presidency. No man who has spent the active years of his professional life as an advocate of the interests of corporate wealth can bring to the presidency that single-minded devotion to the interests of the people, that capacity for seeing clearly their side of the question that they have the right to demand."

Harmon and Corporations.

The speaker declared that Mr. Harmon, while governor, has left his office to appear in the courts in the advocacy of the interests of his private clients.

"Is this," the speaker asked, "proper in an aspirant for the presidency? Judson Harmon has spent nearly two score of his more than three score years in looking at public questions from the railroad and corporation standpoint. The people will not forget this when they come to cast their ballots.

"An Ohio man, a lawyer, too, is president of the United States. How different has been the use of his legal talents. They have not been employed in the service of the railroads and corporations, but in the service of the people.

"Whatever the people may have thought a few weeks ago, there is no question about it today. President Taft has made good. Few men realize what fixity of purpose, what strength, sagacity, good humor and patience were required to bring order out of the chaos that existed during the closing weeks of this session of congress.

Mistaken in Taft.

"Some people mistake his good humor for weakness, his patience for pliability; events have proved how sadly mistaken they were. Today there are few who do not know that the Taft smile is but a mask for dogged determination and an iron will.

"Seldom has it fallen to the lot of any man to surmount greater obstacles in carrying out his promise than to the president. Beset on all sides by violent and unjust criticism, harrassed by factional disputes, he remained serenely confident to the end, and the end was a triumph. He had determined from the beginning that party pledges were made to be performed. Today these pledges are the laws of the land.

"No such program of constructive and progressive legislation has ever been enacted at any session of congress in American history. It is a record of magnificent achievement, and the glory belongs first to the president of the United States."

Says Insurgents Mean Well.

Speaking of the Republican insurgents, Mr. Longworth said he did not doubt but that the majority of them are anxious for the welfare of the party. He continued:

"The most idiotic of all the Democratic war cries is that the Republican party of today is under the domination of bosses who are, in their turn, either in control of or subservient to special interests. We have followed and we shall continue to follow the policies of Theodore Roosevelt.

"The principal issue upon which we, the Republican party in Ohio, will appeal to the people in this campaign is and must inevitably be the tariff. We could not dodge it if we would; we ought not to if we could. We are responsible for it in the fullest sense. It would be mere futility to attempt now to shirk our responsibility.

"This is no 'stand-pat' program that I am advocating. It is a program of progress, not of reaction. The Payne tariff law as it stands today, fortified by the tariff commission, is no 'stand-pat' law. It is an immense advance in the direction of a thoroughly scientific American tariff, a tariff which, while yielding ample revenue, while maintaining the American wage scale, while enabling the American producer to compete in the American market with the foreign producer; will place as little burden as possible upon the consumer of articles of daily necessity."

Mr. Longworth then discussed in detail the various schedules of the tariff law, and said the measured cost of living has come, not because of the Payne law, but in spite of it.

MAN MURDERED AT WALKER, MINN.

Slayer Says He Was Defending His Daughter's Honor.

Walker, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Boardwell, 42 years, employed as engineer at the Leech Lake Lumber company's sawmill here was shot and killed last night by Edward Lucia, a Leech Lake steamboat pilot. Lucia is in custody and claims he killed Boardwell because the deceased and his step-son were seeking the ruin of the slayer's 16-year-old daughter, Cora, a quarter breed girl, her mother being a half breed.

Lucia appears to have prepared deliberately for his act. He went to the tent in which Boardwell, his stepson, Mrs. Boardwell and Cora Lucia were staying, and as he approached the place he was overheard muttering that he proposed to kill both Boardwell and his stepson.

Fired Three Shots.

Arriving at the tent, Lucia fired three shots and then took to the woods. One bullet entered Boardwell's forehead causing instant death. Young Boardwell was not hit.

As soon as the news of the tragedy reached the village a posse was formed to search for the murderer.

Robert Block, son of a Duluth insurance man, who lives here, was the first to spy Lucia and take him into custody. Lucia readily gave up his weapon and accompanied the party back to town, explaining that the treatment his daughter had received at the hands of the Boardwells', with whom she had been living, was more than he could stand and he felt that to save his daughter's honor he had to do something desperate. Lucia is about 50 years old. His daughter is a comely girl who has borne a good reputation.

"Jestie" Krick, the Superior pitcher is today wearing a smile on the face for yesterday he held the Duluth White Sox to four hits which counted for naught and Superior won, 3 to 0.

If there is anything in this great, wide world that "Jestie" delights in doing, it is slipping it over on his former team mates. That is the only bad part of his perfectly good dispositon. The Duluth fans have yelled "back to the cigar stand" at him so much, that he just naturally aches to beat O'Brien's crew. "Jestie" would rather it had happened in Duluth, but it didn't, and he had to be as satisfied as he could over in Superior.

Krick looked soft in the first inning when he allowed three hits which, owing to poor head work by the Duluth men who got on bases, didn't count for anything. Anderson, Kohl and O'Brient hit clean. Anderson was tagged out trying to stretch a single into a double; Darby and Kohl tried to negotiate the double steal, Kohl being caught at third and Altermott dashed the hopes of the Duluthians in the bud by grounding out.

After the first, only twenty-two Duluth men faced the Superior pitcher. During the rest of the game one hit was all that could be coaxed from his delivery.

Johnson, a new hurler, started to throw for Duluth. He did nicely for three innings, but in the fourth he had the bases filled. Here the derrick was brought out and Johnson was lifted. Blancke went in and succeeded in retiring the side without a run.

The first score was made in the fifth. Krick failed in his attempt to bat out a bunt and Landry who followed him, singled. McGraw got a triple and Landry scored. Blancke struck out the next two men.

Superior's other two runs came in the sixth. Lizette got a hit. He went to second on a wild throw. Chase popped out to Blancke and Caldwell fanned. Bancroft hit, sending Lizette to third. Krick's single scored both runners.

In the ninth Duluth made a weak attempt to score. Hughes and Anderson each got a base on balls. Kohl, O'Brien and Altermott filed out.

Today Eau Claire is in Duluth for a series of three games. The Schooners are considered the best in the league at the present time. The Duluth team is playing at a better pace than at any time this season and Darby expects to get at least two games.

SIXTEEN-INNING GAME LOST BY INDIANS.

Winona, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a pitchers' battle which lasted sixteen innings, Winona defeated the Red Wing team by the score of 3 to 2, yesterday. The fatal inning began with a single by Killian, followed by Baillies' sacrifice. Killian then got to third by a fielder's choice and passed the home plate when Koepping made a hit. Fautsch pitched a good game for the Indians up to the sixth inning, when he was taken out and replaced by Weidel. The game took up three hours. Winona made seven errors early in the game. Score:

GIVES VICTORY AWAY IN NINTH INNING.

Rochester, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game yesterday was lost to La Crosse in the ninth inning when Pitcher McNeil weakened and gave the Outcasts four hits which resulted in three runs. Up to this inning he had handed the La Crosse teams a bunch of ciphers. Throughout the first eight innings it had practically been a pitchers' battle, with McNeil in the lead. Kernan's bad throw from third to first in the ninth contributed to La Crosse's victory. Score:

AUTO STANDS STILL; JOHNSON ARRESTED.

New York, July 26.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight, was arrested here again last evening. His automobile again was the cause. Being arrested for speeding has become an old story with Johnson but it was a real shock when he was arrested this time for standing still.

He was accused of obstructing traffic by stopping the machine seven feet from the curb and an additional charge of having a wrong number on his car was placed against him.

SCHOONER VALMORE IS AGAIN THE WINNER.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 26.—William Hale Thompson's schooner Valmore, which crossed the line in the Chicago-Mackinac race at 10:24 o'clock Sunday night, thus won the contest for the third consecutive year. Amerita was second, Vencedore third and Hawthorne fourth.

COBB WILL LEAD BOTH LEAGUES

COBB
Of Detroit.

"Ty" Cobb is the leader of the American league in batting. Last year he was the champion batter of the two associations and it looks as though he would keep the title this year.

W. W. BARBOUR.

William Warren Barbour is said to be the unknown whom Hugh McIntosh wants to back against Johnson. He has announced his willingness to back him for $25,000 and Jim Corbett has been named as his trainer. Mr. Barbour is a Boston amateur, member of a well known family, who has shown his prowess with the gloves that his friends think him invincible.

GRAND CIRCUIT HAS GOOD START

Only Disappointment at Kalamazoo Is Failure of Geers to Drive.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 26.—The initial meeting of the 1910 Grand circuit was favored with track and weather conditions that were nearly perfect. There was a large attendance of well-known horsemen from all parts of the United States. The only disappointing feature of the day was the announcement that "Pop" Geers would not drive and that his entry for the 2:07 trot, The Harvester, would be withdrawn. Geers said he would drive later in the week.

Country Jay featured by trotting the fastest mile of the year against a field of good ones. Willy, the British horse, about which there has been so much spoken, proved his mettle by winning the first race easily.

The favorites had a good day of it. Spanish Queen, the choice in the 2:07 trot, after it was announced that The Harvester had been withdrawn, was the exception. Country Jay proved the best, Willy, favorite in the 2:16 trot, had no difficulty in winning, but Walter W., in the 2:06 pace and Country Jay in the 2:07 trot, had to be driven hard to win. The last heat of the 2:06 pace was particularly close, Walter W., the winner, and Walter Hal coming under the wire neck and neck in a whipping finish.

Much interest was added to the 2:07 trot by the fact that Gus Macey and Emey Macey, father and son, were pitted against each other. The son was up behind the favorite, Spanish Queen, but the older reinsman landed the race in straight heats, while third money was the best the favorite could get.

The Abbe was a top-heavy favorite in the 2:16 pace, and he had an easy time of it as the finishes were not even close.

PRAIRIE CHICKENS TO BE PLENTIFUL

Indications Point to Good Shooting in North Dakota This Season.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is joy among the nimrods of this state over the prediction there that the supply of young prairie chickens will be large thus indicating plenty of good shooting when the season opens.

The drought conditions prevailing during the nesting season and the absence of severe storms, which usually prove very hard on the young ones, is responsible for the recent condition. The young chicks have grown rapidly and are already of a good size and by the time the open season arrives, it is expected that some splendid hunting will be available.

Hard Time for Ducks.

On the other hand ducks have been having an extremely bad time of it. Hundreds of small lakes and sloughs in which they usually feed have been dried up, and many of the ducklings have been found that have been deserted and left to shift for themselves. In connection with this situation rather interesting stories have been received. At Sawyer, one farmer has over fifty of the young ducks and is feeding and caring for them regularly. The strangest story comes from Lakota, however, where it is claimed that a dog had rounded up about a dozen of the small birds and drove them before him into the city, where the owner of the dog took charge of them. The dog had not killed or hurt any of the birds in the least.

Tigers Get Pitcher.

Dallas, Tex., July 26.—Pitcher Loudell of the Waco, Tex., league club, has been sold to the Detroit Americans. He will report to Detroit at once.

SIXTY-FOUR PLAY DOWN

Second Round of Qualifying Play in Western Golf Tournament.

Legg's Record Score in Opening Round Phenomenal ---Goodell Scores 80.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 26.—The second round of eighteen holes in the thirty-six hole qualifying round of the Western Amateur Golf championship tournament was played over the Minikahda club links today. The sixty-four players turning in the lowest scores in yesterday's eighteen holes were eligible to continue in today's play. The qualification will be based on the total of the two days play. Before the play started the tie for the last two places was played off.

The links are lightning fast and it is thought that the thirty-two who qualify will have remarkably low scores. It was expected that the qualifying round would be finished shortly after noon and the first round of match play follow after luncheon. By the end of today's play there will be only sixteen players in the championship fight.

The low scores of yesterday were a revelation. Of the sixty-four who won the right to continue in the play only two of them were in the eighty-seven class. Seven handed in these figures, but only two were eligible as sixty-two turned in scores of eighty-six or lower.

The politicians are busy campaigning for the next tournament. Detroit, which made a hard fight for this tournament, wants the 1911 event. A large delegation of Kansas City men are here and are booming the Evanston club for the 1912 tournament. The Kansas City men also want to elect J. F. C. Fennell, president of the Transmississippi Golf association, a director of the Western association and the idea is being well received.

Legg's Play Phenomenal.

Legg's 70, yesterday, was little short of phenomenal as he had hardly any luck. He rimmed the cup six times on putts as he said the putting greens were keener than he had anticipated. His full mashie shots were superb and his driving was brilliant, especially on the shorter holes where he drove the green every time. His only poor drive was in playing the tenth, but he retrieved himself with a screaming brassey that put him on the green in time of it as the finishes were not even close.

He took three putts on the sixteenth and then holed out in a five. His best previous performance over the new course here was 73.

Following are the sixty-four who qualified for the second round of eighteen holes today:

H. G. Legg, Minnikahda, 70; W. I. Howland, Jr., Glenview, 72; Paul Hunter, Midlothian, 74; Albert Seckel, Hinsdale, 74; Mason Phelps, Midlothian, 74; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, 75; R. A. New Outfielder.

There will be two Andersons in the line up of the White Sox today. They are Jimmy and George. George has been a star outfielder for some time. Jimmy has been with La Crosse, from which team he was obtained. Both Andersons will play the gardens. The new Anderson is said to be a fast fielder and a hitter of no mean ability.

Bowel Complaint in Children.

When six months old the little daughter of E. N. Dewey, a well-known merchant of Agnewville, Va., had an attack of cholera infantum. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was given and effected a complete cure. This remedy has proven very successful in cases of bowel complaint in children and when given according to the plain printed directions can be relied upon with perfect confidence. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all druggists.

SNAKE CHARMED BY HYMN.

Women Sing When Viper Crawls From Beneath Cushion.

San Bernardino, Cal., July 26.—Singing "Nearer, My God to Thee," three women charmed a rattlesnake, which had just crawled from beneath a cushion upon which one of them was seated, out on the Vale ranch.

Mrs. F. F. Dunlap, Mrs. Harry Allison and Mrs. W. A. Vale were seated on a lounge under the trees when Mrs. Dunlap perceived the snake.

Instantly she thought of music charming reptiles, and she whispered, "Let's sing."

She commenced to hum the sacred air and the others, not knowing why, took it up. The snake, with head poised, paused and Mrs. Dunlap slowly arose and beckoned the others to follow, which they quietly did.

After having gained a safe distance the others discovered what their danger had been. Armed with clubs, the women then killed the snake.

NEW SAFETY DEVICES TO BE ADDED TO GUNS.

Washington, July 26.—A safety device which had been tested and found true but failed in one particular instance, was the cause of the gun explosion at Fortress Monroe July 21, when eleven artillerymen were killed.

That is the finding of the board of officers which investigated the accident and has made its report. The board in its report says it is forced to its conclusion notwithstanding the fact that long experience and previous tests had given assurance that the firing mechanism afforded protection against the very disaster which came.

One result of the Fortress Monroe accident is that every piece of ordnance in the army will be tested and further safety devices will be added.

Grand Junction, Colo., July 26.—While racing with a west bound Denver & Rio Grande passenger train in an automobile yesterday afternoon, Walter Hodgins of Grand Junction, Miss Leona Adams of San Francisco, and Miss Gladys Carlisle of Chicago, were instantly killed.

C. H. Carman of Grand Junction, and Chauffeur Thomas Rock of Denver, were seriously injured. The automobile passed the train and Rock attempted to cross in front of the locomotive. The locomotive struck the rear of the automobile, throwing Hodgins and the two women under the wheels of the train.

"UNION MEN"

Are the Organs, Muscles, Bones and Nerves of the Human Body—If You Have Overworked Them and They Have "Struck," the Electro-Radio Institute Will Adjust the Differences and Send Them Back to Work.

The organs, the nerves, the muscles and the bones of the human body are strictly "union" men!

They will perform their duties faithfully for you if treated with justice. If the hours are too long, if the work is too hard, they will "strike."

Have yours "struck?"

If so, the Electro-Radio Institute can furnish the means by which the difficulties between "capital," as represented by your mind, and "labor," as represented by your body, may be once and forever settled.

The Electro-Radio Institute advertises because it has something both new and worthy for the treatment of disease by electricity. It advertises because, in the marvelous new current, Electro-Radio, it has something that in two vital respects is years in advance of any other electric current. These two vital respects are, first, its marvelous penetrative cleansing power, and, secondly, the virtue it possesses of being absolutely painless. The old-style electric treatment shocked, pulled and jarred. The operator himself feared it. It was little understood, and consequently soon discarded at the wishes of both patient and doctor in favor of a more immediate relief through drugs and medicines. The fact that the relief brought by these drugs and medicines was only temporary, and that when their effect had worn off the patient suffered twice-fold, was overlooked.

The new radio-current will reach and penetrate the direct seat of any trouble, whether it be deafness, kidney, liver, skin or stomach trouble, paralysis, rheumatism, diseases of the eyes or nervous ailments peculiar to women. It kills harmful germs. It removes wasted and diseased tissues. It builds up with new and healthy blood cells. No clothing is removed when taking the treatment. Not the slightest shock or jar is felt, yet millions of volts are speeding on their mission of health to every part of the body.

It is drugless, painless, efficient! The following testimonial must have some weight with you, especially as the institute has hundreds of others equally convincing:

"For a long time I had been very feeble. My feet, especially the right one, would at times give way, and I could not even raise my hand to button my shirt. I was in deathly fear of complete paralysis, and having a family to support, I spent all the money I could possibly spare trying to get relief. I went to all the prominent doctors I had ever heard of, and even was treated by a bone-setter, but it was useless. My family doctor advised me to come here to the institute, but I came as a last resort. I took fifteen treatments and now can walk and run, use my hands and arms as well as ever in my life."

MUST KEEP AWAY FROM HIS WIFE

Judge Dibell Orders Mason Close to Pay Alimony and Fees.

Judge Dibell of the district court has ordered Mason A. Close to keep away from his wife, Marie T. Close, pending the settlement of the divorce action she began against him some time ago.

Close must also pay his wife $5 each week, besides $35 for attorney's fees, according to the ruling of the court.

The Close family lives at 312 Lake avenue north. They have been having trouble for some time, according to the papers in the action. On a recent occasion Close begged so hard to be allowed to remain home that his wife consented on his promise to behave himself. She states that she did this so that their son might continue his education.

Lately, she states, he has been getting drunk, and while under the influence of liquor has threatened her with bodily harm.

A Business College Gymnasium.

A gymnasium with all the appointments, shower baths, needle baths and a regular up-todate gymnastic equipment, is the latest innovation for Duluth.

The Brocklehurst Business college, 418 West Superior street, has secured a long lease of the quarters admirably fitted up by the Duluth Athletic club, which adjoin the college rooms, and proposes to give its students, without extra charge, all the benefits of physical culture training, in addition to a business college education.

Such gymnasiums are a general thing in the modern business colleges of the East, and the Brocklehurst Business college is to be congratulated on its enterprise in thus providing so generously for its students.

Intending business college students are cordially invited to visit the college next Saturday, and inspect the gymnasium and its facilities. Classes will be arranged for young ladies and gentlemen, who are connected with the college. It is the intention of the young men to organize an athletic club.

ASKS DAMAGES FROM THE CITY

John Beckman Claims That Grading Decreased Value of His Property.

Before Judge Cant and a jury in the district court, John Beckman is trying to recover $1,841.50 damages alleged to have been done his property on Piedmont avenue when the street was cut down and graded recently.

Beckman, according to the complaint, erected a set of flats on lot 322, block 125, that cost in the neighborhood of $3,000.

Believing that the street was at the height it always would be, he built them to conform with the street, he says.

When the street was recently lowered and the tracks laid on the new extension recently built by the street railway company, the house was left nearly six feet above the new grade.

He claims that his property suffers in appearance and is not worth nearly so much as before, when it conformed to the height or level of the avenue. He says this damage is worth $1,500.

It is also stated in the complaint that the tenants moved out of the house and he lost 341.50 in rent.

AGENT KILLS SELF.

Great Northern Depot Man at Hendrum Is Suicide.

Shevlin, Minn., July 26.—The funeral was held here of Dawes Amidon, aged 22, who killed himself at Hendrum, Minn., last Friday by shooting himself, committing the deed in a culvert near the Great Northern depot, where he was agent.

The young man went to the railroad culvert a short distance from the village, some time during Friday afternoon and there committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. No reason for the unfortunate young man's desire to end his life can be given, as his habits were known to be of the best and no trouble of any kind has been apparent. The auditor had been at Hendrum Friday and reports that any shortage there may have been was so trifling as to have been out of the question as a motive for the deed.

ROBBED AT BEMIDJI.

Minister Loses Grip While Eating at Lunch Counter.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. S. L. Parish, the new pastor of Grace M. E. church, arrived from International Falls Friday night and conducted his first regular service here Sunday. His family is in Minneapolis for a short time. Rev. Mr. Parish came by way of Bemidji and left his grips in the station while he stepped out to secure a lunch. On returning, he found that one of them had disappeared, having evidently been stolen. He wired out along the line, but has secured no trace of it.

MARINE NEWS

NO LONGER A MENACE

Lighthouse Will Rob the North Shore of Its Terrors.

Light Will Be Visible Within a Radius of Twenty Miles.

The dangerous rocky shore beyond Two Harbors, in the vicinity of Split Rock will have little terror for the mariners in the future, for the government is erecting at this place a light house and fog signal station, which will be visible for more than twenty-two miles.

According to information furnished by the bureau of light houses, of the department of commerce and labor, it will be ready for use about Aug. 1, this year.

For many years this has been a dangerous place, especially in foggy and stormy weather. In many of the big storms of recent years a large number of wrecks have occurred here.

It will be located on a promontory, 19¼ miles northeasterly from Two Harbors. The light will be of the third order, flashing white every ten seconds, 168 feet above the water, thirty-eight feet above the base of the tower, and will be visible 22¼ miles in clear weather, when the observer's eye is fifteen feet above the water. The illuminant will be incandescent oil vapor. The light will illuminate 202½ degs of arc from approximately 41 degs 30 minutes true (NE ¼ N mag) to 244 deg true (SW by W ¾ W mag), and will be visible from all points of approach by water.

The tower is a buff-brick, octagonal structure, with concrete trimmings, and surrounded by a black cylindrical lantern. A buff-brick fog-signal building stands fifty feet to the east of the tower. Besides these buildings, the government has erected three two-story dwellings, three barns and a concrete oil house.

The fog signal, which will be a first-class compressed air siren, will sound a two-second blast followed by an interval of eighteen seconds.

DREDGE'S LONG TOW.

Is Being Taken From the Soo to Nova Scotia.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the longest trips ever undertaken from here by a dredge was started late last week when the Edward Bros.' tugs Bues and Edward left with Dredge No. 1 in tow for Cape Breton Island, N. S.

There is only one other instance recalled by marine men of when a Great Lakes dredge undertook a longer trip and that was a few years ago, when a Dunbar outfit went to Cuba from the Soo. Most of the present crew will return upon reaching Quebec. The company which will use the dredge will man the outfit there and continue the voyage. The trip is about 2,000 miles in length, and it is expected to occupy at least three weeks.

MAKING CORRECTIONS IN MARINE CHARTS.

In the new marine charts which will son be completed by Edward Mollter, expert chartmaker and assistant engineer of the United States lake survey at Detroit, several corrections are to be made, which will show great improvement over the old ones now in use.

He is making extensive studies of the south shore of Lake Superior and, according to information received by the local marine offices, he has made some valuable discoveries. Entering Portage lake from the west, he noted a bay south of the canal known as Sleeping bay, which has not been included in any charts heretofore. Near Sleeping bay is a point known there as Willard point, which also had no marking. Many contours along the Portage canal have been given erroneous elevations, all of which will be corrected.

ONE DOLLAR CLAIM KEEPS STEAMER IDLE.

Chicago, July 26. — (Special to The Herald.)—Because a laborer claims that there is due him and unpaid $1 for services connected with the steamer City of South Haven, the boat has been libeled and is being held in port here pending settlement of the affair.

STEAMER GORDON IS RELEASED AT SOO.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer D. A. Gordon, which grounded Saturday night just off Parisian island in White Fish bay, was released this morning at 2:30 o'clock after a lighter had removed 10,000 bushels of wheat. The boat came to the Soo under its own steam, where an examination of the bottom showed two forward tanks full of water.

Mayflower Returns.

The tug Mayflower arrived in port late yesterday afternoon from the Soo, where she had towed the steamer City of Fremont from Two Harbors. The steamer had been left there some time ago by the steamer Robert Holland en route to Detroit. No difficulty was experienced by the little tug, which was in command of Capt. Fred Winters. This tug closed the season of navigation in 1909, when she was the last boat to pass the Soo, and this spring opened the season by being the first to leave the local port.

FALLS HEIR TO SMALL FORTUNE

Duluth Man Will Inherit $31,000 From Brother in Germany.

Through information received yesterday from Germany, F. C. Berg, an employe of the Royal lunchroom, finds himself an heir to 125,000 marks, which is equivalent to $31,250 in American money.

This fortune was left him and his son, Paul, by his brother, a successful physician, who died recently. The doctor was located at Dusseldorf, Germany, where he had practiced for many years and became noted in his profession.

Mr. Berg was notified that he will receive one-fourth of the amount in September, but the balance will not be turned over to him until all the legal steps have been completed. In the meantime Mr. Berg will reside in Duluth.

He came to this city only three months ago, and this evening expects the arrival of his wife and son, who have been living in Fort William, their old home. When she arrives she will be given her first information regarding the new fortune that awaits them.

Mr. Berg has lived in America for the past seventeen years, traveling throughout both the United States and Canada. Duluth seems to be the best place he has found, he claims, and it is probable that he will invest his money in this city.

LAKE GIVES UP PURSE.

Lost Two Years Ago, Money Recovered By Owner's Children.

St. Cloud, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Zins, publisher of Ded Nordstern, experienced a singular instance of lucky Friday afternoon when he recovered a sum of money which he had lost two years ago.

In the month of August, 1908, Mr. Zins and Karl Kropp were out on Lake Limeman at Avon, in a boat which capsized, and they had quite a time getting to shore. In the excitement Mr. Zins lost his purse containing $33, partly in bills and partly in coin. He made some attempts to locate the purse but was well enough pleased to have escaped as he did. Friday afternoon Mr. Zins' children were playing on the shore of the lake, and there, to their surprise, they found a purse which contained money. They took it to the cottage, where Mr. Zins at once recognized it as his own, thus coming into possession of property lost two years previously.

LIGHTNING KILLS FARMER, BUT SPARES HIS FAMILY.

Campbell, Minn., July 26.—T. B. Gram, a farmer living near Tintah, seven miles south of here, was instantly killed by lightning. He was in the field with his wife and three children when the storm came up and they started for the house, but before they reached it lightning struck and killed him instantly and stunned the horses, but the family, who were in the wagon with him, were unharmed. He was 50 years old.

QUARREL WAS AN OLD ONE

Long Standing Feud Existed Between Leuck and Brandt.

Ambulance Drivers Say They Were Not Given Any Address.

The fatal stabbing affair Sunday night when Frederick Otto Brandt fatally stabbed Emil Lueck, was the result of an old quarrel of long standing, according to people who are familiar with the circumstances.

It is alleged that the trouble originated several years ago over a woman, who is now married and living with her husband in this city. It is said that she is a relative of Lueck's.

The inquest this afternoon at the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan on East First street is expected to bring out a mass of rather risque testimony. Many witnesses have been subpoenaed by Coroner J. A. McCuen, who will conduct the inquest. Many of them are said to be familiar with the differences of the two as well as the history of the case.

It has been stated on good authority that Brandt was on close terms with the woman for a year or two, many people believing that they were man and wife. Some time ago it is alleged that she married another man, whose name will probably become public this afternoon. It is asserted that Lueck taunted Brandt and made remarks to him which greatly angered him.

Brandt's friends state that he has always been known as a quiet, unassuming man, who always tried to avoid a quarrel. They place the blame on Lueck and are confident that Brandt will be cleared after the entire mess is laid bare in the courts. They state that Lueck waited for Brandt in the hallway of the Maccabee hall at 21 Lake avenue north, and struck the first blow. It is also stated that he had two or three friends with him.

Lueck's funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the residence of his father, Robert Lueck, 427 East Fourth street, and at 2 o'clock from the German church at Tenth avenue east and Third street. Interment will be at Park Hill cemetery.

Cause of Delay.

The post mortem yesterday afternoon showed that Lueck died from loss of blood, principally from the deep gash in his left leg, which severed a large artery and vein. It is claimed that medical attention was unobtainable for half an hour, causing his death. The people who have charge of the city ambulance state that they hitched promptly when they received the first call, but that the man who telephoned failed to tell them where to go. They claim that the team was on the floor of the stable ready to leave for twenty-five minutes before they were informed of the location.

In the me ntime a private ambulance had been called, but it was too late in reaching the scene to save the young man's life. It is also stated that several physicians refused to answer the call.

Mayor Cullum has taken the matter of prompt ambulance service in charge for an investigation. He says that he will look into the situation thoroughly and put the matter on a basis which will allow of no delay.

There is now no excuse for the city ambulance not answering every call. The city owns the ambulance, but the teams and drivers are furnished by a local livery. The livery collects for its services. The council recently passed a resolution whereby they can collect from the city where the patient has no money with which to meet the charges. In the past the excuse was offered that they couldn't afford to make runs for nothing, but with this objection eliminated there is no reason why every call should not be given the promptest attention. The ambulance people state that they have not refused any calls and are ready to give the quickest possible service. But they state that they couldn't get Lueck Sunday night because they didn't know where to go. The case has caused much comment, and the authorities are preparing to see that there is not a repetition.

TWO PLANTS BURN AT WAUKEGAN, ILL.

Waukegan, Ill., July 26.—Fire which destroyed the plants of the Durand Steel Lacquer company and the Thomas Brass & Iron company here early today caused a loss estimated at $350,000. The municipal water works and the tank of the North Shore Gas company, with 2,000,000 cubic feet of stored gas, were threatened, but were saved by a change of wind.

Returns to Penitentiary.

Faribault, Minn., July 26.—Judge Buckham yesterday sentenced Frank Johnson to five years in state prison for stealing two horses, a colt and buggy in this city in May. Johnson pleaded guilty. He was released from Stillwater in March, where he had served a term of eight years for the same offense.

IS FAR FROM A SOLUTION

Express Delivery Problem Still Worries Residents of Suburbs.

Will Again Be Taken Up By the Commercial Club Members.

When the dog days are over, the summer girl of 1910 is but a memory, the summer resorts are deserted and the business world has again settled down to the stern chase for the elusive seeds that are potential fortunes when properly planned and cared for, the municipal affairs committee of the Commercial club will get together and take up some of the weighty problems turned over to it by the public affairs committee, which passed out of existence last spring.

One of the weightiest questions with which the committee is matched for a catch-as-catch can wrestling bout is that of express delivery.

The last public affairs committee put up a good match with the problem, but the astute managers of the express side of it scored a victory. The new public affairs committee hopes to retrieve—or gain the laurels.

A Duluth man was notified this morning that there was an express package at one of the offices for him. He called up and meekly asked the agent to send it out to his house. "Nothing doing," or words to that effect, was the reply.

"But I'm willing to pay for the delivery," said the meek patron of the autocratic corporation.

"We haven't any connection with anyone who delivers for pay or otherwise. You'll have to attend to it yourself," said the agent and the meek patron was meek no longer—just as soon as he had placed the receiver on the hook. He said a few things and stamped around in impotent rage. The express company held the whip and he felt the lash.

He remembered that some months ago, a meeting was held in the Commercial club. The district superintendents of the express companies were there. Residents of Woodland, Lakeside, West Duluth, the Normal school district, the Central hillside, the West end hillside and every other section of the city which is outside of the free delivery limits of the express companies were there. The members of the municipal affairs committee were there.

The district superintendents of the express companies were bland, but noncommittal.

"We really can't afford to deliver free outside of the limits set," they said.

"Make connections with some parcel delivery concern, turn all parcels destined for points outside of your limits over to it pay a part of the cost—or even make us pay the entire cost and we will do so if we are only sure of delivery," said the citizens.

"We'll see about it," said the district superintendents.

Perhaps they did. For a time a man with one horse attempted to deliver some of the parcels. Some of the people didn't understand and wouldn't pay. Some of the agents wouldn't turn packages over without special instructions, it is said, and the parcels delivery man grew sick of his job. The plan fell through and Duluth is just where it was before the conference between the district superintendents, the plain citizens and the members of the municipal affairs committee took place.

The new municipal affairs committee will take the matter up again. The members believe the express companies collect a large enough proportion of every rate for handling and delivery to make delivery free in all settled portions of the city.

They will put arguments up to the express companies again. Perhaps the district superintendents, with bland smiles and either little power or inclination, will come to Duluth again. The chances are that the arguments will be as futile as those presented before. In the meantime the man who happens to live above Fourth street and east of Twenty-fifth avenue east will either have to haul his express packages home on a car or hire a dray.

RAILROADS SUCCESSOR TO FENTON

W. D. Burr of St. Paul will succeed A. M. Fenton as district freight and passenger agent for the Omaha railroad here, effective Aug. 1, according to word received at the local office today.

Mr. Burr for several years has been chief of the tariff bureau in the Omaha general offices at St. Paul. Mr. Fenton who has been appointed assistant general freight agent for the company at Minneapolis succeeding F. C. Gifford, resigned, went to the Mill City last night to familiarize himself with the duties he will assume Aug. 1. He will return Friday. Local traffic men of other roads are planning to give Mr. Fenton a farewell banquet.

SOON INAUGURATE ITS NEW SERVICE

Work Being Rushed on Two Northern Pacific North Dakota Branches.

Mandan, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Passenger train service on the Missouri River south branch and the Dakota western branch of the Northern Pacific will be inaugurated Oct. 1. At the present time the work on both lines is being rushed to completion and the finishing touches are being put on here and there along the branches.

On the Missouri river south branch, running from Mandan to Mott, Hettinger county, the steel laying gangs are making good progress. They are being followed by the surfacing crew, and as soon as sections of twenty-five miles are completed, they will be turned over to the operating department.

The Dakota western line operations are now being pushed as rapidly as on the south branch, but service is expected to be established at about the same time.

Near Cannon Ball the company has opened an immense gravel pit from which the surfacing crews are being supplied with material.

PUSHING BRIDGE WORK.

Barbau & Hickox Making Progress on Plummer-Moose Lake Line.

Bemidji, Minn., July 26.—(Secial to The Herald)—Barbau & Hickox, bridge builders for the Soo railway, are making splendid progress in building the bridges along the Plummer-Moose Lake line, and they will have their portion of the construction of this line completed by the time originally desired by the railway officials, although greatly delayed early this summer by the non arrival of big timbers and other material.

Barbau & Hickcox have five bridges for which the piles have been all driven and on three of these the timbers have been placed and the structures are ready for the laying of the steel rails. The firm now have crews of men working on eight bridges and they are being rushed with all possible dispatch at Gonvick, Silver Creek and Four Legged lake in Clearwater county, at Grant creek, Bemidji and Cass Lake, at Schley, where the Soo crosses the Great Northern, and at Portage lake.

Barbau & Hickcox have had five steam pile drivers at work. They state that they expect to finish driving the piles on all of the bridges by the end of the present week, and they are confident that all of the bridges will be fully completed and in readiness for the steel by Aug. 15.

Other work on the Soo line is progressing very satisfactorily; and there is general confidence that the line will be carrying grain Eastward from the wheat fields of Northwestern Minnesota and the Dakotas a considerable period before snow flies this fall.

VELVA'S COLLEGE WILL SOON OPEN

Institution Launched By Synod Lutherans Is Preparing for Its Work.

Velva, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the organization of the corporation that will control the Northwestern college, the institution that will be established in this city by the Synod Lutheran conference complete assurance is given that the new educational enterprise will be in operation this year and that its first classes will be held this fall. The Northwestern college will be a continuance of the college at Grand Forks, which was maintained by the denomination a number of years, but which was recently sold to private parties.

The movement on the part of the conference toward the establishment of the college here is to secure a more central location than Grand Forks afforded. When the college was originally located at Grand Forks, the conference included the states of Minnesota and North Dakota, thus making it a central point. Some time since the two states severed relations and now have independent conferences, and for that reason the Grand Forks college was placed at the extreme left side of the territory in which it was included.

Officers of Corporation.

Under the corporation organization Rev. O. J. Akre of Velva, is president; Rev. E. Teigen of Max, vice president; G. N. Lindahl of Velva, secretary, and E. Glibertson of Velva, treasurer. These officers, together with Messrs. Quarve, Myhre and Dolve will constitute the board of trustees.

President H. M. Norman, who became the head of the Grand Forks college a year ago and who was recently re-elected, will be the first president of the Northwestern college. For the coming year temporary quarters only will be secured, but by another season it is anticipated that a college building, fully adequate to meet the present and future needs of the conference, will be constructed.

CUYUNA'S NEW M. E. CHURCH DEDICATED

Growing Crow Wing County Range Town Completes Fine Edifice.

Cuyuna, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Methodist Episcopal church was dedicated on Sunday. The services were presided over by Rev. Edgar K. Copper, district superintendent, with Rev. A. L. Richardson, of Aitkin, preaching at the morning service, and Rev. Charles Fox Davis, of Brainerd, occupying the pulpit in the evening. The members and friends of the church, together with the townspeople, are elated over having church services thus made possible.

Large congregations were on hand both morning and evening and responded liberally to the cost of the edifice and the officials announced that the church is free of debt. The Rev. Mr. Suver is the pastor, much credit being due him for his indefatigable labor in the enterprise.

TOWER CITY BOY WINS.

Prize Offered By North Dakota Bankers for Best Essay.

Fargo, N. D., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Titus of Tower City won the first prize in the essay on the best course of study for 85 per cent of the eighth grade pupils, who never took the high school course. E. A. Francis of Williston was second and H. J. Berlin of Wimbleden third. The prize was offered by the state bankers last winter to be awarded to contestants who were graduating from high schools. There was a $50 prize.

MINERS' BIG PICNIC.

Underground Employes of Calumet & Hecla in Annual Outing.

Calumet, Mich., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual picnic of the underground employes of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company at the Calumet & Hecla park next Saturday promises to eclipse former affairs of that kind in attendance and general success. They are making an especial effort to please with this outing and their efforts to make it an unqualified success are meeting with great success.

The parade of the miners, with four bands, will be one of the big features of the day. One thousand men will be in the line of march, which will extend through Red Jacket, Calumet, Hecla and Laurium and back to the Calumet and Hecla park. The famous Calumet & Hecla band, conducted by George D. Barnard, the Tamarack band, the Finnish Humu band and the Miner's band of all reed instruments, will also appear in the parade and will also appear in the park. The miners' band, which was organized especially for this picnic, has reached a high state of perfection in its playing under the able leadership of capabale men.

John England will be grand marshal and C. Weeks and J. Heaton will be his aides.

The speaking and the sports will take up the balance of the day. The biggest event of the sports program, of course, will be the championship hammer and drill contest between a team representing the Amalgamated company of Butte and another representing the Calumet & Hecla company of Calumet. There is considerable betting on the outcome of this contest and much more money will probably be wagered during the present week.

SUPERIOR

FIGHT WILL BE AGAINST DISCRIMINATORY RATES.

Chairman H. A. Johnson of the grain commission, Chairman Van Buren of the Commercial club traffic committee and James Little, rate clerk of the Commercial club, left for St. Paul today to attend a meeting of the grain dealers of Wisconsin. The Superior delegation will make a fight against any reduction of rates to the old basis, whereby the Head of the Lakes is discriminated against in favor of the Twin Cities.

SOO ORE DOCK SITE A SCENE OF ACTIVITIES.

Active work will soon begin on the new Soo ore docks.

Yesterday orders were received from the officials by the contractor who is superintending the unloading and stacking of material as it comes in. At the site of the dock near the Grassy Point bridge immense quantities of timber and pilling have been unloaded as well as a large number of carloads of machinery. A dredge company is busy at the site deepening the channel.

Formal Transfer Made.

A formal transfer of the Board of Trade building from the control of the Northern Trust company to bondholders, for the most part residents of the East, on a bid of $183,000, was made yesterday at sheriff's sale. The structure is located at the corner of Tower avenue and Belknap street and is one of the finest in the city.

Short Court Session.

Only a short session of the federal court will be held in Superior, when it convenes tomorrow. A number of the cases, which were to have come up for trial, were settled out of court and two of the important ones were put over until the January term. It is expected that the court will adjourn before the week is over.

Wife Desertion Charged.

On a charge of wife desertion, Angus Lupinski was arraigned yesterday in police court, the complainant being one Mary Kociuski, who swore to the warrant. The case was put over until Saturday. He furnished $300 bail and was released.

Off to Convention.

John McKanna and Father C. J. Weber left yesterday for Milwaukee, where they will attend the biennial convention of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin. About 100 delegates will be in attendance at the affair in the Cream City. They will return the latter part of the week.

PRISONERS TO BE SENTENCED

Judge Ensign Will Dole Out Punishment to Four Men.

Four men who have either been convicted of the crimes with which they have been charged by the grand jury or pleaded guilty, will be sentenced late this afternoon by Judge J. D. Ensign of the district court.

Gust Leine pleaded guilty to rape. He assaulted Inga Norden and an indictment was brought in against him by the July grand jury.

Antony Djikalovic was recently proven guilty of assault in the second degree after a trial in district court. He was found guilty of shooting a revolver in West Duluth and when an attempt was made to arrest him, he took a shot at Fred Anderson, a policeman.

Evar Johnson pleaded guilty to grand larceny. He stole from Roy M. Powers $56 in money.

Matt Maglich was recently convicted of burglary in the third degree. He broke into the room occupied by Clara De Mall, a crippled woman who lives on Garfield avenue.

Deerwood Couple Wedded.

Brainerd, Minn., July 26.—(Special to The Herald.—Frank L. Johnson and Miss Inex Carron, both of Deerwood, were married in Brainerd July 15, by Judge J. T. Sanborn, of the probate court, in his chambers at the court house. The bridegroom is a young business man of Deerwood and his bride has made her home here for many years and has a large circle of acquaintances.

The building will be modern throughout, of brick construction, and in the basement facilities will be afforded for an auditorium and for a kitchen.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

WHEAT HAS HEAVY TONE

Declines Following Large Offerings in Sympathy With Corn.

Flax Market Is Quiet and Prices Are Top-heavy.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 26.—Wheat declined today in sympathy with corn and as a result of the heavy run of winter wheat to Southwestern markets and to Minneapolis. The market was exceedingly heavy at the close.

July wheat lost 1⅞c; September 1⅛c; December 1⅜c and May 1¼c.

Flax was top heavy and trading was light. July declined 6c; September 5c; October 5c and November 5c.

Cash wheat was 1c over July; oats closed ¾c off and rye was unchanged; barley was 60@65c a narrowing of the range from 60@70c.

Durum displayed strength, chiefly on account of the foreign demand, a small export trade being transacted today. Durum closed ¾c up.

Domestic markets had a weak undertone. Traders played for a break again today in the belief that a decline would strengthen the technical position of the market. Wheat sagged in sympathy with corn which was weak. A factor of importance was the run of winter wheat which increased. Receipts of wheat at the two Southwestern markets last week amounted to 2,372,000 bu against 2,338,000 bu in the corresponding week last year. Minneapolis receipts are swelled by a run of winter wheat.

The bulls believe that the effect of the winter wheat run will soon wane and that values will then begin another upward course. They look for the foreign demand to increase on account some anxiety concerning growing crops abroad. Such a demand, they think, would relieve American markets of any surplus that might tend to become burdensome. An increase in the milling demand at the same time, the bulls think, would result in a record breaking movement. The bears believe the demand for wheat must improve mightily to sustain values at prevailing levels.

The foreign situation is more favorable to the bulls than for some time. Russian prospects have been seriously impaired by drouth in the Southeast and heavy rains in the Southwest where winter wheat is being harvested. The trade is concerned over the situation in France, which has prospects of a shortage of about 40,000,000 bu. This will be partially offset by a liberal carryover.

The flour trade, millers report, has a better tone and the domestic trade is looking up. The foreign business, however, is dead. Accumulations of wheat may be expected at primary points from now on. Country millers are getting considerable wheat direct from farmers.

Thrashing returns show that the quality of the winter wheat is exceptionally high. Temperatures are cooler in the Northwest but the trade is not devoting much attention to the spring wheat crop just now. The trade generally considers the history of the spring wheat crop written.

Most of the flax that has been arriving here has been billed from Minneapolis to this market for Eastern crushing account. Crushers are not taking much seed and are more interested in futures than in spot seed. Receipts of flaxseed at Duluth and Minneapolis are about 2,000,000 bu behind the amount received at this time last year. Traders think the condition of flax will fool those people who have been basing their estimates on the government's figures as of July 1. The acreage seeded in the United States according to the government is 2,103,000 acres, an increase of 361,000 acres or 13.2 per cent. The condition of the crop July 1 was 65 per cent of normal compared with 95.1 per cent on July 1 a year ago and 93.1, the average on July for the last seven years.

The weather lately has been favorable for growing flax in the Northwest as rains have been general and precipitation moderately heavy. Temperatures have been cooler, also. These climatic conditions, the bears hope, will make the plant sufficiently sturdy to withstand possible adverse weather conditions later. Some of the flax is so flat that there is no doubt that it will run into the curly fronts. It will be impossible for a few days to tell definitely how great was the change to the advanced flax from hot winds earlier in the month. It is the general opinion that flax has improved materially since the government issued its last monthly report. Some folks think the yield in the Northwest will be around 21,000,000 to 23,000,000,000 bu if weather until harvest is favorable.

The big paint grinders who didn't touch linseed oil with a 10-foot pole. Although prices have firmed on account of the appreciation in seed values yet there has been no corresponding increase in the demand. The painters don't want the stuff and the jobbers' inquiry is comparatively light. Prices are not being quoted for the new crop of oil as crushers are not willing to take chances on present prices for seed and the undetermined condition of the flax plant. The high cost of oil has shut off the demand. Whether this condition is due to the speculators in this market or to economic and crop conditions will come out in the wash later, when values are adjusted to a basis upon which the crushers can grind and sell oil. Under usual conditions there would have been a fair amount of oil sold for the future; but when both the buyer and the seller face a possible loss there is not much likelihood for new business. Sellers having a sufficiently difficult time to get rid of oil on their hands without courting more trouble by going after future business under present conditions.

The supply of cake is small and the foreign demand for it is insistent, but the crushers are not in a position to supply the wants of the foreigner. Most of the now being turned out is to fill contracts already made. The supply abroad is fairly large but is closely held and difficult to buy.

Broomhall's Russian cable: "The weather in the South is good and harvesting is progressing rapidly. The returns from both the South and Southwest are that yields are mostly satisfactory, but the quality is poor owing to the storms damaging. Hot weather continues to cause damage in the Southwest. Arrivals at Rostoff and Odessa are larger than expected and indications are for large arrivals soon. Stocks are increasing slowly. The spring wheat crop on the whole is much below last year."

Broomhall cabled: "Wheat opened firm, ⅛@¼d higher, being influenced by strength in America and continued unfavorable reports from France. Following the opening wheat further advanced ⅛@¼d with offerings light. France continued to purchase offcoast cargoes and the continent was also a buyer. During the morning the market became easy and declined 1⅛d to 1¼d from the high point on the large Black sea offerings and the abatement of the demand for cargoes and parcels. Cargoes off coast and on passage amounted to 18, and were offered lower. There was some speculative selling on reports of rains in India and freer offerings there. At midday the market was easy at ½d to ⅞d lower than yesterday. Corn, ¾d higher, in sympathy with American cables, but advance was checked by large La Plata offers. European visible wheat, 63,430,000 bu; last week, 64,436,000 bu; decrease, 1,000,000 bu. Last week, decrease 2,872,000; last year, decrease 1,600,000 bu, when total was 52,600,000 bu. During the last month there has been a decrease of 13,673,000 bu in European visible. France: Complaints continue to be received of light crops and poor unfilled ears. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Decided Weakness Develops in the Corn Situation.

Chicago, July 26.—Decided weakness developed in the corn market today although excitement was undiminished and the weather was still dry and hot in the states where damage reports have been thickest. The principal cause of the change of sentiment from the previous nearly-frantic desire to buy was light rain in some parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. A prominent packer-speculator led the selling. Commission houses in general were also on that side of the market, a sharp contrast with the situation yesterday. Many of the sales were attributed to country dealers whose incentive was the suddenness of the advance to high prices yesterday. The market opened ¼c to 1¾c lower with September at 65@65½c, a drop of⅝@1¼c. There was a further decline to 64¾c, and then a reaction to 65¼c.

A sharp downturn was attributed to prospective heavy deliveries threatening to wipe out cash and July premiums. The close was steady with September 1⅝ @1¾c net lower at $1.04⅞ to $1.04⅞@1.05.

The unanimity with which bids for cash wheat were accepted had a bearish effect on that cereal. Commission selling of small lots formed about all there was to business in the option pit. Lower cables were an influence, but of more importance was the decline in corn. Corn opening was a shade to ⅝c off with September down 1-16c to ⅛@⅜c at $1.06¼@1.06½. From that point the fall continued to $1.05⅝@1.05¾.

Additional saillies were largely due to news about the prolonging of hot winds in the Southwest. The close was firm with September at 65⅞ to 66c, a net decline of ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅜c.

Free hedging sales depressed oats. September started ¼c below last night's figures, selling at 39½c, and going still lower to 39¼c.

Higher prices for live hogs made provisions firm. The market opened 5c higher to 2½c down, and scored further gains. First sales in the September option were at $21.80 for pork, $11.77½ for lard and $11.55 for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Weaker Cables Cause Lower Opening in Wheat—Feeling Optimistic.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 26.—Weaker cables caused a lower opening today. Pressure of new wheat in the Southwest and a more optimistic feeling in general concerning the domestic wheat situation caused a further decline. July closed ⅞c lower than yesterday, September 1¼@1⅜c lower and December 1⅝c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 225,000 bu for three days. Minneapolis got 181 cars today against 68 cars a year ago; Duluth, 100 cars against 26 and Winnipeg 231 cars against 57. July opened $1.23⅜; high, $1.24⅛; low, $1.23⅜; closed, $1.24. September opened, $1.15¼; high, $1.15⅛; low, $1.13⅜; close, $1.14⅜. December opened, $1.13⅜; high, $1.13⅝; low, $1.12; closed, $1.12⅛.

Cash wheat was about steady; demand slow for all except the choice grades. Offerings of winter wheat were liberal but sales were draggey. No. 1 northern sold for 1@3c above the July contract. Cotton Market.

New York, July 26.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 4 points on steady cables and continued dry weather in the Southwest, but soon eased off to a net loss of about 4@8 points under realizing and local selling. Offerings were well absorbed and during the middle of the morning the active months recovered 3@4 points on covering and trade buying. The old crop, however, continued heavy and it was rumored that the bull leaders were selling August.

Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: July, 15.37; August, 15.00; September, 13.82; October, 13.31; November, 13.19; December, 13.17; January, 12.13; February, 13.13; March, 13.17; May, 13.19. Spot closed quiet, 25 points decline; middling uplands, 15.50; middling gulf, 15.75. Sales, 16,-965 bales.

BAD SLUMP IN STOCKS

Heavy Liquidation in Progress and New Low Levels Reached.

Prices Recover in the Afternoon, But Soon Yield Again.

New York, July 26.—Stocks were offered in large blocks at the opening of the market and wide price concessions were the result. Losses averaged from a large fraction to a point in practically all of the most active stocks and in Consolidated Gas there was a drop of 2¾. American Sugar, Western Union and Interborough Metropolitan preferred 1½ and Rock Island and Amalgamated Copper 1⅜.

Heavy liquidation was in progress during the first hour and severe declines resulted. These were most marked in stocks not of first importance. Covering operations by the bears gave the most active stocks some power of resistance. The whole market rallied with the opening break in the corn market. Missouri Pacific fell 4⅜, Brooklyn Union Gas 4½, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Central Leather preferred, 4; St. Louis-Southwestern preferred 3½; Republic Steel preferred, Westinghouse Electric, American Hide and Leather preferred and Interborough-Metroyolitan preferred 3, and Southern Railway preferred, Louisville & Nashville, Delaware & Hudson, Kansas City Southern preferred, Western Union, American Car, American Smelting, American Cotton Oil, Central Electric and Colorado Fuel 2 to 2¾. The most active stocks were restored to last night's level by the rally.

Violent declines continued to be shown in various stocks for which the market is not usually active. Forced liquidation was evident with no effective demand to meet it. Small sales sufficed to break prices for these stocks. St. Louis Southwestern preferred dropped 8; Southern Railway preferred, 7¼; Missouri Pacific, 6½; Sloss-Sheffield Steel preferred, 6; Rock Island preferred, 4¾; International Paper preferred, Republic Steel preferred and American Steel Foundries, 4, and many others from 2 to over 3 points. The weakening of Reading and the preferred stocks, after showing some resistance, was the feature of the second hour. There was a steadier tone at noon when the market became dull. Bonds were weak.

The active trading stocks began to show the effects of satisfaction of the demand from the shorts, the standard dividend paying stocks plunging downwards to new low levels for the year. Liquidation was heavy in the Pacifics, trans-continentals, United States Steel and the coppers. Average losses in these stocks ran from 2 to 3. Missouri Pacific slumped 12¾; Rock Island preferred, 8¾, the common, 4⅜; Norfolk & Western, 5, and many others 2 to 4 points. Lackawanna sold at a decline of 30 and Central Railroad of New Jersey 17. There were some rallies at the end of the hour.

The market closed very unsettled and irregular. The improvement continued during the final hour. The subsidence of liquidation checked the decline and there was an active demand from uncovered shorts and from other sources. Prices moved towards recovery and losses were reduced by 1 to 2 points throughout the active list and by wider amounts in some of the less active stocks. The demand became unsettled again in the late dealings and prices yielded again. Rock Island preferred extended its loss to ten points.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

OHIO REPUBLICANS NOMINATE HARDING TO OPPOSE HARMON

Marion Man Chosen to Make Contest for Governorship.

Garfield and Thompson Withdraw From Race at Columbus.

Platform Is Considerably Modified to Please Progressives.

Columbus, Ohio, July 27.—Warren G. Harding of Marion for governor and F. W. Treadway of Cleveland for lieutenant governor, was the way the ballots in the state Republican convention here resulted today after the count of the third vote by the delegates. Earlier in the morning James R. Garfield and Secretary of State Carmi Thompson of Cincinnati withdrew from the contest, but in spite of his withdrawal, Garfield received several votes and Nicholas Longworth, who also had withdrawn, also was given some support in every ballot.

Meanwhile the "regular" wing of the party claims a victory in the platform as it was presented to the convention, and the "insurgent" element is expected to concur in the planks as presented. At least that is the forecast made on the strength of a statement by Congressman Howland, who said:

"The progressives got 99 per cent of what they wanted. I do not believe I shall present a minority report."

Ballot for Governor.

The first ballot for governor resulted: Harding, 485; Brown, 413; Garfield, 73; Longworth, 92. Necessary to nominate, 534.

On the second ballot the vote for governor was: Harding, 497; Brown, 863; Longworth, 164; scattering for Garfield.

On the third ballot George B. Cox cast the 91 Hamilton county votes for Harding. It nominated him.

The "progressive" tariff plank was voted down early this morning by the resolutions committee which framed a platform for adoption by the convention today.

Congressman Howland, in charge of the "progressive" fight, said that his course as a minority member of the

TWO OVERCOME BY HEAT IN CHICAGO

Only Temporary Relief From Torrid Weather Is Predicted.

Chicago, July 27.—Only temporary relief from the intense heat of the last four days was promised by United States Forecaster Henry J. Cox today when the wind shifted to the northeast and the mercury dropped to 79 deg. Warmer weather is predicted for tomorrow, when, according to the forecaster, the temperature is likely to equal its previous record of 97 deg.

Two prostrations were reported early today. Andrew Peters, 21 years old, was overcome while on a street car and fell to the street. He was taken to a hospital.

William Peters, 28 years old, was overcome and taken to a hospital.

MAY BE BODY OF YOUNG ARCHIBALD

Corpse Found in Canyon Is Not Positively Identified.

San Francisco, Cal., July 27.—Members of the Sierra club who returned last evening from the King's River canyon in Fresno county, bring news of the finding of remains believed to be those of Kenneth Archibald, a wealthy young real estate dealer of San Francisco, who was lost in the mountains in June, 1908, while on an outing with other members of the club. Archibald was a Cornell graduate and left an estate in the East valued between $25,000 and $100,000.

On July 25, 1908, the Eastern courts declared him legally dead. He was the son of Rev. Andrew Archibald, a Boston clergyman.

Takers of the Alaska Census Have Tough Time, Says Agent.

Report Tells of Suffering and Hardship in That Work.

Washington, July 27.—Temperature from 30 to 70 deg below zero; snow from three to twenty feet deep; wind blowing a blizzard most of the time; no human habitation in sight; no covering at night except a tent, and no "grub" that was not many times frozen.

These are some of the conditions under which the recent census was taken in the interior of Alaska. The report of Chief Special Agent McKenzie covering the work in the fourth or inland district of the territory has just been received by Director Durand, and while the story is simply told it is a wonderfully thrilling narrative of adventure, showing that when Uncle Sam starts out to round up his children he spares no expense to locate them and satisfy himself as to their status.

Mr. McKenzie's narrative just made public comes in advance of his figures, so that it is impossible to give the population of the country covered by him and his twenty assistants. Because of the greater ease of travel at that season, the census bureau determined to number the Alaskans during the midwinter.

Mr. McKenzie made his headquarters at the mining town of Fairbanks. His first special agent was appointed on Nov. 10 last and the work was completed by April 11, when McKenzie left for "the states."

Good Hot Weather Reading.

His experience in getting out of the country was by no means as thrilling as some of his experiences while engaged in the work, but it was stirring enough to arouse interest during a warm spell. Of it he says:

"I came out on the mail coach, arriving at Valdez on the 20th, after a varied experience consisting of being delayed two days by a blizzard, crossing rushing streams even when the horses had to swim and the sleds float, and traveling day and night with

MINER BLOWN TO PIECES.

Negaunee, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Ayotte, aged 23, of Ishpeming, was blown to pieces by an explosion of dynamite while at work in the Lucy iron mine at Negaunee here Monday.

Only small pieces of Ayotte's remains were found. The other men in the drift were affected by the fumes and and the smoke, but all escaped injury. The air pipe was broken and other damage was done, in consequence of which it has been necessary to suspend mining operations until repairs are made. Ayotte was 23, and lived at the Junction location. He is survived by his wife, to whom he was married eighteen months ago.

FACE OPTION AT OTTUMWA

Iowa Democrats However Are Expected to Reject County Plan.

Jerry B. Sullivan Makes Address, Attacking the Republicans.

Ottumwa, Iowa, July 27.—The Democratic state convention was called to order here today for the purpose of adopting a platform, nominating two candidates for the supreme court bench and choosing a new state central committee.

The opera house in which the delegates met resembled a bake-oven. All coats and many collars were abandoned.

With the arrival of additional delegates a pronounced sentiment in favor of declaring for high license local option (not county-wide) became evident. It also was believed the platform would declare for the recall, not mentioning the Cosson law, and the reorganization of the state railway commission, and would condemn the new postal savings bank law as tending to concentrate money in the East.

Jerry Sullivan Chairman.

"The hour was never more propitious for the application of Democratic principles than the present," declared Jerry B. Sullivan of Des Moines, in his address as temporary chairman, and the sweltering delegates grinned.

"On all sides we behold unrest and the feeling that the government of our country is not satisfactorily administered. The elements contending for supremacy are fraught with injustice and wrong—the concentration of power, the exacting of tribute, the wealth of the nation in control of the few—are all calculated to cause the citizen to stop and ask himself their meaning.

Two Tariff Laws.

"The continued existence of a political party can only be justified where principle is the basis of its acts. For more than twelve years the Republican party has been in control of every branch of the government. During this period of its supremacy it has enacted two tariff laws that in each instance increased the cost of living, without a corresponding increase in the price of

VENIRE ORDERED FOR BROWNE TRIAL

Special Call for 100 Men Is Directed By Judge Kersten.

Chicago, July 27.—Circuit Judge Kersten, sitting in the criminal court, today ordered a special venire of 100 drawn for Aug. 3 for the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, minority leader indicted for bribery, and in which the election of United States Senator William Lorimer is involved. The trial will open Monday, Aug. 1. The defense will object, it is said, to the case being tried in Cook county and to the admission of testimony of Representative Charles White, who declares Browne paid him $1,000 for his vote for Lorimer as senator.

WHERE CITY MONEY GOES

Schools, Fire and Police Protection Take Bulk of the Funds.

Education Is Biggest Drain of All---Per Capita Figures.

Washington, July 27.—According to figures prepared by the census bureau the larger cities of the country pay more for schools and for police and fire protection and related service than on all other accounts, and of these two items the payment on account of schools is much the largest, the per capita expenses for schools being $4.70 as compared with $2.25 for police and $1.72 for fire protection.

The figures are given out as a part of the bureau's report covering the financial operations for cities during the year 1908. The report covers all cities of more than 30,000 population, of which there are 158. The aggregate cost of operation of all these cities was $404,997,312.

Costs More to Run Cities.

The report indicates a general increase in the cost of maintaining city governments. In 1902 the average was $13.36 per capital. By 1908 it had advanced to $16.81 per capital. Of the total amount more than one-fourth was paid by New York. Philadelphia's expenses were only about one-fourth as much as those of New York.

But, large as were the figures for New York, the people of Boston paid more in proportion to population. The New England metropolis heads the list with an expense cost of $27.58 for each person. Of the large cities New York comes next with a cost of $24.71, while Washington, with a cost of $24.63, makes a close third.

New Orleans Paid Least.

Of the first class cities New Orleans paid less for city government than any other, the cost being only $12.76 per capita. Baltimore, with an expenditure of $13.34 was a close second. Of the cities of the second class Denver stood at the head and St. Joseph, Mo., at the foot of the list, the figures for the Missouri city being only $5.65 per person and those of Denver $24.44.

Salt Lake City paid most per capita for schools, $8.18, but Newton, Mass., with $8, was a close second. In this respect Montgomery, Ala., made the lowest expenditure, $1.63 per capita.

BUILDING TRADES THREATEN STRIKE

Chicago Council Holds Session on Construction Question.

Chicago, July 27.—Business agents of the Chicago Building Trades council went into session today to reach a final determination whether a strike of building trades shall be called here on buildings where the Otis Elevator company has contracts. The elevator company continues to refuse to oust its union machinists in favor of construction men, and declares it will make no concessions.

JOHN LIND TO HEAD DEMOCRATIC TICKET UNLESS A GREAT CHANGE IN THE SENTIMENT TAKES PLACE

COOPER IS VINDICATED

Indian Habits He Describes in His Novels Are Found to Exist.

Census Bureau Agent Tells of His Work in Alaska.

Washington, July 27.—"Leatherstocking" is verified and Fennimore Cooper is vindicated, and their substantiation comes as it should, through the census bureau. It is from far-away Alaska, but it is official.

This substantiation is found in a report from Chief Census Agent McKenzie, telling all about the taking of the census in the Fairbanks district. Mr. McKenzie gives assurance that the Indians do measure time by the "snows" and "suns," and distances by "sleeps." In deed, he asserts that they have no other standards of time or of measurement, and in relating the fact he cites an instance which throws no little light on the difficulties of enumerating the red men.

Finding Indians' Ages.

"Only the very young children, who have been educated in the government schools," he says, "have any knowledge of their ages or births, and the agents were instructed to use the age and birth months as nearly as talk and observation would seem to show them to be correct. Time with them is computed on suns and snows, and distance by sleeps. Marriages, separations, births and deaths are all based upon

Heavy Fog Delays Progress of the Presidential Cruise.

Portland, Me., July 27.—The yacht Mayflower, having President Taft and party on board, arrived this morning from Rockland and is anchored off Great Diamond island.

A heavy fog blanket along the coast compelled the captain of the Mayflower to reduce speed. Mrs. Taft, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Louis T. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Winthrop came ashore from the Mayflower at 10:15 today and Col. Frederick Hale, son of Senator Hale, conducted the visitors around the city.

POSSIBLE NOMINEE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

JOHN JENSWOLD, JR.

JENSWOLD LOOMING UP

Duluth Man Second Choice and His Nomination Is Possible.

Message From Lind to Convention Might Cause the Change.

Nothing Received Up to Date to Prevent His Nomination.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless one of the most remarkable reversals of sentiment ever observed in Minnesota politics manifests itself within twenty-four hours, John Lind will be the nominee of the Democratic party for governor of Minnesota.

John Jenswold, Jr., of Duluth is second choice on the card of fate. If the Democratic state convention receives from John Lind, who is at Portland, Or., a message that will make his nomination an impossibility, Jenswold will be the nominee, in the opinion of men who are prominent in Minesota Democracy. The possibility that such a message will be received has been suggested and pondered upon, but that it will come is not considered to be within the range of the probable. Mr. Lind has said what he has to say. So say his friends. What the Democrats of Minnesota may have to say may be a different and a contradictory thing. Indeed it is taken to be a fact in prospect that what the Democrats of Minnesota will say in convention assembled at Minneapolis tomorrow will be strongly, inevitably and unavoidably in favor of the nomination of John Lind for governor.

Other View Points.

There are other points of view and other opinions. Many of the delegates who will attend and vote in the convention have not yet arrived in the Twin Cities. Some men say that when the mass of delegates arrives here it will be realized that they have eliminated John Lind from the field at his own request. They tell the Inquirer that it would be the very worst politics to nominate for governor a man who does not want to run; that it would be a bad thing, elementally bad, to nominate a man who says he has no desire again to serve the people of the state as chief executive.

To these remarks the general retort is that John Lind is a Democrat and a statesman who will not permit his

NEW RAWN CASE THEORY

Family Thinks He Was Shot While Scuffling With Intruder.

Special Armed Guard Ordered to Attend Chicago Inquest.

Chicago, July 27.—Coroner Hoffman announced today that relatives of Ira G. Rawn, former president of the Monon route, who was killed by a bullet wound, have abandoned the theory that he was shot by a burglar, and have reached the conclusion he was killed by a bullet from his own revolver in a scuffle with an intruder.

The inquest over Rawn's body will be held late today. The coroner has ordered a special armed guard to attend the inquest in order to prevent possible clashes between factions that have arisen, due to the doubt as to the manner in which the former railroad man met his death.

S. H. Greeley, president of the Winnetka board, asserts he has secret evidence to be presented at the inquest which will tend to show that Mr. Rawn committed suicide.

It was recently announced from Washington that a group of American bankers, associated with British, French and German financiers, were negotiating a loan of $1,500,000 to permit Liberia to meet her obligations growing out of a loan made to her by a British syndicate.

Copper Man Is Taken Into Custody on Arrival in Court.

New York, July 27.—Arthur P. Augustus Heinze, while the latter was president of the Mercantile National bank, was taken into custody by United States Marshal Henkel when he appeared at the federal building today with his counsel. They appeared in court to ask Judge Laconib to grant a stay until October so that an appeal might be taken to the United States supreme court from the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals, affirming the judgment of the lower court.

CLOTHESLINE SAVES HIS LIFE

Three Hundred and Twenty Pound Man Escapes From New York Fire.

New York, July 27.—Trapped by a fire on the top floor of a four-story building, an hour or two before daylight today, Joseph Corranti, a 320-pound watchman, slid three stories down a clothes line to safety. The clothes line was made available for his use by the quick wit of a shoemaker, a tenant on the fourth floor of an adjoining building.

When Corranti appeared at a rear window the shoemaker cut the line, which ran from a pulley on the rear of the burning building to his window, looped one end so it would catch on the pulley, and pulled on the rope until it was fast, then let go. Corranti grabbed it and slid earthward down the frail rope. When about ten feet from the roof of a one-story shed, the cord broke and he fell the rest of the way, but the strands had held long enough to save his life.

The fire caused a loss of about $50,000.

SPEEDING TOO COMMON

Mayor Says Auto Drivers Are Returning to Old Habits.

Threatens to Suspend Police Neglecting to Arrest Violators.

The annual police crusade against auto speeding didn't last the entire season, this summer.

With the season but half over, they are again running recklessly through the city streets, endangering life and limb. The last two or three weeks' violations of the speed ordinances have been particularly noticeable.

Following the death of Mrs. Hannah Monroe several months ago the police made several arrests for violations. Coupled with the check resulting from the fatality, the drivers of cars were quite careful. They did about as they were directed by the traffic ordinances.

But with the carelessness shown recently, it is remarkable that more accidents have not happened at crossings where passengers have been entering or leaving street cars. Several persons have recently had narrow escapes in this manner.

Mayor Cullum has taken the matter of stricter enforcement of the ordinance up with Chief Troyer. "Automobile drivers have been getting altogether too careless recently," said the mayor this morning. "They will have to mend their ways or be arrested." The mayor stated that he has observed a decided tendency towards recklessness and speeding in the last month or thereabouts, and that he will not tolerate it.

Severe steps will be taken to enforce the regulations. They may be even so severe that policemen who do not arrest drivers whom they see violating the ordinance will be either suspended without pay for a period, or discharged outright whenever such neglect is reported to their superior officers or is ascertained by the mayor.

WILL BE SUBMITTED.

Wisconsin Will Vote on the Water Power Amendment.

Madison, Wis., July 27.—Attorney-General Gilbert has notified Secretary of State Frear that the proposed water power amendment to the state constitution should be submitted to a vote of the people at the November election notwithstanding that the measure has been acted upon by the legislation but once.

An amendment to the constitution requires two passages of the legislature and the sanction of a majority of the voters of the state in a regular election.

This amendment has once passed the legislature and came up a second time, when action was deferred pending the report of a special committee.

The committee's report not having been submitted and the second action not having been taken, the question arose whether the amendment could be submitted in the election next November.

The attorney general held that the second action of the legislature might follow the election, and also pointed out that there is a slight possibility of a special session.

It was necessary to decide the question at this time in order to make preparations for the election.

STRONG TONE AT THE CLOSE

Many Copper Issues Score Advance During the Session.

The copper market closed strong after values had advanced from 1 to 2½ points today. The favorable report of the United States Steel corporation yesterday caused a higher London market, which reflected a good influence on the American markets. The market opened strong and declined slightly, then advanced steadily until eleventh hour long profit taking caused a fractional slump at the close. The undertone was moderately good and shorts, who sold on much higher prices, took profits on the upturn. The metal outlook is brighter.

Trading was of fair proportions and was confined chiefly to the leaders. The United Metals Selling company has sold some more copper at a shade above 12½c. This agency has disposed of more than 30,000,000 pounds in the last week.

Amalgamated sold at $57.25, $56.50, $59.62½, $59.50, Steel at $63.87½, $63.50, $65.62½ to $65.25; Butte-Ballaklava at $11.25; Butte Coalition at $16.37½ to $16.50; Greene at $6.87½ to $6.62½ to $6.87½; Giroux at $6.37½ to $6.12½ to $6.37½; Ojibway was $5.05 b; Superior & Pittsburg at $9.87½ to $10 to $9.87½; North Butte at $22.25, $21.87½, $23.25 and $23.

ACTION SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Personal Injury Money Paid to Guardian Who Is Missing.

John Dragouvich has settled a personal damage suit against Butler Bros. for $2,150. While in their employ Dragouvich claims that he lost his right hand. The settlement was made out of court and is considered very large for such a settlement. He was represented by L. H. Corcoran.

Emanuel Charlich was some time ago appointed guardian for Dragouvich. Dragouvich became dissatisfied with his guardian and made application to the judge of probate to have him replaced. The court appointed Francis J. Pulford of the Pulford-How company.

Dragouvich alleges that Charlich was not sufficiently bonded, and that with the money paid to him by the contracting company in settlement for the loss of his hand, has departed for parts unknown. Dragouvich has been unable to find out at the bank whether or not he took the money with him.

Judge Dibell this afternoon filed an order commanding Charlich to turn over the money to the new guardian.

MANY KNIGHTS FROM DULUTH

Special Train to Chicago for Knights Templar Conclave.

Duluth will be well represented at the triennial conclave of the National Commandery, Knights Templar, which will be held in Chicago, beginning Aug. 8. At this time it is known that about seventy-five members of Duluth Commandery, No. 18, will attend, and there are some prospects of even a larger number going.

A special train will leave this city on the day before the conclave opens. Provisions will be made on this train for the many delegations from the range towns, which also will have large representation.

In Minnesota there are now over fifty commanderies, nearly all of which will be represented. These will be together in the sessions under the Grand Commandery of Minnesota which will be in the twelfth division according to arrangements made by the national committee.

Jesse Norton, George W. Buck and several other Duluth men will take prominent part in the conclave it is understood among local Knights Templar. Mr. Norton, who is an officer in the Grand Commandery of Minnesota, will represent that body.

The triennial conclave is one of the biggest affairs held by the Knights Templars, and it is believed that the Windy City will have an opportunity to entertain more than 50,000 members.

Every state in the Union will be represented at this conclave.

NEW RAILROAD IS BEING SURVEYED

Fergus Falls Expects Line to Pass Through That City.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The railway surveyors who have been working in the vicinity of Alexandria are moving steadily in the direction of this city. They were in the vicinity of Ashland Sunday. Their chief engineer was here a few days ago and made arrangements for eight maps of the city of Fergus Falls, which indicates that they are thinking of coming to this city. The line, as they are running it will almost have to come through Fergus Falls unless it strikes off through the eastern part of the county as the Soo did.

While it has been reported that these surveyors are in the employ of the Milwaukee road, they do not say by what company they are employed, and there is good reason for doubting if they are in the employ of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the new Canadian transcontinental line, which is reported to be seeking a route to Chicago. This line would be a most important acquisition to Fergus Falls, as it would give the city a direct Chicago line and also a direct connection with what is going to be the leading transcontinental system of Canada.

S.S.S. FOR SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

Smooth, healthy skins are a rarity in Summer. Most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. All skin affections come from humors and acids in the circulation. The blood, as it circulates through the system, deposits these acids and humors in the sensitive membranous flesh which lies just beneath the outer skin or tissue covering the body. This acrid matter causes inflammation and a discharge which breaks through the delicate cuticle, and skin diseases are the result. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be freed from all acids and humors, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. This great blood purifier goes down into the circulation and completely removes every particle of impurity, enriches the blood and in this way permanently cures skin diseases. S. S. S. cures, because it purifies the blood and allows it to nourish, soothe, and soften the skin instead of irritating it with fiery acids and humors. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free. CONCERNING WOMAN.

The children have been making jellies during the last few days and the clear bright jelly, the result of their work, has been much admired by visitors to the classes. HOW TO LOOK YOUNG

By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS.

There is no necessity for one's growing old if you will but begin in time. The woman of 25 may remain as she is for many years if she but knows how to go about the task.

But what is there to be done, and what must be avoided in order to accomplish this?

Simply this: Sit down before your mirror (one that gives a clear reflection of you and does not flatter and study yourself thoroughly, not in a hasty, slipshod manner, subjecting to this crucial test not only your face, but your figure, and clothes, too.

Make comparisons between your own person and gown with those of women you consider perfect or as near perfection as ever a woman can be.

Study the lines, the color, the style and expression, and let every detail no matter how insignificant pass review before your mental eye as well as your physical one, reflected in the mirror. The complexion is a telltale of one's real age unless most scrupulously cared for.

Every woman knows that all beauty of feature has a bitter foe in imperfections of the skin, which are apt to make their appearance after a woman is past her first youth—enlarged pores, dry or oily skin, and the worst of all—wrinkles.

Wrinkles are to be expected after 60, but previous to that age they ought not to appear in a woman's face.

In every instance they are not due to inanition of the skin; very often they are due to force of habit.

In the former case some good skin food must be taken refuge to. In the latter the only course to pursue is to break your frowning or scowling habit by all means before the wrinkles have rooted too deeply.

If your figure becomes too portly and matronly, and has lost its elasticity and springiness restore its former slenderness by sensibly indulged exercising, and if it becomes too thin adopt exercises that will work in the opposite way.

Extreme neatness is the most essential thing in every woman past 25. Her dress should be perfect in every respect and free from any negligence no matter how slight. What is pardonable in a whirlwind of a girl—a slipped-down collar band, an open or wrongly closed button, etc., in the mature woman is judged as a capital offense.

As a woman gets on in years her hands ofttimes show a tendency to become thin, dark and yellow about the wrists and to show a network of large blue veins.

You can relieve yourself of these in the following manner: Soak the hands in hot water for the length of a few minutes, then place them in a bowl and pour warm oil sparingly almost to the finger tips, devoting about five minutes of this treatment to each hand. The arm, too, may be bathed in this fashion, and thus maintained white and youthful appearing.

If a woman wishes to look young, dog collar and other heavy jewels must not be worn. If jewels are worn at all let them be modest and small in number; the prettiest by far, and the most becoming is a slender necklace, with but a small pendant drooping from it.

Then with the head properly poised, and the shoulders properly draped, it will be an easy matter to appear at least ten years younger than you really are.

THE MOTHER'S HOLIDAY

By MRS. GEORGE BRANDT WINTHROP.

It is only of late years that it has ever been supposed that a mother needed a holiday. I wonder if this rises from the modern way of looking at things, woman in particular, as being made of the same flesh and blood as men, and not a mere household mammal which, wound up, is warranted to go forever, or at least until it is worn out, as, of course, very often happened, especially with mothers.

I do think most mothers earn a holiday, and a real good one, too—one in which they would need to do nothing, if it so pleased them, and if they worked at all, it would be work differing from theirs at home.

A mother has much to do, especially if she is single-handed; indeed, I quite agree with a famous cergyman who said he was sure the mother of a young family who was without help was one of the most hard worked of human beings if she in any way did her duty to the children and the house. She is always going.

Isn't it fit, then, that once a year she should have a real holiday? Of course, but how is it to be managed? Perhaps she has a sister—one of those all-useful spinster aunts, who might come and take her place for a while, and a very self-sacrificing thing of her to do, too, or some other relation who could be well trusted; but even so, would the mother go away with a quiet mind? or, will she not be thinking of all the evils that might happen without her watchful care? Most likely; and is there any benefit to the body when the mind's ill at ease?

I leave the question with you, but all the same I am sure that every real mother needs a real holiday once a year at least.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PEACE TOKEN

By John Greatheart.

The agency was deserted, everybody was away on the annual week's summer picnic holiday. All save the agent, McLaughlin, to whom all picnics were a bore, sat alone in his office. McLaughlin, in spite of the warm weather, was busy with annual reports to his commissioner.

He was deep in the tolls of work when there came a knock at his front door. He knew the hesitating rap was that of an Indian, and a woman.

"Come!" he said, and his pen sped on, leaving his visitor to wait.

"Please, sir, father!"

He recognized the voice and turned. The girl was standing inside the door, dressed in her school uniform. Her face was pale, her breath quick. Evidently she had been riding fast.

"Why, Sallie," said McLaughlin, "I thought you were at the school picnic. Is something wrong?"

Sallie was the daughter of the headman of his Indians, a bright pupil at the school and a favorite with both the agent and his wife.

She told her tale. It referred to the theft of horses from the cattlemen by a band of young Indians, which threatened trouble, and she implored the agent to interefre and prevent a tragedy.

The girl then hurried outside, ran to her pony, mounted, and was off.

McLaughlin was convinced that Sallie had been frightened and nervous, and had imagined much. The Indians had run off some stock from the outlying ranches. Very well, the horses must be returned, although there was complaint, well founded, that the ranchmen had been none too careful about branding young horses on the agency borders.

At any rate, the cattlemen, if they were coming, would come to the agency first, he concluded. An old feud among his Indians, between the bands of Turtle Face, the horse stealers, and Iron Crow, Sallie's father, had given hime some trouble in his four years of office. Still, McLaughlin did not believe that either band wished to embroil its tribe in a war with the whites. So he sat down again to his work.

It was a couple of hours later that he was interrupted by the entrance of Crooked Road, the Indian policeman.

"Cattlemans he come," was the blue-coat's laconic announcement. He pointed to the West. McLaughlin stepped to the window. Even through its wire screen he could disern several miles away a string of objects moving diagonally across the "Burnt Wood" slopes. He got his field glass and ran outside. There the blurred objects were quickly resolved into horsemen wearing hats. They were not coming toward the agency, but were riding leisurely toward the Indian encampment, nearly two miles below.

The agent sped away. "Stay here!" he shouted back to his policeman. Although the day was warm he covered the distance to Wolf Creek at a dog-trot. He beat the squad of horsemen by a mile or so; but when he reached the encampment he found his Indians had fled. They had evidently sighted the cavalcade.

He wanted to get to his Indians before the cattlemen, or at least to be with them at the encounter. He hoped that he might prevail upon them to restore the stolen stock, and that he might induce the cowmen to leave the rest to the government.

As he was the only person in sight, the squad of cowmen came straight on, until they confronted him at short range.

One of the men, the leader evidently, rode to within a few paces before halting. This man was short and slight of build; he had a close-cropped sandy beard and a face as innocent of stern purpose as that of a schoolboy at play.

"How, how!" said the individual. "Are you the agent at Burnt Wood?"

"I am," returned McLaughlin. "What will you have?"

"Three cow ponies and a couple of Injuns, if you please," was the smiling and wholly dispassionate reply.

As much as anything to hide his growing excitement, the agent laughed.

"Sat, friend, you didn't give your Reds a tip to get into them bushes, did you? You look some heated." He spoke as pleasantly as before.

McLaughlin's eye glanced along the line of horsemen, armed with rifle and revolver. He measured his words.

"I had a tip that you men, or some men, were coming after ponies which some of the young Indians foolishly stole," he said. "I believe your stock is near at hand. It shall be returned the reckless fellow was unhorsed and unarmed in a trice.

Sallie had not halted. She came unwaveringly on. No other Indian tried to interiere with her evident purpose.

Very pale of face, but composed, she halted in front of the nearer cowmen and faced their leader.

"I bring your horses," said Sallie, slowly and with effort. "I, the daughter of Iron Crow, has done this. Do not kill more of our people; I think I die now."

She dropped forward upon the withers of her pony. In an agony of apprehension McLaughlin sprang toward her; but quicker was the cowboy leader was before him. The man leaped off his horse, caught the stricken girl in his arms and eased her gently to the ground. He glanced in great concern at the lifeless face.

"Good Lord, fellows," he said, "this pore gal's dead!" He turned to his troop. "Hats off, men!"

While McLaughlin was bending over Sallie every cowboy's hat came off, and so for a moment they sat in silence, while the Indians, abashed and concerned for the rash act of their fellow, made no move to regain the ponies.

"And now, men," said the cowboy leader, "we can't do any good here. Them stolen horses was mine, but I'll leave 'em here and that gal's folks can have 'em. You understand?" he asked, turning to Yellow Antelope.

"We hear," said the Indian, solemnly. "It is a peace token—it is enough."

But Sallie, although severely wounded, did not die. A skillful physician and tender nursing restored her to health. She is today the wife of a prosperous Oklahoma farmer of mixed blood.

DO IT WITH ONE WISH

By CARA REESE

Why not wish that you do not need to wish? In other words, bunch the job lot of wishes into one.

This thing of one day wishing for money, the next day wishing for a vacation, the next day wishing that you had a few relatives and friends who knew how to appreciate you, is a waste of good time. Or, wishing for free transportation, or to be a prize winner, or promoted, or to be a hero, or even wishing for beter clothes than you have, for the chance of the other fellow or a knowledge of the questions in the forthcoming examination paper, is a scattering of good breath over a variety of desires instead of concentrating effort in one downright effective "blow," a solar plexus, so to speak, of wishing that you do not need to wish?

To wish fervently that you do not need to wish, is to knock out all the scattered small desires and bring the power of suggestion or mental force to bear on a point that covers the whole. You know how the patent lawyers do with their clients? Sometimes these clients are insistent on detail claims, a patent desired for this small point or that small detail of invention. It is the business of the honest attorney to discern the "process" or the "principle" involved and "cover" this first of all, shaking the real thing out from the mass of the minor points or accessories.

And you know how the reporter or the editor does? From out of the mass of information and the conglomeration of facts, figures and fancies, he makes a straight dive, as it were, for the vital stuff. With the vital matter dragged forth and held up by the ears, the small details of contributing features soon settle harmoniously into place. And it is the same with doctors. To the amateur the cuts, bruises and lacerations visible to the eye are of terrifying importance. But the doctor pays small heed until he is master of the situation in its vital aspect. All this might be termed the "getting at the gist," the main point, the point on which the whole action rests.

And the idea might be carried out in the wishing business. There is a tremendous amount of energy wasted in wishing. Wishing is heard in the cars, on the streets, in the depots, the places of business, in the homes and wherever mortal tongue wags. "I wish," and over and over is heard the desire expressed for what at the time is unobtainable. Why not wish that you do not need to wish? In other words "cover" the main point and thus settle for good and all the detailed desires?

But there you go, wishing that the folks would come before the meal is spoiled, wishing that the rain would postpone until the wash is dried, wishing that the postman would bring a favorable letter, or that you had fame, power, something which is at present denied. If you really must wish, be a professional, the vital point first.

BLISS OF KISSING

By POLLY PAGET

A smile is an open window, a kiss is an open door.

As with commodities, so with kissing, the greater the rarity, the greater the value

A cheek surreptitiously brushed in the dark is preferable to lips permittedly pressed by day.

A kiss is like faith; it is "evidence of things not seen, the substance of things hoped for."

Kissing, like misfortunes, rarely come singly—and her many things in their train.

A woman who is afraid of a kiss knows much.

There are Edens for us all if only we will not eat of the forbidden fruit.

You can be sure about some things only by answering some want ads—some important things, too!

JURY "PRESUMES" THAT BRANDT STABBED LUECK

Verdict Returned at Inquest Is Not Very Definite.

Witnesses Not Examined Regarding Any Former Feud Between Men.

In the verdict reached yesterday afternoon by the coroner's jury at the inquest over the body of Emil Lueck, killed early Monday morning in a stabbing affray, the point of issue is practically dodged, and no definite blame laid on Frederick O. Brandt, who is said to have wielded the knife that caused Lueck's death.

By his action the case is put fairly before the courts to solve, as to the guilt of Brandt, who is now under arrest. The preliminary hearing will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the municipal court.

The verdict reached by the jury reads as follows:

"We, the coroner's jury, find that Emil Lueck came to his death by severance of the femoral artery of the leg inflicted by a knife or some sharp instrument, presumably in the hand of Frederick Otto Brandt."

Indications are that the jury was inclined to favor Brandt after all the evidence from the many witnesses had been received, all of which tended to show that there had been a bitter feeling between the two men, and especially on the part of Lueck, who is said to have remarked on several occasions that he would "fix Brandt."

The stabbing affray took place on North Lake avenue at an early hour last Monday morning, following an entertainment in the Maccabee hall, at which both men were present.

The witnesses called yesterday did not give any details of the old trouble between Brandt and Lueck, said to have been over a woman, nor were they asked any questions as to their past relations. All interrogations by Assistant County Attorney Greene were confined to happenings of the night on which Lueck was fatally wounded.

The first signs of trouble occurred when the lights were turned out first. At that time William Metter, cigar maker, who was sitting beside Lueck, testified that he heard him state that if anybody turned out the lights he "would fix him."

His brother, Herman Metter, stated that when he left the hall he heard Lueck declare that he would lay for Brandt. Not thinking that the crowd congregated about the doorway would allow any fight he explained that he went on. But he heard the fight start before he had gone far. He said that when he tried to pull Lueck off some one took him by the shoulder, telling him that the fight was between the two men on the pavement. He said that from the voice he thought it was Henry Krause, a cousin of Lueck. He asserted that Lueck was on top of Brandt, pummeling him and that he heard him say that he was cut when he started to separate them.

None of the witnesses heard Lueck make any statement after the fray. One of them ran after a glass of water for him and another who went with him in the ambulance testified that Lueck was too weak to talk much, but that he declared that he was dying while he was being taken to the hospital.

Dr. F. F. Clark, who performed the post mortem, stated that the nature of the wound indicated that the instrument which inflicted it had been wielded from underneath. He explained that the large femoral artery and femoral vein in the leg had been severed. He was positive that death was due to loss of blood alone, as the heart chambers were empty and the larger arteries nearly dry, as were the lungs.

Mats for Engineers.

Cocoanut mats have been provided for engineers and firemen on the Baden State Railway to prevent the hearing from being affected by the vibration of the engines. Worthy of note also is the fact that Golden Grain Belt beer is an ideal summer table beverage, and surpasses tea or coffee, in that it is a tonic, as well as a cooling and refreshing drink. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

THERE WILL BE A DANCE

At Lincoln Park Tonight

After Carrie Nation's speech. Dancing from 9 to 12. Tickets, 25 cents.

WILL REOPEN NEXT SATURDAY

Boyle's Hotel and Restaurant Completely Remodeled and Refurnished for Business.

After being closed for three months, during which the whole establishment underwent remodeling, redecorating and refurnishing, Boyle's European hotel, and restaurant at 319 West Superior street, will be opened Saturday morning about 9 o'clock. The first meal served will be the noonday luncheon.

News of the reopening of the popular establishment will be received with interest by Duluth people and by visitors, many of whom have been disappointed this season in not finding Boyle's place open for those excellent meals which have made the place noted in a way. "Boyle's" is a familiar term to the people in this part of the country and the name has become identified with Duluth as the highest class eating place, as Delmonico's is to New York or Davenport's to Spokane, Wash.

Charles Boyle, the proprietor, who succeeded Boyle Bros. to the business, first opened at 317 West Superior street, Oct. 27, 1887, remaining continuously in business in that location until last spring, when his lease expired. Mr. Boyle then turned his attention to remodeling and refitting and refurnishing No. 319 West Superior street, which had for some time past been included in the property operated by James Boyle. The work took much longer than was expected, but the results are highly satisfactory and the public will be greatly pleased with the changes.

Mr. Boyle says that the only thing he regrets is that he cannot take with him the big flagstones in front of No. 317, which he purchased in Chicago and which formed about the first stone sidewalk in the business section of the city. The stones are in as good condition as when they were originally laid.

The same high standard of service and cuisine that characterized Boyle's place in the past will continue to be a feature of the new place. White waiters will be employed.

Mr. Boyle will occupy the entire three floors of the building, with the exception of the cigar store in the front of the first floor.

The floors throughout have been tiled, a pretty pattern, steel ceilings have been put in and the painting and decorating is of the highest order. Handsome fixtures and Tungsten electric lights do much in showing the place to advantage. The wood finish throughout is a beautiful mahogany, matching the old mahogany fixtures that Mr. Boyle brought here from Chicago twenty-three years ago. Joseph Donauer, who was then starting in business here, set up the fixtures and recently took them down in No. 317 to reset them in No. 319. The ladies' and gantlemen's dining room, just off the corridor, on entering the building, is a model of its kind.

The gentlemen's dining room, on the location of the old public dining room, has undergone some marked changes. Railroad style booths are arranged along the east side of the room, the mahogany seats made luxurious with leather cushions. Above the mahogany panels the wall has been beautifully decorated with northern scenery by a local artist.

A mahogany partition separates the booths from the bar on the west side of the room. Splendid light and ventilation are had by means of a large skylight. The kitchen at the rear has been equipped with every modern appliance for a first-class restaurant. Among the features are the cold storage facilities for the meats, fish and other perishable foods. The strictest precautions have been observed for sanitary conditions.

There is one private dining room off the large room.

The rooms on the second and third floors have been completely refurnished and are attractive and comfortable in every way. Every room has hot and cold water and the front rooms have baths. Mr. Boyle aims to have the rooms filled with regular roomers, but provision has been made to take care of a limited amount of transient trade.

There are four nice private dining rooms on the second floor, all furnished in keeping with the general scheme, in mahogany finish.

MARINE NEWS

TRAFFIC REPORT IS MISLEADING

Figures Do Not Show True State of Affairs at the Soo.

Sault St. Marie, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The published figures relating to the traffic passing through the Soo canals for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, while true so far as they go, are misleading to the general public, and do not show the true condition of affairs relating to Lake Superior traffic.

The figures show a falling off in commerce, while as a matter of fact the year was the largest in the history of the Canadian canal, showing an increase of nearly 19,000,000 tons over 1909.

The error lies in not taking into consideration the traffic brought through the Canadian lock, which is greater than that of the American for the year owing to its being able to accommodate boats of a greater draught and ore carriers loading to capacity.

The following comparison of traffic for both canals will explain the error:

Registered tonnage for 1909..36,254,497
For 1910 53,791,412
Freight tonnage for 1909..... 47,505,579
For 1910 66,104,853

DOUBT STORY OF BIG FORTUNE

Similar Reports Were Published Some Time Ago In Fort William.

Duluth men who are well acquainted with affairs in Fort William are inclined to doubt the story that F. C. Berg, an employe of the Royal lunchroom, has fallen heir to 125,000 marks in German money, which is equivalent to $31,000.

A similar story was published about him some time ago in the Fort William papers, but as yet there are no indications that he has been so fortunate. He is said to have spread the story that he is a German count.

His claim is that his elder brother, a noted German physician, died recently, leaving him and his son Paul this fortune, which, however, is not payable until all the legal steps in the German courts have been taken, which will require considerable time.

During the three months that Berg has been in Duluth he has worked in two or three restaurants. Even the proprietors of these places, as well as the one for whom he is now working, are inclined to discredit the story.

COPPER COUNTRY TEMPLARS GOING TO CONCLAVE.

The run will be made in less than twelve hours, the quickest time ever made between Calumet and Chicago. Two hundred of the Copper country knights will march in the great parade during the conclave.

NEW BETHEL THEIR AIM

Campaign to Raise $125,000 Will Be Begun This Fall.

The New Building Will Be Erected on West First Street.

Preliminary preparations have been made for the big campaign to be carried on by the Bethel association for the raising of $125,000 for the construction of a new Bethel. This campaign will be started about Oct. 1, and will be carried on by about 100 leading business men and women interested in the work of that institution.

The system which will be used in this campaign will be a thorough canvas of the entire city, so that all persons will be given an opportunity to subscribe towards the cause. This system will consist of cards, each bearing the name of a resident of Duluth, and a directory will practically be compiled by the workers.

These cards will be turned into the hands of the collectors, with instructions that each must be called upon for assistance. This method, adopted in many cities where such a campaign has been waged, has been very successful, and no person will be omitted, while not approached by more than by one solicitor.

It is expected that by this means the city can be canvassed in two weeks, with a much more satisfactory result than by schemes worked in former campaigns. The Bethel workers claim that they have been given considerable encouragement in their efforts to secure funds for a new building, from prominent business men.

According to the latest plans, this building will be erected on First street, somewhere between Fifth and Seventh avenues west. When the movement to build a new Bethel was started two years ago, it was hoped that a site on Superior street, near the location of the branch Bethel, could be secured, but at the present high prices of real estate in this vicinity, the matter is out of the question, say the Bethel officials.

When the money for the new building has been raised, it is planned that the old structure on Lake avenue and Sutphin street, which was erected over twenty years ago, will be sold, and it is believed that it will bring a fairly good price, as it is in a desirable wholesale district.

Each day the need of a larger and more commodious building becomes apparent, for the number of men served with meals and lodging is continually increasing.

Some of the funds raised in this campaign will also be used in the building of a new Bethel Home. The present Home, it is claimed is too small, having accomodations for only thirty women. The officials state that there is need for one which will have room for at least fifty women.

EAST GRAND FORKS TO REMOVE TELEPHONE POLLS.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the terms of an ordinance that was given its first reading by the city council this week, Demers avenue, the principal business street of the city, will be cleared of all poles, wires and similar obstructions. In taking this step, East Grand Forks is adopting the same policy that Grand Forks took some time ago in clearing its streets so far as possible of all unnecessary obstructions.

DEMAND FOR BINDERS BELIE CROP REPORTS.

Minot, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—That there is still considerable grain in the northwestern part of the state is indicated by the record made in the matter of binder sales by one company in this city. The International Harvesting company has sold during the season a total of 150 machines, and in almost every case they have gone to farmers who have been obliged to secure more machinery because of their increased acreage.

OHIO REPUBLICANS NOMINATE HARDING TO OPPOSE HARMON

committee be determined after a conference with James R. Garfield.

The recommendations of the sub-committee which completed the first draft of the platform early this morning were not closely followed. One omission was of the plank asking a recall law applying to state executive and legislative officers. This was a feature of the Garfield platform given out Monday night.

Like That Shown Taft.

The platform, as finally evolved by the entire committee on resolutions, is practically a replica of the draft shown to President Taft by Senator Dick and State Chairman Wade H. Ellis at Beverly, Mass. The conservation plank, however, is that presented by Garfield men on the committee, and the indorsement of the national administration is a modification of the suggestions of both sides.

As a whole, it is claimed by the "regulars" as their own in spirit and substance.

The Republican platform, which is expected to be a model for use by future Republican state conventions as the expression of the party in the president's own state, opens with a warm indorsement of the chief executive. Senator Dick, who seeks reelection, was not singled out for specific indorsement.

The portions of the platform dealing with the administration, congress and with the tariff are in full as follows:

"We, the Republicans of Ohio, in state convention assembled, commend in highest terms the splendid administration of William H. Taft; are proud of the results he has already achieved in his seventeen months in office, and pledge him our hearty and united support in his further efforts as chief executive of the nation. We renew our pledge of loyal support given him in 1908, and indorse him for renomination in 1912.

Praise the Administration.

"Among the many accomplishments of President Taft's administration worthy of special praise are:

"Prosecution and conviction of those implicated in the sugar frauds against the government, and other violators of federal statutes.

"Prompt and successful intervention to prevent arbitrary increases in railroad freight rates.

"Effective enforcement of the law against illegal dealing in stocks.

"Indictment of those involved in the cotton pool formed to raise the price of one of the necessities of life in every American family.

"Impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

"Substantial reduction in government expenses, saving $1,000,000 a month in the postoffice department with a fair promise of wiping out the annual postal deficiency.

"Such remarkable progress in the construction of the Panama canal as insures its early completion.

"Withdrawal from private entry in order to preserve for the public benefit valuable coal and other mineral deposits, timber lands and water power sites, of over 71,000,000 acres of the public domain.

In Foreign Affairs.

"It has strengthened our prestige with foreign nations, and has treated with vigor and wisdom, important and delicate international problems.

"It has dealt justly and liberally with our dependencies.

"The record of achievement of this administration and the Sixty-first congress is unequalled in our history, and guarantees faithful adherence to all the pledges of the last Republican national platform. The election of a Republican congress next November is imperatively necessary to accomplish the entire program of the Taft administration.

"The tariff has been revised in accordance with the Republican doctrine of protecting home industries and American labor. It did not raise the rate of duty on a single common food product. The increases made were on luxuries and articles not of ordinary use.

Tariff and Protection.

"It afforded no more than adequate protection to the industries of the nation, and is fair alike to consumers, laborers and producers. No tariff bill was more unjustly assailed. It has justified the expectations of its friends by turning a national deficit into a surplus, while at the same time reducing the average rate of all duties. Its maximum and minimum rates have operated to give us for the first time equality of opportunity with other nations in our foreign trade.

"The Republican party, through congress and the president, has given free trade to the Philippines with such limitations as to sugar and tobacco as will afford protection to domestic industries, and has established a customs court.

The Tariff Board.

"Recognizing inequalities due to changing conditions or that otherwise may be found to exist, congress has provided a tariff board, with an ample appropriation, for the investigation of the differences in the cost of production at home and abroad, so that if any rates are found to be higher than necessary to afford labor a high wage and capital a fair return, those rates will be reduced."

Praise is given to the railroad law, and a list of congressional achievements is given. The platform continues:

"Our senators and representatives in congress have maintained the highest standard of ability and devotion to duty, which have always characterized Ohio's representation in the federal legislature.

For Merchant Marine.

"We favor legislation which will revive our merchant marine; the equal enforcement of all laws; an adequate national defense, with a navy ample to protect all our interests at home and abroad, while favoring arbitration in the settlement of international disputes; the systematic, comprehensive and business-like improvement of our rivers, harbors and waterways, and such amendment of the anti-trust law as final judicial interpretation proves to be necessary for the proper regulation of monopolies.

"We commend the action of congress in the creation of a commission to investigate the question of employers' liability laws and workmen's compensation acts. We believe that industrial accidents to workmen should be treated as inevitable accidents to industrial operations, and the compensation therefore as a part of the cost of production.

Principle of Conservation.

"We indorse the principle of conservation of our natural resources and

CIRCUS WAR RESULTS IN CUTTING PRICE OF ADMISSION TO THE SELLS-FLOTO SHOW

THE MARVELOUS McELNOTTS,
High Wire Artists With the Sells-Floto Shows.

Advertising car No. 3 of the Sells-Floto show reached the city this morning and its crew got busy with hand bills and big posters, announcing the advent of this great attraction, and what, perhaps, will appeal to all more than anything else, the fact that the management has decided to reduce the admission to the sum of 25 cents.

In explaining this departure Arthur Bennett, who is here representing the proprietors, said:

"Now, don't misunderstand this offer of ours. We make it without equivocation or reservation. For 25 cents our patrons are entitled to see the Sells-Floto show in its entirety. This includes our famous menagerie, embracing the most remarkable congress of the big cat family to be seen in any zoological collection.

"For the price of admission you can also see the entire performance, the greatest ever given by the greatest independent show on the face of the globe—the Armour grays, the famous bare-back acts, the astounding aerial feats, Spader Johnson, the king of clowns, and an army of "joy artists." Omar Khayyam, the handsomest horse in the world; the celebrated Nelsons, in the one star of all star circus acts; the contortionists, trained elephants, the Roman chariot races, the troupes of canine thespians, and a host of other attractions—all for 25 cents.

"Everyone who keeps in touch with the amusement world is familiar with the circumstances which lead up to the circus war. Our text has been the good old declaration of independence. We are of the West—Western. There is plenty of room for everybody—territory enough for us and sufficient left over for our rivals, but they can't seem to think so. The proprietors of the Sells-Floto show make their own songs and sing them. They have always refused to be coerced in any way. They are not tethered to the throne of any trust. They have no quarrel with anyone in the same line of business and are quite willing that they should conduct their own affairs in their own way, reserving these same rights for themselves. That is about the size of the argument in a nutshell and the real reason why it is possible to see the greatest independent show in the world for a nominal sum."

cordially indorse the action of the present congress in enacting, and of President Taft in approving, legislation along this line. We refer particularly, first, to the act of congress conferring upon the president express power to withdraw public lands from entry and settlement whenever the public welfare demands; and, second, to the act separating the surface from the coal, and authorizing agricultural homestead entries on land heretofore withdrawn from entry or settlement under coal land classification.

"We demand that enforcement of existing laws and the enactment of new laws for the protection, wise use and conservation of the natural resources under the control of the Federal government. These resources, such as the coal deposits of Alaska, water power and reservoir sites, should be developed under a system by which any abuses of monopoly can be avoided, extortion from the consumer prevented, and just compensation to the public obtained."

Some Other Planks.

Other planks are for:

Limiting the tax rate for all purposes to 10 mills; supervision and regulation of all public utilities by a commission, guaranteeing to municipalities the right of home rule and to the people the right to vote directly on granting public franchises; legislation for establishing good roads; protection of labor; a state law requiring the publicity of campaign contributions; ratification of the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution; individual punishment for corporate offenses; the calling of a constitutional convention to draft a new state Constitution.

labor. It has permitted a portion of the public domain to become the property of syndicates for private purposes. It has permitted the expenditure of public funds to become so wasteful as to call for the protest of an outraged people.

Appeal for Redress.

"Against this line of unjust and oppressive laws a patient but suffering people refuse to longer remain silent. Against such legislation as this all parties protest and appeal to the public for a redress of such wrongs. Against such legislation as this, in which graft and greed are the potential elements, a united democracy stands as its foremost enemy, and will, at the bar of public opinion, defy its defenders and overthrow its makers.

"This political organization, condemned by its membership, without the confidence of the public, is today appealing for the approval of its acts. The spectacle is presented of the president of the United States, the chief executive of the nation, proclaiming that the Payne-Aldrich tariff law is the best ever enacted—the one act that fails to reduce the tax to the consumer, that gives to the woolen and cotton combination and to iron and steel more of a chance to exploit the people of the United States than any tariff act ever enacted, yet it is announced this measure is to be the criterion of the well-doing of this administration.

Issues Are Made Up.

"The battle ground is marked out, the issues are made up and the representatives of the people must be as sincere and devoted after election as they apparently were before. Democracy stands for revision of the tariff, the removal of the tax on the necessaries of life, that duties should be for the purpose of obtaining revenue and not for private graft. Economy in expenditure of public affairs, the election of the United States senators by the people, that the wealth of the nation bear its share of the burden, and that equal opportunities be granted to all. Upon these issues we need not fear the result. The Democratic party must not lose the confidence of the people. It must meet the questions arising, and the one uppermost this hour is whether man or property shall rule."

Addressed by Porter.

Claude R. Porter, Democratic nominee for governor of Iowa, addressed the convention today. Mr. Porter thanked the delegates and the people of Iowa for honoring him, and said:

"No man in Iowa, of any party, or any candidate for any office, enters this campaign with greater hope of ultimate victory."

Attacked Taft Administration.

Mr. Porter attacked the president in regard to the bill regulating railways, and the income tax. Continuing he said:

"If the last eighteen months has done anything, it is to remove any further uncertainty but that the Republican party as now controlled and managed is the faithful ally of the vested wealth of the East.

"Let the Democratic party stand, not for a destruction of the tariff, nor for its enactment in the interests of the trusts and combines that infest the land, but for a fair, honest revision downward that need not injure a single honest producer, but will afford genuine relief to the millions of consumers."

An income tax; popular election of the United States senators; efficient control and regulation of our railroads, and economy in all governmental expenditures were urged.

COOPER IS VINDICATED

such calculations, and we were obliged to base our information in the same way."

He then gives this instance:

"An Indian buck claimed to have lived '200 snows.' After much talk and use of the sign language it was determined that he was about 80 years old. He was found to have been 20 snows old when he 'got first woman;' to have kept her 'four snows, when she got away;' that he 'got more woman and keep her five snows and she die;' that he 'got no woman for 20 snows more', and finally that he 'got young chicken and keep her all time ever since, now, on 25 or 30 snows.."

Had to Be Persuaded.

That there were other difficulties in getting the facts regarding the aborigines is indicated by the following from the report:

"Many of the Indians know a sufficient number of English words to do business with a white man, but when it was determined that they were to be counted they had a faculty for closing their mouths and knowing nothing until an interpreter impressed upon them the fact that the agent came from the Great White Father at Washington."

Regarding the habits and character of the people, he says:

"As a class they are indolent, lazy and dirty, although in recent years the tachers have taught the younger ones that dirt has been the cause of much of their illness and the present generation are keeping themselves healthier by bathing. Their homes are filthy as a rule, and conducive to the diseases with which the Indians are most afflicted.

Seldom Ask Money.

"They spend their winters in hunting and their summers in fishing. Furs secured—hides of moose and caribou—are brought to the traders and exchanged for food and clothing, but seldom for money. Out of these hides they also make moccasions, gloves, mittens and other curios, which they trade in the same way. The fish caught in the summer are dried and used for food for themselves and their dogs during the winter.

"The Indians have no knowledge of their tribal or clan names, and are always called by their village or locality name. The Indians in the vicinity of Chandlar river are called "Chandlar" Indians. The same is true of the Chena, Salcha, Tanana, Mansfield and Circle tribes, etc. The missionaries and the bureau of education have determined, however, that all of the Indians in the interior of Alaska are Athabascan-Knaioko-Hotana, with the exception of those in the Koyakuk district, who are Athabascan-Koyakohotana."

CASE GOES TO THE JURY

Action for Alienation Is Under Consideration By the Twelve Men.

Courtroom Is Filled When the Final Arguments Are Made.

Before night David A. Miller should know whether or not he will recover damages for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. The case against Isaac Helstein, Henry Helstein, Morris Harley, Robert Ashinsky and Joseph Fox, went to the jury this afternoon.

Joseph Littman has not been brought into the case sufficiently to show that he was in any way mixed up with it and his name has been dropped from the list of defendants.

The case was begun in district court before Judge Dibell one week ago Thursday. It has been before a jury for two weeks, less one day. The evidence has been minute and the smallest details have been dug deeply into. Much of the evidence has been unfit to print.

Toward the close the trial has played

MR. AND MRS. DAVID A. MILLER.

to "big business." Today when the closing arguments were made the courtroom was crowded with those interested directly and indirectly, and the curious.

Attorney Charles Baldwin made his plea to the jury yesterday afternoon. Victor Power, with whom Mr. Baldwin was associated in defending, made his final plea this morning. Attorney Alexander Marshall, for the plaintiff, summed up his case and pleaded for a verdict favoring the plaintiff this afternoon.

Miller claims that by words and deeds the defendants alienated his wife's affections and established a barrier between them which time has not been able to overcome. Miller also claims that he was the victim of a conspiracy formed by the above named defendants to catch him in a room with an immoral woman at a West end hotel. He claims that she was paid by the defendants and that she lured him there on a pretense of selling him jewelry.

The defendants claim that by cruel and inhuman treatment Miller was alone responsible for the change in his wife's feelings.

Another thunder storm is scheduled for this afternoon or this evening, which, according to the weather man, is to be rather serious. Its coming may be delayed until tomorrow, or it may be of such a severe nature as to continue tonight and tomorrow.

At 5 o'clock this morning the temperature was registered at 57 degrees on the hill top, the lowest record for the night, but the mercury began rising quite rapidly, and there were some indications during the morning that this was to be another of Duluth's hot days. The weather cooled off shortly after noon, however.

In the southern part of this state and Wisconsin the weather is extremely hot, and the weather bureau states that this condition will continue there.

The storm that is to visit Duluth is headed here from the northwest, where it has left some traces. There seem to be no indications that it will pass over the city without making itself felt, states the weather man. Whether there will be continued rain here for some time, the bureau cannot at this time determine.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

BIG SNEEZE CONVENTION

The Hay Fever Sufferers Are Flocking to Duluth Again.

Watery Eyes and Red Noses Only Requirements of Delegates.

The annual convention of the G. A. O. H. H. S. W. is being held in Duluth, as usual. The members of the order come every year about this time from all parts of the United States, remain several weeks, enjoy themselves and reluctantly depart for their homes determined to return the following year for the big convention.

Many Duluthians, perhaps, have never heard of the order, but they have certainly heard its members. Wheezing and sneezing, they arrive in Duluth every year, take a few whiffs of Lake Superior air and determine to prolong their stay as long as business allows or their money holds out.

The Great American Order of Hay-Hating Sneezing Wretches has thousands of members in the United States. Watering eyes are the silent sign and the loud sneeze the audible salutation of the order. When two Sneezing Wretches meet, they know each other instantly. People who are not members may recognize the Wretches, but they cannot qualify for membership themselves.

The Wretches are arriving on every train. There are many of them in Duluth already, having come early to avoid the rush and the hay, but the big rush is now on and all during the month of August, hundreds of the Wretches will crowd the hotels and the resorts in the vicinity of Duluth.

Duluth is the American Mecca for hay-fever patients, who alone may become members of the Great American order. The cooling breezes of Lake Superior have a benefiicent effect on the torn and inflammed membrane of the distended nostrils of the sufferers and while they are in Duluth they have relief. When the harvest is over and the danger of inhaling the pollen of the plants that produce hay fever is passed they leave for their homes.

When hay fever time comes around they hasten to Duluth again. Some of the older members of the order have visited Duluth yearly for twenty years or more. They look with benign fatherly gaze on the recruits to the order who are for the first or second time enjoying the delights of hay fever time in Duluth.

If some of the veterans were to be cured of their affliction they would probably come to Duluth under false pretenses just so their record wouldn't be spoiled. They are not exactly proud of the disease, but there is a strange satisfaction in approaching a new member of the order and asking "I'd thith you fust thip?" and when the new one answers, "Yeth," and says, "Why, I thome to Duluth ebwy yea'. Thith id my dickteenth twip." When he says it, there's a gleam in his eye that seems to say that he will not miss the seventeenth trip if he is on top of the earth.

To be nearer the source of the relief-giving atmosphere of Lake Superior some of the hay fever sufferers take cottages down on Park Point every year and live almost entirely on the water. A few days in Duluth suffice to bring relief to the most wretched hay fever sufferer, but few of them have the temerity to leave the city after the first relief comes. If they did they might pass a hay field on the train and they would be forced to turn around and head for Duluth again. They wait until all danger of being thrown into paroxysms of sneezing has passed and then only do they return to their homes.

There is one member of the order from Australia in Duluth this year. He came over to this country on business, contracted hay fever in California and took the first train for Duluth. He has been here for several weeks and says that he will remain until he can safely proceed on his journey home. He is looked upon with awe by other members of the order, even the veterans, for he has the distinction of having traveled the greatest distance.

Duluth is extending a welcome to the pilgrims and will be able to accomodate all of them. They are enjoying themselves to the utmost and are expressing keen sorrow for the sneezing wretches who have not the wherewithal or who cannot leave their business to take up their residence on the shores of Lake Superior in convention time.

The Great American Order of Hay Hating Sneezing Wretches is a grand old order and it is really queer that some of the members would gladly quit were they not bound by its rigid rules and identified by its unmistakable marks.

NEW HALL TO BE OPENED

Duluth Maccabees Will Entertain Supreme Officers of the Order.

The Maccabees will gather for an important session tonight at their new lodge hall, at 25 Lake avenue north. The entertainment will be in the form of a general reception and housewarming and degree work, to be followed by a banquet. The new lodge room will be used for the first time this evening.

Not only will there be a large attendance on the part of local Maccabees, but there will be a large number of visitors from the surrounding country. A large delegation will come over from Superior and also from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

As a part of the entertainment for the evening there will be a contest between the degree teams representing the Duluth lodge and one representing St. Paul, Tent No. 1.

The supreme officers will be present. D. P. Markey, supreme commander, and Dr. E. R. Sisler, supreme record keeper of Detroit, Mich., will be present, as will Dr. E. H. Haas of St. Paul, great commander of Minnesota.

State Senator George R. Laybourn will act as toastmaster. Toasts will be responded to by Sheriff William J. Bates, Simon Clark and others.

There is much interest in the competitive drill of the St. Paul and Duluth teams. Both are said to drill almost perfectly.

CLEARS HIMSELF OF SLANDEROUS CHARGE

Owing to the peculiar construction of the walls and windows of the sheriff's office, it appears from the first floor corridor that several women are employed in W. J. Bates' office.

"Steve" Pierce has charge of the office work at the sheriff's office and he doesn't believe in having women about an office. His sentiments in this direction are well known to those about the county building.

Several times of late people employed at the building have noticed women in the sheriff's office or thought they did. They called and thought that "Steve" had changed his feeling against the sex and had begun to employ them in the office.

Every time "Steve" would be met in the hall he would be greeted with: "Well, old man, you have a number of girls working in the office now." Then they would slap him on the back and chuckle.

Steve denied it but the evidence was there and much fun was made of him. Finally in desperation this morning Steve made one of the jolliers show what led him to believe women were employed at the sheriff's office.

The windows on the court are extended the whole width, notwithstanding the fact that there is a wall between. The women seen are really a part of the force of the register of deeds' office.

Steve has been exonerated. For a few days he thought he would have to post a sign on his door stating "No girls employed here."

THIEF HAD GOOD NERVE

Enters House During Afternoon and Picks Sleeper's Pockets.

Gets Away With $21---Police Have Only Slight Clue.

A bold daylight robbery, in which an unknown man entered the home of J. J. Ganley at 206 North Fifty-seventh avenue west, yesterday afternoon and stole a pocketbook containing $21, while the latter slept, was reported to the police last evening.

Ganley is a millwright employed nights at the Alger-Smith sawmill at West Duluth. He came home yesterday morning and says that he had in his pocket $21 and some change, with which he intended to pay some bills in the afternoon.

During the afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, someone entered his room and while he slept, extracted his pocketbook from his trousers, which were on a chair by his bed. Another man, who is a roomer in the place, heard someone walking around in Ganley's room, but supposed that it was Mrs. Ganley, his wife.

Mrs. Ganley was at work down stairs in the kitchen and knew nothing of the occurrence until her husband reported that his money was missing when he arose for supper. A neighbor across the street stated that she remembered seeing a stranger enter the house during the afternoon. He came out five minutes afterwards.

She claimed that he walked in without knocking on the door and that when he came out, he looked around to see if anyone was watching him. That the burglar intended to make a good job of what he had started, is evidenced by the fact that the man in the next room remembers hearing him pulling bureau drawers open, evidently searching for valuables.

As far as can be learned, only the pocketbook is missing. The police were notified at once, but as yet have not succeeded in locating the culprit. A man was held by the police for a time last evening on suspicion, but he gave an account of himself, which satisfied the police.

TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Proctor Man Puts a Rifle Bullet Through His Heart.

Believed to Have Been Partly Crazed By Drink.

Duluth authorities were notified yesterday afternoon of the finding of the body of John A. Swanson, 33 years old, a car repairer at Proctor, a few rods from his shanty with a bullet wound through his body near the heart.

An investigation by Coroner McCuen, who was called to Proctor last evening, shows that the man evidently shot himself. He was known to have been drinking heavily before the affair, and it is believed that in a fit of insanity he took his own life.

Swanson evidently killed himself Saturday morning about 11 o'clock. Nick Lief, who was his roommate and who works nights, came home Saturday morning and found Swanson brooding over something. He left him for a few minutes and when he returned a note was found on the table addressed to his brother and a rifle was missing.

His disappearance did not cause any great anxiety until evening. When he did not return, a searching party was organized and scoured the neighborhood for him. He was found yesterday shortly before noon. The coroner was notified in the afternoon and M. J. Fillatrault was asked to take charge of the body.

Swanson had crawled through a fence into some underbrush about two blocks from his home. He cut a short stick from a tree and used this to snap the trigger of his rifle, the muzzle of which he placed against his breast. Death was probably instantaneous. The body was in the first stages of decomposition when discovered yesterday.

Swanson is survived by his parents in Sweden, a brother, Axel H. Swanson of Proctor, and three sisters, Mrs. Helena Tankquist of Hinckley, Minn., Mrs. Anna Anderson of Minneapolis and Miss Freda Swanson, also of Minneapolis.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Fillatrault undertaking establishment, Central avenue and Ramsey street. Burial was at Oneota cemetery.

DEATH WAS UNEXPECTED

Thomas Barveau, 45 years old, for the past four years a resident of Fond du Lac, died this morning after a long illness. His death was unexpected as it came as a result of a stroke of paralysis last evening.

A year ago Barveau was confined to the hospital for some time, and when he left the institution, he was not in good health and failed to recover as fast as he should. Barveau was a traveling salesman by occupation.

Undertaker Fillatrault left this morning for Fond du Lac to take charge of the body.

MATTER NOW UP TO COMMISSION

Arguments Submitted in Controversy Over Routing of Ore Line.

Attorneys for the city and the Soo railroad today finished their arguments in the ore dock line controversy, which is pending before the state railroad commission and the hearing which the commission has conducted for the past few days at Superior has been concluded.

A decision is expected in the matter within a few days. The city has taken a strong stand against the building of the ore dock line through the residential district of Billings park and asks the commission to compel the road to seek a more suitable and feasible route, paralelling the Great Northern tracks.

The question has hung fire for several weeks.

RUSH WORK ON DOCK.

Large Crew Employed at the New Northwestern Fuel Structure.

The big coal dock of the Northwestern Fuel company at the foot of Winter street near the gas plant, is rapidly nearing completion, a crew of 500 men being engaged to rush the work.

A new coal shed on the anthracite side of the dock, which will give an additional capacity of about 100,000 tons, is just about finished. On the north side of the hard coal shed provision is now being made for an additional space of 360,000 square feet for coal storage purposes.

No. 1 dock will be the largest coal dock in the world when completed.

Elks vs. Steiners.

Arrangements have been made for a baseball game between the Elks club and the Stein club. It will come off Saturday following the contest at the Minny park between the league teams. The two aggregations have made efforts to get together before but the affair has been postponed several times.

HARD FOUGHT GOLF GAMES

Close and Exciting Play Is the Rule at Minneapolis.

Jaffray Leading Hunter---Charles Evans, Jr., in Close Match.

Minikahda club, Minneapolis, July 27.—The first half of the 36-hole matches in the second round of the Western Golf amateur championship today resulted in several hard fought and well played matches. The favorites managed to please their supporters with one notable exception, that being when C. T Jaffray of Minikahda came in three up on Paul Hunter of Midlothian, the Californian champion. It was generally thought that Jaffray would be an easy man for his younger opponent but he played excellent golf and had an advantage over Hunter during most of the eighteen holes. Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, the present champion, had a hard battle with Kenneth P. Edwards of Midlotnian but was 1 up at luncheon time. Evans played a brilliant 72 while Edwards was only one stroke behind. The men were even at the turn and Edwards kept Evans' lead down to one up despite the fact that the Midlothian golfer took poorly played sixes on the twelfth and thirteenth.

Their cards:

Mason Phelps of Midlothian tied Legg's course record of 70 in his match with H. B. Heyburn of Louisville and led by 4 up at the end of the morning round. Phelps missed a short put for his 69 on the eighteenth green and the ball practically hung on the lip of the cup. Phelps was two up at the turn. Their cards:

R. E. Hunter of Midlothian finished 5 up on L. W. Kinnear of Detroit. Both played poorly, going out, but Hunter came in in 34—one stroke above Evans' record for the last nine.

Albert Seckel of Hinsdale, Eastern intercollegiate champion, was 3 up on Diddell of Indianapolis, while W. E. Clow, Jr., of Onwentsia was up on Howard B. Lee of Detroit. Harry G. Legg of Minikahda finished 3 up on W. I. Howland, Jr., of Glenview.

Warren K. Wood of Homewood, was one up on Robert A. Gardner of Hinsdale, the national champion, at the end of the first eighteen holes. The match was hard fought throughout and both men played great golf. Wood went out in 35 and came back in 38 for a 73, while the champion made the first nine in 37 and the last half in 38, totaling 75.

Wood was one up at the turn but Gardner rallied and won the tenth and eleventh, halved the twelfth in five and won the thirteenth, making him two up. Wood took the fourteenth, sixteenth and a phenomenal two on the seventeenth made him 1 up again. Both men putted poorly on the eighteenth green and the hole was halved in five. Their cards:

FITWELLS TO CLASH WITH CLOQUET.

The strong Fitwell semi-professional team will journey to Cloquet, Sunday to play the city team. The teams have played two games so far; the Fitwells winning the first contest, 8 to 5, and the other going to the lumber town, 5 to 3. The third contest will be played to determine the winner. The clothing house club has been playing great ball of late. Talbot, who broke the pitching record in semi-professional ball at the Head of the Lakes last Sunday against the Adams team, will probably pitch in Cloquet Sunday, as Manager Sears is out for a good record. Negotiations are on with Two Harbors for a game and they will probably get the first open date as promised. Wicklund will do the receiving in the game mentioned.

Juniors Want Game.

The Proctor Juniors are claiming the juvenile championship of the Head of the Lakes and are anxious for a game with the Two Harbors Juniors to settle the question of supremacy. Through The Herald sporting department they challenge the north shore boys to a game next Sunday.

MONTANAN IS SLAIN BY A BILL COLLECTOR.

Billings, Mont., July 27.—Ward Huz of the Huz-Yates Implement company, one of the prominent business men of this city, was shot and instantly killed here by William Denton, a liveryman.

DESTROYING ROMANCE.

Silence has leveled many body blows at romance, and now it scores another.

It has found that the Sargasso sea has currents.

Remember the Sargasso sea? You heard of it first through your school geography; but that made little impression on you, and what little impression it left would have faded out, along with your recollection of the capital of Arkansas, how Siam is bounded, and what rivers flow into the Yang-tse-kiang, if it hadn't been for romance.

The Sargasso sea—which, we are told, was named after Caesar Augustus, whose mighty name was slurred by indolent tongues until it became "Sargasso"—was, according to early geographies and the romances, a place somewhere in the remoter reaches of ocean, just where it mattered little. Currents ran into it, but none ran out. Derelicts of all times and all shapes were carried into it by the roaming currents that swept all seas, and never came out again. Mingled with the seaweed was the accumulation of ages—Spanish galleons, broad-bottomed Dutch ships, pirate craft, lost warrior ships—hulks peopled by ghosts of navigators from the days of Eric the Red downward through the buccaneers of the Spanish main to the filibusters of today.

What a field for romance it was! Our hero, left alone on the ship with the beautiful heroine after the storm which stripped away the masts and carried away the crew, drifted into the Sargasso. After reviving the fainting lady and surveying the large and miraculous stores in the hold of the ship, he set out exploring. Every other ship in that silent sea was a treasure ship. Holds of floating hulks were filled with pieces-of-eight and doubloons. Pirate hordes of fabulous value were on every hand. All our hero had to do was to gather a boatload of treasure, leaving a little space for himself, the heroine and some water and food, and then make his escape—which he always did in spite of the undisputed fact that nobody else ever did escape from the clutches of that dread place of silence and desolation.

And now it has been discovered by some hard-hearted scientist that it is all a myth. The Sargasso sea has currents. Derelicts do not drift into it and stay for countless ages, but when they drift into it they are certain to drift out again in good time. There is no enchanting collection of relics of the shipping of all ages. There is not a single galleon, not a single treasure ship, not a single pirate craft. There is nothing, probably, but a few lumber hookers or unromantic colliers, drifting their leisurely way through a mass of seaweed, presently to emerge on the other side and continue their lonely and silent voyages.

It is interesting, indeed, to have an old, accepted belief destroyed by the cold hand of science. On the whole, however, the Sargasso sea was so handy for purposes of romantic adventure, and so utterly useless for anything else, that it would have been a decent thing for that scientist chap, when he found out about that current, to have kept it to himself.

ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT.

A census bulletin, advance sheets of which are at hand, gives an interesting exposition of the growth of electric development in the five years from 1902 to 1907. The report covers central electric stations, which, exclusive of isolated electric plants, furnish electric energy for lighting and heating and power for manufacturing and mining purposes, for street railways, etc.

The annual output of all electric stations and electric railways increased from 4,768,535,512 kilowatt hours to 10,621,406,837 kilowatt hours. This increase amounts to 122.7 per cent. In 1902 the output by electric railways was 47.4 per cent of the total, and in 1907 the proportion had fallen to 44.9 per cent.

The number of commercial and municipal plants increased from 3,620 in 1902 to 4,714 in 1907, or 30.2 per cent. This in spite of an obvious tendency toward consolidation of existing plants. There were, in 1907, upward of 30,000 individuals, companies, corporations and municipalities, exclusive of isolated plants, which reported the generalization of utilization of electric current in what may be termed commercial enterprises.

These industries represent an outstanding capitalization of $6.209,746,753, of which amount $1,367,338,836 is credited to central electrical stations, $3,774,722,096 to electric railways, $814,616,004 to commercial or mutual telephone companies, and $253,019,817 to telegraph companies, the latter item including $32,726,242, the capital stock of wireless telegraph companies. The capitalization of the 17,702 independent farmer or rural telephone companies and of the 1,157 electric police patrol and fire alarm systems could not be ascertained. The report states that there are also excluded a number of companies organized for the purpose of acquiring the capital stock or bonds of electric companies, street railway companies, gas and water systems and similar properties, holding the same for investment and to some extent supervising the operation of the underlying companies.

An increase was found in municipal or public stations. While thirty-three municipal stations reported in 1902 had become commercial stations by 1907, on the other hand 113 commercial stations had become municipal stations in 1907.

An interesting development is the tendency of electric railways to market their surplus power for commercial purposes. In 1902 there were 251 railway companies which furnished electricity for light, power and other purposes, with an aggregate income of $7,703,574 from the sale of current. In 1907 there were 330 such companies, and the income amounted to $20,093,302.

Large as this development has been, the increasing application of electric power to general purposes indicates that it has scarcely begun. Direct power from steam and water is giving away rapidly to indirect power from electricity generated by water and steam, and the time is coming when this mysterious power, gathered out of its impalpable dwelling place—perhaps in the "fourth dimension"—and harnessed up for the service of humanity, will be attending to most of humanity's wants.

THE POPULAR SONG.

What has become of that feature in our national life that used to find expression in the constant humming and singing of some particular air that caught the popular fancy? To be sure light airs still are caught up and played and sung and whistled over and over for a few days, but their runs last but a few days instead of for weeks and months as formerly. It may be that the great output of light music that came with the introduction of musical comedy has led to a kind of glutting of the market, that the popular mind now hears so much of that kind of thing that it can retain only an infinitesimal portion of it all, and that not vividly enough to bring it spontaneously to the lips.

Or it may be that the taste of the populace has become sated with that kind of material and no longer leaps to some particular air with the avidity which formerly marked the acceptance of a catchy tune.

Whatever the cause, the fact remains that the popular song, as it was known a few years ago, is known no longer. There was a time when "Whoa, Emma" swept the country like a storm. Then there came other later ones that we can all remember—"Annie Rooney," "After the Ball," and "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay." Many will recall the agitation which resulted from the last two named, and how in some cities the wise fathers sought respite from their continual repetition by passing ordinances making any person liable to a fine if he sang, whistled or played those airs in public. Another old favorite was "The Washington Post March," which was suppressed finally only by measures similar to those adopted toward "After the Ball" and "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay."

Perhaps the nearest approach to rivalry with these old standbys that has appeared in recent years was the famous "Mr. Dooley," which, according to many anonymous chroniclers, became so identified with Americans that it was regarded abroad as the national song of this country. But this song must concede at least a part of its popularity to the writings of Finley Peter Dunne, while its even more famous predecessors stood on their own merits alone.

We are willing to concede all just deserts to "Hiawatha," "The Merry Widow Waltz," "That Mesmerizin' Mendelssohn Tune," any or all of the Cohan songs and half a dozen more airs that have tickled the fancy of the whistlers of the last few years. That they had the faculty of catching attention and holding it for a time none can deny. But they fell far, far short of the things—whatever they were—that made the musical manias of former days public nuisances.

After all, perhaps we are better off for the change. There is no question that it has removed one of the most aggravating things in modern life, as will be testified to by anybody who ever has had life made a burden by the burden of a song. For this reason we may be glad that the old time popular song is no more. But why is it? Here is a chance for the psychologists and musicians to get their heads together and produce some information that will be interesting whether true or not.

WORKING UP AN EXPORT TRADE.

The unsatisfactory nature of much correspondence received from the United States is the subject of comment by an extensive German importer of American manufactured articles in a letter to Robert P. Skinner, the United States consul general at Hamburg. From the statements made by this importer, it is clear that many American manufacturers are losing a golden opportunity to extend their foreign trade because of their antiquated method of doing business. Says the Hamburg man:

> It happens daily that we receive American catalogues, trade papers, and other literature which we peruse and which are of interest to us. When we see an article illustrated in this printed matter that interests us, and that we believe we can import, we write to the manufacturer and explain to him all details. We want to know for custom-house purposes of what material the article is principally made, whether it is polished, painted, japanned, or dull finished, whether brass or brassed silver or silvered, and so on, for all those points make a big difference in figuring the actual duty. We must know gross and net weight when packed for export and prices f. o. b. vessel New York for original cases or stated quantities.
> What happens? We receive a courteous reply, but we do not receive the details asked for; if prices are quoted they are f. o. b. cars at some Western city or shipping point, so that we are unable to figure landed cost, having no means of ascertaining the cost of freight from point of manufacture to seaport. But this is not the worst.
> Most manufacturers reply that before making a price they want to know the probable quantity required to make a price. Now, how can we know the quantity that we will require of a new article not yet introduced on this side? Shall we state an untruth? Naturally, the quantity we will require depends on the quality, the finish, and last but not least the price of the article.

It seems strange that American manufacturers should thus waste their own time as well as that of the foreign inquirer. If they would give prices based on quantities f. o. b. vessel at New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia or Boston and state the material of which the article is principally made and its gross weight when packed for export, they would put the foreign importer in a position to introduce the article. If they fail to furnish these necessary details, they will never be able to work up a foreign trade. Perhaps the publicity given to this letter may be the means of convincing our manufacturers that they must adopt new methods if they would engage in the export trade.

PURE WATER FOR FOND DU LAC.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Upon a recent visit to Fond du Lac I had occasion to walk over the heights immediately north of the boat landing. I was pleasantly surprised to find at that elevation numerous springs of water bubbling from the ground and flowing in little channels down the hillside. This water, filtered through the said deposit, is cold and pure. It occurred to me that a reservoir of suitable dimensions could be constructed at small expense into which this flow could be directed. From the reservoir it could be piped to any house in the village, gravitation furnishing all the force necessary. A supply sufficient to meet the needs of several thousand people could be obtained. If made available in this way it would add greatly to the charm of this already attractive suburb as well as be a big aid in building it up.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If it were in your power would you find out what the Holland hotel is using for fuel that produces such unpleasant smoke? If this beautiful hotel was situated five miles out of the business district, it would not make such a difference, but, in the heart of the city, it is a menace to the public eye and a blot to the hotel's own reputation.

FAIR PLAY FOR BOARD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It just happens that I am not a Sherlock Holmes or a Nick Carter or an Old or Young King Brady. However, I will attempt in my own soothing manner to put more at ease the "Nervous Citizen" who last night took occasion to rap the public works committee on the fact that the aerial bridge didn't run often enough to suit him on the occasion of the Venetian fete held at the Boat club a few evenings ago. Now in the first place, when the merry crowds on pleasure bent start out to enjoy an evening together, everybody knows that where thousands of people congregate there will be more or less delay. It just happens in this instance that the delay was less. Instead of making only frequent trips the bridge went from one side to another in record time. The crowd was large and there were many—automobiles to ferry across. Only four machines could be taken over at once and yet in spite of this fact no one had to wait more than a few moments. Of course every one wanted to go home at once. It is always that way where there are a great many people. When the bridge had taken a capacity load the officers held the rest of the crowd back to be taken on the next trip. This was the only safe way, as all certainly could not go at once. As quick as the load could be deposited on the other side, the bridge was back for another and the dispatch with which the large crowd was handled pleased more than one. Because the service was of such an excellent character I wish to congratulate the board on the capable manner in which the largest crowd that ever congregated at one time on the point, was carried back. Nearly every one takes a rap at the board of public works. Sometimes they need it. We Duluthians seem to be natural kickers. We love to knock. Imagine ourselves abused and are ever ready to air our grievances more than we are to commend, praise or mention the fact that some thing pleases us. I believe that credit should be given where credit is due. Let us be more ready to boost than kick. Let us not be known as a town containing so many ready little "kill joys".

It may be that "A Nervous Citizen" missed the bridge that would get him uptown before closing time. That, of ecurse, would make any one nervous.

Yours truly, FAIR PLAY.

Veterans and Recruits.

Philadelphia Record: If Leonard Wood, M. D., major general and chief of staff, understands the relative value of old soldiers and recruits, everybody else connected with the army, time out of mind, has been entirely wrong.

For some time there has been a rage for younger commanding officers, and competent men in the prime of life are now put on the retired list in order that some youngsters may get up faster. This mania for youth has now so infected Gen. Wood that he says: "As it exists today it may be described as an army of veterans. When such is the case there is danger of loss of enthusiasm. The soldier who has seen from five to twenty years of service does not accept instructions as readily as a recruit."

We will venture to say that there is not a company officer in the United States army who will assent to this, and we do no believe there is a field officer who will do so. Gen. Wood never served with the men except for a few months with a regiment of volunteers. Before that he was in the medical department and since that he has been a general officer.

It has always been the established policy to do everything to keep the enlisted men in the service. The pay has been increased, an extra allowance has been made for age, a retired list has been provided, liberties and privileges have been conceded to the enlisted men, all for the purpose of inducing them to re-enlist. Year after year the commanding officers in their annual reports deplore the paucity of seasoned soldiers, to whom military life has become second nature. The recruit is regarded as hardly worth his rations till he has been in the service for two or three years, and Gen. Wood thinks five is a little too much.

There is no trouble about getting an army of raw recruits. The Wood policy can be put into operation in thirty days. Plenty of youngsters offer to enlist, and it will be the easiest thing in the world to make sure that they will leave the service at the end of one term of enlistment, if not sooner.

The Light Bearers.

I saw within a shadowed realm of dream,
Swift shapes unnumbered passing in the dark,
Each holding high aloft a lovely spark,
Some like a candle with dim fluttering gleam;
Still others like Sirus with a beam,
That all the boundless universe might mark,
And as they hurried onward wild and stark,
Like waves phantasmal of a ghostly stream
Some stumbled and fell headlong down to doom;
Some burned themselves with their own quenchless flame.
And I who watched them sinking, sage and youth,
Wept for the dreamers dead. Then in the gloom,
I heard the voice of mine own soul: "For shame—
Hail souls that live; hail bearers of the Truth!"

Soothing a Fan.

Washington Star: "So you think a change of scene would improve your husband's disposition?"

"Yes," replied the patient wife. "I think we will locate elsewhere."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Everything But His Vote.

Appleton Press: Bert Farnham, editor of the Madison Press, does not agree with anything in the Republican platform, does not approve of the record made by the Republican party in congress, has no confidence in Republican pledges and hasn't a single good word for Taft, Cannon, Roosevelt or any of the Republican leaders, and yet he calls himself a Republican. Bert needs a little more independence. He's Democratic in everything but his vote.

They Can't Expect Much.

Rush City Post: If elected, it is nowise certain that the lieutenant governor will have the power to appoint the senate committee. The power was taken from Lieutenant Governor G. I. Ives and it may be again in view of the fact that Candidate Gordon has already announced his intention in that direction. Youngdahl and Rachie are doing too much slating around and knocking the ticket to expect any generous favors.

St. Cloud Times: The Ortonville Herald Star thinks if Lindbergh, Davis and Hammond were retired, Minnesota would have better standing in Washington next winter. The esteemed Herald-Star is a Standpatter from Cannonville.

Addressed to R. C. Dunn.

Red Wing Free Press: Some of our up-state exchanges announce the possibility of R. C. Dunn of Princeton getting into the legislative game this fall and running for representative in the Forty-fifth district. "Bob" could get the place without turning a hand by merely saying he would take it. But why not run for the senate? That body needs men of Mr. Dunn's stamp even more than the house. As it is the senate is largely made up of conceited nobodies and tools of depradatory interests, as far removed from the people and their welfare as heaven from hades. It is in the senate that a champion like R. C. Dunn is mostly needed—a champion of and for the people who has the inside history of every political movement and of every politician in the state at his fingers' end, who knows the ins and outs of corporate interests and their game; in short, who possesses the knowledge, the judgment, the experience, and the integrity and courage to serve the public as it should be served. And he could be elected if he said so. Why not do the people of the state at large a good turn by going to the senate, Mr. Dunn?

Speaking of the Democracy.

Pine City Pioneer: Blind adherence to party may be a sacrifice of principle, but the party which represents in the main the principles in which the individual believes, is the one he should ally himself with. The party cannot meet the opinions of each individual, but it should be a reflex of the composite thought of the individuals composing it.

Busting the Harness.

Walker Pilot: If some fathers would exercise the same keen judgment in accepting a son-in-law as they do in picking a traveling mate for the family mare, fewer people getting hitched up these days would be scattering pieces of matrimonial harness along the road between the altar and the cemetery.

The Race Problem.

The Interior: That specter of negro insolence which many white men professed to fear so desperately in the event of a colored man's pugilistic success, turned out to be no trouble-maker anywhere except where white insolence exasperated and outmatched it. According to the dispatches of the Associated press, which are more likely to be prejudiced against than in favor of the colored people, the whites were aggressors in nearly all places where race riots followed the receipt of news from the Nevada fight. The negroes in no place did anything approaching in meanness the act of a mob of white thugs who set afire a negro tenement in New York city. There are disorderly elements in almost all negro communities, but they seldom cause serious troube, for the white community with which they are in touch is composed of men superior to the unruly blacks in self-control, in respect for authority, in love and order, in sense of justice and in discrimination between the worse and better members of a race. And if white men are not superior in all these respects, what ground have they for calling themselves superior at all?

Will Carleton's Custer Poem.

At the unveiling of the monument to Gen. Custer in Monroe, Mich., a dedicatory poem was read by its author, Will Carleton. The poem has much of the flavor of "Farm Ballads" and "City Ballads" in its simplicity and appeal. One verse shows Mr. Carleton's sympathy withthe heart of the American boy:

He walked the streets of the staid old town—
His step was boyish, his face was fair;
The rays from above came glinting down,
And toyed with the locks of his sun-strown hair.
His look and his walk and his voice expressed
The themes and thoughts of a boy's unrest;
His heart held kindlings of future fame,
But where was the match to light the flame?
A journey to greatness mocked his soul,
But where was the path to the brilliant goal?
He was just a boy with a humble name,
Unhelped by a kinsman's wealth or fame.
"I must win my spurs," his proud heart cried,
"And earn the horse upon which to ride!
I must pierce the forest of glory," he said,
"And hew a path upon which to tread!"
So walked Ulysses in days of yore,
On Ithaca's far-famed island-shore;
So Caesar fondled, a weak-armed boy,
His mimic sword as a dangerous toy;
So in the Corsican's humble town,
Trudged young Napoleon up and down;
So with his humble hatchet of truth,
Walked Washington as a callow youth;
So Grant, unfollowed by gleaming ranks,
Along the Ohio's shifting banks;
So wanders today some lonely boy,
Whom God is waiting to yet employ,
When youthful apprenticeship is through,
In something great he would have him do.

The Daily Parable.

As a ruin the cloudy heaven
Shakes to the wind's wild shocks;
To the echoing bolts of the leven,
As a wreck the ocean rocks.

And the storm on earth careering
Seems, with its thunderous roll,
The laugh of a monster jeering
At the dreams of the human soul.

But behind the ephemeral thunder
Smiles the eternal sun,
Whose glory provokes no wonder,
Since only a common one.

O Truth, so close at our portals,
With silent but constant sign,
When shall we learn, dull mortals,
The common is divine?

BOYS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: What is a bad boy? Are there any bad boys? It is hard to determine.

As the evolutionary educators tell us, the child goes through the various stages that mark man's progress from the cave to the family hotel. This characteristic and that appear and fade as physical and mental powers develop. Apply the right influence at the right time, and the child ripens into the good citizen. Let the environment be unpropitious and the tendencies are turned away.

Heredity, in the modern scheme of society, is given less and less emphasis. It is environment, for the most part, that shapes the citizen.

There is a "boys' farm" at Hudson, where Cleveland sends its "bad boys." There the lads are turned loose in the wholesome realm of nature, with friendly supervision. There are school studies and manual labor, with plenty of wholesome food, fresh air, sunshine, play and sympathy.

The other day one of these lads ran away. Running away was his failing. That was why he had been sent to the farm. Was he a bad boy? Well, he had this bad habit. His parents could not keep him at home. At the farm he gave his word that he would stay. The roving spirit came upon him again one day, and he ran away to Cleveland. Then it occurred to him that he was breaking his word. He borrowed the money to pay his fare back to the farm, and appeared that same night, begging for admission. Now he is toiling in the trenches, doing a man's work. Is he a bad boy?

Another lad has been unable to keep out of mischief. He was sent to the farm and has been there for a year or two. He wanted to come back home. But when he was paroled, and was told that he might return to his parents, he burst into tears.

"I don't want to go away yet," he said. "I'm not good enough. Please let me stay a little longer."

These boys, sent to the farm for reformative purposes, are a little backward in their studies. But in intelligence, in mental quickness, in knowledge of the world, they are far ahead of the average lad. Their energy demands an outlet, and because their environment has been unwholesome the outlet is in the wrong direction. But are the boys therefore "bad?" It seems doubtful. The demand for their services is so great that the supply of paroled boys is insufficient. Employers usually find them intelligent, capable and loyal. And yet they were sent to the farm because they seemed incorrigible.

It seems that a boy can be shaped almost at will. The responsibility rests chiefly with those who have the shaping in their power.

Caruso's Hints.

London Week-End: Caruso, the world's greatest tenor, has a high opinion of the vocal equipment of English singers. "The great drawback to the English vocalist, however," says Caruso, "is the harshness of their language. This leads to a tightness of production, and prevents that freedom of song which is so necessary for good singing. The quality of the voices is beautiful, but it never finds easy expression.

"English singers ought not to allow themselves to be cramped by such a simple thing as pronounciation. They should endeavor to use the resonance chambers of their voice even in their ordinary speech. Thus, instead of saying 'no,' with a strong 'oh' sound, they should say 'naw,' and similarly instead of 'go,' should say 'gaw.' This would tend in time to increase the size of the various air cavities which form the sounding box of the voice, and the result would be a more generally forward and looser production. The voice would be stronger, more free, and more beautiful, with a richness of tone that is now sometimes sadly lacking."

The Royal Violet.

The violet is weak though clad in royal robe,
As any flower that gems the shining globe;
Its color though the symbol of a king,
The signet of love's highest offering.

Did He who wore the garb
Deep-tinged with purple hue
Proclaim himself the king who bears
Ensanguined sorrow 'neath His vest of blue!

Such was the love of Him who wrought
Through death our souls' relief,
Heart-pierced and interwined
With every human grief.

But thought of color fades away
When incense morning dews entice;
The glories of the gorgeous robe
Yield to the fragrant sacrifice.

For, all the heavy feet that trod
The beauteous flower of His life,
Pressed from His soul a heavenly joy
With every healing perfume rife.

And far and wide o'er stifling lives
With bitter sin and sickness spent,
The King of Men diffused abroad
The balm of Love Beneficent.

—Richard H. Gesner in the Boston Transcript.

Puzzle for Social Reformers.

New York Press: Those who are justly enthusiastic about social reform are apt to believe that all defects and specked places in people today only come from bad surroundings, and that plenty of proper food, clothes and education will fix and set things right. Figs do not grow on thistles, even with all the fertilizers in the country. Beyond all question of doubt there are thousands of persons born every year who are not only totally unfitted to succeed in this world, but could never be successful in any world which could be devised or imagined, even if it possessed all the ease and delights of an Oriental dream of paradise, and yet today there is tremendous destruction of those unfit to survive in today's world. Then what would happen to the world if science got so perfected as to save most of the unfit, the unfit that nowadays perish? Would not that knock in the head even such poor, faulty forms as our best social works? Would not society and government be smothered to death under incompetency?

Why Sixty Minutes Made an Hour.

Chicago Examiner: The hour is divided into sixty minutes simply because in old Babylon there existed, by the side of the decimal system of notation, another system, the sexagesimal, which counted by sixties. There is no number which has so many divisors as sixty. The Babylonians divided the sun's daily journey into twenty-four parasangs, each parasang, or hour, being divided into sixty minutes. The parasang is about equal to a German mile, and the Babylonians compared the progress made by the sun during one hour to the progress made by a good walker during the same time.

Six years ago it opened its doors with a modest plea in behalf of its aims and its methods, and the records of the young men and women whom it has sent to college and to higher institutions of learning amply justify the claims it then made in its behalf, and its past successes will only stimulate its staff to higher efforts.
It admits boys and girls, and covers the field from the primary grades to college. Its teachers are specially trained for the work and, except in the primary grades, are men. TEMPERANCE WORK IS BEING EXTOLLED

Speakers at Finnish Temperance Meeting Laud Achievements of Society.

Eveleth, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are about seventy delegates attending the national convention of Finnish Temperance societies which began here yesterday.

The sessions are being held in Wahlonlahde hall and all the speakers are telling of the great work in the interest of temperance being carried on by the society.

One of the notable addresses of yesterday was delivered by President Michael Skytta of Ishpeming, Mich., who related the society's achievements during the past year.

The temperance movement in Finland was dilated upon by Prof. William Reima of Helsingfors, Finland, who crossed the ocean to attend this meeting. A Finnish play was given last night and proved all that was expected. Today general business is being transacted and no set speeches are on the program. In the evening there will be a concert by the visiting delegates.

Many Speeches Friday.

Tomorrow evening the Finnish band of Ishpeming will give a concert at Wahlonlahde hall, while on Friday afternoon there will be speeches by all of the grand lodge officers including Prof. Reima, Miss Alma Hilkonnen, grand secretary, Rev. P. Kiranan, President M. Skytta and Vice President Nestre Toppari of Ironwood. Friday evening there will be a grand concert for the benefit of the grand lodge. At this concert the glee clubs of Ironwood, Eveleth, and Hibbing, a mixed chorus from Virginia and the Finnish band from Ishpeming will take part. Saturday afternoon there will be a big picnic at Ely lake which will be followed by another concert in the evening.

There are about seventy delegates present already and more are expected today. The place for the meeting next year will be decided on Friday afternoon. Most of the addresses deal with the relation of the Finns to the temperance question and ways and means of stamping out the saloon. The speeches are in both English and Finnish. Large crowds have attended the various meetings so far.

VIRGINIA WOULD OWN UTILITIES

Steps Taken Toward Acquiring Electric Light and Water Plant.

Virginia, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first steps toward municipal ownership of public utilities was taken by the council last night when the aldermen directed the city clerk to correspond with the officers of the Virginia Electric Power & Water company as to terms the plant can be sold to the city before 1913.

The city attorney was also ordered to condemn wooden walks on Maple street that they may be superseded with cement walks.

As two circuses that showed here recently evaded paying $100 daily for a license by showing on the outskirts of the city, the council will head off such evasion in the future by forbidding parading on the street unless such license is paid, a resolution to that effect being adopted.

Owing to the protests against the location of the proposed incinerator plant on the north side, the board of health was instructed by the council last night to seek a new location. Supt. Hawkins of the Oliver Iron Mining company suggested that the plant might be located on property owned by the company.

There are a large number of residence buildings throughout the city which still have drainage pipes connected with the sanitary sewer, and the board of health was instructed to notify the owners of such property to disconnect the same and provide for the water running into the streets to be carried away by the storm sewer.

The city clerk was instructed to notify City Attorney Poirier that when he is not able to attend the sessions of the council that he be compelled to provide a capable assistant, who will be present. This matter was brought before the council because of the absence of Mr. Poirier at last night's meeting.

H. C. Devine was appointed assistant city engineer.

The total city indebtedness July 1, was $29,672.38. The fines in municipal court during the past week amounted to $445.

Vandals Ruin Church Shrubbery.

Vandals broke into the gardens of the Catholic parsonage Monday night, destroying two valuable specimens of shrubbery and otherwise damaging the grounds. They will be severely dealt with if caught.

HIBBING COUNCIL'S REGULAR MEETING

Various Matters Pending Are Disposed of on Tuesday Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council at its regular meeting last night referred to Health Commissioner Weinberg a communication from Mrs. Oja of 510 McKinley street, who claims a ditch crossing her property rendered the premises very insanitary. The report of the municipal court again demonstrated the need for placing it on a salary basis. The receipts for last week amounted to $336 and for the week ending July 16 to $195.20.

Sanaglio & Barberdori were given a license to operate a saloon at 104 Third avenue.

Volunteers for Brooklyn.

Fire Chief McIlhargey reported on the advisability of establishing a volunteer fire department at Brooklyn and also the test made of the water supply. As a result of the tests made the chief found that the water pressure ran from 32 to 125 pounds and that this was insufficient to reach all the buildings in the village. He recommended that an additional six hydrants be installed and also that the chemical wagon at the Superior hall be relieved of one of its tanks and placed on the chemical wagon at the Second avenue hall. In this way the chief stated he could carry 1,000 feet of hose on each wagon and that he thought he could reach the ground more rapidly from the Superior hall than the volunteers could, as they undoubtedly would be at work were any fire to break out.

Chief McIlhargey also recommended that more fire alarm boxes be installed in the village. The matter was referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. McHardy & Kleffman. The ordinance prohibiting all kinds of street nuisances and street hawking without a license was ready and ordered adopted.

The bill of the Johnson-Moynihan company of $1,829 on their curb and gutter contract, was allowed. The matter of appointing a plumber inspector was discussed at length and Messrs. McHardy and Kleffman were asked to report on the matter at the next regular meeting, which will be held on next Wednesday evening.

HIBBING FIREMEN PREVENT BIG LOSS

Extinguish Blaze on Third Avenue Before Heavy Damage Results.

Hibbing, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The two-story frame building on Third avenue occupied by Oscar Bihlaja as a rackett store was the scene of a lively fire at about 8 o'clock last evening. No one seems to know how the fire started as there was no one in the store at the time of the discovery of the blaze.

The fire originated in the rear of the building, which was saved from complete destruction by the promptness of the fire department which made one of the quickest runs on record. It is estimated that the damage in all will amount to $900, fully covered by insurance.

Eveleth, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the council next week undertakes to select a successor to Mayor Walter J. Smith, who has resigned to look after his political duties, there will probably be no dearth of candidates to choose from. Supt. R. J. Mitchell of the Adams-Spruce mine, is being groomed for the position, but it is questionable whether the Steel corporation would permit him to accept the office. JOHN LIND TO HEAD DEMOCRATIC TICKET personal predelictions to stand in the way of the desires of his party when unanimously expressed. That is all there is to the Democratic situation as it is apparent this morning. Of ccurse, there are many features in the hourly outlook that are extremely interesting, but they have no vital bearing on the situation as it will be developed into concrete form in the convention tomorrow.

Dick O'Connor Talks.

Just for instance, there is the talk that R. T. O'Connor gave out last evening. Mr. O'Connor, who is habitually referred to as "The Cardinal," (and likes it), professes to believe that Mr. Lind will not be nominated. He says that Mr. Lind should not be nominated. Mr. O'Connor is prominent because he is successful as a Ramsey county politician. In support of his belief, he produces a telegram from Mr. Lind, saying he will not accept on any platform. But Mr. Lind has said that before.

Although Mr. O'Connor makes the assertion that Mr. Lind should not be nominated, there are many Democrats here who disagree with him. However, this is what Mr. O'Connor has to say:

"John Lind should not be nominated by the Democratic convention to head the ticket. He has said repeatedly that he does not want the nomination and will refuse it if it is tendered him.

"In conversation with me two days before he started west Mr. Lind said he would not accept the nomination. I believe him, and I feel that it would be folly for the convention to fly in the face of this statement and nominate him.

"Reference has been made to the nomination of John A. Johnson under conditions said to be similar to those existing at present. In reality things are not at all as they were two years ago. Johnson was governor, he was a future presidential possibility and the active leader of the Minnesota Democracy. None of these conditions exist so far as Lind is concerned. I believe it will be impossible to force the nomination on Lind."

Many Suggested.

Many men of prominence in the Democratic party are being suggested as possible and desirable candidates for the governship. Among them are Congressman W. S. Hammond of the Second district; Frank A. Day, chairman of the state committee; W. E. McEwen of Duluth, and a number of others, besides Mr. Jenswold, who was indorsed at a meeting of the Hennepin delegation last night. However, it is notable that when a Democrat here talks of possible nominees, he winds up with the remark:

"Well, I guess it's Lind, anyway."

Republicans who are asked about how the situation looks to them are almost unanimous in saying that Lind will not be a nominee. They say they know he will not be. Just how it happens that members of the opposite party "know," when Democrats are more or less at sea, is not explained.

As it looks this morning, John Lind will be nominated.

However, admitting that opinions are divergent on this question, the following quotations may be of interest:

Z. H. Austin, Minneapolis: I know what I'm talking about when I say that a majority of the Hennepin county delegation is opposed to nominating Lind. This sentiment will become so strong before the convention meets that Hennepin county will not place his name before the convention.

This position is not the result of any antagonism to Lind. On the contrary, we who are working to keep him out of this believe we are his real friends. I know of no one in the state closer to Mr. Lind or more sincerely attached to him than I am. It is because of this regard that I say he should not be nominated and thus forced into the embarrassing position of refusing the nomination.

I am as sure he would refuse to make the race as I am that the sun will set tonight. I am morally certain that he cannot be forced into the race.

Mr. Jenswold is a brilliant lawyer, a powerful personality and an eloquent speaker. He has lived in Duluth for twenty years and yet kept free of any connection whatever with the steel trust. He is looked on by law-violating corporations as their deadliest enemy, but legitimate corporations have nothing to fear from him.

Jenswold Favors Lind.

John Jenswold, J., Duluth: It is well known that I am not a candidate and shall not be a candidate. I look to see Mr. Lind nominated. Democracy has always stood for the greatest amount of personal liberty consistent with good government. It believes that there are certain subdivisions of the body politic that should have a voice in the administration of local affairs.

W. S. Hammond, St. James: I am not and shall not be a candidate. I do not want the nomination. No one can say more than that.

H. G. Waite, Winona: Winona county is for John Lind and will do all it can to secure his nomination.

M. C. Brady, Minneapolis: It is my belief the nomination will be forced on him (Hammond) and that arrangements have been made to stampede the convention. In the first place a letter will be ready from John Lind absolutely declining to serve. Mr. Hammond will have been in the limelight as temporary chairman. Somebody will start a hurrah and it will be all over but the election in November.

P. M. Ringdahl, Red Wing: There has been no serious consideration of me as a candidate. I would discourage any such notion. Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for any place on the ticket.

Frank A. Day, state chairman: I know nothing more about the situation than I did yesterday. I can say this much, that as far as I am concerned there will be no conferences before the convention, no attempts at arrangement, no slates of any kind and no division. The convention will do exactly as it pleases.

SEE MERCURY AT 70 BELOW

the thermometer often as low as 40 below zero."

That the service lost none of the men from freezing to death, and that every man returned safe, is a matter of congratulation and good fortune. There were more deaths from the weather in this section during the lest winter than in all of the other years in total—cases, too, in which those who met such deaths did not begin to go through the sacrifice and privation that those agents of the service did. All of the men covered hundreds of miles over the ice and snow in weather ranging from 30 to 70 deg. below zero, the average being 40 below.

The experience of the agent in Chandlar district is a fair example. "Severe weather was encountered throughout all of his work," says McKenzie, "and at no time after he left Fairbanks until he returned did the thermometer get above 30 deg. below zero. His long journey away from the base of supplies made it impossible for him to carry sufficient grub and dog food, and he was obliged to live off the country, killing moose, mountain sheep and other fresh meat.

"During the work he lost two of his dogs from freezing to death. He himself froze portions of his face several times, and at one time dropped into six feet of open water, nearly losing his life. In crossing the Arctic range and returning he traveled above the timber line eighteen hours in each direction, which, in a country where fire is necessary, can be understood to be a considerable sacrifice. He traveled in many places where no white man had ever before been, and his record is considered unusual, to say the least."

Incessant Snow Storm.

That the Koyakuk agent's work was no Fourth of July picnic with strawberry lemonade on the side, is indicated by the following extract from the official narrative:

"In this district there is almost an incessant snow storm from October to May, and trails are obliterated in twenty-four hours. Few men except the mail carriers will travel in this district in the winter, and even they make but one trip a month. Twice he nearly lost his life, and had he not been accompanied by an Indian guide he probably would have died. At one time he and the guide and a mail carrier and two Indians were lost in the storm for three days and were found at the end of that time by a rescue party which came out to locate the mail."

Of the Tanana man we are told:

"Not less than four times was this man found by other travelers in an exhausted condition and assisted to a stopping place. He lost three dogs and several times froze his face. That he survived the work and came back alive was the wonder of the old inhabitants of the country. Half a dozen men refused the job before he was secured. Six men and two women were frozen on the trails in the vicinity in which he worked."

Nine Dollars a Day.

All the traveling was done on dog sleds, from seven to nine animals being used with each sled. The agents were paid $9 a day, and extra for the use of their vehicles. Generally it was necessary for two men to go together, so that in case of accident to one the other could proceed with the labor, for the census must be taken whatever the cost in life or money.

Mr. McKenzie reports that there is very little sickness among the white inhabitants of Alaska, and he says that few of those who are sick will acknowledge the fact. There is no fever, but some pneumonia. Most of the Indians are afflicted with tuberculosis, and other diseases of civilization are prevalent among them.

Winona at Red Wing.
Rochester at La Crosse.

For six joyful innings yesterday, Darby O'Brien's rejuvenated White Sox apparently had their first game on the home grounds sewed up and Tommy Schoonhoven, manager of the Angels-in-name-only, was in despair. For a brief inning and one-third, Slats Morrow was injected into the proceedings and if he had attended strictly to his primary business of pitching, 'twould have been well.

Slats never did take any medals for batting. His demeanor at the bat would never lead one to think he had ever poled a pellet over the fence. However, in his single time at bat, he chanced to face Cummings with two men down, the score 5 to 1 in favor of the home team, the bases badly intoxicated and the fans complacently looking for a strikeout. By some vagary of the god of baseball fortune, Slats connected. The ball sailed over the left field fence. The score was tied and the elongated near-pitcher was a hero among his fellows.

Morrow tried to undo his dastardly work in the same inning by passing two men and hitting one with only one down, but Schoonhoven applied the derrick and Nicholson held the Sox safe for the remainder of the game, which was forced into extra innings by Mr. Morrow's untimely intrusion into the slugger class. That Russ Bailey and Jawn Kading each dropped a ball over the fence in the eleventh was not surprising. 'Tis a habit with both. After that the Sox didn't care much what happened and the final score was 10 to 6.

Darby's rejuvenated team certainly did look good and Al Cummings was right for six innings. He should have been yanked in the seventh when he began to wobble. Kohl, at third, played in snappy style and Jimmy Anderson in left field handled the chances cleanly and took down two of the Sox's seven hits. Except in the eleventh, when the game was practically gone, the fielding was clean and the fans were well satisfied with the team—not with the result of the game.

Schoonhoven's first offering was Delave, a recent addition to the all-star staff of the league leaders. For the first five innings the Angels-in-name-only appeared to be suffering from a hang-over and by judiciously bunching five hits with three boots, the Sox collected five runs. In the meantime, Tommy's pets had secured one dinky scratch hit. In the sixth Morrow was trotted out and after he had demonstrated his inability to find the plate, Nicholson finished.

Sox Scored First.

The Sox broke into the run column in the third. After two were down, Mike Breyette missed a hard chance on Cummings' grounder and Al was sent to second by J. Anderson's hit. G. Anderson hit one to Moore, who obligingly threw the ball over Kading's head, Cummings scoring and the Andersons landing on third and second, respectively. Kohl came to the front with a double and the Andersons scored. O'Brien went down on a grounder.

The third was another bad inning for Mr. Delave. Jawn Kading booted Schwab's opening offer and the catcher was safe at first. Cummings fanned, but J. Anderson annexed his second hit, Schwab going to second. G. Anderson planted one against the right field fence for two bags, Schwab scoring and J. Anderson registered on Kohl's infield out. After Darby had lost a two-bagger by carelessly dropping the ball a few inches outside of the left field foul line, he fanned.

The trouble began in the seventh. Callahan hit a high fly that dropped safe for two bases and he was followed by Russ Bailey, who sent one into left field for the same distance, Callahan scoring. Kading went out on a fly to center Moore walked and De Haven fouled out to Kohl. Benrud's single filled the bases. What Slats Morrow did at that stage of the proceedings has been related. Danny Kick fanned.

The Sox threatened in the seventh when Moore passed Schwab and G. Anderson and hit J. Anderson, but Kohl and O'Brien were unable to do anything with Nicholson. In the ninth, Jawn Kading landed on third, but was caught in a flat-footed attempt at a double steal with Benrud.

Game Goes in Eleventh.

The Angels-in-name-only let loose a dazzling display of prestochnies in the eleventh. After Callahan had gone down, Russ Bailey lifted one over the left field fence and Jawn Kading quickly followed suit. Which was some heart-rending, as they would say in "The Virginian." But it was not all. Geraldine, King Kohl heaved the ball away on Moore's grounder and the runner went to second. He swiped third and was sacrificed home by De-Haven's long fly. Altermott booted Benrud's grounder and Nicholson walked. Danny Kick hit one into left field that should have been a single, but it took a bad bound and went for thee sacks, two runs being recorded. Breyette ended the horrible session by hitting an easy one to Cummings.

The Sox made a feeble rally in their half of the eleventh. Holstrom opened with a hit and Marion followed with another. Schwab hit one into right field that looked to be tagged for Danny Kick's mitt. The midget didn't reach it, but threw Schwab out at second. Cummings fanned. Nicholson threw the ball away on J. Anderson's grounder and Holstrom scored, but Russ Bailey affectionately embraced the ball on G. Anderson's long fly to left and the tragedy was over.

Tip to Schoonoven—Clean uniforms would be more becoming to perhaps-pennant winners than the clay encrusted relics that are now draped upon the figures of the Angels-in-name-only.

The tragedy is recorded in cold figures below:

SUPERIOR WINS FROM WAUSAU

Lumberjacks Are Defeated 5 to 3 in Contest Played at Hislop Park.

Over at Superior yesterday the Wausau team was defeated, 5 to 3.

Fennell was unable to settle down and his support was not the most brilliant. Clausen, who threw for Superior had the Lumberjacks guessing a greater part of the time and his support was excellent.

Lundine, catcher for the Wausau team, was spiked in the eighth inning and had to leave the game. McCarthy tried to come home and slid feet first for the bag. Lundine tagged him out, but at the cost of a painful wound.

Superior scored one in the second and four in the third. Wausau's scores came in the third and last inning.

The one double play of the game was made in the fifth. Fennell hit to left and Bond smashed a swift one to Clausen who sent it to Bancroft at second in time to force Fennell. Bancroft threw to first in time to head off Bond.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 27.—The second day of grand circuit racing at Recreation park showed up the sensational trotter of the year in the 4-year-old colt, Billy Burke, who won the feature event, the $3,000 stake for 2:15 trotters, trotting the fourth heat in 2:06¾, which ties the world's record for a fourth heat in 2:06¾, which ties the world's record for a fourth heat held jointly by Benzetta and Bob Douglass. The grey gelding, Bobble B. McGregor, beat Billy Burke in the first heat, but after that the son of Silent Brook had things his own way. The M. and M. candidate, Henry H., was the one to put up the fight in the final heat. He looked to have a chance to win, but broke while in the lead in the home stretch.

The 2:08 pacers had a great battle and the race was finally won by the favorite, King Cole, Waverly winning the first heat in 2:04¾, the fastest time of the race.

In the 2:18 trot Sable Maid won easily after Baron Penn had taken the first heat.

GARDNER AND WOOD PAIRED TO PLAY IN SECOND ROUND

National Champion and Brilliant Homewood Player Meet at Minikahda.

Harry Legg Meets W. I. Howland, Jr., of Glenview.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 27.—The second round of the match play in the annual tournament of the Western Golf association was started today over the links of the Minikahda club. This round and all of the succeeding ones were played over thirty-six holes, the first one being the only one over the shorter route.

The excellent work of today's survivors in yesterday's play caused the matches to be followed with unusual interest.

Ten of the sixteen left are of the younger generation of Chicago players. Two are from the Minikahda club, two from Detroit and one each from Louisville and Indianapolis.

The match that attracted the most attention was the one between R. A. Gardner, the national champion, and Warren K. Wood of Homewood, the winner of the low qualifying score prize in the Western championship of 1909. Both men are playing well and an excellent match was expected.

The pairings for today:

Albert Seckel, Hinsdale, vs. W. H. Diddell, Indianapolis.

R. E. Hunter, Midlothian, vs. L. W. Kinnear, Detroit.

Harry Legg, Minikahda, vs. W. I. Howland, Jr., Glenview.

R. A. Gardner, Hinsdale, vs. Warren K. Wood, Homewood.

Paul Hunter, Midlothian, vs. C. T. Jaffray, Minikahda.

H. B. Heyburn, Louisville, vs. Mason E. Phelps, Midlothian.

W. E. Clow, Jr., Onwentsia, vs. H. B. Lee, Detroit.

K. P. Edwards, Midlothian, vs. Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater.

Few Surprises in Opener.

Sixteen golfers of sterling worth survived the second day's play of the tournament. It was a day of wonderful scores and fierce competition and the honors of the day were taken by Harry Legg of Minikahda, the stocky boy from Yale.

Legg equalled his remarkable performance of Monday when he again turned in a wonderful card of 70 in the second half of the thirty-six-hole qualifying round, making a total of 140. That broke the old Western Golf association qualifying record of 144 made by H. Chandler Egan over the old Exmoor course.

The matches in the first round of match play resulted in few surprises, but several were fought out to almost the last green. Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, the present champion; Robert A. Gardner, the national champion, and Legg remained in the struggle.

Gardner was forced to go to the eighteenth green to defeat Addison Stillwell of Midlothian by one up. Stillwell fought hard and Gardner was unable to get better than a half in five on the eighteenth.

Gardner made it in 74, while Stillwell was one stroke higher. Their cards:

	Out.	In.
Gardner	443	554	365—38
Stillwell	455	545	453—40
	In.
Gardner	343	554	334—36-74
Stillwell	345	543	434—35-75

Legg had little trouble in disposing of Harold Bend of St. Paul by 7 up and 5 to play. Legg continued his excellent work of the morning and Bend was easy for him.

In the qualifying round Legg led his nearest rivals — Mason E. Phelps of Midlothian, and Albert Seckel of Hinsdale, by five strokes.

Both Chicagoans made 74 Monday and 71 yesterday for 145. Evans, the present champion, landed fourth with 75, 72, 147. R. A. Gardner was one stroke behind Evans with 75, 73, 148.

The qualifying scores were remarkable as 162 was the highest to get into the channel circle and two with that figure were forced out when a six-handed tie was played off to decide the last four qualifiers. Those who tied at 162 were L. W. Kinnear of Detroit, W. J. McDonald of Midlothian, Drake Lightner of St. Paul, Clarence Stanley of Indianapolis, F. P. Carr of Des Moines and H. N. Chambers of Omaha. Carr and Chambers were defeated in the play-off.

Legg played remarkably brilliant golf on every hole of the last eighteen and his work was even more consistent than on the first half of the round. He missed a five putt for a 6 on the eighteenth green. His drives and brassey shots were brilliantly played and his putting was deadly in its accuracy. He ran down several long tries, getting two or three on the edge of the green.

Evans made a brilliant start and it appeared as if Legg's 70 record of Monday was in danger when the champion made the first seven holes in 26, but he fell down at the end of the outward journey, taking a 5 on the eighth and 6 on the ninth. He came in on 35. Had his work on the last two holes of the outward going equalled that on the other 16 holes he would have landed a 68.

Play in First Round.

First round: H. P. Heyburn, Louisville, won from A. D. S. Johnston, St. Paul by default.

Harry G. Legg, Minikahda club, defeated H. P. Bend, St. Paul, seven up and 5 to play.

R. A. Gardner, Hinsdale, defeated Addison Stillwell, Midlothian, 1 up.

Paul Hunter, Midlothian, defeated H. W. Allen, Belle River, 4 up and 3 to play.

W. H. Diddell, Indianapolis, defeated J. D. Cady, Rock Island, 6 up and 5 to play.

L. W. Kinnear, Detroit, defeated Ralph Rider, Des Moines 6 up and 5 to play.

Albert Seckel, Hinsdale, defeated William Sheehan, 2 up and 1 to play.

R. E. Hunter, Midlothian, defeated Paul R. Talbot, 3 up and 1 to play.

W. I. Howland, Jr., Glenview, defeated Holden Wilson, Cincinnati, 4 up and 2 to play.

Mason Phelps, Midlothian, defeated J. D. Standish, Detroit, 2 up and to play.

W. E. Clow, Jr., Onwentsia, defeated Walter Fairbanks, Denver, 1 up.

C. T. Jaffray, Minikahda, defeated Clarence Stanley, Indianapolis, 1 up in 21 holes.

H. B. Lee, Detroit, defeated W. J. McDonald, Midlothian, 2 up and 1 to play.

K. P. Edwards, Midlothian, defeated Gordon Yule, Kenosha, 3 up and 1 to play.

Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, defeated Donald Edwards, Midlothian, 2 up and 1 to play.

CREWS OFF FOR KENORA

Junior Eight and Bantam Four Leave for Regatta.

Both Crews Believed to Have Good Chance for Victory.

The Duluth junior eight and bantam four left last evening over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and Canadian Northern railroads for Ranier, on the boundary line, where the two crews and members of the Boat club who accompany them will take the steamer Kenora for Kenora.

The members of the two crews are confident that Duluth will bring home at least one first prize. The junior eight and four had the last workout at home yesterday morning, the rough water in the bay compelling the crews to go out into the lake. Coach L'Estrange is well satisfied with the way the two boats are moving, and while not making any predictions, believes that this year Duluth is due for a winning. Forgette, Thompson, Quimby, Crawford, Hare, Lathrop, Sole, Kent, Liggett, Walker, O'Donnell, Refus and Talboys are the members of the two crews that left last evening. Capt. MacGreggor of the rowing department of the club, and Coach L'Estrange, also accompanied the crews. A few of the members of the Boat club are expected to make the trip today.

The junior eight and bantam four events will be rowed Friday. If the junior eight is successful in the junior event, it is very probable that the boat will start in the senior eght event. The bantams also may represent the Duluth organization in the junior four event.

The hopes of the club and many of the citizens of the city who are not members of the club, are carried by the two crews. It is believed that Duluth has the best chance the present season that it has enjoyed in years. The two crews have been training hard and faithfully and are confident of victory. In both the events the Duluth crews will enter strong entries have been placed by both St. Paul and Winnipeg.

All that can make for the success of the two crews has been accomplished, and if the Duluth crews fail to win at least one event, it will be because St. Paul and Winnipeg, not to mention Kenora and Fort William, have exceptionally strong crews the present season.

HAS BARNUM'S VIEW OF PUBLIC

New York, July 27.—"We want to see Jim try again," said Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager, who arrived here yesterday from Chicago with Jack Gleason, the fight promoter, and, as was Gleason, was immediately importuned as to the prospects of another battle between the former champion and Jack Johnson. "The tremendous pressure is being brought to bear upon him," Berger added. "All we ask is that he face Johnson again and show the form he did at his California training camp and there will be a big drop in the price of anthracite. Jeffries has simply got to try again to square himself with his friends and backers."

Berger did not say this right off the reel. At first he declared it too soon to talk about another fight. Gleason talked the same way. Both spoke more freely after the discussion had waxed warm. Gleason would not commit himself when asked if the promoters of the recent fight were not considering pulling off another Jeffries-Johnson battle in England, France or Australia. He admitted, however, that he believed such a meeting would be a big drawing card and that a limited bout could be staged without interference in London, Paris or Sydney.

EUROPEAN TROTTER MAY BE THE FAVORITE.

New York, July 27.—Horsemen are weighing the chances of the European trotting stallion Willy, winning the principal races of the Grand Circuit meeting to be held at the Empire City track, Aug. 23 to 27. He is now campaigning in the West and from his performances seems likely to make things merry for the forty American trotters entered against him in the 2:16 race to wagon, amateurs to drive, for $2,500 stakes at the New York meeting.

Willy, which is owned by Louis Winans of London, was raised in Austria-Hungary and is 6 years old. In his 3-year-old form he won six consecutive races in Germany, Austria and Hungary, and he twice won the Prince Solus Preis, a feat which no other horse accomplished.

BUNDY WINS FROM HAYES AT ONWENTSIA.

Lake Forest, Ill., July 25.—In a smashing exhibition of hard fought, clever play on the courts of the Onwentsia club here yesterday, Thomas Bundy, the Pacific coast champion, defeated Walter Hayes, the Illinois state champion, in the fourth round of the annual Western championship tennis tourney. Hayes took the first set, the score for the match being 3-6; 6-4; 6-2.

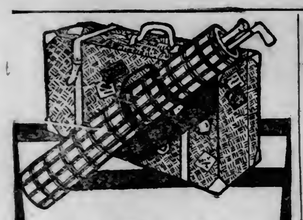

Ideal weather conditions, fast courts and an appreciative gallery characterized yesterday's events in the annual tourney.

The surprise of the day in the men's singles occurred in the third round, when Elsner, a local player, defeated Burton, the Minneapolis crack, by a score of 5-7; 7-5; 6-4.

Cedar River Girl Injured.

Menominee, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Esther Olson, daughter of Frank Olson of Cedar River, is in a critical condition, having been struck on the head by a stone thrown by one of her playmates.

MINNESOTA DOUBTFUL

Washington Survey of Situation in the North Star State.

Republican Factional Fights Contributing to Aid the Democrats.

New York, July 27.—A Washington special to the Evening Post says: "Rock-ribbed for many years, Minnesota this year may be classified as a doubtful state. The Republicans may lose the governorship, and a Democrat may be chosen to succeed Moses E. Clapp in the United States senate. Dissatisfaction with the Taft administration and the new tariff law, factional troubles within the party, and a quarrel over the conservation congress scheduled to meet in St. Paul in September that may project itself into the campaign, all tend to throw an element of doubt into the political situation in Minnesota this year.

Minnesota Republicans are hoping for the best. In the recent state convention antagonistic forces compromised on a tariff plank, but the soreness engendered by discussion of the subject has not been healed. Every Republican in congress from Minnesota, with the exception of James A. Tawney, voted against the Payne-Aldrich bill, and in the Tawney district only will a campaign be made in the state in defense of the new tariff. In all other districts the tariff will be tabooed.

Minnesota is an "insurgent" state. Therein lies the danger to the Republican party there. With Minnesota Democrats in good fighting trim and thousands of "regular" Republicans indifferent to the fate of Senator Clapp, an insurgent leader, the Republicans of Minnesota stand a chance of losing Clapp's seat. The indications are that if the "regulars" in the state desert Clapp and the insurgent congressmen, the chances of Governor Eberhart for re-election will be in danger.

Senator Clapp's Misgivings.

Several weeks before the Minnesota Republican convention was held Senator Clapp made this observation to a friend: "I expect to be indorsed by the state convention. My only misgiving is as to the outcome of the fall election. I can't exactly account for it, but conditions there are not promising. While public sentiment in Minnesota supports the insurgent movement in congress, ther are signs of unrest and general dissatisfaction."

A letter that Senator Clapp received from Minnesota just about that time may have had something to do with his pessimistic frame of mind. It came from an old-time Republican, and read substantially as follows:

"Dear Senator: Bully for you and Cummins, Dolliver and La Follette. You have done great work in combating vicious legislation. I have made up my mind never to vote the Republican ticket again as long as I live."

"Jumping crickets!" exclaimed Senator Clapp, upon receipt of this letter, "where are we going to land this fall if Republicans, in appreciation of our work, make up their minds to vote the Democratic ticket?"

The First Minnesota district, represented in the house by James A. Tawney, is to be a political battleground this fall. Tawney took his life in his hands when he voted for the Aldrich-Payne law. His Republican colleagues in the house and Senators Nelson and Clapp fought that measure with great violence. The first speech that President Taft made in defence of the new law was delivered at Winona, Mr. Tawney's home town. It was there that Mr. Taft declared that the new tariff was a decided improvement over its predecessor. Mr. Tawney agreed with the president. He intends to make his fight for re-election on the tariff. While Tawney is whooping it up for the tariff in the First district, the Republican candidates in other Minnesota districts will either say nothing on the subject at all, or repeat all the mean things they said about the bill when it was up for consideration in either the house or the senate.

The chances are that the Republican congressional committee will limit its activities in Minnesota to the Tawney district. The organization proposes to make an orthodox campaign. An orthodox campaign will not go in Minnesota this year, as public sentiment in the state is hostile to the tariff, and, with the exception noted, all of its Republican representatives, who will be candidates for re-election, are on record as hostile to the law.

Conservation Also An Issue.

The proper way to administer the new policy of conservation is to be an issue in Minnesota. Republicans in that state have divided along the lines of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. Senator Knute Nelson, chairman of the joint committee of congress that is inquiring into this matter, is a bitter opponent of the Pinchot school of conservation. So, also, is Tawney and Representative Frederick C. Stevens of St. Paul. The other Republican members from the state, including Senator Clapp, generally uphold the Pinchot end of the Ballinger-Pinchot imbroglio.

Governor Eberhart succeeded John A. Johnson as Minnesota's executive. Eberhart is a young man, and up to a recent period it was thought that he would be re-elected without any trouble. The outlook now is not so promising. Satisfied that they have more than a fighting chance to win, the Democrats are determined to pick a strong candidate. John Lind, a prominent Swede, is the favorite. He is very strong in Minnesota. He has been governor of the state, and served two or three terms in congress. If Lind is nominated, the Republicans admit that it will take a strong fight to elect Eberhart, with about an even chance that he will be defeated.

CUMMINS AFTER "STEEL TRUST"

Iowa Senator Finishes His Stumping Tour in Kansas.

Olathe, Kan., July 27.—Senator Albert B. Cummins in an address here yesterday afternoon attacked the United States Steel corporation. This was the last speech of Senator Cummins' present Kansas tour. Immediately after he had finished speaking he left for his home in Des Moines to rest for a time.

Senator Cummins in his speech said in part:

"You will remember that in 1901 the Carnegie Company of Pittsburg sold its plant to the United States Steel corporation, organized that year. The steel corporation paid the Carnegie Steel company $500,000,000 for its plant and business. Of this incomprehensible sum Andrew Carnegie received $250,000,000 in the bonds of the corporation, and his associates in business received the remainder.

Value of the Plant.

"What was the plant worth? That is not a subject longer in dispute. It has been most minutely investigated. The biggest value any reasonable man would put on it in 1901 was $80,000,000, and the United States Steel corporation paid to Andrew Carnegie's company $420,000,000 more than it was worth, more than it would be required to reproduce it with every modern improvement known to business.

"Now, why did the United States Steel corporation pay $420,000,000 more for this property than it was worth? I will tell you. It examined the books of the Carnegie Steel company, and there it was shown that over a series of years the Carnegie company had been making profits that would pay interest on $500,000,000, and the United States Steel corporation had enough confidence in its own power and in the friendship of men like Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Payne of New York and Aldrich of Rhode Island and Hale of Maine and Lodge of Massachusetts to be sure that in the years to come it would be able to earn interest upon the $500,000,000 it was then paying to the Carnegie Steel company. This is the sole secret of that transaction."

Told of Reorganization.

Senator Cummins then told of the company's reorganization with a capital of a billion and a half of dollars. He said $500,000,000 of this capitalization was pure water.

Predict Insurgent Control.

Kansas City, Mo., July 27.—Senator Albert B. Cummins, who passed through this city last night on his route for his home in Des Moines, in an interview predicted that the progressive Republicans will control the national Republican convention in 1912, and progressive Republicans might control congress before that time.

"In the senate Senator Aldrich and Senator Hale are going to retire, and there won't be any one in the senate on that side to take up the reins of authority that Aldrich will lay down. There is bound, therefore, to be a disintegration of that force. Ready to take it up in the senate is a military, aggressive organization of insurgent senators. As a neuclus right now, we have fourteen senators fairly well identified with us in the senate.

"I have gained the impression that in Kansas the sentiment is overwhelmingly progressive."

FOR OPTION IN NEBRASKA

Republicans Adopt Platform Indorsing That Principle.

Also Praise Payne Law and the Insurgents in the Party.

Lincoln, Neb., July 27. — The platform convention of the Republican party of Nebraska yesterday adopted a platform strongly indorsing the administration of President Taft, expressing unalterable opposition to the "system known as Cannonism," and hearty sympathy with the "insurgent" movement in and out of congress. The platform includes a declaration for county option as the method of regulating the liquor traffic, and for an amendment to the state constitution providing for direct legislation.

As a general proposition, it had been understood the indorsement of county option and of "insurgency" were supported by the same people. In consequence when, at the opening of the convention at noon, United States Senator Norris Brown, a "standpatter," was chosen permanent chairman over Congressman George W. Norris, a leader in "insurgency," by an overwhelming vote, the rank and file of the "county optionists" began to fear for the fate of their pet resolution.

Was Virtual Compromise.

It developed, however, that while no compromise was admitted by either side, there had been a conference at which Senator Brown assured the "optionists" of the character of the resolutions committee he would appoint if he was made permanent chairman.

The resolutions adopted strongly indorse the national administration as well as previous Republican administrations, and the new tariff law. A resolution calling for a constitutional amendment providing for direct legislation was adopted.

Near the close of the convention, Congressman Norris offered the following resolution:

"Every protest against wrong is 'insurgency' for the right. We are unalterably opposed to the system known as 'Cannonism' and are in hearty sympathy with the insurgent movement in and out of congress. We urge our senators and representatives to make use of their votes and influence along progressive lines in the future."

There was a storm of protest when the resolution was first presented, but when put to vote it was declared adopted.

The convention then selected the state central committee and adjourned finally.

ADMIRAL GOING TO SEEK HIS SON

Retires From Service and Will Take Up Sad Mission in Alaska.

Washington, July 27.—Rear-Admiral John A. Rogers, commandant of the Bremerton navy yard at Puget Sound, Wash., retired yesterday at the statutory age of 62 years, and will go to Alaska to take up the forlorn hunt for his son, who was lost in the wilderness there a year ago. Capt. Vincendon L. Cottman, who has been captain of the Bremerton yard, has been apointed commandant.

Rear-Admiral Rodgers was one of the men who perfected the navy's wireless system and he had a fine record in the line. He entered the naval academy at Annapolis in 1863, and had been commandant of the Bremerton yard since 1908. He was made a rear-admiral in that year.

STATE LOSES ITS CASE

Involving Seizure of Alleged Adulterated Linseed Oil.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Amidon of the United States circuit court here yesterday denied the motion of the American Linseed Oil Company of Omaha for an injunction against the state dairy and pure food commissioner.

The case arose over the seizing of linseed oil shipped to this state and claimed by the state to be adulterated. It was admitted by the oil company to be adulterated technically, but they contended that it was a regular commercial product.

The oil company alleged that the linseed oil trust furnished the state with affidavits concerning the quality of the seized oil.

As an outcome of the case the state will make no more seizures of adulterated oil, which is merely shipped through the state.

The dead youth was a son of the president of the roofing company and was working in the office at the plant when the fire occurred. Kemp was probably fatally burned.

Mrs. Anton Armbuster and Mrs. Annie Bitter were severely burned, while trying to aid young Biegler. Capt. Charles Potts of the fire department was also injured in the fire which destroyed the plant.

SPEAR IS BOUND OVER.

Houghton Man Alleged to Have Run Off With Married Woman, Held.

Houghton, Mich., July 27.—Daniel Spear, who recently figured in a charge of stealing another man's wife and money, has been bound over to the September term of circuit court to answer to the charge of grand larceny.

Spear, it is said, ran off with his boarding mistress a week ago Monday night and hied to Milwaukee. While the husband of the young woman was sleeping, Spear went through his clothes and, it is alleged, took some $68 in cash, a ring and some clothes. The husband put the sheriff's officers on the trail and Undersheriff Sheridan captured the young man in Milwaukee on Friday last and returned him to Houghton. Spear was yesterday morning arraigned in the court of Judge Little and was bound over to the next term of circuit court to answer to the charge of grand larceny.

When Phil Sheridan left on his chase he was told by the husband to leave the runaway wife alone as he did not want her and was through with her.

Spear, in addition, it is said, took the 14-year-old daughter of his boarding mistress along with them to keep company. The husband does not care to press the charge against Spear of stealing a wife from him, but is a whole lot more anxious that the young man be given his just deserts for the alleged stealing of his money and goods.

TURN DOWN W. J. BRYAN

Nebraska Democrats Wrest Leadership From Him on Option Issue.

State Convention Refuses to Incorporate It in Platform.

Grand Island, Neb., July 27.—After twenty years of domination, the Nebraska Democrats last night wrested the leadership of their state organization from William J. Bryan on the issue of county option. By decisive votes they registered their unbelief in his present policies after listening to an impassioned appeal from Mr. Bryan, who declared the liquor interests were in an organized attempt to secure political control of the state. The minority plank submitted by Mr. Bryan was brief and his opponents declared was an effort to recede from his former radical attitude. But the workers against the county option plank were unappeased and stood firmly against it.

His Position Denounced.

The attitude of many of Mr. Bryan's former lieutenants toward him was evinced in the speeches of several who addressed the convention after him. His reference to "assassins" in the party was referred to frequently and as each speaker denounced his present position the cheers of the delegates showed that the appeal of Mr. Bryan had been ineffectual.

The vote by which his county option plank was rejected was not taken until midnight. It was decisively against the acceptance of the measure.

Mr. Bryan made no comment after the vote, and in answer to questions referred to his speech in which he proclaimed his fealty to the Democratic party and its platform.

Amid a tumult of cheers from the peerless leader's former followers, Permanent Chairman Smyth of the Democratic platform convention read the result of a test vote of the gathering.

Motion by Hitchcock.

The vote came on a motion made by Congressman G. M. Hitchcock, a candidate for the senatorial nomination, and in effect was to eliminate the introduction of platform planks, with accompanying speeches, unless submitted as a section of the majority or minority report of the committee on resolutions.

Mr. Bryan, seated as a member of the Lancaster county delegation, was on his feet at once with a protest, and offered an amendment that would modify the intent of the original motion. A dozen delegates made as many motions and heated speeches on the subject, the Bryan adherents denouncing the Hitchcock motion as "gag rule" and their opponents declaring that "individual rule" must not prevail in the convention. Chairman Smyth ordered a roll-call on the amendment and the gathering was silent as the vote of the counties was called that would determine the Bryan strength.

Cheers Drowned Roll Call.

When two-thirds had been called, foes of Mr. Bryan realized that he was defeated and a wave of cheers that drowned the roll-call began. As Chairman Smyth read the result, 465 against the amendment to 394 in favor of it, the delegates sounded a fresh volume of cheers that seemed to indicate their relief from the uncertainty that had existed as to the strength which Mr. Bryan might develop in the convention.

The original motion of Mr. Hitchcock then was adopted.

While the committee on resolutions was drafting its report, Governor Shallenberger and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, rivals for the nomination for governor, addressed the convention. Governor Shallenberger announced his willingness to stand for a re-election on the indorsement of the daylight closing law, the operation of which had been attacked by Mayor Dahlman and his followers. The governor also promised the delegates that, if re-elected together with a Democratic legislature, he would give them opportunity, through legislative action, to settle the saloon question definitely.

United Against Bryan.

The differences of the Shallenberger and Dahlman factions on minor points of the platform did not prevent a solid front by them against the county option issue of which Mr. Bryan was the only sponsor.

At the opening of the evening session, former Senator W. B. Patrick, the Bryan candidate for governor, took the platform and openly defied the opponents of Bryan. He declared that failure to adopt the county option plank meant certain defeat at the polls. He attacked Shallenberger and Mayor Dahlman until cautioned by Chairman Smyth. He declared that Bryan was the only man who did or could lead the Democrat cohorts to victory.

Majority Report Read.

The majority report on the liquor questions favored by five of the seven members, than was read as follows:

"We are opposed to making county option or any plan for the regulation of the liquor traffic a question of party creed. We stand for and insist upon strict enforcement of our present laws, and believe that any further changes in our liquor legislation should be decided by a direct vote of the people, and that the cause of good government and public morals will be better served in that way than by dividing the people into hostile factions on purely moral issues."

Speeches were made by the sponsors of the planks and the convention then settled down to the final battle. There was unanimity of opinion on every phase, save one, and its adoption was asked. The plank in dispute was:

"We heartily approve of the daylight saloon law and we commend the courageous action of Governor Shallenberger in approving it."

The plank was adopted by a vote of 710 to 163.

Two Minority Reports.

It was then announced that two minority reports would be submitted, one by W. J. Bryan and the other by H. B. Fleharty. That of Mr. Bryan read:

"We favor county option as the best method of dealing with the liquor question."

That of Mr. Flaherty was:

"We favor local option as now provided for by law, but are opposed to county option."

Mr. Bryan, speaking from the platform in behalf of the minority plank presented by him, was greeted by shouts of applause and was listened to in silence. He said in part:

"If I have advocated that which is not good for the state, let me feel your wrath. If you find I have done anything that is not for the good of the Democratic party I do not ask your mercy.

"Who, less than I, could desire to disrupt the Democratic party? Am I not aware what a repudiation at your hands will mean to me? It has been said that I am making this fight because I am not a candidate. Nothing could be more untrue."

Referred to Other Battles.

Mr. Bryan here referred to the political battles he had waged, and declared that he had been fearless when his own future seemed at stake. Continuing he said:

"I have been called a dictator for expressing my opinion. Your candidates here today have expressed their sentiments. By what law am I compelled to remain silent? I feel that the good name of my state is at stake. It has been said that I am aggrieved because I have been sold out by the liquor interests in my state. I have been sold out by these liquor Democrats in my own state and saved by the votes of self-respecting Republicans who refused to aid in it. I expect to aid in the work of the Democratic party, but I will not remain silent when a band of political assassins attacks me."

The speaker then attacked the seated delegates of Douglas county, in which Omaha is located, declaring that they were not the choice of the Democrats of the county.

"I am not willing to admit that this is a final settlement of this question," continued Mr. Bryan, "and on a moral question I am not afraid to express my opinion and stand on it, if I have to stand alone."

"To Betray Nebraska."

Mr. Bryan declared that he had learned on his trip from South America of the plan "to betray Nebraska into the hands of the liquor interests." He said that the election of United States senators and state officials was a part of the conspiracy and that he felt called upon to prevent the political burglary of the state.

"The Republican party and the Populist party of this state have adopted county option," said Mr. Bryan in conclusion. "If you do not adopt it, it becomes an issue. Your speakers say the tide is turning toward Democracy in national issues; then make your fight on them, not in defense of the liquor traffic."

Populists Favor Option.

The Populists' state convention indorsed county option and then adopted a resolution to support no candidate for any office who is not in favor of county option.

HIS FORGERIES CLAIMED TO HAVE BEEN ON WHOLESALE SCALE

BERTOL B. BROSVIK.

Bertol B. Brosvik, clerk of the town of Buyck is claimed to have misappropriated more public funds than any official in the history of St. Louis county. He was arrested a week ago on a warrant sworn out by Special Counsel W. J. Stevenson of the board of county commissioners for forging the name of Mina Finstad to a county check for $267.58. This was one of the smallest checks to which he is claimed to have attached forged names.

At the time of his arrest he strenuously denied his guilt, but it is stated on good authority that when Attorney Stevenson and David Williams, assistant cashier of the First National bank, called on him last week, he admitted transactions running into many thousands of dollars. About the largest, it is alleged, was the forging of the name of Oscar Hanson, town treasurer of Buyck a year ago, to a check for over $4,000. Out of this he sent drafts to other officials to make up sums which he had previously obtained by other deals.

He didn't confine his operations to county checks, however, according to allegations of those who have been investigating his case. About a week ago he is said to have passed forged checks on saloon keepers in Duluth and Superior, obtaining amounts ranging from $10 to $40.

He also invented a fictitious debt due the school district. He obtained $248 in this manner, passing the check on a wholesale house. To do this he forged the names of Peter Anderson, a school director, and Mina Finstad, school treasurer, it is claimed. The only genuine signature was that of his own.

His forgeries are known to date back at least as far as August, 1909. It is believed that they extend over a longer period of time. It is claimed that there are several other large irregularities for which he has been responsible, but thus far it has been impossible to obtain any definite information relative to them.

When brought to headquarters, after having been turned over to deputies in the sheriff's office by Mr. Stevenson, he indignantly denied that he had committed any forgeries. He claimed that the Finstads owed him money, advanced to enable them to pay living expenses, and that his only crime was to accept public money to pay a public debt. When the facts in the entire case are made public it is anticipated that they will show the largest string of forgeries ever laid to an official in St. Louis county. The belief is that he will enter a plea of guilty when arraigned in the district court.

ANDERSON WILL OPPOSE TAWNEY

Fillmore County Attorney Indorsed for Congress By Progressives.

Rochester, Minn., July 27.—Sidney A. Anderson, a young attorney of Lanesboro, Fillmore county, will be the progressive candidate for congressman from the First district against Congressman James A. Tawney. This is practically the decision reached at a meeting of the executive committee of the First District Progressive league held in this city.

The meeting was called by the chairman of the committee, Thomas Fraser, of this city, and seven counties in the First district were represented.

It was voted to ask Mr. Anderson to become the candidate and he has practically given his consent to make the race. In an address to the committee, Mr. Anderson stated that he believed in progressive principles, but that he would not be a party to a campaign conducted on personal lines. He would cling to the issues before the people and make a fight on the principles of the progressive element of the Republican party.

It was stated at the close of the meeting by some who were in attendance that Mr. Anderson made a very favorable impression and that would make an excellent candidate. All present were enthusiastic over the outcome of the conference.

BONIFACES TO MEET.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Hotel Men's association, with membership embracing Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska, will hold an annual convention in Minneapolis, Aug. 17-19.

Frank W. Harwood, business manager of the Mid-West Hotel Reporter of Omaha, and business associate of Irvin A. Medler, secretary of the association, is here to arrange for the meeting. He believes the attendance will include more than 200 proprietors or managers of Northwest hotels.

YOUNG LAWYER IN TROUBLE.

Has Been Using Judge's Chambers as Private Office.

New York, July 27.—Comptroller Prendergast yesterday rebuked Judge Warren Foster of the court of general sessions for allowing the judge's chambers to be used as a "private law office," as the comptroller describes it. The comptroller wrote Judge Foster in part as follows:

"Facts which have been disclosed relate to the use of your chambers in the criminal court building as a private law office by Jacob Newman, your attendant. The question directly raised by these facts is whether Newman's salary, which is fixed by law at $1,800 per annum, can be properly audited and paid by the finance department.

"While acting as your personal attendant he has been admitted to the bar and carries on a general practice in the offices which take up a part of your chambers."

Judge Foster has been a judge in the general sessions since 1899.

RICH MAN'S SON GETS AWAY FROM ASYLUM.

Elgin, Ill., July 27.—Joseph Connor, son of a wealthy Elgin man and former official of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railroad, escaped from the state hospital for the insane here yesterday in an automobile. Connor was aided by two women and a chauffeur employed by a Chicago livery company.

Connor was committed to the Elgin institution in February last, following the discovery of $7,000 shortage in his books at the offices of the railroad company at Waukegan, Ill.

Following his escape, Dr. S. D. Walgus, superintendent of the hospital, said Connor virtually was well and that no search for him would be made. If he is not returned to the institution within thirty days the case will be wiped off the hospital books.

Carver Remington Attempts Suicide.

Chicago, July 27.—Carver Remington, 60 years old, a son of Samuel Remington and a nephew of the late Levi Z. Leiter, attempted to end his life by shooting in a downtown tailor shop today. Although wounded in his left side near the heart, Remington probably will recover.

Before shooting himself, Remington wrote a letter saying that he was discouraged by lack of business success.

MISSING BETHEL WORKER IN MINNEAPOLIS HOSPITAL.

It is claimed by Bethel officials that M. J. Ryan, who for more than a year was connected with that institution as a religious worker and mysteriously disappeared from Duluth some time ago, is still confined to a Minneapolis hospital, which he entered immediately after leaving this city.

Rev. Mr. Moody stated this morning that the letter received from Mr. Ryan a week ago, in which he said he would go to Breckenridge, S. D., contained such incoherent information that it was not deemed advisable to have it published. A reply was made to this letter, but it was returned by the postal authorities with the stamp of "no such place," on it. Mrs. Ryan is now living with her sister, Mrs. H. Armstrong of Lakeside.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WHO SHALL CALL MEET?

Is Question Not Answered in North Dakota's New Primary Law.

Provides for Meeting of State Committees But Not for Calling.

Bismarck, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the peculiarities of North Dakota's primary election law has been brought out in the section relating to the meetings of the county committees of different political parties. This law provides that the committees shall meet between Aug. 1 and 10, for the purpose of organization and to name the county member of the state central committee. While it provides for such a meeting, it does not say who shall call it, but in the absence of any such provision the chairmen of the old county committees will take it upon themselves to perform the duty. The meeting must be held at the county seat.

Committees Meet at Bismarck.

Between Sept. 1 and 10 the state central committees of the different political parties hold their meetings, Bismarck being the place at which they must hold forth. They will organize at that time and will also adopt a platform of principles.

Complete returns from the recent state primary election will be available when the state canvassing board meets on the first Tuesday in September. The secretary of state, superintendent of public instruction, clerk of supreme court and chairmen of the two strongest political parties are the members of the board. All of the counties have completed their canvass of the votes.

BELTRAMI WILL MAKE EXHIBIT

Resources of That County to Be Set Forth at State Fair.

Bemidji, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the purpose of showing conclusively that Beltrami county is capable of producing the very best of everything in the line of agriculture a comprehensive agricultural exhibit will be made at the state fair.

The collection of the exhibit will be made under the auspices of the Beltrami County Agricultural association.

It is the intention to make the exhibit especially strong in grains and roots. The following will collect the exhibits: George E. Erieson of Spooner, L. G. Townsend of Blackduck and W. R. Mackenzie and August Jarchow for Bemidji and the south end of the county.

Wild and tame grasses, clovers, alfalfa, grain threshed and in the straw and vegetables in limited supply will be collected. The entire exhibit will be returned to Bemidji and exhibited at the Beltrami county fair, Sept. 14, 15 and 16.

The county commissioners have given $650 to the Beltrami County Agricultural society to aid in the state exhibit and the county fair and the city council will give $250.

This will be the first year Beltrami county has made a large exhibit of its agricultural resources at the state fair.

ADA MAN GETS CONTRACT.

For Building Some More Sewers in Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., July 27.—H. F. Bosworth of Ada, who has constructed many sewers here has been awarded a contract to lay about 2,840 feet of new sewer through the larger portion of the city. The pipe to be used in the sewer will be eight-inch, and Mr. Bosworth's bid for the construction of the sewer was $1.05 per foot for laying of the pipe and $55 each for the eight manholes. Boran Bros. of Bemidji, Frazer & Danforth of Rochester, Minn., and L. P. Ekstrum of Bemidji also bid on the construction of the sewer, but Bosworth's bid was the lowest. Work on the sewer will be commenced in a very few days.

The council refused permission to a street carnival company to give a three-day show, claiming that carnivals always take a lot of money out of the city leaving business stagnant.

IS FEDERAL CASE.

Point Raised Favoring Man Arrested on Indian Reservation.

Stanley, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge Goss in the case of the state against Joseph Kaczor holds then the officials of Mountrail county have no jurisdiction over that section of the county that is included in the Indian reservation.

Kaczor was arrested on a charge of grand larceny and the writ was secured on the grounds that the arresting officer had no jurisdiction, but that the matter was entirely up to the federal officials. A settlement of the question is expected soon.

SKAT PLAYERS CONTEST.

Devotees of Game Have Sport in Stearns County Sunday.

St. Cloud, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The little village of Meire Grove, in the west part of Stearns county was the scene of a lively gathering Sunday afternoon, when the skat players from all parts of the county gathered there to take part in the tournament which had been arranged. BAYFIELD GIRL KILLS HERSELF

Miss Mattie Rowley Latest Victim of Carelessness in Handling Weapons.

Bayfield, Wis., July 28.—Miss Mattie Rowley, aged 18, of Bayfield, shot and instantly killed herself near here Sunday night.

At the coroner's inquest Monday the verdict was to the effect that she had accidentally shot herself, the jury recommending more care in the sale of firearms to minors.

Miss Rowley was a sister of Dr. Rowley of Ashland and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Rowley of Bayfield.

Sunday afternoon Miss Rowley was sailing with Lloyd Brigham, a young man about her own age. Toward evening they went ashore, where they were met by the young lady's brother, Russel Rowley, and John Maxlim, who took them ashore from the sailboat in a rowboat. Between 6 and 7 o'clock Maxim left for Holston's farm to do the chores and was accompanied by Russell Rowley.

A bonfire was built and the young couple sat by the fire some time and then began shooting at a stump as a target.

After a shot or two were fired young Brigham went to rebuild the fire, and heard a shot, his back being turned to Miss Rowley. He rushed to her side, but she died almost instantly, the bullet from her revolver having pierced her body near the heart. It is presumed that her handkerchief became entangled with the trigger and that in trying to loosen it she fired the gun.

Miss Rowley has lived at Bayfield with her parents two or three years, and was an estimable young lady. Lloyd Brigham, who was the nearest witness to the accident, was prostrated by the occurrence.

CONTRACTS ISLAND FEVER.

Chippewa Falls Woman Cannot Live in Porto Rico.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 27.—A cablegram just received by Richard Cosgriff announces that his daughter, Miss Lou Cosgriff, has sailed for her home in this city. She has been ill at San Juan, Porto Rico, from "island fever" ever since she landed there June 15, with Federal Judge John J. Jenkins and party. Miss Cosgriff received the appointment of court reporter for the federal court of Porto Rico at a salary of $2,000 per annum with extra fees. But she could not endure the climate of Porto Rico, the fever having seized her as soon as she arrived and she consequently resigned. Upon her return she will resume her position with the American Immigration company, as bookkeeper.

DECIDE BALLOT COLOR.

Tinge of Pieces of Paper to Be Used in Wisconsin Primary.

Madison, Wis., July 27.—The colors to be used by the various political parties in the counties of Wisconsin which adopt the Dunn pocket ballot system were decided by lot in the office of Secretary of State Frear.

Dark green, red, light blue and pink cards were placed in a hat and Chief Clerk Nagler did the drawing. White was tabooed, as being no specific color and yellow because of the popular prejudice against it.

The colors were allotted as follows: Republican party, dark green; Democratic party, red; Social Democratic party, light blue, and Prohibition party, pink. The Social Democratic party had asked for red and the Prohibition party had manifested a preference for white.

NEW STILLWATER INDUSTRY.

Recently Inaugurated Pottery Plant Putting Out Products.

Stillwater, Minn., July 27.—The pottery of the American Clay Products company, located in the northern end of this city, adjacent to the St. Croix has been in successful operation for more than a week. It is unique in its construction and operation.

A week ago its first shipment of wares was made, that being three cars of 60,000 hollow brick for building purposes which went to a firm in St. Paul.

It has an order for fifteen cars of sewer tile from the Omaha railway to be delivered to the railway company on the spur track at the pottery. Some of the cars are now being loaded. The railway company will take the tile to Altoona, Wis., for use there and at other places on the Northwestern system.

The product of the pottery is drain tile of various sizes, hollow brick and blocks for building, of assorted sizes and ornamental pottery is a contomplated output.

While standing, he lost his balance and went into the lake, the boat overturning with him.

Mr. Waldros and the Olson boy managed to catch hold of the overturned boat and held on until help arrived, but Anton Olson went down and failed to rise.

FAVOR LATE FAIR.

So Ward County Farmers Can Make Adequate Exhibits.

Minot, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dates have been definitely fixed for the Ward County fair, Sept. 27 to 29 being decided upon. The purpose in holding the fair so late is to give the farmers an opportunity of bringing in some fine exhibits, as in the earlier months it is practically impossible to get a fair representation of the resources of this section of the state because of the fact that things are not far enough along to make a creditable showing.

Speci attention is to be paid to the stock exhibit this year and larger premiums than heretofore have been offered in order to make this movement successful.

GET TWO DOZEN PAIRS OF SHOES

Burglars Enter Superior Street Store Through Rear Window.

Burglars entered the Waldorf Shoe store, 313 West Superior street, through the back window of the building some time before midnight last night and carried off twenty-four pairs of shoes. The cash register and till were not touched. The discovery was made about 12 o'clock last night, when one of the employes stepped into the store on a business errand. The matter was immediately reported to the police, but as yet no arrests have been made, and little clue is to be secured as to who the culprits are. The entrance was gained by breaking the heavy screen which guards this window.

RAIN

The traveler who arrives in Duluth from Kansas City, St. Louis or some other city where 100 deg. in the shade is not a record breaking mark, breathes in the delightful air that comes off of Lake Superior and asks, "Do Duluth people really leave here in the summer?" Well they may ask the question. If there is any place on the entire map of the world more favored in the line of summer weather than Duluth, it has yet to be discovered. Yesterday was another of those summer days that bring delight and so is today. The weather man promises local thunderstorms to clear the atmosphere tonight or tomorrow.

Cloudy weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:41 and it will set at 7:47, giving fifteen hours and six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The hot wave still prevails in all districts except throughout Canada, the Lake Superior region and Pacific coast states. Temperatures of 100 deg. occurred Tuesday in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and Arizona, while 90 deg. or slightly above was the rule in the other heated districts. Showers or thunder storms occurred over scattered portions of the Dakotas, Wyoming, Colorado, Missouri, Eastern Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio valley and Gulf states, largely due to the influence of low pressure areas central over Eastern Colorado and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. An increase in pressure over Alberta and Montana is attended by cooler weather this morning in those districts."

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes: Light to moderate variable winds. Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday.

Chicago, July 27.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

South Dakota—Partly cloudy with showers tonight or Thursday; cooler in west portion tonight.

Montana—Fair tonight and Thursday; cooler in extreme southeast portion tonight.

Iowa—Generally fair and continued warm tonight and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; warmer in southwest portion tonight and in east portion Thursday.

RUN OVER BY AUTOMOBILE

Henry Gaultier Is Struck While Waiting for Street Car.

Henry Gaultier, 18 years old, was struck by an automobile belonging to John Panton, at an early hour this morning, on the corner of First avenue east and Superior street. He was seriously injured and immediately removed to his home, 224 East Second street.

John Panton, Jr., was running the car at the time, in which both Mr. and Mrs. Panton were riding. Young Panton claimed that he was not running more than eight or ten miles an hour while crossing the avenue.

Gaultier was standing on the curbing talking with friends, while waiting for a west bound car to take him to Fifth avenue west, where he is employed by one of the wholesale firms. As the street car approached he stepped forward to get aboard, but noting that it was crowded, decided to wait for another.

Having made this decision he turned back to the curbing, only to be struck by the Panton car, also west bound. He was hurled under the automobile, and both wheels passed over his legs, which were badly bruised. Physicians who attended the case, were unable to state whether there were any internal injuries.

BARS CARNIVAL COMPANY.

Ishpeming's Mayor Turns Down Application for a License.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor McCorkindale has denied a street carnival company the privilege of exhibiting in this city. A representative of the company spent some time trying to induce the mayor to grant a license for a week, but he stood pat. The mayor believes that the people in general, and the business men in particular, do not favor street carnivals. While Ishpeming has never had any experience with entertainments of this character, Mayor McCorkindale has had experience with many of them elsewhere, and he has found that the results have not been satisfactory.

A license to show in Negaunee was applied for later, but Mayor Elliott took the same stand as Mayor McCorkindale, and would not, under any consideration, give the carnival company the use of the streets. The company was most desirous of showing either in Ishpeming or Negaunee. It was figured that it would make little difference which city the shows exhibited in, as they would draw largely from the neighboring place, in any event.

Mayor McCorkindale took the stand that the extra expense the city would be put to, and the dissatisfaction that would be created among the business people, would not be offset by the enjoyment that the people would derive from the shows.

SELF-DEFENSE IS CLAIM OF LUCIA

Man Who Murdered Another Alleges He Was Protecting Himself.

Walker, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Apparently paving the way for a plea of self-defense, Edward Lucia, the steamboat pilot who shot and killed James Beardwell, engineer at the Leech Lake sawmill plant here, Monday night, now claims he fired in self-defense. He also still insists that the Boardwells were detaining his daughter for immoral purposes, which prompted him to go to the Boardwell home and demand her surrender.

Lucia says that Boardwell fired the first two shots, none of them taking effect, and that he returned the fire, shooting but once, the bullet striking his victim in the forehead. Lucia is 64 years old and has heretofore borne a good reputation. Boardwell was about 42 years old, and leaves a wife and stepson, Earl Hover. It is stated by Lucia that young Hover and the Lucia girl were to elope Monday evening. The girl is good-looking and has a trace of Indian blood in her veins, her mother being a halfbreed.

THREE ARE AFTER THE SAME OFFICE

J. H. Whitely Is Latest to File for Judge of Probate.

J. H. Whitely, a prominent lawyer of Duluth, yesterday, filed as a candidate for the office of judge of the probate court. This makes three candidates now in the field for this office and the people will undoubtedly see an interesting three-cornered fight. J. B. Middlecoff, who has held the office for a dozen years or so, with the exception of two years, when it was held by Judge Bonham, is a candidate for reelection, and S. W. Gilpin, now county superintendent of schools, has also filed. Mr. Whitely has never before been a candidate for any office, but has always been active in public affairs, and he has organized some of Duluth's most prosperous institutions. He claims to be the father of the Modern Woodmen of America at this port, having organized that lodge some fifteen years ago, at Twentieth avenue west. It is now the largest fraternal lodge in the state, having more than 1,200 members. He also claims to be the father of the Duluth Art association. He was the prime mover for its organization and has worked hard to establish it for the last four years, and was largely instrumental in bringing about the large exhibition of pictures recently held at the courthouse.

Mr. Whitely and Judge Middlecoff are old friends and classmates. They came through the University of Michigan together, graduating from the law school in the spring of 1892; they then came to Duluth together, studied together for a year and in 1893 they took the state examination together and were admitted to the bar of Minnesota. Thomas J. McKeon, the Democratic candidate for the same office, is also a member of the same class.

DON'T CARE WHO KNOWS IT

Mrs. J. R. Myers Makes a Startling Statement about the Electric-Radio.

When Mrs. Myer called upon the Electric-Radio Doctors and asked them if they could cure her they said, they could and would if she would testify to suffering humanity of what they did for her. Besides suffering with a Kidney Stone and complaints peculiar to her sex, her nerves were racked from the lack of proper medical attention. After only a week's treatment, Mrs. Myer has been saved from a surgical operation which besides putting her to a considerable expense for the operation it would have required her being in the hospital several weeks, not to say anything about the risks to run. Today she called at the office and made the following statement:

"Today was the day I was supposed to be operated upon before coming to you, and you don't know how well pleased I am to think that I can go and truthfully say to the doctor who was going to operate that no knife shall be used this time. I cannot recommend this treatment too highly, because any treatment that will do what it has for me in so short a time, will no doubt do wonder for others. I am sure it will save many other women from operations, the same as it has for me, and many of them have resigned to their fate who have never heard of this great cure. Suffering humanity has a hard time to sift the wheat from the chaff in getting proper treatment for their ills, and when one does come across one that is pure gold I advise any woman who is in danger of an operation to call upon the doctors at once for a free examination."

And by acting quickly you may learn of a really special and extraordinary offer. An offer to be withdrawn permanently very soon, as it is quite outside of the company's financial plans.

Lyceum—Forbes Stock company in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

SHE SURELY DID ENJOY THAT SHOW.

There was a fat lady at the Lyceum last evening that the management would like to present with a weekly ticket, so infectious and happy was her laugh. "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," which is being played this week by Gus A. Forbes and his players, goes along with a running accompaniment of gurgling laughter from the audience that breaks out now and again into most hearty roars.

The fat lady got her money's worth all right. She laughed with the rest of the audience and without it. In the moments of comparative calm her "Ha-ha" came out as a solo and during the chorus laughter it was an obligato high above the rest.

In the first act the fat lady wiped the tears of mirth from her beaming happy countenance; after the second act she lifted her arms only to allow them to fall in helpless hysteria of enjoyment. How the fat lady did enjoy the show.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" will be played every evening this week with Saturday and Sunday matinees. The piece, which is the funniest farce produced during the last decade, is being shown for the first time in Duluth and it was presented before a large audience at this afternoon's matinee.

He was immediately brought to the hospital at Marinette for treatment.

BIG AUTOMOBILE HITS SMALL ONE

Occupants of Both Machines Have Some Very Close Calls.

Cando, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Smashing into a smaller automobile, which had been driven into the ditch in order to avoid a collision, occupants of an automobile being driven at a terrific rate, had a miraculous escape. The occupants of the smaller car were also in a tight place.

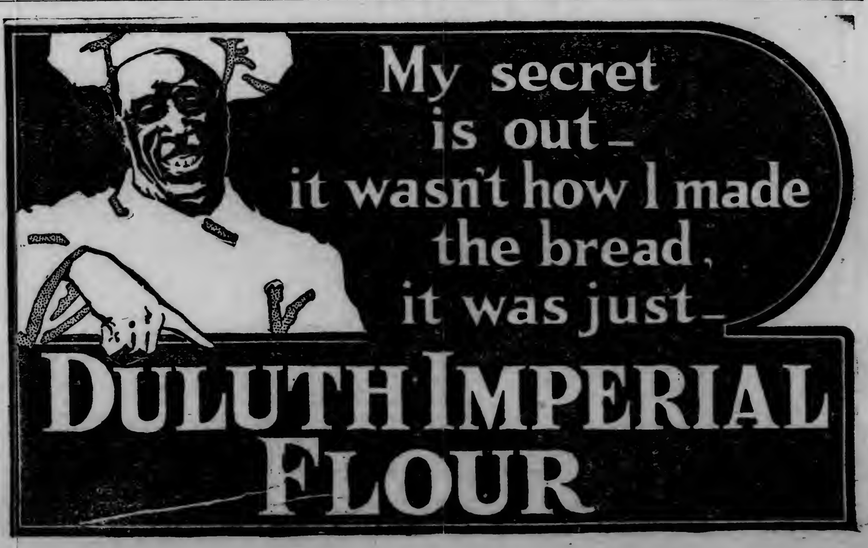

In the smaller car were Charles Barriball, William Treumann and Carl Slocum. They saw the big car coming and thought to avoid an accident by running into the ditch. In making a turn, the larger car was thrown off the road and smashed into the other machine broadside. Victor Green and Thomas McCarty were pinned under the machines, but suffered only slight injuries; Ole Boodleson had a double fracture of the arm, while Carl Price and Milford Martin were thrown clear of the wreck and were only bruised. Barriball was most seriously injured, receiving a broken shoulder blade and internal injuries.

W. J. HALL IS RELEASED

Case Against Duluthian Is Dropped for Lack of Evidence.

Wesley J. Hall of 312 East Fourth street, who was arrested yesterday by the Duluth police on a telegram from Durand, Wis., was released this morning for lack of evidence.

The charge against Mr. Hall was adultery, but there was apparently no evidence to back it up. The district attorney arrived from Durand this morning, but will return this evening without his prisoner. The Duluth police had released Mr. Hall before the district attorney arrived, and the latter did not have any disposition to push the case further.

J. H. WHITELY

Candidate for Judge of Probate.

I have never before been a candidate for any office; have never before done any political work except for the other fellow, but I believe in rotation in office and I am going to "cast in on the other side of the ship." I am a candidate for the office of Judge of Probate. I perceive there is going to be a change in that office and I would like to succeed my old friend Judge Middlecoff. Some say I am too late in filing; am comparat'vely unknown, and that the fences are all built. I am an experienced lawyer, but a greenhorn in politics. I have no frame-up and no organization. I look to my friends to go to and get busy and help me get a safe majority. See me, write or 'phone me and tell me what you can do.

WEST END BIG STRIDES IN SWEDEN

Country Is Making Wonderful Progress, Says Dr. P. P. Waldenstrom.

Those Who Left Twenty Years Ago Would Hardly Recognize It.

That Swedish people who left their native land twenty and thirty years ago and who have never revisited the place, have no conception of the progress that has been made along industrial and commercial lines since, was the declaration of Dr. P. P. Waldenstrom, founder of the Swedish Mission Covenant, and Swedish legislator, who spoke last evening at the Swedish Mission church, Tenty-first avenue west and Second street, last evening.

Dr. Waldenstrom was greeted by a large and interested audience. "Shadows and Lights in Sweden" was the subject of his lecture, which was delivered in the Swedish language. He said that while Sweden is small when compared geographically with the United States, still it is one of the largest countries in Europe. It is the oldest independent country in Europe and has a population of 5,500,000.

The number of tourists, thousands of whom visit Sweden every year, is growing and the country is considered to be one of the most picturesque in the Old World, according to the speaker. One might take a train to its northern extremity, said the speaker, where the sun does not set for seven weeks during the summer time.

Sweden today, declared Dr. Waldenstrom, has more miles of railroads in comparison with its population than any other country in Europe. He spoke of the export trade. The pulp wood industry alone, he pointed out, has grown from 2,000 tons a year twenty-five years ago to 600,000 tons annually. The butter export is also very large. Sweden has a cow for every three persons.

The Iron Mines.

Sweden's iron mines, according to Dr. Waldenstrom, are the richest in the world, but on account of the scarcity of coal, the iron ore has to be exported from the country. As soon as someone invents a device to smelt iron ore by electricity, said the speaker, Sweden will not export her ore, but will build up iron industries of her own.

Swedish people are the most homogeneous of any country in the world, according to Dr. Waldenstrom and only 1 per cent of the population are foreigners. Fifty years ago the state church was Lutheran and all dissenting sects were persecuted. Dr. Waldenstrom took an active part in bringing about the free church movement and was the founder of the Swedish Mission covenant in 1878.

The church now has 1,300 congregations in Sweden and owns several of the most splendid edifices in the land. The denomination has a following of 200,000 members in Sweden and a strong foothold in this country among the Swedish people. Besides the Lutherans and the Mission churches, will be found the Baptists, Methodists, and the Salvation Army, which Gen. Booth said, was more efficient in Sweden than in this country.

The speaker claimed that Sweden is the most democratic country in Europe. Farmers and workingmen are better represented in the parliament than in other European countries. He cited as an instance that the present second chamber of the Swedish parliament was comprised mostly of farmers. Dr. Waldenstrom was a member of the Swedish parliament for twenty years.

The telephone is used more in Sweden than in any other country in the world asserted the speaker who pointed out that the government ownership of the telephone system meant that working people and farmers would have the means to pay for a telephone, where under the system of private ownership the charge is too high for anybody but the wealthy.

The Swedish government owns one-third of the railroads and the telegraph systems. The postal savings bank has been in operation said Dr. Waldenstrom for the past thirty years and Swedish people would not do without it now.

Advanced legislation in Sweden is not due to the bickerings of the Socialists, said the speaker, who has taken a bitter stand against the party, as it operates in Sweden. The last great strike in Sweden, said the doctor, was incited by them and it precipitated great suffering among the poorer classes.

Dr. Waldenstrom will preach this evening at the Swedish Mission church on "The Biblical Doctrine of the Reconciliation."

Addition to Park.

A petition, asking that the park board purchase an additional acre north of Lincoln park, to be used for park purposes, is being circulated. The ground is that through which O. J. Klippen attempted to cut a roadway last winter and was stopped by the board of public works on the complaint of R. C. Sloan. The petition will be presented to the council as soon as it has enough signers.

West End Shortrails.

A. Beaumont of the West end has taken a position with the Northern Pacific road as fireman on the Lake Superior division. He will assume charge of his new duties Aug. 1.

The funeral of O. H. Leln, 41 years old, who died Sunday, was held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from Olson & Crawford's undertaking rooms and at 2 o'clock from Zion Norwegian Lutheran church with burial at Park Hill cemetery.

The congregation of the First Swedish Baptist church held its regular monthly business meeting last evening at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. Arrangements were made to move from the old building to the new edifice at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street.

The Young People's Society of Central Baptist church will entertain at a musical and literary program Friday evening at the church, Twentieth avenue west and First street.

A farewell party for Oscar Hanson was given Monday evening by a number of his friends at his home, 2217 West Third street. He will leave this week for Spokane, Wash., where he will engage in the real estate business.

A. Lofgren is camping with his family at Moose Lake for a few days.

Mrs. Lucy Erickson of 123 North Twentieth avenue west has returned from a visit to La Crosse, Wis.

Bitter Fight in Commons.

London, July 27.—There was a bitter fight in the house of commons today, followed by street demonstrations, when Premier Asquith moved the second reading of the king's accession declaration bill. The non-conformists forced an amendment which united the ultra-churchmen and anti-Catholic elements in opposition. It is expected the vote will be close.

SITE OF SODOM AND GOMORRAH

Also the Volcano That Destroyed Them—Cave Where Lot Stayed.

Ellsworth Huntington, head of the recent Yale expedition to Palestine, declares that he has verified the Bible story of Sodom and Gomorrah.

"Hundreds of pages," he says in Harper's Magazine, "have been written to prove that the story is a myth, or that the ancient towns were destroyed by the bursting forth of oil wells like those of Texas or Baku, which sometimes are ignited and burn for days. Other hundreds of pages have been devoted to proving that Sodom and Gomorrah were or were not at the north end of the Dead sea, and that they were or were not buried under the saline deposits at either end of the lake.

"Among recent writers there seems to be a tendency to believe that Sodom and its sister town were probably located at the south end of the lake, where the name Usdum is thought to represent Sodom, and where Arab tradition now locates the ill fated cities. The means of their destruction are believed to have been the oil wells mentioned above. This rather unsatisfactory conclusion has been adopted largely because it has been supposed that no volcano is located in such a position that it could have borne any part in the story.

"According to the story in Genesis, Lot and Abraham were at Bethel, ten miles north of Jerusalem, when their herdsmen quarreled and they decided to separate. And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the Plain of the Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere, before Jehovah destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, like the garden of Jehovah, like the land of Egypt, as thou goest unto Zoar. So Lot chose him all the Plain of Jordan.'

"Then the story goes on to the time when Jehovah rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from Jehovah out of heaven' while Lot fled to the near town of Zoar. He did not stay there long, but 'went out of Zoar and dwelt in the mountain—in a cave.'

"Having freshly read the story and having looked over the strong arguments for locating the towns south of the Dead Sea and for believing them to have been destroyed by something in the nature of bituminous outbursts, I was taken by surprise when I visited the little ruin of Suweimeh and picked up bits of genuine scoriaceous lava, while the sheikh who acted as guide told the story of Sodom as the story of Suweimeh or Suweim. The name may be a corruption of Sodom.

"I went into the mountains at once from Suweim in order to see where the lava came from. As we climbed the lower hills the sheikh noticed that I picked up black pieces of lava and broke them open.

"'Don't bother with those,' he said. 'Up here,' pointing southeast, 'there is a whole mountain of black rock like that.'

"Not two miles from Suweim, along the line of the great fault which separates the Ghor from the plateau of Moab, we found the mountain, a genuine little volcano of very recent date geologically. From it flowed a sheet of lava which made the small headland already mentioned between Suweim and Ghuweir. The name Ghuweir is believed by many students to be a corruption of Zoar, although it may also be an Arabic word, the diminutive of Ghor, meaning 'Little Valley.'

"A late eruption of ashes from the volcano may easily have wrought havoc in a town located near Suweim. On the other hand Ghuweir lies in such a situation that it would be protected by intervening hills.

"The present ruins of Ghuweir doubtless date from a time many hundred or even one or two thousand years after the days of Abraham and Lot. There is one work of man, however, which may go back to the period of the Patriarchs and which may have played a part in the Biblical narrative.

"Near the head of the valley which leads eastward from Ghuweir up toward the plateau of Moab we discovered a carefully excavated cave among the mountains at a place called El Ghuttar, between Abu Hassan and Beth Peor. It is about twenty feet long and fifteen wide, carefully hewed out of the limestone above a spring. The windows look down the wadi toward Zoar, and a door with a rock cut trough to lead off the water of rains has been so located that it can be reached only by climbing a precipice by means of six or eight little niches cut in the rock or by climbing down over some difficult steps in the rock above.

"Nowhere else in this region is there known to be an artificial cave upon which any such care has been bestowed as upon this. The discovery of the cave, together with the volcano and the tradition of Surwelmeh, supplies all the elements of the story of Sodom and Gomorrah in exactly the location where the Biblical account would lead one to expect them.

"The supposition that the climate of past times was different from that of today disposes of the difficulty which has arisen from the scriptural reference to the fertility of the land. On the whole, the result of a strictly geographic study of the region tends to show that the Biblical account is correct almost exactly as it stands. The fact that students of the highest ability have been in such doubt as to the location of Sodom and Gomorrah shows how imperfectly the Ghor and the shores of the Dead sea have been explored."

LUCK OF THE PIN.

Charm Didn't Bother About Trifles, But Averted Serious Trouble.

"I met Murphy going in the roundhouse door one mornin' not so long ago," said the fat engineer, "'n' as I came up with him he stooped over 'n' picked up something from the doorsill.

"'It's a pin,' says Murphy, 'I always stoop 'n' pick up wan of them whin I see thim. You know the old sayin'.'

"'Sure thing,' I says to him, 'but for a man who's been in this serious business as long as you have you want to forgit them dream book clippin's. What'll you do when you get old 'n' have a weak back? Then you won't be able to stoop over 'n' pick 'em up.'

"Nevertheless he stuck it on his jumper, 'n' it bein' our regular day out we were soon jackin' our train westward at good respectable speed. The little talisman of Murphy didn't seem to be keepin' step with its reputed record. Our engine didn't steam worth shucks in spite of every trick I tried on her.

"Then to make matters worse, it began to snow. Now if there is any one thing an engineer likes more'n another it's hangin' along in a snowstorm with a dispassionate locomotive. By pluggin' along 'n' keepin' at it, though, we arrived at the other end of the division two hours behind 'n' too late to take our regular passenger run East. The engine dispatcher, bein' in good humor, said he would fix us up with a California fruit train or a fresh meat express, but it meant bein' on the road a good part of the night.

"'Say,' I says to Murphy as we were eatin' our tin buffet lunch, 'that good luck thing of your lasted as long as a 10 cent piece of ice in Hades. It's a good thing for us it wasn't a couplin' pin you picked up or we might be strugglin' along yet. Nothin' like gettin' good luck on a large scale.'

"Murf he never replied.

"We coupled on to the fruit train about 10 o'clock at night with it snowin' so hard that even the heroine in a Third avenue melodrama would hesitate to be driven from home by her irate steppop, an' our engine didn't act any smarter'n she did goin' over.

"We got down to the junction 'n found orders there to use the single track branch from there in as the snow hadn't drifted so badly that way 'n the goin' wasn't so heavy. There was only one place on the branch I was afraid of 'n' that was Kelley's Hill. I didn't think that our engine, the sulky way in which she was actin', would be able to make it with the heavy fruit train. Anyway, we started over the branch.

"I opened her wide up goin' along the level before we reached Kelley's Hill so's to have all the momentum possible when we struck the heavy grade. When we started to climb the hill our speed commenced to drop off 'n' the steam gauge indicator wanted to be holdin' hands aroun' about eighty pounds pressure, which is all right for a Harlem flat, but a delicate for grade climbin'. About half way up the grade we stalled.

"That good luck omen of yours don't seem to want to get out 'n' push a bit, I observed to Murf.

"The only thing left for us to do was to double out—that is cut the train in half, take part of it up the hill, put it in the sidin' there, come back, get the rest of the train, hike that up, couple 'em together 'n' proceed. It meant about half an hour's more delay.

"We cut the train in two 'n' I hossed the head end up to the top of Kelley's, dropped it in the sidin,' 'n' then hoofooed it back after the rear end. I was commencin' to get nasty 'n' slammed things aroun' some, although my engine acted as if it had callused tires; but I brought that hind end up the grade all standin'.

"Just as I was stopping' to cut off 'n' run the engine in for the head end to splice 'em together my attention was attracted by a rumblin' noise comin' from the other direction. Listenin' closely, I could hear the exhause of a train comin' west along that single track. Unless I got that hind end in on the sidin' in a jiffy they would be into us heilty kersplit.

"'It was snowin' so hard I couldn't see her headlight yet, so I just yanked those cars down over that switch point 'n' back inpto the sidin' in less time than it takes to say the first letters in Jack Robinson's name. We no more'n got backed in 'n' the switches straightened up when one of the fast Western expresses, which was evidently usin' the branch to get aroun' some heavy snow drift, whizzed by us.

"'Say, if we hadn't got stalled on that hill 'n' had to double out we'd have met that Western express a few miles further along with no room to turn out 'n' applications would probably be under consideration now for my job, owin' to my sudden demise 'n' others, too, likely.

"'An' Murf says kinder to himself, after we got under way again. 'See a pin 'n' pick it up.'

"When you come to think it over it does look as if that talisman had disdained to step in on trivial troubles, but when real danger showed up it just stepped in at the right place. But say, I gave that train despatcher Jesse for lettin' that express in against us on single track."

ROYAL GUEST AT DINNER.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: Dinner is the only meal at which the royal guests are expected to appear, when the king sits in the center of one side of the table, as is his custom at home. Etiquette used to demand that only the royalties should be provided withm menus, but this custom is not invariably observed at the present time. It is still "de rigeur" that there should be no finger bowls on the table, a custom dating from Jacobite days, when the partisans of the Stuarts used to pass their glasses across the finger bowls before drinking, which was their way of toasting 'the king over the water.'

Should the royal guests be in mourning every other guest must appear in mourning of the same degree, and of course no one must dream of leaving before the royalties have retired. When the king is accompanied by the queen the men must wear knee breeches and silk stookings, but not so when the king is alone. Another curious item of etiquette is that neither the queen nor the Princess of Wales must ever be entertained by a bachelor. I have never heard whether it is permissible for the king or the prince to be entertained by a maiden lady.

The king, though not liking long dinners, has a keen appreciation of what is good in eating and drinking as in other things. On at least two occasions he has bestowed the M. V. O. (member of the Victorian order) on his host's chef in acknowledgement of the satisfctory nature of his cooking. This order was originated by King Edward and has frequently done duty. Doubtless it has made its recipients extremely happy, but it has come to be regarded with much amusement by the king's intimates.

On one occasion it was bestowed on the mayor of some little foreign town where his majesty had been detained in order to listen to some tedious though complimentary speechifying. Speaking of the incident that same evening, the king said of the mayor: "I didn't know what to do with him, so I gave him the M. V. O."

"And served him ——well right!" exclaimed one of the listeners, at which his majesty laughed as heartily as anybody.

FOR VACATIONISTS.

The telegraph operator, as he arranged a package of firecrackers under a can, said:

"If you wire to Atlantic City for accommodation this summer, keep the word 'days' out of your message. In vacation wires 'days' always makes trouble.

"For instance, you wire to the Surf Palace: 'Reserve large room for self and wife. Nine days.'

"The Surf Palace wires back: 'Can't make desired reservation. We don't take dogs.'

"That has happened time out of mind in my experience," said the operator, 'and that is why I discourage the use of the word days' in vacation telegrams."

THE BETTER SORT.

Senator Shiveley, apropos of patriotism and the Fourth, told at a South Bend banquet a war story.

"A private," he said, "got very homesick on campaign, and went to headquarters for a furlough.

"'What do you want a furlough for?' the colonel asked.

"'What do I want a furlough for?' the private answered bitterly. 'Why, Colonel, I ain't seen my wife for over three months!'

"'Oh, that's nothing,' said the colonel. 'I haven't seen my wife for more than three years.'

"'Well,' said the soldier, 'that may be, Colonel; but me and my wife ain't that kind.'"

EMPTY TITLES.

William Jennings Bryan once joked, in a Fourth-of-July address in Lincoln, about our American fondness for titles.

"You all know of the colonel," he said "who got his title by inheritance, having married Col. Brown's widow? But I once met a general who got his title neither by inheritance, nor by service, nor by anything you could mention.

"'General,' I said to him, 'how do you come by this title of yours anyway?'

"'Why, sir,' said he, 'I passed my youth in the flour trade and for twenty-seven years was a general miller.'

"I know another titled man, Judge Greene.

"'Are you, sir,' I once asked him, 'a United States judge or a circuit court judge?'

"'I ain't neither,' he replied. 'I'm a judge of hoss racin'.'"

IT HURT.

John R. Bradley, the backer of Dr. Cook, was discussing in New York a scientist's doubts about Dr. Cook's discovery of the pole.

"I don't mind his doubts," said Mr. Bradley, "so much as I mind his nasty way of expressing them. I feel like the elderly spinster, fresh from the witness box, who whispered to a friend:

"'I didn't mind his asking my age, but what really hurt me was his introducing the question by saying that he hoped a reference to my age would not be distasteful to me.'"

POOR MRS. DODGE!

Orton H. Halliday, the temperance lecturer, apropos of New York's 'antijag' bill, said in a recent lecture in Denver:

"The men who object most strenuously to this bill are men of Dodge's type.

"'You say that drinking is one of your husband's failings?' murmured a sympathetic friend to Mrs. Dodge.

"'Yes, no,' said Mrs. Dodge. 'It's one of his successes.'"

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Sags During Early Part of Session---Slight Rally at Close.

Corn Failed to Show Expected Strength---Flax Dull and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 27.—Wheat sagged today in a nervous market, although an upturn toward the close when shorts accepted profits, caused values to recover a part of the day's loss. July was the strongest option. The short interest in this month is difficult to determine but it is likely that all available wheat will be needed to satisfy long holders. Corn was not as strong as had been expected and wheat did not derive any strength from that grain. There was very little news to favor the bulls.

July wheat lost ⅞c, September, ⅞@1c, December, 1c and May 1⅛c.

Flax was dull and the undertone was weak. July sold at $2.50, 4c lower. September lost 3c, October 4c and November, 4c.

Cash wheat closed 1c over July and oats lost ⅝c. Rye and barley were unchanged and flax declined ⅞c.

The wheat market opened easy on lower cables and made a show of strength when shorts accepted profits fearing that the market was due for a bulge on account of the strength in corn. The wheat market did not follow corn values, however, and declined. Although the run of winter wheat fell off and was not as large as most people expected, yet the clear effect was sufficiently potent to depress values.

There was little news of interest to the wheat traders. Corn occupied the attention of Chicago and the Northwest did not do much trading in wheat or flax. The North Dakota Bankers' association estimated the wheat yield of that state at 22,000,000 bu. Temperatures in the Northwest were cool and the weather was partly cloudy. Rain is predicted for the three Candian provinces tonight and partly cloudy weather is expected in North and South Dakota.

Ennis said that a shortage in corn and other coarse grains would stiffen prices in every direction but the bears were confident that the winter wheat run had not been discounted so they looked for a lower market. The short side was more confident and its operations were more courageous than the activity of the bulls. There was very little support to the market after the short covering at the opening. As a dearth of bullish news kept the bulls from starting things there was some selling on the bulge after the opening by the same folks who had run to cover in fear of a sympathetic upturn with corn. Toward noon there were indications of a hardening market, but values were not receiving support of a good character. On the dips there was a little buying but traders were fooled several times when they thought the market had hit the bottom and was due for an advance. Values were erratic and difficult to follow.

Harvesting in the spring wheat country is beginning and will be general by the end of the month. Very little if any stuff has been sold to arrive. The bulls look forward to a wet harvest. They think this is a bull year and the mental state is leading them to anticipate a market in the fall that will be dominated completely by bullish factors.

MARKET GOSSIP

A Paris cable to Bronsseau said: "Wheat crop is injured by rain. Will require a week to ascertain extent of damage." A New York exporter had a Paris cable saying: "Reports from France indicate a good crop in the South, but the fields in the North are poor. Weather unfavorable. The south of France is not a large wheat producing section."

Broomhall's foreign crop summary: United Kingdom—Cutting wheat commenced, weather unfavorable.

France—Weather still unfavorable. Some authorities report harvest returns will be sufficient while consensus of opinions are that considerable importation will be necessary as reserves are much smaller than expected and crop considerably under last year.

Germany—Rains hindering harvest and damaging quality. Rust is spreading and weather unfavorable.

Austria—Harvest in progress; rains are causing damage to quality and stopped harvest over a large area. Yields good to quality unsatisfactory.

Hungary—Rains delaying harvest; damaging wheat already harvested. Yield is good.

Broomhall cabled: "The market at the opening was under pressure of increased offerings, prompted by weakness in American and Canadian markets, and some realizing developed which carried prices ¾@⅞d lower. Following the opening there was some covering of shorts on continued unfavorable European crop advices and our less favorable crop summary. Later, pressure again developed on continued free Black sea offers and a quiet demand for cargoes and larger Danubian and La Plata offers. At midday the market was easy with a heavy undertone and ¾@1d higher than yesterday. Canadian advices are generally more favorable and private reports state that the recent heavy damage reported is exagerated. Corn, quiet and unchanged at opening. Later the market declined ¼@⅜d on large La Plata offerings, but toward midday the market steadied on fears of damage in America, and at midday prices were ½d lower than yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Selling Is Heavy and Wheat Prices Go Down.

Chicago, July 27.—Belief that the heavy damage reported in the Canadian Northwest was exaggerated was influential in pulling down the price of wheat today. Lower quotations at Liverpool formed another bearish factor. It was also stated that the crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota had reached a stage where further damage could be done only by a wet harvest. Selling was heavy, especially when at one time there was a slight symptom of a rally. The market opened unchanged to ⅝@¾c lower with September at $1.04½ to $1.04⅞, that month ranging from last night's level to ⅝@1⅛c below. From the point named, the decline continued to $1.04@1.04⅛.

Stop loss selling was a feature, but rallies followed news that threshing results in Kansas were slim, and that wheat was being loaded at Duluth for export. The close was easy, however, with September at $1.04⅛ to $1.04⅛ @1.04¼, a net loss of ⅝@¾ to ¾@⅞.

There was a notable lack of outside buying orders in the corn market. Lungs from turned sellers and short depression in prices. Country dealers seemed to be holding aloof. The opening was unchanged to ⅜c up. September started at 65⅞@66¼c, last night's closing figures, to 65⅜c above. Then came a decent to 65⅝c.

Reports of new damage by hot winds caused a sharp rally. The close was nevertheless easy with September at 65¾c, a net loss of ⅛@¼c.

Huge hedging sales of September oats were made by a prominent house. The same concern bought the May delivery. The market opened ½c lower to ¼c higher. September at the outset was unchanged to c off at 39¼c to 39⅜c, and dropped to 38⅝@38¾c.

The light hog run everywhere made provisions firm. A gain of 2½c to 7½@10c was shown at the opening, and there were further advances later. First sales of the September option were at $22.25 for pork, $11.85 for lard and $11.07½ for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Reaction From Tuesday's Slump and Prices Are Carried Upwards.

Close Strong and Active Near Best Figures of Session.

New York, July 27.—Opening prices for stocks today jumped 1 to 2 points over the closing level of yesterday for practically all of the most active issues. The rise in Westinghouse Electric reached 4, Missouri Pacific 3½, Great Northern preferred and American Locomotive 2½ and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie 2¾. Prices fell back somewhat on secondary quotations, but the market maintained a rate of furious activity.

The market was feverish and excited during the first hour. A slump in Rock Island preferred to 6 points below yesterday suggested a recurrence of forced liquidation of the kind that demoralized the market yesterday. The general list ran off sharply from the high prices or the opening.

Buying orders again appeared and steadied the market. Rock Island preferred rallied 4¾.

The good absortpion of stocks offered begot increased confidence. The market threw off its hesitation and started upwards again. Prices rose above the high level of the opening with gains of over 2 points in the Pacific and trans-continentals, Illinois Central, Norfolk & Western, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, Central Leather and others. Canadian Pacific rose 3¼. Feverish fluctuations in Rock Island preferred were disregarded. Bonds were stronger.

The bull party became more aggressive with the cessation of urgent liquidation and bid prices up, forcing some heavy covering by the shorts. Missouri Pacific was carried up 6¼ and hundreds of thousands of the most prominent active stocks 3@4 points. The pace proved too fast and prices fell back a fraction.

The market closed irregular but near the best prices. There was extensive profit-taking movements in the last hour, which carried back the whole active list between 1 and 2 points. With this completed the market became strong and active again, rising to the highest prices of the day. Lacede Gas declined 2¼ and then rallied 1½. Southern Railway preferred rose 5.

STATE DEMOCRATS MEET; SEEM SURE TO PICK LIND

SAYS HOPKINS MEN OFFERED $2,000 FOR ANTI-LORIMER VOTES

Chicago Paper Publishes More Charges Regarding Election Fight.

Claims $35,000 Was Collected to Buy Ballots for Senator.

Exonerates Candidate From Knowledge of Action of Supporters.

Chicago, July 28.—The Tribune today prints a statement that an attempt was made previous to the election of William Lorimer as United States senator to purchase seventeen Democratic votes at $2,000 a vote to secure the re-election of Senator Albert J. Hopkins.

The story comes on top of a recent luncheon where Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, and representatives of the Legislative Voters' league fired pointed remarks at each other.

On this occasion Mr. Sullivan is quoted as saying:

"Why don't you fellows look into what Albert J. Hopkins was trying to do at Springfield for four months?"

Tells of $35,000 Fund.

The Tribune declares that $35,000 was collected to secure the needed votes. It was placed in the hands of two little known legislators and the block of votes selected and made ready for delivery.

It is alleged that Mr. Sullivan and Speaker Shurtleff foiled the plan. The

CONVICTS TRY TO ESCAPE SING SING

Guards on Wall Fire After Them and All Are Recaptured.

Ossining, N. Y., July 28.—Several convicts in Sing Sing prison who were working under guard in the prison yard today made a break for liberty when a gate of the north wall was opened to admit the passage of a wagon. Four of the convicts momentarily made good their escape, but the rest were frightened back by the shots which the guards on the wall fired to intimidate them. Pursuit was immediately taken up and within half an hour all were recaptured and brought back to prison.

CLUB WOMEN PLEAD "UNWRITTEN LAW"

Louisiana Organizations Rally to Defense of Girl Who Killed Man.

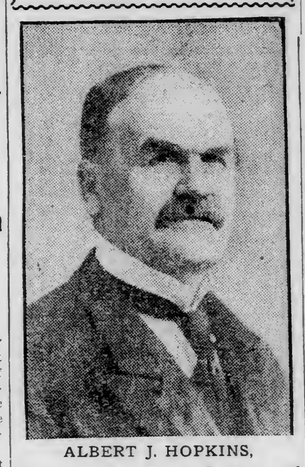

New Orleans, La., July 28.—Basing their appeal on the "application of the unwritten law to women," the Era club, one of the leading women's organizations of Louisiana, has called upon all other organizations of women to pledge their support to secure the exoneration of Mamie McLoughlin, charged with murder. Miss McLoughlin shot and killed Hugh Smith, a wealthy saloon proprietor, when she met him accompanied by another young woman on St. Charles avenue here several days ago.

MAY END STRIKE OF CLOAK MAKERS

Conference Is Held Between Manufacturers and Employes.

New York, July 28.—Prospect for an early settlement of the garment makers' strike, which has involved upward of 50,000 workers and demoralized the women's clothing trade for several weeks past, appeared bright today with the assembling of representatives of the conflicting interests for a conference. The conferees comprise ten representatives from the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association, and a strikers' committee of equal size. Louis D. Brandeis was asked to come from Boston to preside over the conference and readily consented, as it was largely through his efforts that the negotiations for a conference reached a successful conclusion.

FRIENDS ARE ACCUSED OF BIDDING FOR VOTES

ALBERT J. HOPKINS,

Former United States Senator and Opponent of William Lorimer in the Last Contest in the Illinois Legislature.

BOLTERS IN CONVENTION

Dissatisfied of Both Parties in Pennsylvania Meet.

May Name Exposer of Capitol Frauds for Governor of the State.

Philadelphia, July 28.—Prior to the opening of the independent state convention called by Republicans and Democrats dissatisfied with the candidates placed in the field by the two old political organizations, there was much uncertainty as to who will head the ticket for governor. The three candidates most frequently mentioned during the last few days are William H. Berry (Democrat) of Delaware county, former state treasurer; D. Clarence Gibboney (Independent Republican) of this city, head of the Law and Order society, and George W. Guthrie (Democrat), former mayor of Pittsburg.

The real contest seemed to be between Berry and Gibboney and the lines were so tightly drawn that Rudolph Blankenburg of this city (Independent Republican) was brought for-

CHOLERA RAVAGES ARE REVEALED

Nearly Six Thousand Deaths in Russia in Only One Week.

St. Petersburg, July 28.—The extent of the cholera epidemic is revealed in figures made public today by the government sanitary commission. The stricken region now includes forty-two provinces and territories of European Russia and since the outbreak of the disease last May there have been a total of 37,652 cases with 16,651 deaths.

Recently there has been a startling increase in the number of victims. During the week ending July 23 no less than 13,374 cases were reported and of these 5,979 terminated fatally.

Some time ago the scourge made its appearance in this city and in the last fortnight there has been a daily average of forty cases and twelve deaths in the capital. Yesterday there were fifty-four cases and fourteen deaths reported here. In the local hospitals there are 514 cholera suspects, including thirty-eight children.

AIRSHIP RETURNS TO ITS STARTING PLACE.

Berlin, July 28.—The dirigible balloon Gross III, which ascended at Tegel at 11 o'clock last night to make a long distance trip, landed back at Tegel at 11:15 o'clock this morning. About 248 miles were covered. The balloon took a meandering course, passing over Weissenfels, Naumburg, Erfurst, Gotha, Rhenbach and Meinengen and then turned again in the direction of Gotha and descended smoothly near where the start was made. Only two motors were used at one time.

AIR IS ALIVE WITH QUERIES

Wireless Messages on Crippen Case Flit From Shore to Sea.

Vessel Supposed to Carry London Couple Is Nearing This Side.

Montreal, July 28.—The night off the coast of Eastern Canada was full of wireless questions flashed seaward, but no reply came in revelation of the whereabouts of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen of London, wanted in that city in connection with the disappearance of his actress wife, Belle Elmore, or of the doctor's former typist, Ethel Clara Leneve. Nor did any incoming word reveal the identity of the two passengers who on July 20 went aboard the Canadian Pacific steamer Montrose at Antwerp as John Robinson and John Robinson, Jr., and are reported under suspicion at Scotland Yard as possibly being Crippen and his typist.

Throughout the night the Montrose was supposed to be rapidly nearing a zone of wireless communication with the station at Belle Isle. Owing to the steamer's type of apparatus this would be within 150 miles of the coast.

CALLS TEDDY BASE DECEIVER

Letter Writer Fails to See the Point of His Little Joke.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 28.—One of the curious letters which help to make life interesting at Sagamore Hill is causing amusement to Mr. Roosevelt. It was from some person, he said, who denounced him for trying to keep from the public the fact that he was interested in politics.

When Mr. Roosevelt was in New York last Friday he said, after a conference with several politicians, that he had "had an interestig discussion on literature." The newspapers printed his little joke, which brought forth the letter received today. The writer accuses the ex-president of trying to make people think that he had been discussing literature instead of politics, and winds up by saying: "Maybe you can fool the feeble-minded reporters, but you can't fol the public like that, I know, all the time."

Whereat the colonel remarked that it is never safe for a man in public life to crack jokes.

MAY BE NEW TRUNK LINE

Plans Laid By Syndicate Are Upset By Decline in Stocks.

Control of the Rock Island Is Crucial Feature of Scheme.

New York, July 28.—While Kuhn, Loeb & Co., made no official announcement today regarding the developments whereby the holdings of a syndicate in Rock Island, Lehigh Valley and Missouri Pacific stocks were taken over to prevent further serious liquidation, the company, in connection with English interests headed by Sir Ernest Cassell, has secured the largest single holding of Rock Island, both common and preferred.

The syndicate is said to have been made up of Canadian and English operators, with English connections, headed by Dr. F. S. Pearson, and had for its aim a new trans-continental group. The decline in the market upset the plan and necessitated a turning over of the stocks purchased.

Controls Rock Island.

The block of Rock Island secured carries control of the property and is accompanied by the Pearson holdings in Lehigh Valley, Wabash and Missouri Pacific.

Whether the trans-continental plan will be carried out by the new Rock Island controllers or whether the new interests will assert their power in altering the present management, still depends on unsettled factors. Certain banking interests here have looked upon the original Pearson plan with favor, and it is not unlikely that steps will be taken to carry it out in the near future.

It is pointed out that while the Pearson syndicate could not have inaugurated a proposed trans-continental system, except by securing an actual preponderance in the stocks involved, the new holders, through associations, should be able to effect the practical union of the various properties with little further outlay of capital.

For Permanent Investment.

Sir Ernest Cassell, the chief foreign member of the new syndicate, represents one of the largest, if not the largest, of the single financial interests in England, and it is stated on good authority that the new Rock Island interests took over the stock in question for purposes of permanent investment.

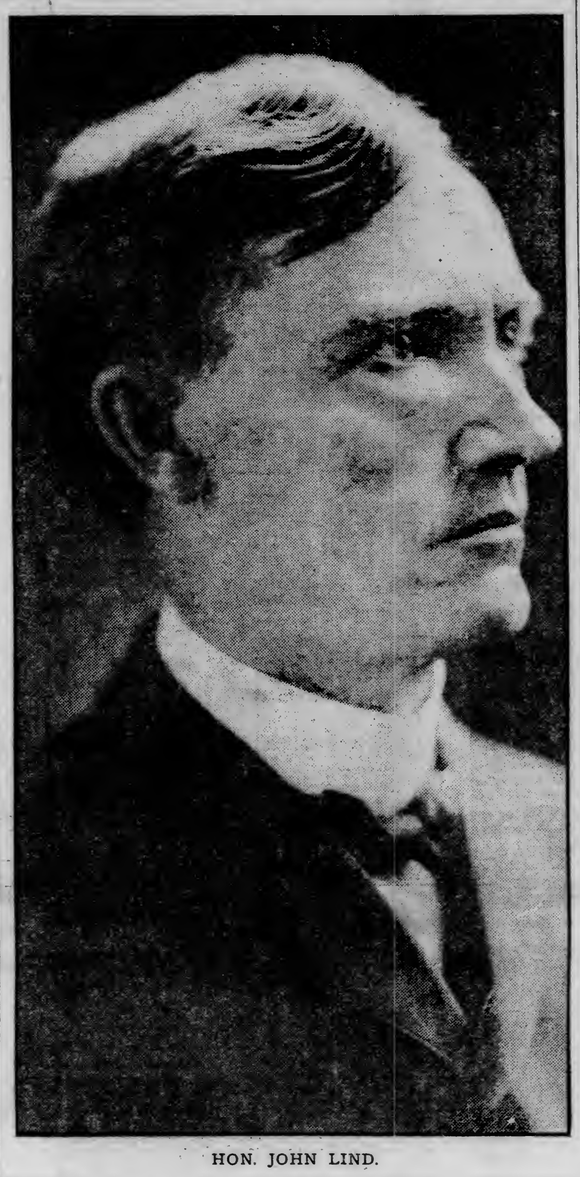

Lehigh Valley Stock Strong.

Philadelphia, July 28.—The heavy dealing in Lehigh Valley stock yesterday was still in evidence when the Philadelphia exchange opened today. The stock opened strong at 71 as against 66¾ at the close yesterday. Lehigh Valley warrants sold at 21. More than 6,500 shares of the stock changed hands in the first ten minutes of business, in fact practically all the early trading being in Lehigh Valley.

THE PEOPLE DEMAND HIS NOMINATION

HON. JOHN LIND.

Good Roads Men Meet.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 28. — The third annual convention of the National Good Roads congress was opened here today, to continue through Saturday.

FRANK DAY OPENS THE CONVENTION

Hammond Is Made Temporary Chairman and Sounds Keynote.

State Chairman Refers to Republican Mixup Over Conservationists.

Convention Indorses the Duluth Herald as Best Paper in the State.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—With hardly another name, apparently, in the minds of the delegates as a nominee for governor than that of John Lind, the state Democratic convention opened here this morning in the Auditorium to pick candidates for state offices and to frame a platform on which to go before the voters in the coming campaign.

In spite of Mr. Lind's repeated declarations that he is not a candidate for the nomination, it seemed when the convention was called to order by State Chairman Frank A. Day as if there would be no attention paid to these statements. As a matter of precaution in case Mr. Lind stuck to his expressed position, some of the delegates voiced a willingness to vote for John Jenswold of Duluth, Mayor J. C. Haynes of Minneapolis or Representative W. S. Hammond for the nominee for governor, but that these were mere makeshift plans was generally recognized, and there was little belief that these names would come before the convention.

Complete Duluth Delegation.

Several of the Duluth delegates had been here for a few days, but the main body of the delegation arrived this morning. All are for Lind's nomination. Jenswold made it plain that he is not a candidate and believes that Lind should be nominated. He believes, too, that Mr. Lind will feel it his duty to accept, despite his protests against being chosen to head the ticket.

Jenswold may make the speech nominating Lind.

Dan Lawler of St. Paul, included by Frank Day as among the Democratic mayors present when he asked those dignitaries to take seats on the stage, was given a rousing reception.

Jim Wiley of Minneapolis, not a delegate, got Mr. Day's attention for a moment and then, on a point of order, was forcibly ejected from the Auditorium, protesting and struggling to get out of the grasp of a couple of policemen.

Mr. Lawler did not stay on the stage, but went back to his seat beside Dick O'Connor in the front row.

Opened by Frank Day.

"Well, boys, here we are again," said Mr. Day in opening his address. He went on to say that this convention was without a boss, a steam roller or a slate.

"'Let the people rule' is the party's and the convention's slogan," he said.

He referred feelingly to the death of Governor Johnson, and the delegates cheered at the mention of that name. Governor Johnson, were he alive today, would be the inevitable nominee for governor now, and for president two years hence.

Mr. Day, speaking of Republican leaders, referred to the Pinchot banquet recently held in St. Paul, at which a number of distinguished Republicans were present and said it was "a pitiful condition" that at the time the name of the president of the United States was hardly mentioned, and then only "in pity and ridicule."

L. A. Rosing's memory was paid a tribute by Mr. Day.

Mr. Day said he wished to say a personal word, and incidentally handed the newspapers a bouquet.

"If I have been a boss, it is time you got rid of me," he said, and he reiterated and emphasized this idea.

After speaking in appreciation of the Twin City newspapers' Democratic tendencies, Mr. Day said:

"The best newspaper in the state of Minnesota is The Duluth Herald."

This remark was greeted with cheers, and then Mr. Day made a motion that the sentiment should be adopted by the convention. This motion was carried with an unanimous shout.

Mr. Brady of Minneapolis, in the absence of the mayor, nominated W. S. Hammond for temporary chairman. A. C. Weiss of Duluth seconded the nomination and they, with Mr. O'Connor, escorted the congressman to the stage, where Mr. Day introduced him. He was given an ovation, and proceeded immediately with his address.

(Mr Hamomnd's address will be found in full on page 13.)

Recess of Ten Minutes.

Richard Tattersfield and Fred Battley and Senator Glotzbach were elected temporary secretaies and the convention took a recess to permit of the selection of committee members. Mr. Day sugested that the recess be for an hour, and Dan Lawler objected, pleading for expediting business and disposing of the platform declarations before the delegates got worn out. The convention declined to accept the amendment and the recess was taken for ten minutes.

Weiss on Resolutions Committee.

A. C. Weiss of Duluth, Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul and Martin O'Brien of Crookston were named by Chairman Hammond to serve on the resolutions committee. In addition, two delegates from each congressional district were named by their respective delegations, making the membership twenty-one.

The Eighth district caucus resulted in the selection of Charles d'Autremont

BERLIN NOT TO STEP IN

Will Not Interfere With America's Nicaraguan Course.

Estrada Faction Is Said to Control Most of the East Coast.

Berlin, July 28.—Germany has declined to entertain the request of President Madriz that this government use its friendly offices to put a stop to what is termed the interference of the United States in the affairs of Nicaragua.

The Nicaraguan circular note to the powers in which a protest against the attitude of Washington toward the rebellion was coupled with a plea for foreign intervention, was received by the foreign office on June 16 by cable direct from Managua.

In a statement issued today J. F. W. Pein, the Nicaraguan consul general at Berlin, cautions the public not to believe the reports of insurgent victories. These reports, he says, are invented at Bluefields, the headquarters of Gen. Estrada, the leader of the insurrection.

Consul Makes Report.

Washington, July 28.—The state department announced today that Mr. Moffatt, American consul at Bluefields reports that the Estrada faction is now in control of all points on the East coast of Nicaragua with the exception of San Juan Del Norte, Bluefields Bluff and Cape Gracias.

TO SHIELD THE BIRDS

United Powers May Decide to Halt the Plume Traffic.

Uncle Sam Asked to Lead---Bird Butchery Is World-Wide.

New York, July 28.—To array fourteen of the world powers against the butchery of the birds of the globe for millinery ornamentation is the object of an international movement which has been formally called to the attention of the United States government from this city today. Recommendations for the prohibition of this feather traffic by non-export and non-import laws in Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Denmark, Holland, Hungary, Austria, Bavaria and this country have just been filed with Secretary of State Knox at Washington by William Dutcher, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, who represented the United States at the recent International Ornithological congress in Berlin, where they were framed and unanimously indorsed by delegates from every part of the world. Though England and several other foreign nations are already considering this urgent call of the world's ornithologists, it is expected that Uncle Sam will take the lead in practical co-operation to save the wild birds that save the crops and health of every people.

For the first time in history the ornithological authorities in their international conclave are reported to have been able to unite upon some simple course of action that would best check the economic loss of billions of dollars each year, that has been shown to result from the killing of the pest-destroying and plague-preventing wild birds of land and water. By the ornithologists of the nations it is generally conceded that bird slaughter and sale for millinery purposes is the chief cause for the threatened extinction of their valuable bird life, according to Mr. Dutcher, who devoted his entire energies in Berlin to the paramount question of bird protection. While rational shooting laws and acquainting the public with the value of birds have been advocated by the congerss, its members have made their principal plea to the world powers for the prohibition of export, import, purchase or sale of the plumes of wild birds for millinery purposes.

Acting as an "International Committee for the Protection of Birds," a score of ornithological experts selected from the nobility and scientists of fourteen of the leading nations are today placing before their governments the proposition of co-operation to break up the destruction of bird life by the world-wide traffic in feathers. Though the people of this country have come to extend reasonable protection to their birds in many states, the destruction of American bird life must go on as long as any foreign country continues to offer a market for the sale of the scalps of the birds of the United States, it is pointed out by Mr. Dutcher, who with Dr. T. S. Palmer of the department of agriculture at Washington represents this country on the international committee.

"Americans need the help of the great world powers—as every other people need our help—to check the destruction of the birds who work for our common prosperity and health," said Dr. Dutcher at the headquarters of the National Association of Audubon Societies, 141 Broadway, today. "Owing to the high prices offered for the plumes of white herons, birds of paradise, humming birds, albatrosses and similar species in the European markets, these birds have been slaughtered almost to the point of extinction. On the other hand, thousands of the valuable insecti orous wild birds and game birds of Europe are shipped here as cage birds and to make choice tid-bits in our rest rants. Only by putting a stop to the export and import of birds butchered for commercial purposes can the nations of the earth hope to retain their valuable bird resources. It remains for the American people to take the first step in this very vital movement for the international protection of our birds."

600 MEN TO BE EMPLOYED

St. Paul Contractors Will Put Large Gang at Work on Railroad.

First Ten Miles Out of Duluth the Most Difficult.

In the construction of the first ten miles of the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railroad, out of this city, local labor, if possibly available, will be employed, according to Thomas C. Walsh, manager for the Johnson & Carey company of St. Paul, contractors for this portion of the new road being built by the Canadian Northern.

Actual work was begun a few days ago, and about 100 men are now engaged in clearing the right-of-way. As many men as can be hired, with 600 as the limit, will be put to work on the job.

The Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific road is a subsidiary to the Canadian Northern. The contract for the construction of the new road was given to Welch & Foley of St. Paul, who sublet the contract to a number of smaller concerns.

The portion from West Duluth, extending ten miles out, in the vicinity of Short Line Park, is the most difficult section of the entire new route, being very rocky and of a high grade. It is this portion that the Johnson & Carey company has contracted to build.

In the building of the line into the city proper the work will be largely of a steel bridge construction, and this will be let to bridge builders. So far the bids have not been called for, although it will be done in the near future.

FIRES RAGING ON BOIS FORT LAND

Federal Funds to Be Used in Getting Aid Against Flames.

Washington, July 28.—Forest fires are raging on the Bois Fort Indian reservation in Minnesota, according to a telegram received by the bureau of Indian affairs from the superintendent of the Nett Lake agency. Second Assistant Commissioner Hauk of the Indian bureau immediately telegraphed authority for the expenditure of sufficient funds to extinguish the flames.

Forty fires in the Coeur d'Alene.

Missoula, Mont., July 28.—Forester W. B. Greelin, who has headquarters in Missoula, has returned from his trip through the northern part of Montana and Idaho with Secretary of Agriculture James A. Wilson and brought with him new information of the forest fire conditions in the territory. He said that within the Coeur d'Alene forest in Northwestern Montana and Idaho, forty separate large fires were burning and that more than 1,000 men are fighting the flames.

Not one of these forty fires has been reported as under control and the force of men will be increased as fast as possible.

"A heavy rain," said Mr. Greelin, "is the only thing that will fully extinguish these fires."

THE GUARANTEE.

Apropos of the superb additions to the Metropolitan museum in New York, F. Hopkinson Smith said at a dinner at Delmonico's:

"They are good works, too. They are all good works. Not like our American Rembrandts.

"I am afraid that most of our millionaires bought their Rembrandts too carelessly—much as Gobsa Golde bought his.

"Gobsa Golde, accompanied by his daughter, Lotta, picked out a Rembrandt at a foreign dealer's and, then, before planking down the cash, said very sternly:

"'Now, see here, sir, do you guarantee this Rembrandt?'

"'Yes, Mr. Golde,' the dealer replied. 'A seven years' guarantee goes with the canvas.'

"'Oh, very well,' said Gobsa, mollified, and he took out his check book and fountain pen."

BOY TRIES IN VAIN TO STOP MURDER

Seven-Year-Old Lad Pleads With Father Not to Shoot Mother.

Philadelphia, July 28.—In the presence of their 7-year-old son, August Donaldson, according to the police, shot and probably fatally wounded his wife, Margaret, at their home here early today, following a quarrel. Donaldson escaped, but the police expect to capture him soon.

The child was the only witness to the shooting, having been awakened by the quarrel of his parents.

The boy told the police he saw his father go to a bureau drawer and get a big revolver.

"Oh, pa, don't shoot mamma!" the little fellow pleaded with his father, but the angry parent did not heed the child's pleadings and according to the police, shot his wife five times, while the horrified boy shrieked in terror on the bed. The man immediately disappeared and the child summoned neighbors.

COLD WATER CONVENTION

Sixty Delegates at Swedish-Finnish Temperance Society Gathering.

Represent Cities From San Francisco to New York.

About sixty delegates were present this morning at the opening session of the third annual national convention of the Swedish-Finnish Temperance Society of America, held at Wade's hall, Central avenue and Ramsey street.

Although the attendance this morning was smaller than what was expected, delegates have been arriving on every train, and it is expected that the number will be swelled considerably. Some of the delegates have traveled thousands of miles.

Two delegates are here from Seattle, Wash. They are Alex Koll and Werner Johnson. Mrs. Hannah Kempe is here from San Francisco, Cal.; John Smith from Eureka, Utah; Alfred Fussell from Butte, Mont.; Thomas Stenlus from New York city; Mrs. C. W. Silverberg of Woonsocket, R. I., and Julius Blomberg from Worcester, Mass.

C. O. Smith, president of the association, residing at Woonsocket, R. I., died a month ago. The vice president, Victor Jacobson of Ironwood, Mich., acted as chairman at the opening session today. At the morning's session a number of rousing temperance talks were given. Among the speakers were L. Simonson, president of the local order, who greeted the visitors. A response was made by John Udel of Lidington, Mich., who is the grand secretary of the order. The vice president also gave a short talk.

This evening more addresses will be given and is expected that there will be a large attendance. The principal speakers will be Prof. P. J. Youngdahl, secretary of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, and Grand Treasurer Andrew Ostrand of Dollar Bay, Mich. Jackson's orchestra will contribute a musical program.

The sessions will come to a close Sunday, when a big picnic will be held at Lincoln park in connection with a large open air meeting.

SCARLET FEVER CASE NEGLECTED

Woman Had No Money to Hire a Physician for Sick Child.

Because she had no money, with which to hire a physician to attend to a sick child, who is thought to have contracted scarlet fever, Mrs. Frank Koski of 5911 Nicollet street yesterday asked the police to help her.

She sent one of her children to the police station yesterday afternoon with a note, saying that her little daughter was very sick and that she thought that the child was coming down with scarlet fever.

She said that she had no money in the house to spend for a doctor and expressed reluctance to send for a physician without having the cash to pay for the visit. She wanted to know if the police could get her a doctor.

Instant Relief for Sore Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time—TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. Policemen stand on their feet all day and know what sore, tender, sweaty, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for it. It's superior to powders or plasters. I can keep my feet in perfect condition. Believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all day."—Emzy Harrell, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25c per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sergt. Barber last evening notified the health department which will probably take steps at once to have the place quarantined and to provide medical attention for the sick child.

RAWN'S ESTATE ONLY $120,000

Widow Files Petition That Causes Surprise in Chicago.

Chicago, July 28.—Instead of being a millionaire, Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon route, who was found shot to death at his summer home, died possessed of an estate valued at only $120,000. So, at least, a petition filed today by his widow declared.

Mr. Rawn's will was promptly admitted to probate. Mrs. Rawn was appointed executrix. According to the petition there was no real estate, all of the holdings being listed as personal property.

The total amount given in the document caused surprise, as there was a general impression that the estate would be appraised at more than $1,000,000.

APPEALS FROM LUMBER RATES

Eau Claire Concern Complains of the Tariffs to Rochester, Minn.

Washington, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The John M. Kaiser Lumber company of Eau Claire, Wis., today filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha and the Chicago & Northwestern Railway companies alleging excessive freight charges on a carload of lumber shipped by the complainant over the different railroad lines from Eau Claire to Rochester, Minn. The complainant was charged 12½ cents per hundred weight. It urges that a rate of 11 cents per hundred weight between these points would be just and reasonable, and requests the commission to establish such rate on carload shipments.

INSURGENTS CLAIM VICTORY

Gen. Lara's Son Said to Have Been Captured By Moncado.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, July 28.—According to advices made public at the insurgent headquarters today, Gen. Moncado yesterday defeated a government force under Gen. Lara which was attempting to form a junction with the troops of Gen. Chamorro Castilla north of Accoyapa. Moncado reports that after three hours of desperate fighting Lara raised the white flaw, though most of his men fled before they could be taken prisoners. Among the government men captured was a son of Gen. Lara. Forty prisoners and guns, ammunition and camp equipment were taken by the insurgents, according to their reports.

CANDIDATES MEET.

Republican Lucky Ones Mapping Out North Dakota Campaign.

Fargo, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Behind closed doors the Republican candidates who were successful at the recent primary are in session here today. They barred all malcontents and discussed the situation by counties. At 1 o'clock they were still in session and sent out word to the newspaper men that no platform would be adopted until the meeting of the candidates with the state central committee in September. A positive statement was made that harmony prevailed and everything was in good shape for the campaign.

NOTIONS OF THE ATHLETES.

Athletes always develop a lot of theories about little tricks that may help them to win. About as odd a system as any was that of a college broad jumper whose name is on the list of intercollegiate champions.

This man was not a smoker, so that an occasional puff of a cigarette made him nervous. In order to induce this feeling of agitation he was accustomed to light a cigarette just a moment or so before he went on the field for his jumping.

He contended that a man had to be on edge to be either a good sprinter or a good jumper and that even if his feeling of slight agitation were induced by smoking it was, notwithstanding, a good thing. He said, in fact, that he rarely could get any sort of gingery feeling before the competition if he didn't get himself worked up artificially that way.

Another man, who was a more or less successful quarter-miler both as a collegian and club athlete, nerved himself up for the start of his races by swearing profusely at himself. He had the idea that if he got thoroughly angry at himself and swore a lot, it would take his mind off the race that was about to start.

Consequently the men who were on the marks next to him on either side were likely to hear some half muttered curses and profane words that they might think were meant for them. In fact, this athlete had to explain more than once that he wasn't saying anything about any one, but just to himself.

It is very often the man who hasn't true courage who adopts these devices for heartening himself up artificially. However, there have been men whose nerve was unquestioned who resorted to devices to work off what they called hoodoos and to stimulate themselves artificially for their competitions.

Such, for instance, was one great high jumper who used deliberately to practice before the competition actually began by knocking the bar off at all sorts of minor heights. He had an idea that by doing this beforehand he got it all out of his system, so to speak, and he entered his competition with the assured feeling that he wasn't going to slip up on any poor performances.

The blind reliance of the novice on externals as the causes for good performances by the crackajacks occasionally has some odd consequences. There was a quarter-mile runner who was accustomed to hold his index and second fingers pointed down as he strode along; and immediately after this was observed by several new men at the game they all began holding their fingers so as they ran.

There was another man, a distance runner, who strained his left leg, and as a result favored it slightly as he ran for a time until the strain passed away. There sprang up a host of limpers who thought that was the way to attain prominence in distance running.

Then again a British runner who came over here about ten years ago, had a fashion of working his arms like a sprinter, although he ran long distances. Almost immediately after his first public appearance a great crowd of young athletes adopted that method. They were surprised to find that it didn't make them run as fast as the Britisher.

ELECTIONS IN OLD ENGLAND.

London Chronicle: Liquor was a very serious item of old time unreformed election expenses. For an election dinner in Forfarshire in 1830 the Hon S. Wortley paid: Ginger beer, 6s; brandy, 20c; champagne, £20; claret, £21; gin, 20s; ale, 16s; brandy toddy, £2; gin toddy, £1; dinner, £4 10s; Madeira, £17 10s. Total, £69 2s. From July 21 to Sept. 15 his bill from the same landlord amounted to £308 5s 10d—every item, with the exception of that £4 10s for dinner and £4 7s 6d for suppers, being for liquor. If the nation has been known to "drink itself into solvency" certainly electors used to drink candidates into parliament.

As a contrast to our instances of enormous sums spent at certain elections, a correspondent quotes a case in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, referred to in Sir Edward Coke's Institutes, where one Long, member for the borough of Westbury, obtained his seat by the simple method of bribing the returning officer with £4 to return him as member. But some one got to hear of it and the member was unseated, while the returning officer was fined and imprisoned. And in another case in 1623, cited by Sir John Glanville, a certain Mr. L. was sent to the Tower because "some money, though very little, had been given in his behalf to grant him voices."

As to corruption at elections, says a correspondent, it had other forms besides the gift of money. The borough of Seaford, for instance, saw an ingenious plan for securing the election of the desired candidate in 1790. It was doubtful which way the polling would go unless a receiving officer could be found willing to pass some twenty-six persons who still wanted seventeen days to complete the six months' residence required by law. Accordingly it was arranged that the candidate should insist on all the six oaths demanded by statute being administered to each voter individually; and this, together with the time spent in dealing with every frivolous objection raised by counsel, making it impossible to poll more than four votes a day, the twenty-six were duly qualified by the time their turn came to vote.

ENGINEER COMPLETES REPORT ON THE HARBOR

Statistics for Fiscal Year Show Big Increase in Tonnage.

Government Spent $388,877 for Improvements During Last Year.

In his annual report to the chief engineer of the war department at Washington, Graham D. Fitch, lieutenant colonel of the corps of engineers of the harbors of the Duluth district, recommends that a large number of improvements be made during the year ending June 30, 1912, in the Duluth-Superior harbor.

This report, which contains full particulars regarding the harbors in the Duluth district, is for the year ending June 30, 1910. As yet it is not fully complete, as there are few minor details for correction before it is sent to Washington, where the chief engineer will prepare another report from its information. The book containing both reports will be published some time during the winter.

Interesting statistics for the calendar year of 1908-9 are incorporated in this report, in which he shows the increases and decreases in various shipments from the Duluth-Superior harbor. The following increases are noted: Iron ore, 8,414,006 tons, with increased valuation of $24,969,396; hard coal, 96,353 tons valued at $603,457; copper, 20,474 tons at $4,537,127; lumber, 73,054,000 feet, valued at $1,875,118; general merchandise, 3,174 tons, at an increased value of $587,190. The decreases are: Wheat and other grains, 2,586,313 bushels, value decrease, $1,019,897; soft coal, 239,549 tons, with decreased value of $549,290; flour, 128,569 tons, valued loss $639,235. The shipment of logs from Duluth has become a lost factor in marine lines.

The total amount of freight handled by shipment over the lakes from this harbor is given as 22,529,301 tons, with an estimated value of $261,509,159. This is an increase of 1,040 per cent over that of 1890 and 36.69 per cent over the preceding year.

Comparisons Difficult.

In commenting upon the business done in this harbor, Lieut. Col. Fitch states that no other harbor on the Great Lakes can compare with it. He states that it is difficult to make any comparison between the business done here and at the ocean ports because the custom house offices do not take any report from the foreign traffic, but he contends that it would compare favorably even with the best.

On the Duluth side of the harbor, little work has been done during the fiscal year, except the dredging in a few places. Most of the improvements have been carried on in Superior, where the total amount expended has been $230,000, divided as follows: for administration, $17,759.97; for contracts, $135,073.08; for labor, $52,286.29, and for miscellaneous material and articles, $24,880.66.

Of this amount the largest part was spent upon the north concrete revetment in Superior, where the crib cost $103,437.62, and upon the north rubble mound breakwater, the cost of which when completed will aggregate $193,250.

The greatest work done in the Duluth harbor was the removal of shoals, which cost $24,347. In all the government has expended, of the $500,000 appropriated for these two ports for the year ending June 30, 1910, $388,877.19. The surplus will be used with the $500,000 appropriated for the year ending June 30, 1911, in the proposed improvements to be made during the present season and the beginning of next.

During the year 4,885 vessels have entered the Duluth port, while 4,273 have departed, making a total of 8,658. In the Superior port 824 vessels entered and 1,021 departed, making a total of 1,845. The navigation period during the last calendar year was 250 days, with the season opening in Duluth on April 17, when the first boat left the harbor, and April 28, when the first boat arrived. The last boat to depart was on Dec. 10, while the last boat to arrive came in on Dec. 22.

Pasenger traffic on the Great Lakes was rather heavy during the past year, as the records show that during this period 51,432 people arrived and departed at this harbor.

The Duluth-Superior harbor capacity is given as 16,114.3 acres, or 25.17 miles. There are 8,990.5 acres, or 14.03 miles, available outside the harbor for channel and basins, while 7,124.3 acres, or 11.14 miles are available inside the harbor for the construction of wharves and for slips. Lieut. Col. Fitch states that there is ample room for a great growth in this harbor.

There are at this time 11.13 miles of wharfage within the harbor lines, 8.55 miles between slips; 1.04 miles of existing wharves and 7.52 miles available for additional wharves.

Losses Were Heavy.

The losses of boats and property within the Duluth district have been heavy during the fiscal year, while thirty-six lives were lost.

In figuring that the saving per ton in the transportation of freight by water over railroad is $1.78, it is estimated that the shippers are ahead during this year $95,225,889.

Throughout the entire district during this past year there have been 24,164 vessels entered and departed from the various ports, with a registered tonnage of 54,194,820 tons, carrying freight valued at $357,606,704. The passenger list has been 161,967. The expenditures were $385,723.34.

The total expenditures in this district to the present time for improvements has been $8,966,979.68, and for maintenance, $1,388,425.14, making a grand total of $10,355,404.82. The commerce that has been carried on is 556,166,088 tons, the estimated value of which is $5,481,344,231.

From June 3, 1896, to June 30, 1909, the government has appropriated $5,606,524.53 for the Duluth-Superior harbor. This includes the $500,000 which was expended for the year ending June 30, 1910.

The appropriations for the year ending June 30, 1911, have already been made, and this report will be ready in time for plans in the preparation of the appropriation for the year ending June 30, 1912. Recommendations made hereon will be considered for this appropriation.

For the other ports in the Duluth district, the following sums are said to be needed for maintenance and repair, with further improvements: Grand Marais, Minn., $2,000; Agate Bay, Minn., $2,000; Port Wing, Wis., $18,227; Ashland, Wis., $90,596; Keweenah Waterway, Mich., $175,000; Marquette, Mich., $170,000, and Grand Marais, Mich., $20,000.

The report is a voluminous one and contains all accounts of the work done in all the ports in detail. Several illustrations will be used in the book, showing wrecks, the condition of some of the places, and some spots where ice has been heavy.

BIG FREIGHTER GOES ASHORE

Zenith City Grounds Near Grand Marais---Cargo Must Be Removed.

Grand Marais, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Zenith City bound down loaded with ore is stranded on a rock reef off Au Sable point. The boat is on hard amidships, being out two feet forward. The tanks are leaking and the cargo will have to be jettisoned before the boat can be released. Tugs have been ordered from the Soo.

STEAMER SINCLAIR RELOADING CARGO.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under orders of Capt. C. S. Sinclair the steamer D. A. Gordon is reloading her lightered cargo of 10,000 bushels of wheat at this port and with a compressor working to keep her free of water will leave this afternoon for Midland.

Notwithstanding the fact that many wild boats have been pulled off the Lake Superior trade, canal official estimate the traffic through Soo canals for July will equal that of June, the largest month of history.

PLANS TO SPEND $500,000 ON HARBOR.

Plans for proposed improvements for the Duluth-Superior harbor have been sent to the chief engineer of the war department, at Washington, by Col. Graham D. Fitch, United States engineer of the local office. Action on these will be taken soon, and it is expected by the local department that it will be of a favorable nature.

Should these plans be approved, the local office will carry out the plans in detail, which will then be submitted to the Washington bureau. When all preliminary arrangements shall have been completed, nearly the entire season will have been consumed, and it will be too late for actual work to be begun. However, contractors can be at work at the opening of navigation next spring.

At the last session of congress $500,000 was appropriated for the work about the local harbor, and with the surplus left from the previous year a large amount of money is at the command of the department for the improvements here.

NEW FREIGHTER IS LAUNCHED AT LORAIN.

Lorain, Ohio, July 28.—The William G. Moreland, a 12,000-ton steel freighter and one of the largest steamers on the Great Lakes, was launched here yesterday. She is 600 feet long with a 58-foot beam and was christened by Miss Esther Moreland of Pittsburg. The boat will ply between Cleveland, Ashtabula and Duluth.

ENCOURAGED BY ANALYSES

Graphite Discovery on Cuyuna Range May Prove of Great Value.

Percentage of Graphite in Samples Is Higher Than the Average.

Analyses of drill samples and correspondence which those interested have had with authorities on the subject lead T. R. Foley, P. Hammel and other owners of land on the Cuyuna range to believe that the graphite body disclosed by Mr. Foley in Crow Wing county is of great commercial value.

Mr. Foley, who made the discovery while drilling for iron ore, is in Duluth today. He has several rich samples of graphite and reports of analysis made by analysts of the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin, show that some of the samples run as high as 45.75 per cent graphite and that the geological formation is such that there is more than a possibility that oil will be encountered.

The graphite, which was discovered by Mr. Foley on land owned by him and associates and adjoining properties owned by P. Hammel and other Duluth people, was encountered at a depth of 105 feet and the solid body of graphilite runs to a considerable depth. The quality varies in the different holes drilled, but nearly all of the graphite discovered is of a higher percentage than the average and is thought to be of great commercial value.

A sample sent to F. T. Howard of the University of Wisconsin assayed 45.75 per cent graphite and was pronounced of good quality, while Edwin C. Holden, also of the University of Wisconsin, stated in a letter to Mr. Foley that, conditions being as related to him, he would say that the discovery is of commercial value.

Samples analyzed by F. F. Grout of the University of Minnesota ran 39.30 per cent and 33.15 per cent graphite, while other samples of graphitic slate ran 15 to 20 per cent graphite, in combination with 6 to 8 per cent of iron and quantities of shale rock.

The people interested in the discoveries are in correspondence with government authorities and users of graphite and there is no doubt that, if further developments disclose that the graphite body is as extensive and as rich as the discoverers now believe it is, the find is a rich one.

Most of the commercial graphite now used in the United States runs about 8 per cent. It is said, and the government reports place the value of graphite at about 7½ cents a pound. Conservative authorities value graphite at from $10 to $150 a ton and its users are so varied and the demand for it so great that mining operations on a large body would not greatly affect the market price.

While he is interested in the graphite discovery and is making efforts to discover its exact value, Mr. Foley is continuing his explorations for iron ore on his properties on the Cuyuna. He says that the discoveries being made on the new range warrant the faith of those who have staked their fortunes on it and that further great discoveries are in prospect.

FIVE TO THE GOOD.

At the Art club in Philadelphia a millionaire collector talked about the late William P. Frith, painter of "Derby Day" and other Victorian successes.

"When Mr. Frith," he said, "sold me my picture of a child feeding white rabbits, he told me an amusing story connected therewith.

"He purchased for models, he said, a dozen white rabbits from a dealer, and ordered them sent home. The man who brought them to him foolishly left them in the garden—Mr. Frith lived in the country at the time—and, naturally, the little animals all got away through the fence.

"Well, when Mr. Frith returned and found his rabbits gone, he searched the neighborhood for them manfully. He got most of them back, but not all. And meeting the dealer the next day, he said angrily.

"'What did you mean by leaving the rabbits loose on my lawn as you did? I had a frightful task to capture them, and, as it was, I only got eleven.'

"The dealer scratched his ear.

"'But eleven was pretty good, governor,' he said. 'I'd only left six, ye know. The rest was comin' on tomorrow.'"

He has made a split ticket. You vote it all right—all right, for it's a split price ticket.

$19.10 is a wonderfully low price, if on a price ticket attached to our finest Stein-Bloch and Sincerity Suits for Men.

$18.75 is as remarkable on a thirty-dollar Society Brand for Young Men.

$8.45 on a Boys' $12.50 Suit from the Sampeck Shops in New York is a true bargain, if there ever was one.

$3.85 is another solution of the small boys' cost of living. It's the new price on all our five dollar suits.

Lake City and Minneapolis Men Purchase Extensive Land Tract.

Virginia, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five thousand acres of agricultural lands in the vicinity of Sand lake soon will be opened for development.

State Senator J. W. Cook of Lake City, A. M. Foster and F. S. Goodspeed of Minneapolis have been here as guests of F. B. Rossom. The party visited different portions of the county in this section, taking in the territory north of Chisholm in 59-20 and north as far as the Canadian border, and also looked over certain lands along the Miller trunk road. The party closed a deal with Mr. Rossom for the purchase of 5,000 acres of agricultural land in the vicinity of Sand lake for colonization purposes. Messrs. Cook, Foster and Goodspeed expect to locate several thousands farmers upon these lands. The land in the vicinity of Sand lake is especially adapted for agricultural purposes and these men will endeavor to put upon them the best class of farmers for their development.

Sand lake has already become quite a noted summer resort, there being several cottages erected upon its banks by Virginians and many more are contemplating building.

Sand lake is located about fourteen miles north of this city and the development of that section will make Virginia one of the leading produce markets in Northern Minnesota.

The sinking of the Leonidas shaft is going on as usual, about a foot a day, while the five steam shovels in the Adams open pit are bustly at work day and night. The two, day shovels at the stock piles and the one at night are gradually cleaning these piles away. The No. 1 Spruce stockpile is now almost gone and it will not take long to have the others down. EXPENSIVE FOR CITY.

Grand Forks Will Suffer If Warrant Decision Holds.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A reverse decision in the case recently started against this city by the Bitulithic Paving company to compel the fixing of a certain time at which city warrants shall be made payable would have the effect of costing the city approximately $300,000 more for the work being done this season than under the present method of not fixing a time. This change would come in the greater interest the city would be obliged to pay, as the present the warrants are so drawn that they can be paid at any time and interest stopped. An appeal to the supreme court has been taken from the recent decision of Judge Templeton which favored the city.

GETS NOTICE OF ELECTION

Official Announcement of the Date Received By Auditor.

Effort Made to Straighten Out Clerk of Court Tangle.

The county auditor has received official notification of the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday during November. The election comes on Nov. 8.

At this election a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, clerk of the supreme court, four associate justices of the supreme court, three members of the state senate, five members of the house of representatives, a member of congress, county auditor, county treasurer, register of deeds, sheriff, probate judge, county attorney, county surveyor, superintendent of county schools, county coroner and three county commissioners will be elected.

The clerk of court's name has been scratched off the list. His term does not expire until two years from now and no filings will be received for this position by County Auditor Halden. The auditor says that if any one thinks he is in the wrong in taking this stand, he may take the case into the courts.

The present holder of the office, J. P. Johnson, has been filing every two years notwithstanding the fact that the office is for a term of four years. Many have been asking when his term of office is really up. It expires along with the other county offices in January, 1912.

There has been a great deal of dissatisfaction in the matter of filing for this office. Many think it is illegal to file every two years when the term is for four. Mr. Johnson was first elected to fill out an unexpired term, and his term of office has never been straightened out. He has filed every two years to protect himself.

In a recent decision, said to have been made by the attorney general, he states that office is for a term of four years and should be filed for only at the end of each term or some time before the beginning of the next.

GIRL SAYS HOVER FIRED AT LUCIA

Cause of Walker Tragedy Shows Disposition to Desert Accused Father.

Walker, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Lucia, who killed James Boardwell at the latter's home because he claimed Boardwell and his stepson, Earle Hover, were seeking to ruin Lucia's 16-year-old daughter, has engaged good legal talent and will fight the charge of murder.

Interviewed at the county jail Lucia reiterated his claims he was justified in committing the act as a matter of self-defense, there being two shots fired before he raised his weapon. He has already obtained the best legal talent in the county and the case will be bitterly fought out in the next term of district court, which convenes in November.

Prefers Loved to Her Father.

Miss Cora Lucia, who was the cause of the affray, in an interview displayed a tendency to forsake her father for her lover, Earle Hover, the stepson of the murdered man. She asserts that it was Hover and not Boardwell who fired the first two shots, and that he shot at random to frighten Lucia from the tent; then when Boardwell stepped to the screen door to see if Lucia had gone he was immediately shot and fell to the floor without even a groan. Lucia says that upon hearing the two shots he cocked his gun which immediately went off, hitting Boardwell in the head.

CANDY STORE'S SUNDAY RUSH CAUSED SUSPICIONS

The quantity and character of the business trailing into a candy store Sunday resulted in the arrest today of Mike Cuddy, proprietor of the saloon at 2232 West Superior street, on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday.

The police saw numbers of men going and coming from the confectionery shop, and couldn't imagine that all of them were purchasing "all-day suckers," or bon bons, or chewing gum, or ice cream cones. But as the place was next to a saloon they thought there might be some connection. Tuesday afternoon half a dozen witnesses were subpoenaed in police court under the investigation statute. Half a dozen were examined under oath as to what they had purchased on Sunday when they were seen coming from the candy store. It is understood that several of them stated that they bought drinks in the saloon. Cuddy entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable. 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years, she was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910."

CONCERNING WOMAN.

When Annette Kellerman, champion lady swimmer, who commands a gentleman-like salary in vaudeville, advised through a widely read publication that any one desiring to learn to swim might try first by lying across a piano stool with hands and—er—limbs held straight out, she must have quit writing just long enough to have one good laugh when she thought of young women throughout this broad land swimming in mid-air with nothing but one little piano stool to hold them up. No wonder the poor things droop like faded leaves, entwined all about the little chair after one and a half strokes.

One who has tried, recommends that every one postpone piano stool swimming and go straight to the Y. W. C. A. swimming pool. Not but that any one who can swim on a piano stool can also do it in the water for nothing, nothing, repeats the person who has tried, could be any more difficult than swimming on a piano stool. There may be people who perchance think that it is not a difficult thing to do, that reporters and others are attempting in an elephantine manner to be facetious. If there be any such, the advice is here given—discontinue reading the evening paper long enough to go into the music room to try. (Interlude.)

Did anything ever hurt worse?

The swimming pool at the Young Women's Christian association is as popular this summer as the swimming pool where the free lessons are being given. Miss Margaret Whipple is installed as instructor and individual lessons are being given. There was one beginner this morning who wasn't more than a foot and a half long and with tight shut and determined little lips and one hand clutching like grim death to the rope about the sides of the pool and water wings twice the size of herself, she tried with awful effort to swim. She will learn too. The others who are applying themselves to this accomplishment which might be called both an art and a science, vary in length from this littlest one to others who reach across the pool with arms outstretched. Nothing has ever proved more fun or brought out more determination among those attempting it, than the swimming lessons at the Y. W. C. A. swimming pool.

A number of visitors watched the classes this morning. Another open class for women visitors will be held tomorrow evening from 7 to 9 o'clock at the association. Any Duluth woman or girl interested is invited to attend the class.

HONOR SECRETARY.

Mrs. Wesley Feetham Guest at Many Affairs.

Mrs. Wesley Feetham, who will leave Duluth the first of next week, after nearly seven years as general secretary of the local Young Women's Christian association, is the guest of honor at many affairs during her last week here. Regret at Mrs. Feetham's departure is felt among all who come in contact with her and her many friends are taking pleasure in doing her honor before her departure.

Last evening the office secretaries and the young women who have lived at the association during the last year arranged a party in her honor and presented her with a gift of a very beautiful cameo pin, delicately set in gold. An informal evening party followed.

The maids of the cafetoria department of the association gave as their gift a beautiful set of table linen.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. J. D. Titcomb entertained the members of the board of the association and chairman of departments at a tea at her home, 1729 East Fourth street. The name cards were small Venetian scenes that Mrs. Titcomb brought from her recent trip abroad. Last evening Mrs. Edwards entertained at a small dinner in compliment to Mrs. Feetham and her mother, Mrs. Bennett.

This evening Mrs. Bennett will be the guest of honor at a picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. R. S. Manley at Lakeside.

Several other affairs are being planned in compliment to Mrs. Feetham for the remainder of the week.

Luncheon.

Mrs. R. E. McFarlane of 628 East Fifth street, entertained at lunch at her home in compliment to Mrs. S. E. Downs and daughter of St. Paul and Mrs. David McFarlane of Bemidji. Covers were laid for fifteen.

CIRCUS WOMAN EXCELS MAUD ADAMS IN THE ART OF POSING

MISS ELIZABETH GUICE.
Of the Sells-Floto Shows Posing as Joan of Arc.

When Maud Adams, who is admitted to be perhaps the most talented actress on the stage today, appeared before the faculty of the Harvard university one year ago in her celebrated impersonation of Joan of Arc, Mr. Frohman spread a picture broadcast on the great little actress, clad in armor standing at the head of a milk white steed.

This picture caught the fancy of editors, both East and West, as being not only unique, but possessing particular human interest.

But to people associated more closely with animal life and the strenuous activities of the sawdust ring, this picture, although so famous, did not appeal.

By most professionals it has been argued that to the circus has ever belonged the past mastership of the art of posing. The trained horse of the ring poses naturally. It is second nature with him. In the same way the woman, who has chosen the glamour of the big tents, by reason of the athletic life led by her and the insistent demands for physical grace of movement, has no peer and cannot be excelled by any actress no matter how intellectual and versatile.

The picture printed, herewith, presents Miss Elizabeth Guico of the Sells-Floto show posed as Joan of Arc, her companion being Omar Khayyam, the handsomest and best trained horse in the world. A comparison of both pictures demonstrates the truth of the argument regarding the possibilities of the circus as expressed above. Miss Guice will appear twice daily with the big Sells-Floto show when it comes here on Monday, Aug. 1.

WOMAN AND THE GARDEN

By HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD

There is no pleasanter illustration of feminine instinct than the delight of making something grow where nothing grew before, the delight of creation, and of producing and increasing beauty to gladden the eyes of the world.

It is, perhaps, to be doubted, if flower gardening were a plebeian occupation, whether feminine instinct would turn to it quite so willingly, although we fancy that even in that case there would be surreptitious little boxes of mignonette and violets hidden away in corners for private, if vulgar, enjoyment.

But since even duchesses handle now and then a garden rake and play the pastoral no woman of lesser degree, or of any republican degree, feels that her dignity suffers any derogation from the use of her little hoe and picturesque object in the landscape while doing it, not only in the tender spring and summer, but at a time when the outdoor world is cheerless and needs such an enlivening object as her bright colors and busy movements make her.

Moreover, if she herself is not conscious of it, others are conscious that the work is a refining one; that rude movements are impossible where such delicate objects are concerned, and that ungracious thoughts cannot have wide range in the mind of her who watches the slow, sweet progress of the bud becoming a flower, and takes heed to feed and nurture something as a mother cares for her child, while she sees loveliness growing under her hand as it grows under the hand of a painter or carver.

Meanwhile the bountiful old earth remembers well those who take pleasure in occupying themselves with her; and for all the toll in the damps of spring, the heats of summer or the chills of autumn she gives a robustness and rosiness that make the beauty of the flowers not the only beauty evoked from her processes.

She repays the effort expended on her by a fine familiarity with her ways, which makes the fair gardener seem to be more a thing of nature than of art herself; and every once in a while she causes one to think that, but for women, those flowers which are merely objects of beauty and not utility might perish out of the world.

In his charming "Outdoor Papers" Colonel Higginson describes a piece of statuary, a fountain in a garden, whose fine fall wrapped three marble maidens in a veil of spray, and in winter sheathed them about with glittering, many-rainbowed ice. Such a sculpture in a garden is but a monument to those women who were possibly, it seems, the first gardeners years ago, and who are the tutelary genii of all flower gardeners now.

WHEN IT'S WISE TO DODGE

By CARA REESE

Sometimes it is heroic to meet a situation fairly and squarely. Sometimes you display valor to better credit by dodging the issue.

It were far better to jump over the fence or crawl into cramped quarters in the bushes than to meet impalement on the horns of a wild beast. When the situation is in the shape of an infuriated bullock frothing down a narrow lane with head lowered and you advancing as an easy prey, don't wait to meet the situation. Get out of the road!

Or, if the situation approaches relentlessly and dust-covered around a curve in the highway, don't wait to test the endurance of your motor conveyance and to meet the situation, but a quick jump for life. Give the situation supreme right of way! And if the situation looms up threateningly, the chariots of destiny dashing wildly over the course, the wheels of fate crushing and grinding the obstacles, hie yourself, hump yourself, get out of the way even though you are obliged to cut a ridiculous figure and "skip out." Where there are no questions of honor or principle involved, never wait for the situation; let the situation pass full sway.

And to dodge the situation is not always one-sided. There are cases on record where the situation of the first part recognizes a situation in the one of the second part, and vice versa. With both parties dodging the issue there is no longer a situation, and the collision of teams, tongues or tempers is no clash after all, through virtue of mutual avoidance.

There are situations which are actually forced, for instance the tactless parent or teacher forever bearing down in irritating menace on child or pupil until the aggravating situation of insubordination is developed. The forced situations are many in life. Some must be bravely met as the lesser evil and in order to prove that to trample on rights and to override, are not exactly right. It is necessary to meet the situation and to conquer in order to establish claims or rights. But there are many situations which it were better to avoid, and many more situations which it were better not to face.

Then another thing there is no situation so bad but that it might be worse. There are disagreeable situations and serious situations and damaging situations. But there are also delightful situations, humorous situations and situations of the most absurd type.

There are strange situations and annoying situations and even compromising situations. You must do your best as situations arise, mainly, alert to get out of the way.

Heed this: Do not try to be heroic in a situation beyond your strength. When the horns, the gun or the broomstick are after you, step nimbly aside. There would be fewer industrial and domestic crashes were situations avoided.

THE EVENING STORY

WILL YOU WALK INTO MY PARLOR?

By Armiger Barclay.

"You really ought not to have told me anything about it, Tom," demurred little Mrs. Levage. "If I were not half a French woman, you wouldn't have dared!"

"My dear Llane," returned Tom Rufford, "that's not the reason, believe me. Besides, you don't understand—"

"I am four-and-twenty, and your aunt, and I understand perfectly," interrupted the dainty little creature, with a frown that would not have disconcerted a baby. "You are carrying on a scandalous intrigue with a married woman—"

"But—"

"—and you expect me to sympathize with you! What would Fred say?"

"Fred be ——. Look here, Llane, I've confided in you because you're a good sort, and generally appreciative. Remember, I haven't mentioned her name—"

"Don't Tom. She might be my best friend!"

"I'm not going to. As for the intrigue, as you call it, there's not any in the sense you mean. I simply worship her—pity her from my heart for having such a husband. Where's the scandal in that?"

"Oh, you're too plausible, Tom. Just now you said—"

"Yes, I know. Of course, I've told her I adore her—I'm not made of wood—and she's as good as said the same to me. But that's all, 'pon my honor!"

Little Mrs. Levage looked a trifle disappointed. In spite of her well-simulated indignation she felt all a pretty woman's interest in an "affair." Besides, she was very fond of her big nephew, Tom Hufford, and liked him none the less because he was in the habit of confiding to her at such times as the tender passion moved him.

"Is she very nice?" she smiled.

"She's too delightful for words! She has all the charm of the most charming women I've ever known and none of their defects. Just think, Llane! A woman as beautiful as a goddess. I've known her for a month now, and, would you believe it, I've only been able to make her accept a few flowers a couple of sprays of orchids. She absolutely refuses to let me spend a penny on her!"

"It sounds a little suburban, Tom."

"Don't you make any mistake. You know a little about dress and that sort of thing, but you're not in it with her, Llane. Her dresses say anything so wonderful in my life, or so many. She goes to Katchenka's, and what her bill there must be, heaven only knows! I've settled up one or two bills of the merry Katchenka's myself, and I ought to—"

"Tom! how disgraceful."

Her nephew made a grimace. "That's what I thought when I paid up," said he, dryly.

A little later Tom shut the door of his flat and picked up a letter lying in the hall and returned to his pleasant sitting room. The little confidences of the morning served to whet an ardent passion. Innocent as it was, so far, it provided vistas of delightful reflection. Tom Rufford, in a comfortable armchair, with the spring sunshine brightening all around him, felt supremely happy. One thing was certain: Constance Windham returned his affection unselfishly. She was unhappy and he had consoled her; precious thought! She asked for nothing—could expect nothing more. How much better, how much purer—this was than the every day courtship that implied material returns. Tom had had one or two experiences that rankled!

With a sigh of satisfaction he opened the business-looking letter that he had brought in, and began reading it.

"Sir—During her visit here yesterday, Mrs. Windham dropped a letter bearing your name and address, which begins: 'My Own Constance.' The sweet admission that you return my love fills my heart with tenderness. I adore you! For me the world begins and ends with you! When am I to see you—hold your dear hands again?'

"I make no excuse for taking the only means in my power to obtain a settlement from Mrs. Windham. Unless I receive by this afternoon the sum of nine hundred and seventy dollars, I shall be compelled in self-defense to place the letter in the hands of her husband.

"I am, sir, obediently yours,

"LUCIE KATCHENKA,
"Costumer and Modiste."

What a monstrous thing was this? A trade trick or a practical joke? But the letter! How had it gotten into Katchenka's hands? Had not Constance herself told him she had destroyed it?

He dashed out and jumped into a cab. Within half an hour he was with Mrs. Windham, and without preamble he came to the point.

"Do you owe Katchenka $900?" he asked breathlessly.

The lady drew herself up and replied: "By what right do you intrude into my private affairs?"

"Don't be angry with me, Constance," he implored. "I understand your pride, your disinterestedness. But for your own sake—mine—you must be frank."

"Even," she hesitated, affected by his earnestness, "even if I admit that, unfortunately, I am in debt for so large a sum, I don't see—"

"Well, you'll see in a moment. Read that."

She took the letter, looked at it and then, with a cry of horror, staggered to the sofa.

"Great heavens!" she gasped, "I am lost!"

"Then it's true? Katchenka means mischief!"

"She must, the wretch! I must have been mad to run up such a bill, but"—here she hid her face—"I wanted to look my best—to please you. If only I had destroyed the letter!"

"But you told me you had!"

"Yes, I know, I meant to. But it was the only one I had from you, and—I treasured it! I kept it by me to read at every opportunity. I never tired of reading it. How I dropped it I do not know. But of one thing I am sure, Katchenka will keep her word and carry out her threat if she isn't paid. Oh, it's maddening!"

She buried her face in the sofa cushions and cried hysterically.

Like a hurricane Tom drove to the establishment of the modiste.

"Look here, madame," he burst out, "do you expect to blackmail me into paying you nearly a thousand dollars?"

Katchenka shrugged her shapely shoulders.

"Are you here to bargain, sir?" she asked coldly. "Perhaps Mrs. Windham's husband would like to see that letter. At any rate if you do not liquidate the debt by 3 o'clock today I shall take the unpleasant alternative."

Tom started to plead, but a disdainful light which came into the woman's face caused him to desist.

The balance of the afternoon he spent scurrying from club to club and from friend to friend. He exhausted the remains of his bank account, and it was a few minutes after the appointed hour when he again arrived at the costumieres.

"Thanks," said Tom, sarcastically, as he got his receipt. "But I want the letter as well."

The lady smiled merrily. "But I haven't got it," she said.

Tom aghast, with mouth open and eyes staring, exclaimed.

"Really, I am sorry," continued Katchenka smoothly. "I had to do it, you know. It was dictated."

Then Tom's anger took the place of his amazement. He stormed and raved and threatened until the madame feared for her costly stock scattered about.

"Who dictated it?" shouted the bereft young man.

"The best way I can explain," said the half frightened woman, as she fumbled with her rustling silk petticoat, "is to show you this. It will show you that I am not responsible—that I only followed instructions."

She meekly held out an envelope.

Snatching it, Tom read:

"To Mrs. Windham:

"Dear madam—According to promise I hasten to inform you that everything is settled, and a receipt in full handed to the gentleman who brought the money. I cannot express sufficient admiration for your clever plan to secure payment of my account, and as money is very difficult to get at this season of the year, I am more than grateful.

"Trusting soon to be favored with your further commands, and to open a fresh account with you, I am, dear madam, obediently yours,

"LUCIE KATCHENKA."

NO PLACE FOR CELESTIALS.

George Richmond Hayes, the noted San Francisco ethnologist, said at a recent dinner:

"The yellow races are held in better esteem than used to be the case in the West.

"I once visited a very rough boom town in Oregon near Cottage Grove. In the leading saloon a man in a red shirt said to me:

"'Ye wanter carry yerself almight straight in these parts, stranger. Go wrong the least mite, and, by crinus, we'll lynch ye as quick as look at ye.'

"I smiled.

"'Would you lynch me,' I asked, 'if I killed a dog?'

"'Would we?' he snorted. 'Why, stranger, we've lynch fellers here for killin' Chinamen!'"

HINTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

By MILDRED WYCKOFF.

Care of Eyes and Eyebrows.

To keep the eyes clear and bright the first consideration is that they should be carefully used, never subjected to undue strain, such as reading or working in an uncertain light, or in too great a glare; and the second is always to read with the light falling on the book from behind.

When the slightest inflammation or irritation is noticed the eyes should be bathed frequently with a lotion composed of ten grains of borax to ten ounces of camphor water (not spirits of camphor).

Puffiness under the eyes is often due to eye strain, sometimes to insomnia and late hours; but, whatever the cause the cure lies in the constant use of the following lotion.

To one ounce of glycerine add twenty grains of tannic acid and, with a fine camelshair brush, paint the lotion on the skin night and morning.

For weak eyes the very best remedy is sponging them with clear, cold water and occasionally with a little weak, cold tea.

The eyebrows and eyelashes, especially the latter, are very important considerations in the beauty of the eyes.

When the eyebrows are too thin, clip their extreme edges and rub a little pure vaseline into them at night.

In the morning brush them wth a small, soft brush.

Should they be uneven the offending hairs can be removed by electrolysis, but much can be done by training them with a brush and a little vaseline or rose oil.

Scanty eyelashes can be improved by clipping their extreme edges, but this must be done with the greatest caution by someone else and a pair of curved scissors will be necessary. A mixture of eau-de-cologne and castor oil should be smeared along the roots at night, care being taken to avoid dropping any of the mixture into the eyes. In the morning; after washing the face dip the fingers into clear, cold water and tweak the eyelashes, then smooth the eyebrows over in the direction in which they should grow.

AT BRIDGE

By JOHN JAMESON

She still sits at bridge at midnight
As the clocks are striking the hour;
No thought of her home or her family
To move her have the power.

How often, oh, how often,
Summer and winter through,
Has she sat thus at bridge at midnight—
Ay, sometimes till one and two!

And how often, oh, how often,
Through the golden hours of day,
Has she striven with others like her
For purse or prize at play!

And forever and forever,
While this fad our fair land sweeps,
Will she bridge the interval daily
'Twixt the time she wakes and sleeps!

So she still sits at bridge at midnight,
And pride in her bosom stirs,
For she holds the best score of the series
And the tournament trophy is hers!

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JULY 31. Matt. xviii. 21-35: Lesson on Forgiveness.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

THE CONNECTION.

The last lesson was on the Transfiguration. After that Jesus returned to Capernaum. Read the account of paying the tax of the half shekel for the support of the temple, then the lesson on true greatness, with a little child as an illustration. Read carefully His instructions on how one should treat an offending brother, seeking not revenge upon him, but the recovery of him from his wrong course, always taking the initiative, keeping it up, and even securing assistance till he yields or proves irrecoverable. Need of the spirit of forgiveness will arise.

THE LESSON.

I.

The Forgiving Spirit Required. 21, 22.

"Then came Peter and said to him, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? until seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, until seven times; but, until seventy times seven."

1. PRACTICE.—The one who injures another injures himself more. The latter must seek the recovery of the former. The aggressor must get his eyes opened to the situation. Possibly a case was up among the disciples and the question shows their sensitiveness to the right.

2. PRINCIPLE.—Rules work from without; principles from within. Jesus taught the latter. Life under the former is mechanical and constrained; under the latter, vital and spontaneous. The rule of the rabbis was that one should forgive another three times, if asked. Peter had gone farther and made it seven times. Jesus said it should be limitless, for that is really what His figures meant. If one has the spirit of forgiveness he has it permanently and never stops wanting to forgive and actually does so, every chance he has.

3. FORGIVENESS.—What is it? The Greek word means to send away. Instead of retaining it and stirring it up, you send the sin out of the one who has committed it, by sending away all resentment out of your mind. He will let the sin go, only by repenting, and he repents only when he sees the wrong of it; and in another place, Jesus tells you to seek lovingly and persistently, to bring the offender to repentance. So much for the principle of forgiveness; now for the story illustrating it.

II.

Forgiveness Illustrated. 24-35.

"Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, who would make a reckoning with his servants. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, that owed him ten thousand talents. But forasmuch as he had not wherewith to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. The servant therefore fell down and worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. And the lord of that servant, being moved with compassion, released him, and forgave him the debt. But that servant went out, and found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him a hundred shillings; and he laid hold on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay what thou owest. So his fellow-servant fell down and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee. And he would not; but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay that which was due. So when his fellow-servants saw what was done, they were exceeding sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done. Then his lord called him unto him, and saith to him, Thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou besoughtest me; should-est not thou also have had mercy on thy fellow-servant, even as I had mercy on thee? And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due. So shall also my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye forgive not every one his brother from your hearts."

1. DEPTS.—The servant was not an ordinary menial, but probably a provincial governor who, through mismanagement or misuse of funds, had fallen short in sending the taxes from his province on to his king. The amount was enormous, 10,000 talents, equal to probably $20,000,000 in its purchasing power but that could easily have been the case for it was not a private deft and had probably been accumulating through several years. This was the debt he owed his master who appointed him. By this large debt Jesus would set forth the great immeasurable. This official had a debtor among his fellow-servants perhaps some local tax-gatherer who had failed to turn over to his governor the little sum of $17. Contrast the $20,000,000 with this. The very object of the large sum is to show how great are our sins against God, each little sin like a million. The utmost we can forgive in our fellow men is small compared with what God must forgive in us.

2. CREDITORS.—The king forgives the large debt of his appointee after a show of severity toward him, on the promise of the latter to pay, which meant that he made him a present of the account. It would be difficult for a penniless man ever to make so large a sum. The king seems to have done wrong in allowing the unscrupulous man to go unpunished. We would suppose the effect of his happy release from the galling yoke of debt would have made him generous, as he met his debtor. But, no, he has the self-seeking spirit which Jesus condemned in His ambitious disciple, which makes men merciless. He had lifted his hands in entreaty to his creditor only a little before, and now he roughly seizes his own debtor by the throat. His creditor, the king, had forgiven him, allowing his family to go free, though he had the legal right to imprison the debtor and sell his family; he had almost done wrong in allowing so great a criminal to go unwhipped of justice. God is seen in the character of the king. Because we are bankrupt and because He loves to do so, God forgives us, but, while He always has the forgiving love, it is effective with us, only on condition that we quit sinning, let Him "send it away" and reproduce His spirit in our treatment of others.

3. DOOM.—The doom of the servant was complex and complete—the hatred of his fellow servants; the wrath of his indignant master, not on account of his debt but his vicious spirit; he loved darkness and that darkness, now become a part of himself, is his doom. God's forgiveness cannot reach such people and this judgment meets with the approval of Christ, His Son. Lord Bacon truly said "He that will not forgive another breaks down the bridge over which he himself must cross." The twelve must have been startled, for He made it personal to them, by saying "you."

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

This, then, is man's terrible, hopeless condition: First, he owes constant, undivided, endless loyalty as a son of the Heavenly Father. Even had he never fallen, he never could have done more than to pay his debts as they accrued with every amount of his immortality. But, secondly, he has fallen and so has incurred additional debts of reparation; or, what amounts to the same thing, he has incurred penalty. And how terrible those debts of reparation are. See how his whole life is packed with sins, failures in duty, moral defaults, countless sins of omission as well as commission, a long, unbroken, crooked schedule of black indebtedness. And not a farthing has he to pay with. And so bankruptcy is written on his door posts.—Boardman.

Christianity is a revelation of the love of God—a demand of our love by God based thereon. Christianity is a revelation of Divine forgiveness—a requirement thereupon that we should forgive each other. The gospel did not make God love us; it only revealed His love. The gospel did not make it our duty to forgive and love; it only revealed the eternal order of things, to transgress which is our misery. These belong to the eternal order and ideal of our humanity.—Robertson.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Why is forgiveness more noble than retaliation?
2. What is the highest form of courage?
3. Why is bestowing forgiveness a condition of receiving it?
4. Why is reparation of wrong done a protection against wrong doing?
5. What would be the condition of our world if nobody was willing to forgive anybody?
6. How much of the unforgiving spirit in the world are you responsible for?

LICENSE MEN WIN IN IOWA

High Tax on Saloons Is Supported By State Democrats.

Tariff Law and Postal Savings Bank Law Are Denounced.

Ottumwa, Iowa, July 28.—Such townships and municipalities of Iowa as are willing to pay a high license for the sake of trafficking in liquor may do so in the event of Democratic success at the forthcoming gubernatorial election. At least, the platform adopted at the convention of that party here yesterday says so, but the pledge was not made without a fight, both in committee and on the floor. Former Congressman Martin Wade, chairman of the resolutions committee, defended the plank against a vigorous assault on the part of Gen. J. B. Weaver.

"I am tired of belonging to a party which is known as the liquor party," declared Mr. Wade. "Where a majority of a community desire liquor they should have it, and vice versa. That is personal liberty, gentlemen, and it is Democracy."

Adopted With a Shout.

Gen Weaver grew vehement in reply. "I don't know what will do more to make the Democratic party the liquor party than that plank," he declared.

The platform as reported was then adopted with a shout and Gen. Weaver demanded a roll call on the liquor plank so that, as he said, the people of the state would know exactly where the party stands. He made a motion to strike out the vital parts of the plank, but was overwhelmingly defeated on roll call. P. B. Wolfe of Clinton received the long term and P. G Van Wagenan the short term nomination for the supreme court bench. H. J. Stenfer of Toledo presided over the permanent organization.

The heat in the convention hall was all but unbearable. Many delegates surrendered to the discomfort and left the place. Frank Holmes, recorder of Scott county, was overcome as he sat among his delegation, but was revived later.

Denounces Payne Law.

The platform denounces the recent tariff revision as a "masterpiece of injustice," declares trusts and monopolies to be intolerable, opposes the central bank idea, condemns the postal savings bank law in allowing the withdrawal of savings from the community in which they are deposited and accuses the Republican national administration of making reckless expenditures. It indorses the regulation of railway, telephone, telegraph and express companies; an income tax; the conservation of natural resources; the principle of the initiative, referendum and the recall, and improvement of roads. It urges a modification of the state primary law to reduce expenses, and declares for the Oregon plan of electing senators until such time as it shall be possible to do so by direct vote of the people.

FARMERS' UNION ENTERS POLITICS

Members Are to Work to Defeat Officials Who Are Untractable.

Raleigh, N. C., July 28.—Three million farmers of the United States are to be banded together to attempt the defeat of such members of congress and other public officials as are deaf to the demands of agriculturists for laws advancing their interests. The announcement was made here last night by Charles S. Barrett, president of the Formers' union, who said the organization was working on a list of such legislators which will be known as the "Doomsday" book. The book, Mr. Barrett added, will be issued before November.

MOORHEAD WANTS TO KEEP SALOONS

Department of the Interior May Modify Indian Liquor Regulations.

Washington, July 28.—In response to a protest from a delegation of Minnesotans against the extension of the prohibition regulations of the bureau of Indian affairs to Moorhead, Minn., which is located on ceded Indian lands, Acting Secretary of the Interior Pierce has taken under advisement the question whether the department's recent action bringing that city within the prohibited territory shall be rescinded or modified.

The mayor of Moorhead, Former Representative Comstock and a representative of the Brewers' Association of Minesota, have asked the acting secretary to revoke the anti-liquor order in so far as it relates to Moorhead. The instructions forbid the introduction of intoxicating liquors in the territory adjacent to the White Earth and Leech Lake reservations in Minnesota, in order to protect the Indians. There are forty-seven saloons in Moorhead, and the delegation informed Mr. Pierce that the revenue from their licenses was one of the principal sources of income of the city. The department promised to take the views of the delegation under consideration.

HASKELL LOSES IN HIGH COURT

Guthrie Is Declared to Be the Capital of Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., July 28.—Late yesterday afternoon the state supreme court handed down a decision in the capital removal case to the effect that Oklahoma's capital shall remain at Guthrie until the legality of the election recently held is determined and the courts have settled the constitutional question embraced in the provision of the enabling act that Guthrie shall remain the capital until 1913, and that an election shall be held after that time to establish a permanent capital.

The decision was rendered on a writ of prohibition on the question whether Judge Huston of the Logan county district court had the right to restrain Governor Haskell and other state officers from moving their offices and records to Oklahoma City.

Judge Huston Upheld.

Under the decision, Judge Huston acted within his rights when he issued the restraining order against the state officers.

In obedience to the decision, all state officials other than the governor, who have moved their offices to Oklahoma City, must return to Guthrie and stay there until the courts have finally decided the capital controversy. The governor may go where he pleases, but legally his official acts must appear as having been performed in Guthrie. It is thought that Governor Haskell will not return to this city.

TEDDY SILENT; TAFT PLEASED

Both Hear the Result of the Republican Convention in Ohio.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 28.—When Col. Roosevelt heard the news from the Ohio Republican convention he sat silent and motionless in his chair for a full minute. He looked as though he wanted to say something, and the interviewer leaned forward for his expected statement on Ohio politics. Suddenly he brought his hands together with a smack and said:

"Not a word to say, gentlemen, not a word to say."

Taft Much Pleased.

Biddefordpool, Me., July 28.—Wireless telegraphy brought to President Taft the news of the nomination of Warren G. Harding as the Republican candidate for governor of Ohio. The president spent all but the early forenoon hours at sea.

Mr. Taft seemed delighted over the outcome in Ohio. He was without information as to the convention or the phraseology of the platform, but seemed to take it for granted that everything had been harmonious. The president has a very warm estimate of Mr. Harding. He said that with the possible exception of Former Senator Foraker, he regarded Mr. Harding as the best campaigner in the state of Ohio, on either side. Mr. Taft said Mr. Harding is a forceable and eloquent man and he gave every indication in his informal discussion of the situation of looking upon Mr. Harding ar about the strongest man the convention could have selected.

The president made it plain that at no time has he opposed the nomination of Mr. Garfield.

ORIGINAL LOG BOOK OF THE MONITOR SENT TO WASHINGTON

Washington, July 28.—The original log book of the famous Monitor, covering the period of her engagement with the Confederate Ironclad, Merrimac, in Hampton Roads on March 9, 1862, has been given to the navy department to be preserved among its historic records.

The restoration of the log to the department was due to Capt. Louis Stodder of the United States revenue cutter service, now living in Brooklyn, and an officer of the Monitor during her entire service. For years he has treasured the log among his most valuable possession, but as old age has crept over him he desired to see it placed wher its preservation might be assured. Hence it was that he forwarded it to the library of the navy department.

The entries cover dates from Feb. 26 to Sept. 11, 1862, and tell of the little "cheese box on a raft" foundering off Cape Hatteras Dec. 31, 1862, when Stodder was acting master; of her engagement with the Confederatt batteries at Sewell's Point, Hampton Roads, and at Fort Darling in the James river.

Tells of Famous Fights.

By far the most interesting entries concern the fight with the Merrimac. Among the entries on Sunday, March 9, 1862, are the following:

"Four to 8 p. m.—Weather fine and calm. At sunrise saw three steamers lying under Sewell's Point. Made one out to be the rebel steamer Merrimac. At 7:20 got under way and stood towards her and piped all hands to quarter. J. WEBBER."

"From 8 to meridian—Fine clear weather. The rebel steamers advancing and opened fire on the Minnesota. 8:20—Opened fire on the Merrimac; from that time until 12 constantly engaged with the Merrimac. "LOUIS STODDER."

Defeat of the Merrimac.

"From meridian to 4 p. m.—Clear weather. At 12:30 rifled shell struck the pilot house, severely injuring Commander Worden. 1 p. m.—The Merrimac hauled off in a disabled condition. Stood towards the Minnesota and received on board Assistant Secretary Fox of the navy. 2 p. m.—Capt. Worden left for Fort Monroe in charge of Surgeon Logue.

"GEORGE FREDERICKSON."

Those who inspected the log drew attention to the first entry, which should have been for the forenoon instead of the afternoon.

WANTED---A REMEDY.

Handsomely engraved cards are being distributed through the mails, of which the following is a copy:

FROM CONSULAR REPORT.

"Today the harbor of Singapore is crowded with ships and steamers from all countries of the earth except the United States. The total number of vessels registered here in 1908 was 29,234 with a tonnage of 15,507,102. Of this number one small craft of 662 tons, flying the Stars and Stripes, came in with ballast and was sold to the highest bidder."

Will you not assist in finding a remedy?

B. N. BAKER.

Baltimore.

Says the Indainapolis News: "Certainly we shall be glad to assist in finding a remedy. We have always been willing to do this. And many remedies suggest themselves. One is to allow our ship owners to buy ships wherever they please, on the best terms they can get, and then to sail them under the American flag. Another is to reduce or remove our duty on steel out of which modern ships are made. Another is to reduce our tariff, and to remove altogether many of our duties, so that the ships which carry cargoes out of this country will not be fined 40 per cent and more on their value when they seek to bring in return cargoes. Another is to destroy those monoplies, and to repeal the law that favors them, which are so powerful a factor in keeping up prices."

That response from our Indianapolis contemporary will be bitterly disappointing to Mr. Baker of Baltimore. What Baker of Baltimore wished to hear in response to his appeal was a plea for a ship subsidy. He wanted to have those to whom he sent his handsomely engraved card reply that what the country ought to do is to tax its people heavily for the fictitious profit of ship-owners. And here the News comes back with simple, honest, practical and logical remedies that do not contemplate the imposition of a single dollar of taxes upon the many for the benefit of a few, but which do contemplate a very large and beneficial relief to the American people from existing burdens.

When ships were made of wood, the merchant marine of the United States dominated the world's seas. When ships of steel replaced ships of wood, this country found itself out of the running because it had imposed prohibitive taxes on ship-building and ship-owning. Ship subsidists propose to remedy this condition not by removing these handicaps, but by taxing the American people to provide profits for ship-owners. The people are to pay taxes first to kill shipping, and then, without ceasing to pay those taxes, they are to pay other taxes on top of them for the revival of shipping—and as usual the many will pay and the few will reap the benefit.

It was rather cruel of the News to disappoint Baker of Baltimore in this fashion, but nevertheless the remedies it proposes are those which The Herald has urged for years, and they are the only honest remedies available, except that of providing a 10 per cent reduction of the tariff on goods imported in American vessels.

If the tax handicap placed on American shipping is removed, the Stars and Stripes will fly again in foreign ports. It is absurd, however, to propose taxing the American people for money to be used in hiring men to fly that flag in foreign ports, merely for the sake of seeing it there and without any possible benefit to the country.

A FOOL THERE IS.

"A fool there was," says Kipling, and at this time of the year it is natural to change the tense to the present, for this is the season when the fool-who-rocks-the-boat holds sway.

From the time when editors were first invented they have directed their fire against this particular form of idiocy, and though it may be that they have done some good by it, and while public opinion has been warm in its support of them, the great trouble is that the boat rocker gets in his work in situations where public opinion is compelled to sit still and keep the boat as steady as possible instead of beating the miscreant over the head with an oar or club or ax or crowbar or some equally useful utensil.

And when it is all over, public opinion either lies cold and silent at the bottom, or else is so thankful to have avoided that fate that it is inclined to be easy with the offender for this time.

A couple of years ago the Associated Press wires carried an account of a young girl down in Wisconsin somewhere who went rowing with a youthful swain and took a smaller sister with her. When they had reached the middle of the river, the oarsman, seized with one of those inexplicable paroxysms of idiotic imbecility, began to rock the boat in the hope of making the girls scream. The younger promptly sent forth a series of shrieks that ought to have satisfied his very soul. At any rate, they attracted the attention of people on shore, who looked up just in time to see the older girl draw a revolver from her waist and level it at the fool. She was too far away from shore for her words to be heard by the onlookers, but they noticed that the fool immediately abandoned his folly.

Of course it was all wrong for the girl to carry a revolver. But since she had it with her there probably is no better use to which she could have put it than to instill a bit of common sense where there was none before.

The trouble is that there are so many cases where some such treatment is needed. If there is any such thing as a list of people, the lynching of whom is justified, the fool-who-rocks-the-boat ought to be put well up toward the top of the list and marked with a dagger.

THE SENATE.

To get a clear viewpoint of the traditions of the United States senate, and to realize just how necessary it is that senators shall be elected by the people and thereby made responsive to their will, it may be worth while to step back and study the motives that led to the creation in that body of a bulwark against popular rule.

If this is to be a government by and for property, regardless of the interests of humanity, with the concealed but inevitable object of creating and maintaining a ruling property class, then the senate should remain as it is.

If this is to be a government by and for people, which will conserve property interests only so far as is necessary for the common good, but which will place humanity higher than property, the man higher than the dollar, then the senate must be made responsive to the people's will.

Few realize, nowadays, how distrustful of the people the fathers of the Republic were. The house, representative of the people, was a grudged concession to democracy. The senate, representative of property and not people, was a safeguard against popular control. Here are some of the illuminating statements made in the debates in the Constitutional Convention:

Roger Sherman—The people should have as little to do as may be about the government.

Elbridge Gerry—The evils we experience flow from an excess of democracy, the worst of all possible evils.

John Dickinson—A limited monarchy is one of the best governments in the world.

Alexander Hamilton—The British monarchy is the best government in the world. Their house of lords is a noble institution. Inequality in property constitutes the great and fundamental distinction in society.

Gouverneur Morris—The senate must have great personal property; it must have aristocratic spirit; it must love to lord it through pride. To make it independent it should be for life. Property is the main object of society.

John Rutledge—Property certainly is the principal object of society.

Pierce Butler—Slaves should have an equal representation in a government which is instituted principally for the protection of property, and is of itself to be supported by property.

George Mason—It would be as unnatural to refer the choice of a proper character for president to the people as to refer a test of colors to a blind man. (Hence the electoral college, which years ago became a mere empty form.)

John Madison—In future times a great majority of the people will not only be without landed but any sort of property. If they combine the rights of property will not be safe in their hands.

It was out of such ideas as these that the checks and balances of the government were born. These were patriots. Their names are honored. They believed what they said. They doubted the ability of the people to govern themselves. They had no means of knowing that the people could govern themselves. So they framed, in the senate, a perpetual bulwark against the people's will, designed for the enthronement of property.

Shall this country, with its new light, cling to institutions born of such absurd fears? Or shall its government become thoroughly responsive to the people, trusting to them to surround property with such safeguards as shall conserve the common good without making humanity slave to its arrogance?

Boston is to have a body of Forty Immortals, like France. Of course, Tom Lawson will be one.

Maybe you have noticed that Canada is advertising. Also, be it known, Canada is getting the settlers. Nuff sed.

Governor Hadley of Indiana got the politicians to help harvest his wheat. But will they mend his fences in the fall?

The Boston Globe wants to know, when you ask a woman a question, what makes her so often answer "Why?"

"Life," says the New York Herald, "is first one hot day after another." Another reason why it is more comfortable to live in Duluth than in New York.

President Taft says he approves of a sixty-day vacation for every one. This shows how he has been enjoying himself since he got congress off his hands.

A bill introduced in the Georgia legislature makes it a misdemeanor to print "opprobrious words" or "abusive language" in a newspaper. Is this a blow aimed at Hoke Smith?

And, by the way, asks the Indianapolis News, just what sort of bookkeeping did they have in that great Louisville trust company while the amiable Mr. Ropke was stealing a million or more?

And still Duluth has real summer resort weather, while to the south and east and west many are prostrated by the intense heat. This is a Duluth feature that can stand plenty of advertising.

"In all my life," declared Speaker Cannon, "I have never seen a situation so full of promise for a Republican victory this fall." Sounds like an echo from the Jeffries camp the day before the catastrophe, says a Nashville paper.

Warren G. Harding, who has been nominated by the Republican convention for governor of Ohio, was one of the earliest candidates in the race and claimed that none of the leaders backed his candidacy. But the votes that Boss Cox swung to him on the last ballot brought about his nomination.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

REMARKABLE ADVICE GIVEN THE FARMERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Farm, Stock and Home sagely advises the Dakota farmers who have suffered crop failure by reason of drouth to buy range cattle and let them eat it up. Well, that is one way to get rid of a failure and ought to be a pointer to those dairymen around Duluth who have been fearful they would have to sell off their cows because of shortage in the hay crop. Let them buy more cows and eat the shotage up!

Recently some learned professor advised that hay could be cut as late as December. Here is a case where we farmers would have to be shown. None of the farmers around here seem to know how to sift the hay out of the snow at anything like a reasonable cost. The farmers are ignorant, densely ignorant, compared to what there is yet to be learned. But one thing seems certain, if the farmers were not infinitely wiser than their instructors of press and college, the world would begin to go hungry to bed in a very short time.

FOND DU LAC WATER SUPPLY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Dear Sir: If your correspondent, Thomas Dillon, will take another look at that Fond du Lac spring which he mentions in your last issue, he will find it to be the overflow of a 4,000-gallon reservoir already installed; then if he will look along the streets and call at the houses, he will find that about a mile of pipe has been laid, and that about every one who wants it, now has the spring water in his house and that the pressure is ample.

He undoubtedly meant well; but his suggestions tend to a misunderstanding of the existing facts.

Respectfully,
JOHN H. BRIGHAM.
Duluth, July 28.

Thin-Skinned Statesmen.

New York World: Former Vice President Fairbanks told the convention of advertising clubs of America that "one of the market features of recent years has been the indiscriminate abuse of men in public position." Mr. Fairbanks would have answer the facts if he had said that one of the marked features of recent years have been the lessening of indiscriminate abuse of men in public positions.

There has been no other period in the history of the country when public men were handled more gently by their political opponents. Whoever doubts it is invited to read what the anti-Federalists said about Washington and Hamilton, what the Federalists said about Jefferson, what the friends of Clay said about Jackson and what the Jacksonites said about Clay, what the abolitionists said about Webster, what the slavery men and abolitionists said about Lincoln, what the Democrats said about Grant, what the Republicans said about Cleveland.

More venom dripped from John Randolph's tongue in five minutes than could be squeezed from all the muck-raking magazines in a year. Compare with some of Thad Stevens' speeches, the harshest words now uttered in public against any eminent American office-holder would seem complimentary—almost flattering.

This is really an era of good feeling and thin-skinned statesmen, disturbed only by an occasional moan from the lips of Uncle Joe Cannon and John Dalzell. What would become of a sensitive person like Mr. Taft if he had to stand such criticism as most of his predecessors endured?

The Next Speaker.

Kansas City Times: The next speaker of the national house of representatives will not be Cannon. Nor will he be Representative Smith of Iowa, nor Payne of New York, nor Dalzell of Pennsylvania, nor Tawney of Minnesota.

He may be a Democrat, and it would not be surprising if he should be; but even if he is a Republican, he will not be Cannon nor any of his chief lieutenants who have been leading the losing fight against the progressives.

It is not probable, of course, that even if the next house should be Republican a majority of its Republican members will be avowed progressives. But the number of progressives will be increased, and so will be the number of Democrats.

The defiant regulars will get such a drubbing between the midsummer primaries and the fall elections that the lesson will finally be pounded home to the party leaders in general that something is going on — something they have tried to kill with bluff and sneer, with arrogance and defiance, but have only stimulated with greater energy by their flagrant and fatuous servitude on behalf of the special interests.

Therefore, let no man who counts himself a progressive impair his usefulness with perturbation over Cannon's defiant candidacy for re-election to the speakership. Let him rather rejoice. This avowed and early candidacy helps to crystallize the progressive movement. Cannon's speeches have also helped in the same direction. The picturesque veteran as an obsolete system has exhibited himself once too often. The people know his day has passed.

No, the next speaker will not be Cannon nor any other man of his kind. He may not be one of the leading progressives, but he will not be one of the constructive exponents of Cannonism. The square deal demands a new deal, and that new deal will be given to the people by the next congress in the election of a speaker.

Their Salaries.

Washington Star: President W. C. Brown of the New York Central railroad, said at a luncheon, apropos of his "back to the farm" pronouncement:

"Some city men take very hard my suggestion about a return to agriculture. They seem to think that the farm pays as poorly as apprenticeships used to do—and you know what the old-time apprentices said about that.

"'We get,' said the apprentices, 'board and clothing the first year, clothing and board the second year, and both of them the third year.'"

The Pyramid.

Ohio State Journal: Vast as modern skyscrapers are, not one has yet equaled the weight and massiveness of the pile of great stones which the swarming human ants of the Nile valley laboriously dragged together thousands of years ago, until they had built the Pyramid of Cheops. It would make a solid block of 600 feet square and 330 feet high.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Nelson on the Reservation.

Red Wing Free Press: Senator Knute Nelson's display of "insurgentism" has fizzled out like a wet firecracker on the Fourth of July. Much ado was made about Nelson's stand against the Payne-Aldrich tariff schedules but his latest acts proclaim him to be still allied with the "regulars." His last break was his refusal to vote for La Follette's amendment requiring a physical valuation of railroads as the best means of learning what reasonable freight rates should be. This law has but recently come into existence in Minnesota and has already been of much assistance in providing evidence in legal trials anent the lowering of freight rates. La Follette's amend would have given the interstate commerce commission authority to call for a physical valuation of the railroads of the country in general. It is but natural that a law of this kind which is of benefit to a state, would also be of benefit to the country at large. And yet Senator Nelson, knowing that his own state had successfully tested the law, and after having repeatedly pointed with pride to Minnesota's railroad laws, deliberately voted against La Follette's bill. There can be no doubt about Nelson being back on the reservation.

Lindbergh and the Politicians.

Long Prairie Argus: The Ortonville Herald Star says the people ought to retire Lindbergh, Davis and Hammond from congress no matter who might be elected in their place. There are several politicians up this way who would like to retire Lindbergh, but they do not say so openly.

Bjorge and Steenerson.

Fergus Falls Free Press: The Steenerson managers have been working overtime trying to create the impression that their man has a lead pipe cinch on the Republican nomination for congress and that H. O. Bjorge would withdraw. Bjorge has never entertained such a thought, and is now waging a fight that is raising havoc with Halvor's chances. The Crookston man will rapidly lose ground from this time on. He managed to keep himself in the limelight this spring by his grand stand plays in connection with the ship subsidy legislation, but congress has now adjourned and the people are forgetting both him and the limelight performances. It is poor policy in a campaign to burn up one's best powder so early and this Bjorge knew. Until now he has made but little noise, having attended to his farm and his strawberries. From this time on he will set a swift pace and the man from Crookston will be an "also ran" after the primaries, Sept. 20.

Will Have No Truck With Him.

Owatonna Journal - Chronicle: Ed Smith of Minneapolis, the boss of the senate combine which ruled the state senate in the interest of the brewery-railroad-steel trust amalgamation, has been forced upon the Republicans of the state as chairman of the state central committee, against the protests of practically every candidate on the state ticket excepting two—Eberhart and Schmahl. This may be a good beginning for a political campaign and may have been a payment upon the exacted price for a certain class of support given certain nominees, but we opine that the state central committee will find that a large percentage of the Republican newspapers of the state will have no truck with Ed Smith. The newspaper boys and the people are getting onto these things better than they used to.

Running for Trains.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Two deaths of prominent men in one day under the wheels of moving trains ought to carry a warning to every man or boy who, arriving late at a station, runs to catch a car. If one is in a hurry to reach his destination the temptation is great to take chances if he is behind time. It is dangerous—always dangerous. The slightest accident, the slipping of a foot, and all is over. There are a great many suburban stations in the neighborhood of Philadelphia, and there are numerous instances every day where persons run to board a train that is just moving out. Many a time the foot is steady, the eye is sure and the hand grasp is secure, but there comes a day when something goes wrong and the newspapers record the death of another victim. The railways take every possible precaution. At the terminals the big iron gates close upon a late passenger and there is no opportunity for him to race down the platform. But at suburban stations such safeguards are not always practical. Bridges are frequently built over the rails to prevent any one from crossing them at grade. The roads do their best to prevent accident in every way possible. But if a passenger once gains a station platform there is usually no way to hinder him from running after a departing train and boarding it if he can.

Small Centers of Wealth.

St. Joseph News-Press: A correspondent of the New York Evening Post, writing from Lincoln, Neb., tells how the problem of the small town in the Middle West is being worked out under the new conditions that have a direct bearing on the financial situation. For years the small towns were practically poverty-stricken. They had mortgaged homes and stores and the taxes were high. The last five years have seen the homes pass into the hands of owners who live on their own property that they possess free of debt, and have cleared up much of the indebtedness owned by individuals. The municipal debts have been refunded or reduced, and the valuations have grown until it is less difficult to raise money.

Along with this has come a desire to make improvements, and paving and sewer systems have been installed in towns that considered it an impossibility until recently. A score of towns are now putting in paving in this section, and contractors from the East are finding it a fruitful field for rather expensive improvements at good profits.

The commission form of government is making rapid headway, and twenty towns in Kansas and Nebraska are operating under that system. The small towns seem to get as full benefit as the larger ones, and the saving in energy through the elimination of city politics, and the passing of the traditional town row, that kept many small cities in a state of municipal dyspepsia, has been not the least of the benefits.

A half-dozen extensive trolley or motor lines are in prospect leading through central Kansas and Nebraska, and these will bring the town and country closer together, while the extension of the farmers' telephone lines has gone so far as to give practically common service to every part of the prairie section. All this helps the towns, and they are in a thrifty condition, with a fair outlook for healthy growth.

Blind Russia.

Boston Globe: When we read of the attempts made by the Russian government to exterminate the Jews we are almost on the point of asking ourselves if this is the twentieth or the fifteen century.

Poor Russia! She is planting a mine that will burst some day and humiliate her as she was humiliated by Japan.

Dr. William Edwin Ground of New York City, will come to Duluth to locate in the practice of medicine about Oct. 1.

A party composed of E. R. Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. Gearhart, Miss A. M. Sloan, Miss Hattie Ritter of Indianapolis, and others, have gone out on Minnesota Point for a week's camping and sport.

The general land office has completed its accounts for the fiscal year, to show the amounts earned by the several land officers, on which the salaries of registers and receivers are based. As a result the salaries at Duluth have been fixed at $2,957.54 each.

The deal transferring for $300,000 cash the St. Louis hotel property to the Boston Realty company, has been closed. The Realty company has among its members Governor Ames of Massachusetts and Benjamin Crowninshield, the Boston millionaire. Col. Cullyford is given a three years' lease of the hotel, beginning in September. The company intends to rebuild the old part of the hotel to correspond to the new portion at an expense of from $100,000 to $150,000.

A youth, 13 years of age, named Paul Winberg, was drowned in the lake near Eighteenth avenue east. It is supposed he was trying to get a drink from some rocks extending into the lake at that point and slipped in. His body was carried to his home at Ninth avenue east and Fifth street.

The American District Telegraph company is now ready to do business.

"RAINMAKING" RECALLED.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The recent death of Col. Robert St. George Dyrenforth in Washington and the publication of his remarkable will recall the fact that nearly twenty years ago Col. Dyrenforth was extensively known as "the rainmaker."

Col. Dyrenforth had a theory that severe concussion would cause rainfall. He tried some experiments in Washington and finally congress was induced to make an appropriation for more thorough experimentation. Col. Dyrenforth went out on the arid plains of Texas with a corps of experts and a large amount of ammunition. For several months in 1891 and 1892 the air on the Texas desert was filled with noise and smoke from the bombs which were sent up by the rainmakers.

There was widespread interest in Col. Dyrenforth's bomb throwing and the newspapers devoted a large amount of space to the performance. The question as to whether rain could be produced by such means was widely discussed. Col. Dyrenforth claimed that his theory was vindicated by the results. The rain came, but it was rather limited in quantity. Some persons thought it would have come anyway, even though the experts had failed to discharge a solitary bomb. In the end it was decided that Col. Dyrenforth's method was too expensive. The rain produced was not worth the powder it took to produce it, according to the congressional view. No more appropriations were forthcoming and the rain factory in Texas suspended operations permanently after all its ammunition had been shot away.

Col. Dyrenforth returned to Washington and published a report of his experiments. He then resumed his occupation as a patent lawyer and not much has been heard since about rain making. His theory may have been correct—at any rate he demonstrated it to his own satisfaction—but the federal government did not regard it as practical and the burden of proof was against him. Nevertheless, Col. Dyrenforth extracted a good deal of pleasure out of his rather brief career as a rainmaker and, considering the vicissitudes of his later life, no one should begrudge him that pleasure, despite the fact that it cost the government a goodly sum of money.

Food Profits and the Farmer.

New York World: In a recent editorial in these columns on the cost of living the statement was made that "the Fifth avenue and Broadway hotels make more profit off the sale of food than all the farmers of all the counties between New York and Albany." A comparison of market and restaurant prices printed by Colliers Weekly illustrates in detail the enormous appreciation in value which takes place in the transit of food from the farm to the hotel table.

The capon for which the guest is charged $6 is worth $1.80 to the farmer and $2.10 to the market man. For the six-pound planked steak served for $4 the retail dealer receives $1.38, the wholesaler 99 cents, the cattle man 48 cents. A portion of two lamb chops, worth 7 cents at wholesale and 3 cents on the hoof, costs the guest 50 cents. For a short pint of raspberries he pays the shipper's price of five pints. His $1.50 portion of asparagus could have been obtained in the market for 35 cents and from the farmer for 19 cents. A cucumber worth 2½ cents increases to 30 cents by the time it reaches the restaurant patron. Grapefruit appreciates more than 500 per cent in transit, 800 if comparisons are made with prices at the docks. If farmers were paid for their potatoes at the rate charged on certain hotel bills of fare they would receive $96 a bushel. The cost at a high-class restaurant of a single egg, transformed, it is true, by all the chef's art, equals the cost of a dozen in the market.

It is estimated that an entire beef carcass yields an average return to a Fifth avenue restaurant of $1.50 a pound. The utter disproportion between the producer's and the hotel keeper's profit from food is only a minor phase of the cost-of-living problem. But it affords a striking illustration of how under the present system of dealing in commodities the production of food has been made commercially the least important of all the processes it undergoes from the farm to the consumer.

Lodge's Position.

New York Evening Post: It was cruel enough to keep Senator Lodge from his European vacation, lest somebody keep him from returning to the senate, but it was still more cruel to compel him to make speeches on the tariff. A candidate, as distinct from a philosopher, he has to sell things to all men, promising "scientific" tariff revision to those constituents who dislike the Aldrich-Payne duties because they are too high, and intimating still higher duties for the benefit of those who wish them so. Thus in his address yesterday to the New England Shoe & Leather association he declared that the duty on boots and shoes is "too low." The reason he gave is that, under the new 10 per cent duty the imports of foreign boots and shoes are increasing. For the nine months ending March 31 they amounted to $116,635, as compared with only $79,247 for the same period in the previous fiscal year. Senator Lodge affirms that this is "suggestive" and even "ominous." We think so, too. It is suggestive of high tariff methods that no inquiry at all was made into the nature of these imports to discover whether they were not articles of fancy or luxury of which the importation has been increasing in so many departments. It may also be fairly said to be ominous when the senator said nothing about our exports of boots and shoes. For the twelve months ending June 30, 1909, their value was $10,205,514. Yet no sooner does $100,000 worth come in than the scholarly senator from Massachusetts cries out that we are in danger of "getting on our uppers" in the pauper shoes of Europe.

Must Be Very Careful.

Kansas City Journal: Judge Clark A. Smith told a good story to several of the class, who were visiting with him. The story is an old one, as the judge stated, but the youngsters enjoyed it thoroughly.

In the old days, when oral examinations were still the thing, an examining board was pummeling an applicant with questions from Blackstone, Kent and other famous legal lights.

"I didn't study anything about those fellows," complained the applicant.

"What did you study?" asked one of the judges.

"I studied the statutes of the state," he replied. "I studied them hard. Ask me a question about them and I'll show you. That is where I got my legal knowledge."

"My young friend," said one austere judge on the examining board, "you had better be very careful, for some day the legislature might meet and repeal everything you know."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Pittsburg Post: "It could be woven into the pattern."

"What are you talking about?"

"Strange that nobody has ever utilized the dollar mark as a figure for expensive rugs."

Harvard Lampoon: The Salome Movement in Germany.—"The former head of the American nation, on a splendid charge, was presented to the emperor. Then the maneuvers began." (Roosevelt before the German troops.)

Cleveland Leader: The Lady—Poor tramp! Have you anything in your life to be proud of?

The Hobo—Yes-sum. I never beat nobody out of no laundry bill.

Tit-Bits: Willie—Say, pa, what is a hyprocrite?

Pa—A hypocrite, my son, is a man who publicly thanks Providence for his success, then gets mad every time anybody insinuates that he isn't mainly responsible for it himself.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Ever had 'em strew flowers in your path as you returned home, senator?"

"Naw, I'm satisfied not to have 'em strew banana peelings."

Cleveland Leader: Editor — This sounds pretty, but I don't get the sense of it.

Reporter—Lord, sir! That isn't a news story—that's the editorial you told me to write.

Buffalo Express: "Why is the delivery boy always in such a rush?" asked the idler in the grocery.

"So that if in his haste he delivers anything wrong, he will have time to right the matter," the grocer explained.

Sourire: The Poetic Soul—When I am near you, adored one, my heart is in flames."

"Then, for goodness sake, keep off. I've got a celluloid comb in my hair.

Buffalo Express: "Try one of the light biscuits," the bride suggested. "I thought they might be a welcome change from bread."

"Fine," exclaimed the young husband. "Just like those we got at the bakery when I was living at home."

"That's where I got them," she said.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The conductor put his head through the doorway. "Can't you move up to the front a little?" he pathetically inquired.

"Impossible," a clear voice called back. "There's a fat man wedged in the aisle." Whereupon a hasty move up the aisle ensued and the situation was promptly relieved.

Conserving the Children.

Kansas City Star: According to a writer in Hampton's Magazine, 12,000,000 children are in need of medical and surgical attention. Of these a large majority may overcome the defects, but thousands are doomed to invalidism. The New York board of health examined 325,344 school children last year; of these two-thirds were "in need of treatment for defective vision, hearing, breathing; for serious nervous diseases and defective teeth." In Boston, examination showed 5,000 school children afflicted with tuberculosis.

The medical care of children in the public schools is a matter that has hardly received attention, although it seems as important as the school instruction itself. Sick, defective children may acquire an education without school facilities, but they are not likely to acquire health when they are suffering from an ailment that may accept as normal.

It is amazing that so little attention has been given to health conditions of public school children. As the state assumes responsibility for the mental training of its boys and girls, it would seem common sense that it should guard and train them physically while they are under the state. In any event there is no justification for exposing a healthy boy or girl to infection by placing a tuberculosis subject to it day after day. And why not save the little one with incipient tuberculosis? In some cities these children are sent to outdoor schools, where they are protected by heavy, warm sitting bags, and are served with good, hot nourishing food at proper intervals. Every boy or girl saved by such treatment means a saving to the community. Every one neglected means a loss, a charge.

A good, careful farmer will give his young lambs better care—but why talk about the care given livestock on a well regulated farm? Livestock has a market value. Children? They are almost always a nuisance, unless they happen to be your own.

ALLOWED TO FIGHT IT OUT

Spectators Prevented From Interfering in Lueck-Brandt Quarrel.

Henry Krause Admits Pulling Off Would-be Peacemaker.

Henry Krause, a cousin of Emil Lueck, the man who was fatally stabbed by Frederick Otto Brandt early Monday morning on Lake avenue in front of the Maccabee hall, stated on the witness stand in police court this morning that he pulled off a man who attempted to separate the two.

He declared that he didn't know who it was, but excused his action by the assertion that he thought "he was going to pile onto Emil." He made absolutely no effort to stop the fight himself and stumbled and hesitated when asked why he had not done so, finally answering, "I don't know." Krause was noticeably vague and evasive in many of his answers.

He forgot to tell of the above instances at the inquest Tuesday afternoon. Herman Metter testified at that time that somebody had pulled him off when he tried to separte them, with the remark, "That is between them." He stated that he though he recognized the voice as that of Henry Krause.

He said that there has been an unfriendly feeling between Brandt and the entire Krause family. Asking if he included Lueck, his cousin, in that classification, he answered in the negative. He was closely questioned by Assistant County Attorney W. E. Greene and Attorney Oscar J. Larson, who is appearing for Brandt. The latter asked him if it were not true that he and his brother and Lueck had plotted to "lay for" Brandt as he came out of the hall. He denied it.

The events of the evening were touched upon, including the turning on and off of the lights, but he didn't seem to be well posted upon them. He was not one of those at the table playing cards.

He was practically the only witness called this morning. His cousin, Richard Krause, who tends bar for Henry Krause, was called a few minutes this morning, but had only taken the stand when court was adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon. The state has subpoenaed many witness and will go into the case as thoroughly as possible. At the rate of progress of the morning it will take one or two more days to complete the preliminary hearing of Brandt. It is possible that he may be allowed his freedom by Judge Windom, who is hearing the testimony. The defense is bringing out every point possible to show that Brandt was assaulted by Lueck and that he stabbed him in self defense.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. FRIDAY.

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity including the Mesaba and Vermilion Iron ranges: Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; slightly cooler tonight; moderate northerly winds.

CLOUDY

While the highest temperature in Duluth yesterday was 78 deg.; North Platte had 106 deg.; Dodge, Iowa; Kansas City, Mo., and Phoenix, Ariz., had 102 deg., and at Oklahoma City, the mercury touched 100 deg. Duluth's reputation as the coolest place in the United States was sustained. The predicted storm did not come last night, and, though the sky is partly cloudy today, there are no threats in the weather conditions.

Showers fell a year ago today.

The sun rose at 4:42 and it will set at 7:46, giving fifteen hours and four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Hot weather continued Wednesday in Central and Southwestern states. Temperatures of 100 deg. or higher occurred in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. Scattered showers fell over Utah, Colorado, the Dakotas, Western Minnesota, and in districts to the eastward of the Mississippi river during Wednesday or last night in connection with sligat barometric depressions central over the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Kansas and Idaho. Somewhat cooler weather attends an increase in pressure over the Dakotas. The barometer continues high over Gulf states, a condition favoring further warm weather in Middle states."

less operators never ceased their calls. Father Point, Que., was a spot of special activity. There an officer of the Dominion police, Chief Constable Guavreau, awaited word from the Laurentic and Inspector Dew. The Dominion officer looked for messages telling what, if anything, Dew learned from the Montrose by wireless when the two steamers were, according to calculations, in close proximity to each other yesterday noon.

Guavreau's instructions from Commissioner Sherwood at Ottawa, are to board the Montrose when she passes at Father Point for a pilot, and arrest Dr. Crippen and his typist if they are found. The attorney general's department at Quebec, also is represented. It sent out Chief McCarthy and another officer with authority to arrest.

The Laurentic, west bound, passed Belle Isle at 5 o'clock this morning. She has aboard Inspector Dew, a Scotland Yard representative in the Crippen case.

ward as a possible compromise candidate. Mr. Blankenburg, it is said, does not desire the nomination.

Exposed Capitol Frauds.

Berry, who was elected state treasurer in 1905 on a fusion ticket and exposed the capitol frauds after getting into office, has a large following among the delegates from the interior of the state. Gibboney has several times headed reform movements in Philadelphia as a candidate and met defeat each time.

The United Labor party, an outgrowth of the trolley strike here last spring, has demanded that it be given representation in the convention and on the state ticket, but the executive committee announced under the call for the convention the Union Labor party could not be given the representation it asked. The Labor party candidate is Hugh Frayne of Scranton, for secretary of internal affairs. Mr. Frayne is an organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

speaker is said to have told the culprits that he would expose the plot from the chair the moment a Democratic ballot was cast for Hopkins. Then Sullivan entered the arena. He arrived at Springfield at midnight one night, and gathering the seventeen about him, threatened to break every political bone in their bodies if they voted for Hopkins. That ended it.

Exonerated Hopkins.

The Tribune expresses the belief that the plot was formed without the knowledge of Senator Hopkins. The story is said to have leaked out to anti-Hopkins Republicans and to the Democratic leaders through the babblings of one of the seventeen who was rejoicing at the prospect of "easy money."

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

Anyone who has told one little evasive, unimportant, inconsiderate fib only to have it grow to uncouth and unmanageable proportions will have profound sympathy this week with Frank Fuller, the yarn spinner in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The role is played by Gus A. Forbes and has proved one of the most finished and interesting performances he has yet given Duluth audiences. The comedy is clever and has attracted large audiences during the week at the Lyceum theater. There was not a vacant seat in the house at yesterday's matinee and the advance sale for the concluding performances is large, according to Treasurer Abelson of the Lyceum.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon and night with two performances on Sunday.

The play is one continual laugh from the first explanation of the unfortunate husband, who has been detained all night in a car at the top of the Ferris wheel. His wife refuses to believe that tale and he invents a more plausible one, only to become inextricably wound up in the fictions that result. The whole of Duluth is laughing at "Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

STRIKE-BREAKERS CAUSE TROUBLE

State Troops Are Ordered to Go to Durand, Mich.

Durand, Mich., July 28.—State troops have been called here to preserve order in Durand. There have been no serious disturbances here as yet and only a few of the village people know that the soldiers are coming.

Many strike-breakers on the Grand Trunk are quitting their positions when they reach this village and it is from these men that trouble is expected. They are demanding their pay and transportation home. The company officials here have refused the demands of some of the men and they threaten violence.

MANY TRACK EVENTS.

Dan Patch and Other Crack Ones at Fargo Fair.

Fargo, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is Dan Patch day at North Dakota state fair. Dan will be on exhibition; Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. will try to break the world's pole team record for a mile on a half-mile track, and Hedgewood Boy will be sent against the state track record for half a mile. The track is extremely dry and the footing is not solid enough for Minor Heir's fancy, and he refuses to make any extended effort on the track. The day is ideal—clear, not too hot, and a gentle breeze is blowing. An immense crowd is attending the exhibit, and the awards will be completed tonight.

PEACE IN THE OHIO G. O. P.

Delegates Finish Their Work and Go Home Satisfied.

Columbus, Ohio, July 28.—With a candidate for governor who was nominated by a combination of regulars and progressives and a platform pronounced good by the former element and 99 per cent good by the latter section of the party, the Ohio Republican convention broke up and went home last night in a state of much contentment. The ticket is made up as follows:

For governor—Warren G. Harding of Marion.

For lieutenant governor—Francis W. Treadway of Cleveland.

For secretary of state—Granville W. Mooney of Austinburg.

For attorney general—U. Grand Denman of Toledo.

For treasurer of state—Rudy A. Archer, Belmont county.

For justices of the supreme court—William B. Crew of McConnellsville and Augustus N. Summers of Springfield.

For clerk of the supreme court—John S. McNutt of Salem.

For dairy and food commissioner—Renick W. Dunlap of Kingston.

For member of the board of public works—George Watkins of Portsmouth.

For commissioner of common schools—John W. Zeller of Findlay.

Warren G. Harding, the nominee for governor, was at various times in the preliminary squabbles of the convention described as "everybody's second choice." He is the editor of a newspaper at Marion, Ohio, has been lieutenant governor of the state and has been a tentative candidate for governor and United States senator. He is known in the state as an effective stump speaker and has served in that capacity for other candidates for many years.

Bowel Complaint in Children.

When six months old the little daughter of E. N. Dewey, a well-known merchant of Agnewville, Va., had an attack of cholera infantum. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was given and effected a complete cure. This remedy has proven very successful in cases of bowel complaint in children and when given according to the plain printed directions can be relied upon with perfect confidence. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all druggists.

D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.—This morning the annual convention of the Traill County Sunday School association was opened with delegates in attendance from practically every church in the county. The round-table discussions, which form a very important part of the convention, are being conducted by Rev. W. A. Snow, the recently elected general missionary of the state. The election of officers and selection of the next place of meeting takes place tomorrow.

RAILROADS

DULUTH ON MAIN LINE

City Will Be an Important Point in the Soo System.

The First Trains Will Not Run Before Sept. 1.

Delays in the delivery of material and the construction work on the depot here and the tracks into Duluth make it impossible for the Soo line to run passenger trains into Duluth before Sept. 1 and there is more than a possibility that the first train between Chicago and Duluth will not run before Sept. 15, according to statements made by people who have studied the situation recently.

The work is being rushed as rapidly as possible and the vice president of the road, while on a visit here last week, stated that trains would probably run about Aug. 15, but since that time developments are said to make the opening of the road impossible before Sept. 1.

The line between Duluth and Chicago will be known as the Chicago short line and will actually be shorter than any other line between Duluth and Chicago, it is said.

While the delays are vexatious, Duluthians are not complaining and are ready to wait and encourage the Soo line, which will place Duluth in its rightful position on the railroad map. Duluth will be on the main line between Chicago and Winnipeg and on the main line of a railroad which will run from Chicago to the Pacific coast in competition with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, thus giving Duluth an opportunity to compete with the Twin Cities for the business of the Northwestern and the great wheat country of Western Canada.

From Moose Lake, where construction to Duluth was started, the Soo line will run through Bemidji to Thief River Falls, in addition to the Cuyuna range branch, which will leave the main line at Lawton. From Thief River Falls the line will run to Canada, crossing the border at Portal, N. D., and joining the Canadian Pacific transcontinental line at Moose Jaw, Sask.

CHANGING PLANS HOLDS UP SCHEMES

Prospects of Railroad Being Dropped at Powers Lake, N. D., Halts Boom.

Stanley, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the announcement by the Great Northern Railroad company that it will not build the Stanley extension any further than Powers' Lake this year, the plans for several important business deals in towns northwest of Powers' Lake have been abandoned.

In Wild Rose, formerly known as Montrose, charters had been secured for five state banks, but none of them will be placed in operation because of the company's decision not to build there this year. The work of grading is entirely completed and it is expected that the line will be ironed very shortly.

Fessenden Wants Cutoff.

Fessenden, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Renewed hope of securing the new Great Northern cutoff line into Fessenden has sprung in the breasts of the business men of this city, and they have taken steps to see what can be done with reference to the matter. Surveyors whom it is claimed were sent out by the Great Northern have been working in this vicinity recently and in order to determine what action is intended, the Fessenden Commercial club has appointed a committee of seven to get into communication with the railroad officials. Fessenden is very desirous of securing the line.

A Few Short Weeks.

Mr. J. S. Bartell, Edwardsville, Ill., writes: "A few months ago my kidneys become congested. I had severe backache and pain across the kidneys and hips. Foley Kidney Pills promptly cured my backache and corrected the action of my kidneys. This was brought about after my using them for only a few short weeks and I can cheerfully recommend them." BAN IS PUT ON BRITISH CATTLE Disease in Yorkshire Stock Leads to Action at Washington.

Washington, July 28.—Owing to the discovery of the foot and mouth disease among cattle in Yorkshire, Eng., the importation of cattle from that country into the United States has been prohibited until the extent of the disease can be determined.

CHINA IS IMPROVING ITS MAIL SERVICE.

Washington, July 28.—China is progressing in its postal service. A notice to postmasters issued by the postoffice department, calls for routing all mail for postoffices in the provinces of Yunnan, Kweichan and Szechwan by way of British India, instead of through Hongkong and other Chinese cities, as hertofore. This means that mail for and from these Western China provinces will reach its destination more expeditiously.

Depere Cream Prices Boosted.

Depere, Wis., July 28.—Milk dealers here have raised the price of cream from 24 cents to 32 cents per quart on account of the scarcity of feed. As another result of the drouth the farmers are reducing the number of their cows. Animals bought for $60 earlier in the season can now be bought for $30.

UNCLE SAM AFTER WIRELESS PHONES

Examinations for Experts in Their Operation Are to Be Held.

Washington, July 28. — Experts in wireless telephony are being sought by the United States civil service commission in its efforts to keep pace with the world's achievements, and will form a new register of eligibles for employment in the government service.

An examination will be held throughout the country on Aug. 24 for those who are versed in the science of the wireless telephone. All vacancies in the government service requiring such qualifications will be filled from the list of competents thus secured. A position of "assistant in wireless telephony for the signal service at large," paying $1,080 a year, is now open and an appointment will be made from those who pass the August examination, which will consist largely of theoretical and practical questions in aerial engineering.

AN ANTI-SUFFRAGETTE.

George Cavan Browne, the expert on international law, was discussing in Providence the Ruspoli case.

"An American heiress," he said, "married an Italian, one Ruspoli. He took her to Italy, treated her badly, then died and left all her money to his family. She, in consequence, is penniless. For by Italian law, the wife's money, all of it, belongs to the husband.

"But, aside from its legal aspect, consider the mean, mercenary spirit of this thing! Really, these foreign noblemen resemble Peleg Henderson of Apponaug.

"Peleg had his choice of two sweethearts, Shawonet girls, one of whom owned a cow. That was the one he married. He explained to his friends at the wedding.

"'By crinus, there ain't the difference of a cow between any two women livin.'"

The Terrible Fight J. A. Clift Had for Life.

J. A. Clift of Hoffman, Okla., is just emerging from a terrific encounter with a recurring tumor of the pelvic cavity. After receiving what help he could get from a number of leading physicians, and having two operations by eminent surgeons, he despaired of life. The constant recurrence of the tumor and the almost unbearable pain rendered life almost insupportable. Here is his own statement:

Hoffman, Okla., Dec. 3, 1909.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have been operated on twice for same disease. After the second operation I was soon again bothered with complications resulting from the cutting. I suffered greatly and could get no relief and had decided to go to another city for treatment when I learned of Electro-Radio experts in Duluth. I tried their treatment. That was a month ago. Relief was given by the first treatment and was the first relief in five months. I have grown better daily and am able to attend to my business, thanks to the skill of the Electro-Radio doctors.

J. A. CLIFT.

And thus it goes daily. Many who have had their cases diagnosed by eminent physicians and been advised to submit to operation as the only means have availed themselves of this wonderful treatment and thus escaped the horrors of the knife. Can you blame them?

Fritz Kreisler's four solos prove him a master of the violin

These four numbers exhibit well the marvelous versatility of this artist who has truly been proclaimed one of the few really great masters of the violin.

At the age of ten Kreisler won first prize at the Vienna Conservatory, and in his twelfth year astonished the professors at the Conservatoire in Paris by winning the Prix de Rome, an unprecedented occurrence. As a boy prodigy he toured America, then returned to Germany to serve his time in the army. During those four years he abandoned violin practice entirely, but on his reappearance in 1899 his bow was as true and his technique as flawless as ever. Since then he has made six American tours, his present tour being literally a series of triumphs.

Games Today.

Eau Claire at Duluth (two games).
Wausau at Superior.
Winona at Red Wing.
Rochester at La Crosse.

A few timely hits coupled with a brace of saffron stunts by the visitors enabled the Sox to put one over on the leaders yesterday. The Sox got into the lead in the third and were never headed although Eau Clair tied the score in the fifth and made a strong effort to pull the game out of the fire in the ninth. The score was 4 to 2.

Cy Worman, the cotton top who recently left the Schoonovers, was on the hill for Darby's crew. Only two of his former teammates were able to soak the globule on the nose consistently. Kading grabbing three biffs and Moore two. In every inning but the fifth Mr Worman porceeded like a noiseless and perfectly running engine. In the fifth considerable steam escaped but Mr. Worman hung the wrench on the safety valve and there was no explosion. It may be superfluous to remark that Mr. Worman derived considerable satisfaction from beating his former companions.

The cognomen Mr. Morrow performed for the visitors. Although he was touched up occasionally for a bingle when it would do the most good he did not receive support calculated to warm the cockles of his heart. Frenzied plays were responsible for two of Duluth's runs. Mr. Morrow himself made the most glaring mistake.

After getting a man to third in both the first and second frames, the Sox registered twice at the pan in the third inning. Worman hit to Dehaven at second. The ball passed through Dehaven's legs and Worman was safe at first. He went to second when J. Anderson sacrificed. G. Anderson hit a star wiper to center but Callahan grabbed it after a sprint. Kohl put one over second and Worman went to third. Kohl continued to second when the ball was thrown in from center. Darby, the pinch hitter, slammed the pelt to left for a base and Worman and Kohl crossed the rubber. Altermott fouled out.

The visitors got their only scores in the fifth on two hits and an error. Kading, the Pittsburg beauty, singled to left. Moore put another daisy in the same garden and Kading took second. When Holstrom fumbled Dehaven's bunt the bases were filled. Benrud was retired on his infield hit, Darby fielding the ball to Holstrom. Kading romped home on the play. If the ball had been fielded cleanly the runner could have been erased at the plate. Morrow skied out to G. Anderson in deep center. On the throw-in Moore crossed the rubber. Kick got a pass to first. He stole second but Breyette hit an easy one to Holstrom, dispersing the storm clouds.

In the fifth Mr. Morrow kindly presented the Sox with two runs. He gave Worman transportation to first and when J. Anderson hunted Morrow heaved the globule to the right field fence. Jawn Kading couldn't reach it so the ball must have been travelling at least 30 feet from the ground. Worman circled the bases and Anderson reached third. G. Anderson whiffed and Kohl hit a hot grounder to Moore who threw home. J. Anderson had taken a long lead from third and he slid home safely with the fourth tally. Altermott and O'Brien were infield outs.

Neither side got within hailing distance of a score after the fifth although Kading hit a two-sacker to center in the ninth and Dehaven was presented with a ticket to first. Bailey and Moore were easy outs and Worman ended the game by striking out Benrud.

Marion pulled down Bailey's long fly to right in the sixth and robbed the heavy hitting visitor of what might have been a three-bagger. Bailey got a slight measure of revenge when he pulled down Kohl's long hit to center in the seventh.

A double header is being played this afternoon. The first game was billed to start at 2:30 o'clock.

SUPERIOR DROPS ONE TO WAUSAU

Bradshaw and Lakoff Engage in Pitchers' Battle at Hislop Park.

Wausau defeated Superior at Hislop park yesterday afternoon, 2 to 1.

Bradshaw and Lakoff were the opposing pitchers and the contest had not developed very far before it was evident that both men were in good form, both teams were playing good ball and a pitchers battle was on.

The Wausau players had a shade on Superior when it came to fielding and the Lumberjack hurler was able to get away with his game.

The winning run was made in a peculiar way. Carter was given a slip and was forced at second when Dolan hit to the pitcher. He stole second. Brady went out on a fly. Johnson hit an easy one to Bradshaw and he beat it out while Dolan was in some unaccountable way permitted to come home.

Wausau scored first in the fourth. Dolan, who was on bases, came home on a wild heave. Superior tied the score in the sixth when Kourick came home on McCarthy's hit. The score:

WINONA DEFEATS BUNCH OF CRIPPLES.

Red Wing, Minn., July 28.—Playing with a badly crippled aggregation of ball players, the Indians lost to Winona, 6 to 3, in the game played on the local grounds yesterday afternoon.

Helding smashed a finger early in the game and a local semi-pro catcher took his place behind the bat. Airecldor, a local amateur player covered second base. He celebrated his entrance into organized baseball by smashing a trio of triples.

Wolford was wild and was hit in spots. Wagner was steady and kept the hits well scattered. Malloy featured the game with his sensational fielding. The score: R. H. E.

PITCHER CHASE GETS BUMPED AT LA CROSSE.

Hooker allowed but six hits and he kept them scattered through as many innings.

The features of the game were the fielding of Snyder and the batting of Klein, who drew a triple, double, single and a sacrifice out of five times up. The score: R. H. E.

LEGG MEETS BRILLIANT HOMEWOOD CLUB PLAYER

Minnesota Champion Matched Against Wood in Golf Tournament.

National Champion Beaten, But Evans Is Still in Running.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—The eight survivors of the Western Golf championship tournament started the third round of match play today. The matches were over thirty-six holes and brought out large galleries as interesting contests were expected.

Following are the day's matches:

Harry G. Legg, Minikahda, vs. Warren K. Wood, Homewood.

C. T. Jaffray, Minikahda, vs. Mason E. Phelps, Midlothian.

Albert Seckel, Hinsdale, vs. Robert E. Hunter, Midlothian.

W. E. Clow, Jr., Onwentsia, vs. Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater.

The Legg-Wood match attracted the most attention as both men have made brilliant records in the tourney. Legg won the medal for the low qualifying score on the fifth day and defeated H. P. Bell, St. Paul, and W. J. Howland, Jr., Glenview, both by the score of 7 up and 5 to play. Wood's victory over Robert A. Gardner of Hinsdale, the national champion, after a thoroughly battle yesterday brought him into the limelight as one of the men to be reckoned with in deciding the winner.

Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, is still successfully defending his title as Western champion by virtue of his decisive defeat of Kenneth P. Edwards of Midlothian, by 6 up and 5 to play, yesterday.

Jaffray Springs Surprise.

The surprise of yesterday was the defeat of Paul Hunter of Midlotaian, by C. T. Jaffray, a veteran of the Minikahda club, by 1 up. Jaffray was 3 up at the end of the morning round but Hunter's friends were confident that he would be able to pull victory out of seeming defeat in the last half of the match. The veteran Jaffray putted with deadly accuracy, but Hunter's long game never left him as the match neared its conclusion. Jaffray was dormie one at the seventeenth and despite the fact that Hunter laid him a perfect stymie on the eighteenth green, Jaffray halved the hole in 4 and won by 1 up.

Albert Seckel of Hinsdale, the Eastern intercollegiate champion, defeated W. H. Diddell of Indianapolis, 4 up and 2 to play, while R. E. Hunter of Midlothian had trouble in disposing of L. W. Kinnear of Detroit by 4 up and 3 to play. W. E. Clow, Jr., Onwentsia, won from H. B. Lee of Detroit, 3 up and 2 to play. Harry Legg of Minikahda, winner of the low qualifying score, ran away from W. J. Howland, Jr., of Glenview by 7 up and 5 to play.

H. B. Heyburn of Louisville forced Mason E. Phelps of Midlothian to go thirty-seven holes to beat him.

Six of the eight survivors are from Chicago clubs, while Jaffray and Legg represent Minneapolis.

National Champion Out.

The Wood-Gardner match was hard fought throughout. Wood was 1 up at the end of the morning round. Gardner evened the match by winning the first in the afternoon 4-5 when Wood's ball lay under an abutting edge of the road and was forced to play it out backwards, losing a stroke. Wood regained his advantage by winning his second one under par, 4-5. Wood made it 2 up by taking the third 130 yards in one under par, 2-3.

On the fourth, Gardner drove out of bounds, but Wood's ragged work allowed the hole to be halved in 6. Wood won the fifth and sixth, 3-4. On the seventh, 220 yards—par 4, he rimmed the cup on his drive and holed out in 2. Gardner made himself 1 down at the turn by winning the eighth and ninth, 4-5.

Wood made it 2 up by winning the tenth in 2, one under par, and was 3 up when he won the eleventh by holing a twenty-foot putt. Wood missed a short putt on the twelfth and the hole was halved in 6. On the thirteenth, 475 yards—par 5, Gardner missed a short putt on the fourteenth and Wood won, 4-5. On the sixteenth and seventeenth, Wood's ball went in and out of the hole. Gardner won the seventeenth, reducing Wood's lead to 1 up, but the eighteenth was halved in four and the national champion was out of the tournament.

Evans Beats Edwards.

Evans had an easy time with Edwards in the afternoon after the Midlothian man finished the first eighteen only 1 down. Edwards putted poorly on the first two and Evans won both. They halved the third in par 3, and poor putting lost the fourth for Evans, 6-5. Both men played 1 under par 4 on the fifth. Evans played brilliantly for the remainder of the outward journey and was 5 up at the turn. He won the tenth, 2-3, and the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth were halved, giving the Western champion the match, 6 up and 5 to play. Cards:

Goes Thirty-seven Holes.

The Phelps-Heyburn match was decided at the thirty-seventh hole. Phelps was 4 up at the end of the morning round by virtue of a 70. He played poorly during the afternoon and was in continual trouble. Heyburn evened the match at the thirty-sixth by winning the last two holes. The thirty-seventh hole, par 4, went to Phelps. 3-4. He approached within ten feet of the hole and ran down the putt for a 3. Their cards:

ALL FAVORITES ARE WINNERS

Dudie Archdale Takes Down Classic at Kalamazoo Meet.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 28.—Dudie Archdale, the favorite, had comparatively little trouble in winning the $10,000 paper mills stakes for 2:11 class trotters, the classic of the Kalamazoo grand circuit race meet, in which fourteen horses contested yesterday afternoon.

A feature of another kind was the conclusion of the 2:17 pace left over from Tuesday. Owings, driver of the Philistine, who had been taken down after the first heat Tuesday afternoon, was allowed to resume his place. Then Snow drove Hallie Lou to a victory. The judges declared all bets off, and Owings promptly withdrew Jordan, his entry for the first race of the day. Every favorite yesterday was returned a winner.

In the first race, 2:21 trot, interest attached to the fact that Dora, who won without much difficulty, is a Hungadian bred horse, owned by Louis Winans of Brighton, Eng., whose Willy won the first race Monday, the 2:15 trot, thus proving the success of the British invasion. Dora was never in danger except in the third heat, when she broke badly.

WANT "HACK" TO FIGHT JOHNSON

GEORGE HACKENSCHMIDT.

The sporting men are groping around for some one to fight Johnson. They believe there is no fighter now in the ring who can meet him and they are looking for material in the ranks of the amateurs and among the wrestlers. The friends of George Hackenschmidt, the big wrestler, familiarly known as "Hack," believe he could whip Johnson after a course of training in ring tactics and they are urging him to get into the fight game. Any white man who could whip Johnson would have an easy life afterward.

TOURNAMENT IS NEARING FINALS

But Two Games to Be Played Before the Deciding Sets.

The Boat club tennis tournament in the singles is nearly down to the finals.

Yesterday afternoon Dickerman defeated Graff, 6-3, 6-2. The result of these sets puts Dickerman in the finals. His opponent in the finals has not yet been determined.

Ingalls defeated Sinclair yesterday, 6-1, 7-5. This puts Ingalls in the eights. He will meet Grady and the winner of the match will play Loren Kennedy for the right to contest in the finals with Dickerman.

As there are but two matches to be played before the finals, it is probable that they will have been finished and the tournament down to the last match by the end of the present week.

Play is now going on in the doubles and it looks as though there is as much interest in them as there was in the singles. The entries in the doubles were announced some days ago.

PREMIER COMPANY BARRED.

Automobile Association Blacklists It as to Contests.

New York, July 28.—The contest board of the American Automobile association has disqualified H. O. Smith and the Premier Motor Manufacturing company and declared them ineligible for all contests held under the sanction of the board until further notice.

The action of the board is a direct reply to the temporary injunction obtained by the company last week in the Brooklyn courts restraining the board from delivering the Glidden trophy to the Chalmers Motor company. The board holds that the Premier company, when it entered the Glidden tour, recognized the authority of the board, and that its appeal to the courts from the jurisdiction of the board is a distinct breach of the contest rules and prejudicial to sport.

A referee awarded the Glidden trophy to the Premier car. The Chalmers company protested to the board and the board sustained the protest, reversing the referee.

Belmont Horse Wins.

Goodwood, Eng., July 28.—The Halnaker plate of 200 sovereigns, for 2 and 3-year-olds, distance five furlongs, was run here today and won by August Belmont's Sandwich. Persism was second and Biter Bit third. Thirteen horses started.

AMERICAN DEFENDER EASILY WINS SECOND.

Manchester, Mass., July 28.—The American yacht Massachusetts won the second race yesterday in defense of the Seawanhahka cup, defeating the Canadian challenger, St. Lawrence, by 6 minutes 24 seconds, over a 12-mile windward and leeward course.

The unofficial elapsed times were: Massachusetts, 1:53:14; St. Lawrence, 2:01:38.

So decisive was the victory of the defender yesterday in the second race for the cup, that several of the Canadians already have made arrangements to go home after today's race. The conditions call for the best three in five. The Massachusetts has won two straights.

WOLGAST AND McFARLAND SET OUT RESTRICTIONS.

New Orleans, La., July 28.—Tommy Walsh, matchmaker of the New Orleans Athletic club, who has offered a purse of $10,000 for a 20-round bout in this city between Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland on Labor day, announced today that he has received acceptance from both fighters, but with important reservations. The opinion is expressed here that Promoter Walsh will not be able to get the men to agree on the weight.

LEACH CROSS BADLY BEATEN BY HURLEY.

New York, July 28.—Leach Cross got one of the worst beatings of his life last night from Battling Hurley, the Passaic cyclone, in a ten-round match at the Sharkey Athletic club, Hurley knocked him down in the first round and again in the second for the count of nine. He forced the fighting from the bell and had Cross badly cut and dazed at the finish.

Knabe Is Injured.

New York, July 28.—Otto Knabe, second baseman of the Philadelphia National club, had one of the fingers of his right hand broken in the fifth inning of yesterday's New York-Philadelphia game. Knabe received his injury trying to stop a ball thrown by Charley Doolin.

"Is Life Worth Saving?"

Mrs. Mollie McRaney, Prentiss, Miss., writes that she had a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble, and that four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured her sound and well. She closes her letter by saying: "I heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to any sufferer of kidney disease. It saved my life." Sold by all druggists.

SANDSTONE SUSPECTS.

Alleged Petty Thieves in Jail There Awaiting a Hearing.

Sandstone, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several suspects are in jail here awaiting the arrival of the county attorney from Pine City before a hearing will be given them. They are accused of stealing a box of shoes out of a freight car in the Great Northern yards here. The railway detective was on their trail and traced them to Holyoke, where they probably intended to make their getaway into Superior during the night, but returned to Sandstone Wednesday morning. Here they were nabbed by Marshal Regan, who had a description of the gang, as they were here during the day and tried to dispose of the stolen shoes to men employed in the local quarries. When the marshal got next to their game they suddenly departed by boarding an outgoing freight. Knowing this to be Carnival week in Sandstone, they concluded to return.

LAYING DUST ON DRIVEWAY

Solvay Chloride Being Used on London Road and Boulevard.

Experiments Show That It Is Cheaper Than Sprinkling.

Solvay calcium chloride, one of the most successful dust laying preparations tried in this country, is being laid on London road between Twenty-second and Forty-second avenues east. Work was started yesterday afternoon.

The Solvay chloride is being introduced in the Middle West by E. G. Walton, of the Walton agency, which established an office in this city last fall. It is coming into more general use as its qualities become better known to the public and within a few years it is expected that it will be laid on the principal roads and highways of every city and town in the Northwest. The preparation is in great favor in the East, where it has been applied for several years past, but it is only in the introduction stage in the West.

For experimental purposes Secretary Henry Cleveland of the park board laid the chloride on 200 feet of Fifteenth avenue east. It was put down several months ago and is pronounced to be better now than the day it was laid. Fifteenth avenue east is used extensively by vehicles of all descriptions.

The park board was so pleased with the preparation that it ordered a sufficient supply to treat the entire boulevard, where the preliminary work is now in progress. It is thought that the work will be completed within a comparatively short time.

The Solvay chloride is a by product discovered in France. For years no use was found for it. Its admirable dust-laying qualities were discovered by accident and now it cannot be turned out fast enough. Mr. Walton became interested in it during an Eastern visit. One of the foremost members of the Minneapolis Automobile club, which has been exerting much influence in the direction of better roads for Minnesota, he immediately investigated the proposition when it was brought to his attention. Realizing that it has solved a problem which bothered the East for years, he consented to bring it to the West, where it is now coming into its own with rapid strides. One of its most appealing features is the cost. On London road it is being laid for about one-half what it would have cost to sprinkle the thoroughfare this season.

While looking over London road, Mr. Walton, accompanied by Mr. Peters, who is in charge of the local agency, visited the houses which are being erected in the East end, Lakeside and the West end by the Walton agency. All of them are exceptionally neat, attractive and comfortable. One characteristic of the homes which they have completed was their distinct individuality. Each of them had an attraction of its own. Contrasting with the "one plan" style used by many home-building concerns, each house had different features fitted to the topography of the lot and the surroundings. Thus far the Walton agency has finished seventeen houses in different sections of the city, and contracts have been signed for the erction of many more.

ISHPEMING WILL OIL SOME STREETS

First City in Upper Michigan to Use That Method of Dust Laying.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city has received sixty-five barrels of asphalt road oil, to be sprinkled over the macadamized streets. The oil is a product of the Indian Refining company of Cincinnati, Ohio, and it came from that concern's refinery at Fayette, Ky.

This oil has been used for the preservation of roads and streets in many parts of the country the past few years and it has proved a success. It is mixed with water and is sprinkled over the streets through an ordinary street sprinkler. The mixture consists of one part oil and three and a half parts water. The sprinklers here hold 600 gallons, so that it will require two and a half barrels of oil each time the tank is filled. The pressure from the water works in filling the tank and the run over the road while the sprinkling is being done mixes the contents of the sprinkler thoroughly so that the oil is equally distributed.

First Used in Upper Michigan.

The preparation is at present being distributed on the main highway to Negaunee. The sixty-five barrels will go over a considerable portion of the macadamized streets, although there is not a sufficient quantity of the oil to give all of them a treatment.

Ishpeming will be the first place in this region to adopt the oil system of preserving streets, but if it proves a success here it is likely that other cities will use it. It is claimed to be the cheapest process that can be applied. It is thought that this oil would do a great deal of good on the main highway between Negaunee and Marquette.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge C. F. Amidon of the United States district court of North Dakota, assisting Judge Morris and Willard of the district court of Minnesota yesterday, confirmed the composition offer of the Illinois Realization company of Chicago to settle with the creditors of the Heffelfingers individually, and those of the Heffelfinger companies.

Checks for approximately $900,000 will be sent out in the next few days to creditors, in payment of claims in accordance with the composition offer, on the percentage basis proposed by the creditors' committee and approved by the court. The Illinois Realization company has a sum equal to requirements on deposit in the Northwestern National bank and Minnesota Loan & Trust company. Dusbursements will be made through the latter company.

Million of Claims Signed.

His report stated that of a total number of C. B. Heffelfinger to about $1,700,000, there have been claims representing $1,224,275.05 signed and filed, and claims for $186,749, signed but not yet filed.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

Suspicion Surrounds Death of Peter Linquist at Parkers Prairie.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 28.—The coroner and county attorney have been at Parker's Prairie investigating the death of Peter Lindquist, whose body was found in a small lake there. It was at first supposed that it was a case of suicide, but there are a number of suspicious circumstances connected with the case.

Mr. Lindquist disappeared May 31, intending to go to a series of missionary meetings and then go to Ogema to visit his son. He took $105 with him. He never reached the first missionary meeting, and, though he had no occasion to spend any money between his home and the lake where his body was found, his purse was empty and there was no cash in any of his pockets. A boat was cut loose from its moorings on the shore of the lake the night he disappeared, the chain by which it was fastened being cut out of the side. Apparently the boat had been pulled up on shore after being used on the lake. This lends color to the theory that his body may have been taken out and thrown into the water. The pockets were weighted down with stones when found.

HOPE FOR LATE CROPS.

Upper Michigan Farmers Sanguine of Saving Few Products.

Marquette, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to farmers of this vicinity, there is hope for late crops, especially potatoes and corn, if there is plenty of rain the balance of the summer. The hay crop in this county is a total failure and the pastures are very short, but wet weather is likely to start them up again. Corn has been but little affected by the dry weather and promises to be a good crop, if frost does not come too early. One farmer stated yesterday that raising corn and alfalfa was the only salvation of the dairy business in the upper peninsula, as dry weather and grasshoppers have made hay and pasture very uncertain quantities.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HAY PROBLEM SERIOUS ONE

Outlook for Owners of North Dakota Stock Is Very Discouraging.

Feared Lack of Forage May Force Them to Dispose of Their Stock.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—No problem conected with the North Dakota crop situation is given closer attention at the proper time than that of forage. Reports from all sections indicate that there are only a few favored localities in which anything like the normal amount of hay will be cut. Leading agriculturists of the state fear this may have a tendency to discourage the raising of stock which has within the past few years received so much encouragement. This phase of the situation is one in which many have taken particular interest, but there are other features of it that demand equal consideration at the present time.

Even now men who have had much to do with the change from the old line farming methods—the all grain farm—are preaching the doctrine of holding onto the stock rather than to sell it in view of the fact that the forage will be short. They argue that while the outlook at the present time is admittedly dubious, still there is no real cause for alarm as rains even now would have a tendency towards greatly bettering the hay and feed situation generally, and that with such rains the farmers would find that they would be well able to care for their stock through the winter months.

Forage Situation Critical.

In the Red river valley counties, and along the counties to the north as well as those in the central section of the state, the forage situation appears to be the most critical. In the northwestern counties there appears to be a slightly more favorable condition existing, while in the southern tier of counties, from Logan and McIntosh west to the state boundary, little fear is entertained but what the crop of hay will be sufficient to meet all requirements. Oats and other feed crops are in a bad way, and the hope of securing anything like a fair yield of them has been abandoned everywhere. Many farmers do not even hope to get their oat seed back, while some have a slightly better chance of getting something out of their feed land.

MINISTERS TO CHANGE.

Preachers of Copper Country to Locate in Other Fields.

Houghton, Mich., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual conference of the Ishpeming district of the Swedish Lutheran church, to be held at Iron Mountain early in August, Rev. N. J. Forsberg of Red Jacket, president of the conference, will tender his resignation. Rev. Mr. Forsberg, who is one of the leading Swedish Lutheran ministers of the Northwest, will go to Rock Island, Ill., in September to take charge of the new church being established there by his denomination. He has spent seven years with the Red Jacket congregation. The Copper country loses another of its best known and leading ministers this year, Rev. E. Sedweek, pastor of the Calumet M. E. church and a preacher known throughout the North, is forced to resign because of ill health. He will resign at the session of the Detroit conference, to be held in the city of Detroit in September. Rev. Sedweek will probably move to Southern California.

STORK DISTANCES REAPER.

Births in North Dakota Last Month Way Ahead of Deaths.

Bismarck, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high-water mark for births in North Dakota was established in June, according to the report just made public by Secretary J. Grassick of the state board of health. The births recorded were 1,017, while the number of deaths reported were only 366. Secretary Grassick says this shows there has been a gradual increase in the efficiency of the state bureau of vital statistics, this being especially noticeable within the past three years, or since the state legislative assembly gave recognition to the importance of the work.

Wells county had the greatest number of births, 81. Ward county, which has persistently held the high record, had 80 births. In the death column Cass county leads with 51.

The report on contagious diseases shows that measles was the most prevalent, 99 cases being reported, of which 50 were in Grand Forks county. The other contagious diseases follow: Tuberculosis, 5 cases and 1 death; smallpox, 20 cases and no deaths; typhoid fever, 4 cases and no deaths; diphtheria, 37 cases and two deaths; whooping cough, 17 cases and 1 death; other diseases, 6 cases and no deaths.

FOSTER COUNTY HAS ABOLISHED WOLF BOUNTY.

Carrington, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Believing that the state bounty of $2.50 per pelt is sufficient inducement to the people of Foster county to continue the destruction of wolves and coyotes, the commissioners of Foster county passed a resolution abolishing the $2 bounty that they have been paying. Foster county hunters of wolves and coyotes have been getting double pay for their work as a result of this double bounty, and the consequence has been a continual slaughter of the pests.

Desire Minnesota's Recipe.

New York World: Minnesota has nearly $4,000,000 in the state treasury and the taxes for 1911 may be suspended. New York, which is spending $40,000,000 a year, is obliged to seek new forms of revenue and may have to return to direct taxes. Is there any way by which the Minnesota recipe for state finance can be obtained for the use of New York?

WALKER TO FIGHT "FISH HOGS" WORK

Will Stock Leech Lake so Fish Taken Therefrom Cannot Be Sold.

Walker, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of the rivalry among tourist fishermen here, steps will be taken towards stocking Leech lake with fish in order to bring this lake within the scope of the law which forbids the selling of fish taken from stocked lakes and streams of the state. The banner catch was made Tuesday, one party bringing in 468 pounds of pike and pickerel, smashing the former prize catch of 380 pounds. The tourists hire guides to take them to the feed beds of the fish and the boat loads are brought in and sold at 4 cents per pound to parties who have stationed themselves here for the purpose of supplying city markets. The "fish hogs" pay for their board as well as guide and boat from the fish they catch, and those interested in Leech lake as a resort realize that in a few years' time the lake will be literally fished out. The state fish commission will be asked to prevent the slaughter of fish by tourists and others.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF SCORED BY HAMMOND

Payne-Aldrich Bill Is Scathingly Denounced By Congressman.

Tells Democratic Convention That Tariff Commission Is a Myth.

Deplores Death and Extolls Life of Late Governor Johnson.

WINFIELD S. HAMMOND.

(From a Staff Correspondent.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—In his speech as temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention, Congressman W. S. Hammond of St. James said:

"Two years ago this city saw a remarkable scene. The delegates to the Democratic state convention assembled here to nominate a candidate for governor. The then chief executive was serving his second term and desired to put aside the burdens of state and retire to private life. Many of his most intimate friends reluctantly yielded to his wishes and endeavored to save him from another campaign, but the demand for his nomination, like an irrushing tide, swept the state from end to end and when the day for holding the convention arrived, from the northern ranges to the southern prairies of this great commonwealth but one name was heard, and when that name was pronounced in the convention there was an outburst of enthusiasm theretofore unknown in the political history of Minnesota. The cheers and plaudits of the delegates echoed and re-echoed until men, stirred to the highest pitch of enthusiasm, were physically exhausted and then with one final prolonged cry the convention nominated for the third time as the Democratic candidate for governor that magnificent man of the people, John A. Johnson.

The Death of Johnson.

"After his third great victory he entered upon the discharge of the duties of his high office but before his term had expired the Angel of Death lightly touched his hand and called him to the great beyond. In that hour of sorrow all bitterness that attended the preceding election passed away. All political strife was forgotten and the people of this state bowed their heads in sorrow and wept at the loss of their great and beloved son. From other states, from the national capital, aye, from the capitals of other nations, came words of sympathy and expressions of sorrow.

"It is fitting, indeed, that at this time and place the first words spoken should be a tribute to the great leader of the Democratic party, and the man most loved by the people of Minnesota, our late governor, John Albert Johnson.

As to the Tariff Law.

"The policy of levying taxes upon merchandise imported from other countries into the United States and collecting such taxes at the various custom houses of the country upon the entry of the goods, is as old as the nation itself, and the millions annually paid by those bringing such goods and merchandise into this country comprise a large part of our revenue. Of the property thus brought to the United States to be sold to the people of the country, much is of the same kind as that produced or manufactured here, but some of it, like coffee and tea, is not produced in the United States. If taxes were levied upon classes of merchandise used in the United States but not produced here, it is apparent that the imposition of such taxes would have but one effect; namely, to increase the price of the commodities so taxed to the people who bought them by the amount of the charges imposed and by such amount supply revenue to the government. Such tariff taxes would constitute a purely revenue tariff.

Is More Than a Revenue Impost.

"But the tax imposed upon property brought into this country and of the kind manufactured or produced here does something more than simply increase the price of the commodities to the purchaser and supply revenue to the nation. It gives to the domestic manufacturer or producer an advantage over his foreign rival in our own markets because it compels the foreign competitor to pay a charge, the tariff tax, before entering our markets to sell his goods, while it does not oblige the domestic manufacturer or producer to pay any sum whatsoever. Such a tariff is both a revenue tariff and a protective tariff. The former because upon the goods which are entered a revenue is collected for the use of the government. The latter, because the importer of the goods, after paying the tax upon them, must sell them in our domestic markets at a greater price than he would sell them if he had no tax to pay and because he is in this way prohibited from selling them at the lower price he cannot be so dangerous a competitor of the domestic manufacturer and the latter is protected from his competition by the amount of the tax imposed upon the foreign goods. The people of this country have time and time again decided by substantial majorities that this method of protecting the domestic manufacturer and producer shall be maintained, and while many question the wisdom of this kind of indirect taxation and the righteousness of imposing burdens upon the many for the benefit of a lesser number, the questions have become rather academic and the abolishment of the system is not seriously contemplated.

Widespread Opposition to Excessive Rates.

"There is a widespread opposition, however, to excessive rates, making the burdens upon the consumer greater than they should be and also to tariff rates that are unfair and create inequalities among the beneficiaries themselves. For illustration: The duty of 1½ cents per pound on lead bearing ore and 2½ cents per pound on pig lead make the rates $30 per ton on the former and $42.50 per ton on the latter. The total cost of producing pig lead from the ore is from $6 to $10 per ton, say on the average $8. Now, suppose it costs the foreign producer less than $8, on account of the lower wage scale he has to pay. Then the difference between the $8, the cost of reduction here, and the cost in the country from which the import comes ought to be the amount added to the $30 to fix the rate on pig lead. It might be $2 or $4 or $6. It could not exceed $8 even if the foreign producer paid nothing for the work. But the tariff charge is $12.50. This is one of the many excessive rates to be found in the present tariff law.

The Wool Schedules.

"The tariff charge of 11 cents a pound upon wool in the grease, whether it be light shrinking grease wool or heavy shrinking, compels the carded wool manufacturer who uses the heavy shrinking wool to pay a much higher rate of duty upon what he uses than the maker of worsted goods who uses the light shrinking wool pays upon his raw product. Instead of determining the percentage of wool to the pound and adjusting the rate accordingly, the same rate is charged for a pound that will yield when washed, one-half pound of wool as for one that will yield nine-tenths of a pound. Of course the users of the heavy shrinking wool thus pay a much higher rate than their business competitors, the worsted spinners, who use the light shrinking wool. This is an unfair and unjust rate. It discriminates against one class of manufacturers to the advantage of another class.

People Demanded Revision.

"Because of such excessive rates and such inequalities the demand for a revision and rearrangement of the tariff schedules has come from the entire country and in the last election both prominent political parties in their platforms promised the people that following the election there should be a genuine revision of them. The people suppposed and had a right to suppose from the statements made by the candidates of the political parties and the platform pledges that the excesses would be removed, the inequalities eliminated and the tariff rates substantially reduced.

But They Didn't Get It.

"In March following the general election a special session of congress was called for the express purpose of carrying out these pledges, fulfilling and making a proper revision of the tariff. From March 15 to Aug. 5, congress remained in session and labored and then presented to the people of the United States, in answer to their demand for a genuine tariff revision and in redemption of the promises of such revision, the most unpopular legislative act of the last quarter of a century—the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. The most excessive rates were not removed. The inequalities were not eliminated. The party promises were not kept. The most vicious schedule, was not touched. The legislation itself was accomplished by trades and bargains among those who were to be beneficiaries under it. The interests of the people were ignored and the proceedings leading to the passage of the act were little more than a scramble on the part of the bounty hunters to get the best of one another in the fixing of rates. They could stand together, however, when it came to getting the best of the consumers of the country.

Insurgents Had Weak Stomachs.

"This law is a Republican law. It is named the Payne-Aldrich bill, Mr. Payne being the Republican leader of the house and Mr. Aldrich the Republican leader of the United States senate. It was heartily approved by Mr. Cannon, the Republican speaker of the house of representatives. It received the sanction of Mr. Sherman, the Republican vice president of the United States, and it has been declared to be the "best tariff bill ever enacted," by Mr. Taft, the president of the United States and the leader of the Republican party. It is true that the bill was so rank that a number of Republicans refused to vote for it. That does not make it any the less a Republican bill. It only goes to show that it required Republicans with the strongest kind of stomachs to carry it through. The Democrats and a number of the Republicans known as insurgents voted against it and individually those Republicans cannot be held responsible for the law, but the organization and the Republican party as it was then and is now constituted must be charged with the responsibility of this enactment and must stand or fall in the coming campaign on the judgment of the electors upon that piece of legislation.

About the "Tariff Commission."

"Fearing the indignation of a people aroused by the repudiation of its promises to them, the Republican organization sought to allay the rising storm of wrath by providing for the so-called tariff commission. Do not for a moment fancy that a bill was introduced to provide for this tariff commission. It was not a bill. It was a clause incorporated in an appropriation bill providing a large sum of money to be spent by a number of gentlemen appointed by the president to investigate the tariff question and report to him, advising him of the result of their study and research.

$250,000 For the Education of the President.

"After reading Mr. Taft's declaration that, in his opinion, the Payne-Aldrich bill is the best tariff law ever enacted in this country, one is forced to admit that there is apparent need that he have a great deal more information about tariff questions before venturing another opinion. But $250,000 is a pretty large sum to expend for the education of the president. The so-called commission has the power to investigate, but not the power to act. It has the power to study rates but not to change them. It has the power to discover defects, but not to remedy them. But it is said to be a step in the right direction. It is not even that. If the board would make a fair and impartial and careful investigation of the tariff rates and tariff conditions and submit its report to the president, and through him to congress and the people, showing conditions and stating facts relevant to the matter, the information would be of value some time. But in order that credit be given such report, it ought to be made clear that a fair investigation preceded it and by men unprejudiced by preconceived notions or personal interests. If it were intended to take a step in the right direction, why not have this investigating board a nonpartisan board? As the measure was introduced, a provision of the sundry civil appropriation bill, when an attempt was made to provide that the commission be nonpartisan, objection was raised that such amendment was out of order and, of course, the objection was sustained.

Duty of Congress to Revise Tariff Again.

"Inasmuch as there has been no revision of the tariff that will square with the promises made to the people of this country during the last campaign, and which, by their votes, the electors directed should be done, it is now the duty of congress to revise it in accordance with the mandates of the people; removing as far as possible the inequalities in rates and giving consideration to the consuming public by substantially cutting down the excessive charges contained in the present law. If, in connection with such revision, it seems best to establish a tariff board, whether that commission or board be empowered to change rates or simply to gather information, it should be a non-partisan body, and its reports should be made to congress, so that all may know the results of the investigation, and so that these results may go to the reading and thinking people of the country uncensured, unabridged and unamended, and not changed or held back because of political necessities.

The Master of the House.

"The present speaker of the house of representatives, on the fourth of next March, will have served thirty-six years as a member of the house of representatives and eight years as its speaker. The people of this country and the members of congress have had ample opportunity to form an estimate of his character, his services and his aims. From his interpretation of the rules of the house and his practices under those rules a system by which proposed legislation not acceptable to the master of the house and his friends and allies may not only be defeated, but may even be denied a full and fair consideration, has been inaugurated and developed into a state of high perfection. This has been accomplished by the speaker and his Republican organization under his control. The system has very appropriately been called Cannonism, and though it has had had the support of Mr. Cannon at all times his was not, and is not, its only support. Behind it in solid array stands the majority organization in the lower house. Out of 218 Republican members, just an even dozen voted against Mr. Cannon when he was last elected speaker in the spring of 1909, and not to exceed one out of every ten of the Republican membership can be classed as a steadfast Republican insurgent. Nine out of every ten members of that membership stand with the organization and uphold by their votes the system known as Cannonism, and if that organization is to continue in power, it is just as well that Mr. Cannon be elected speaker of the house as any other member of it, though he may be arbitrary and at times harsh, he is courageous and disposed to be fair in minor matters.

Cannonism is Republicanism.

"Cannonism is the policy of nine-tenths of the Republican membership of the house of representatives. It is the policy of the Republican organization, dictated and strengthened by those great interests and combinations that misuse the halls of legislation that have for years and do now exercise a preponderating influence in public affairs. The removal of the speaker from his high office or his defeat in a contest for re-election to congress will not destroy Cannonism. It can be killed in only one way, and that is by sending to Washington as representatives of the people of this country men who will not support it under any circumstances whatsoever, men who will, if necessary, defy the president of the United States if he insists that they stand by the organization, men who will not yield when a politic postmaster general waves the patronage club about their heads, and men who will not be deceived into yielding it support by the slogan of party loyalty, party integrity or party anything else.

"All proposed legislation should not become statute law. Good legislation may be delayed because in no session of congress or of a state legislature can all good bills be reached, considered with the care and deliberation that they merit and be enacted into law. But questions of great import, questions on which there is an honest difference of opinion, but in which the people of the entire country or the entire state are interested should be given ample and careful and conscientious consideration. Secret ways of killing good bills, their defeat by pigeonhole methods or by chicanery of any kind, are unfair and un-American.

The Candidates Are Important.

"Gentlemen: You have come here to nominate a state ticket and to adopt a platform. Our candidates must and I am sure they will be men who will command the respect of the citizens of Minnesota. It matters little whether our platform declarations be many or few; whether the platform itself is a long one or a brief one, but it is important that its statements should be free from ambiguity so that all who read it may understand and know just what is meant. Differences of opinion are bound to exist concerning details of legislation, and those details cannot be worked out in political platforms, but fundamental propositions must be right and clearly stated. Our people will watch with interest the deliberations of this convention and the results here obtained. Let them be disappointed in neither men nor declarations. The great majority of them will stand firm and uninfluenced by selfish interests or personal appeals, and when the campaign is finished the victors will be those who fought steadily and hard for the whole people, for equal rights and against special privileges."

WASHBURN ELEVATOR AND MUCH GRAIN BURN.

Washburn, N. D., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ten thousand bushels of grain were destroyed in a fire which burned the Farmers' Elevator company elevator to the ground. A hot box in the upper portion of the structure was responsible for the blaze, which had such a big lead when discovered that there was no opportunity for successfully combatting it.

GREETED BY LARGE CROWD

Carry Nation Vehemently Denounces Both Great Political Parties.

Brewers, Preachers, Tobacco Users and Secret Organizations Are Scored.

"The Republican party is a murderer, and the preacher who votes the Republican ticket is just as much of a murderer," shouted Carry A. Nation, of hatchet fame, with all the vehemency at her command, last evening before a large audience at the Lincoln park pavilion.

Mrs. Nation was in Duluth in the interest of the Prohibition party, and she upheld its principles and condemned every other political organization. While many there were firm believers in the principles she advocated, it was quite apparent that the largest number came there merely out of curiosity.

"When they had me in jail at Wichita I had a strange vision. I saw two serpents, one on the right side and the other on my left. The one on my right had a head, and it was pointed directly at me. The other was without a head. The serpent with the head, was revealed to me by God as the Republican party, the head representing that it was in power, and the fact that it was turned toward me showed that it was aiming at my very soul, trying to destroy me, as it is trying to do to the souls of thousands of women and children in the United States. The one without the head was the Democratic party, which was not in power, but longed to be.

"This was the vision that started me on the active campaign to down the political parties which have assumed the right to sell a man's soul to the devil. The party is no worse than the individuals which make up that party. The devil took all the rakings of creation, the brewer, the gambler, the corrupt politician, and put them into one party, and with them flocked a large number of preachers.

"When the Republican party, which has been given the right to sell liquor that drags your darling one down to hell, is supported by preachers, it shows that these preachers are placing themselves on a level with saloon keepers and brewers, and are licensing your darling's soul to hell.

"The Democratic party is no better. The only difference between the two is that it has not been given the chance. The only party that does not damn a man's soul is the Prohibition party, and I am happy in the thought that only the Prohibition party will go to Heaven. The devil has prepared a home for the Republicans, and it is hell, and I am glad that there's a hell for the Republican preachers."

Taft Is Rapped.

She bitterly attacked other organizations, stating that Christian Science was "the presence of all lies and the absence of all truth." Unitarianism was given a jolt, and President William H. Taft was denounced as a "Big hunk of infidel beef." With such a man at the head of this great nation, she could see nothing but disaster for the country. She wondered why God did not visit this nation with more floods and earthquakes than he does. "He does chastise us," she shouted. "Look at San Francisco, look at Chicago, look at Galveston! God is in them all."

Following her attacks upon the political parties, Mrs. Nation devoted some time to the secret orders, paying special attention to the Ancient Order of Free Masons. "No Mason would ever have joined the Masonic order," she said, "if he had known beforehand that he was swearing away all that is dear to life. He promises to give up his body to be cut to pieces if he divulges one secret of the order.

"That organization is merely for political graft. The big Masons are gathering into their folds the little ones, and using them as their tools to carry out their evil designs. The member himself gets no benefit from his connection with the order. The Masons do not even promise to bury their dead. They gather about the corpse and hold their weird ceremonies, but contribute nothing toward the funeral expenses. The poor widow has to do all that. I know this, not because I have ever been a Mason, but because I am the widow of two Masons."

Tobacco users were next scored severely by the saloon-smasher, the cigarette fiend being given special attention. "If there's a murder, a burglary, a wife desertion, or any other grave crime, you can put your finger on a cigarette fiend every time as the criminal," she said.

"The hog that uses tobacco is a mighty filthy hog, and if a dog uses tobacco, it is a dirty, stinking dog," she remarked. She advised girls not to marry a man who uses tobacco in any form.

After the address Mrs. Nation sold the book of her life, in which she also gave space to the revelation of the secrets of the many organizations whose workings are mysteries to all women. With each book she gave one of her souvenir hatchets.

Last night she left for Charleston, Ill., where she will give the same lecture.

WOOD IS TWO UP ON LEGG

Homewood Crack Has Better of the Morning Round.

Legg Gradually Pulls Up After a Disastrous Start.

Minikahda Club, Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—Warren K. Wood of Homewood was 2 up on Harry G. Legg of Minikahda at the end of the morning round of what promises to be the feature match of the third round of the Western golf championship at the Minikahda club today. Both men played well, Wood excelling in the first nine, while Legg did his best playing on the homeward journey. Wood set a new record for the first nine holes by going out in 33. He was 5 up at the turn, as Legg won only one hole of the first nine.

Coming in, Wood apparently lost his ability to run down long putts, and this gave Legg an opportunity to regain some of his lost ground. Legg won three of the last nine, while Wood was unable to get better than a half on any of the holes.

The first hole was halved in a par four, while Wood won the second when Legg's approach was short.

The third hole went to Wood when Legg over-approached and the fourth was halved in a conventional five. Wood then began a series of long putts backed up by brilliant long game, and won the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth.

On the return journey Wood putted poorly, while Legg took advantage of every opportunity and won the thirteenth, fifteenth and eighteenth, while the other six were halved. Their cards:

TWO BOATS TO REGATTA

Duluth Will Send Class A and Class B Boats to Oshkosh.

List of Men Who Will Man Farrell and Brewer Craft.

The crews which will sail the Duluth yachts in the coming regatta to be held at Oshkosh, Wis. by the Inland Lakes Yachting association, and under the auspices of the Oshkosh Yacht club, will leave about Aug. 10 for Oshkosh.

The class A boat, the Naveled, will be sailed by a crew consisting of Lester Phelps, Harris Trux, Frank Farrell, C. C. Colton and E. A. Pierce.

The class B boat, the Allegro, will be sailed by a crew consisting of Charles Brewer, Sibbald McDonald, A. C. Trux and A. C. Fisk.

The Allegro will be pulled out of the water the first of next week and will undergo repairs so as to be in the best possible shape for the Oshkosh event. She will be scraped, varnished and painted. When finished she will present a fine appearance.

Just at this time there seems to be some little doubt about the Naveled and her crew attending the event. There has not been a great deal of interest displayed by those who are to sail the boat. They have not had as much experience in handing the boat as they need. An effort is being made to have Duluth represented in the class A event, however.

The list of prizes is the best ever. Among the special prizes offered are: The Clark-Ordway cup, the Warren cup the Commodore Gilbert cup, the Co...modore O. L. Schmidt cup, the Commodore Valentine thousand dollar cup, and the Lorimer challenge cup.

There will be races in the class A events for the Sawyer challenge cup in the class B event for the Hollister cup. The boats from Duluth will compete in each of these two events. These races are to take place on Friday of the week of the regatta.

On Saturday the races in the class A event will be for the Pelker challenge cup and the class B events will be for the first and second prize trophy cups.

The Oshkosh club has provided entertainment for each day that the visitors will be there. On Friday evening there will be an informal dance; Saturday there will be a concert and dance; Sunday a concert will be held; Tuesday there will be a lawn fete; Wednesday a concert and dance; Thursday the annual ball will be held, and Friday the presentation of prizes will take place.

The present regatta will be the fortieth annual.

THE HEAD REST.

Henry E. Dixey, at a New Year's supper, was offered a cigar by a young lawyer.

"It is easy to see," said Mr. Dixey, examining the cigar, "that you are not married, but only engaged."

"I am engaged. But how did you know? It's a secret," cried the lawyer.

"I knew," said Mr. Dixey, "because you have frequently offered me a cigar from your vest pocket, and it has always been broken."

SIX CLUBS REPRESENTED

A Long List of Entries at the Northwestern Regatta.

Duluth Oarsmen Arrive and Make a Favorable Impression.

Kenora, Ont., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Paul, Duluth, Winnipeg, Fort William, Kenora and Selkirk will compete in the twentieth annual regatta of the Minnesota and Northwestern Rowing association here tomorrow and Saturday and entries from Port Arthur and Fort Frances are possibilities.

The list of entries is the largest in the history of the association and the prospects are that the contests will be the best ever seen at a regatta. The St. Paul and Duluth crews will enter the eights and fours, while the singles, doubles and other events will be confined entirely to the Canadian entries.

For the junior eight event, the Duluth crew is the favorite on account of the course being on the lake here and the St. Paul and Winnipeg crews having trained on river courses. The Duluth boys have arrived here and they created a favorable impression.

The Winnipeg crews are handicapped somewhat this year by the absence of the senior four, which is en route from England where it wrested the Stewart cup from the possession of the English oarsmen. The junior eight of the Winnipeg club is pronounced strong, while the bantam four is not considered to be a strong contender in that event.

The crews are all here today and are trying out the course. The principal events tomorrow will be the bantam four, senior four and the junior eight, while the senior eight and junior four will be rowed the following day.

ON TRAIL OF MRS. CUDAHY

Agent of Her Husband Investigating Her Actions in Duluth.

J. J. Welch of Kansas City, representing Jack Cudahy, is in Duluth today, investigating the actions of Mrs. Cudahy during her visit here last winter, when she accompanied Mr. and Mrs. George Damerel of "The Merry Widow" company on their tour.

"I do not know the purpose of the work I am doing," said Mr. Welch. "Whether the information is to be used in divorce proceedings or not, I do not know."

Mr. Welch has been busy looking over the files of the Duluth newspapers telling of the incidents of Mrs. Cudahy's visit here, and talking with people who saw her party.

HALF CENTURY TO BECOME CITIZEN

Thomas Bowen, American for Fifty-Seven Years, Still British Subject.

Although Thomas Bowen is 57 years old and has lived in the United States since he was 6 months old, he was a subject of the monarchs of Great Britain until today, when his application for naturalization was granted by Judge Page Morris in United States court.

Mr. Bowen, who is a homesteader near Celina, in this county, was born in Ireland, although he does not know just where, but he knows it was in 1853. When he was 6 months old he was brought to the United States and up to a few months ago he thought that he was a citizen of the United States on account of his long residence. It developed that his father was never a citizen and the fact that he has no memory of any other country availed him nothing when his citizenship was questioned. He foreswore allegiance to King George V today.

HAVOC WROUGHT BY HEAVY RAIN

Crops in Part of Kentucky Are Completely Ruined By Floods.

Hawesville, Ky., July 28.—Nearly every bridge in Hancock county was carried away, many miles of public highway rendered impassable, and the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis railroad washed out in many places as a result of the twelve-hour rain that began last night and continued until today. Many homes on streams throughout the country have been abandoned. The loss of livestock is reported heavy. The West end of Hawesville is under water.

Wheat and tobacco that escaped damage in the heavy rains in the last month were completely destroyed and farmers are utterly discouraged. Corn is flat on the ground and meadows are ruined.

DRIFTING BOTTLE BEARS MESSAGE OF DISTRESS.

Algiers, July 28.—A bottle containing the words "In distress; Steamer Koenig of Hamburg," has been found on the beach at Mustapha. It is supposed that this refers to the Dutch West Africa passenger liner which sailed from Dar-Es-Salaam, German East Africa, and is due at Marseilles on July 30. No report has been received of an accident to this steamer.

DULUTH ENJOYS COOL WEATHER.

While the people of the South, Middle West and the West are suffering from intense heat that has been prevailing for several days past, and which is likely to continue without any interruption of rain or storms for some time, Duluthians are enjoying the most pleasant breezes and refreshing weather.

For this locality the weather bureau announces that there will be generally fair weather at least until tomorrow evening. There will be some scattered showers in some sections of Wisconsin, but locally none.

Through some misunderstanding, it was stated yesterday that thunderstorms were scheduled for Duluth last evening and today. These were to visit some other sections of Minnesota, but the weather man says they were not due in Duluth.

GIRL SEEKS BIG DAMAGES

Asks $25,000 for Injuries Received When Sleigh Overturns.

The case of Lillian Marie Adette against Oscar Beckman and Martin Beckman, co-partners as Beckman Brothers, was taken up in United States court today. This afternoon, the defendants' attorneys entered a motion for a dismissal of the case on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction and the arguments are being made.

The girl, who claims residence in Sault Ste. Marrie, Mich., alleges that while riding through the woods in a sleigh owned by the defendants, it was overturned and she was severely injured. She asks $25,000 damages.

The suit of Daniel Sullivan against the Canadian Northern railroad was disposed of yesterday by a directed verdict for the defendant. Sullivan sued for $4,080 damages, alleging that he was injured through the negligence of the defendant company while he was riding in a caboose attached to a logging train.

ENOUGH SAID.

Not long ago a Toledo clergyman was called upon to conduct the services at the funeral of a man with whom he had had no acquaintance, says Lippincott's. So thinking to glean a useful hint or two touching the deceased's character, when he was shown into the living room the divine called a little boy of 8, evidently a member of the family, and put to him this question:

"Can you tell me what were the last words of your father?"

"He didn't have any," responded the lad, with the utmost naivete: "Ma was with him to the last."

SAYS COMPANY PAID ITSELF

Striking Story of Wholesale Graft Told in Illinois Central Inquiry.

Chicago, July 28.—Harold A. Sims told a striking story of wholesale graft before Mastery in Chancery Roswell B. Mason here in connection with the investigation being made into the alleged $1,500,000 car repair fraud in the Illinois Central railroad.

Sims, fromer car inspector for the railroad, and later in the employ of one of the five car repair companies charged with the fraud, declared that the Illinois Central was made to furnish not only materials, but also labor for repairs, and then was charged from one to three prices for the work through an elaborate system of padded bills.

Sims said the greater part of the woodwork supposed to have been done in the independent shops and for which the railroad company paid a round figure, was really done at the Illinois Central shops in Memphis. He said the railroad company was practically paying handsomely for doing work for itself. The witness also testified that Illinois Central cars were dismantled to procure material to be used in the plant of the Memphis Car company.

A NASTY DIG.

"As nasty a dig as I ever administered in my newspaper career in Virginia City," said Mark Twain, "was directed against a man named Ferguson.

"Ferguson, at Christmas time invited me to see the presents he had given his wife. They were magnificent gifts. The man expected, of course, a write-up.

"Well, he wasn't disappointed. The next day, in a prominent place on the first page of the Enterprise, I inserted this paragraph:

"'John H Ferguson's Christmas gifts to his wife are being much admired. They include a diamond stomacher and many other beautiful specimens of cut glass.'"

SPAIN IN WINTER.

Queen: The most agreeable winter climate in Spain and probably in Europe is that of Malaga, which has a mean winter temperature of 55 degs Fahrenheit. The climate is extremely beneficial to sufferers from rheumatism, but it is not at all recommended in highly nervous cases.

There are at times unpleasant winds but extremely little rain during the winter months. Though a healthy place, the sanitation of the town is not good, but the unsanitary effects are to a large extent neutralized by the dry climate, by the sea air and by the abundant and excellent water supply.

Ronda is nearly 3,000 feet above the sea and has a bracing climate—too bracing in fact for winter. Algeciras is probably the most successful winter station in Spain, and since the conference which was held there a few years ago its hotels have been full of visitors during the greater part of late winter and spring. Being within easy reach of Gibraltar, the place is by no means dull.

There are tennis courts, a golf course, polo ground (at Campamento), nad most of the meets of the Calpe Hounds are as conveniently reached from Algeciras as from Gibraltar. Yachting, boating and sea fishing may be freely indulged in and driving excursions may be made in the direction of Tarifa and Cadiz. More distant excursions include those of Tangier, Granada, Seville and Malaga. Madrid is too cold for January. It is at an altitude of 2,400 feet. Seville is better in March and April than in January.

NOT THE SEALSKIN.

Simeon Ford, apropos of wifely sympathy, said at a recent dinner in New York.

"How hard it is when the wife is unsympathetic!

"Poor Jones trudged home through zero weather the other night, and, blowing on his frozen hands, said solemnly:

"'Well, I've got the sack.'

"'Oh, you dear!' his wife cried. 'The sealskin or the other one?'

"'The other one,' said Jones, laughing bitterly.

GOOD TONE TO COPPERS

Market Shows More Strength Than for Weeks Past.

Buying of Good Character Sends Favorite Issues Up.

The copper market was exceptionally strong today and the leaders advanced from two to three and one-half points. All issues acted well and the undertone was excellent. The day's activity was the direct opposite of the sessions which have recently been distinguished by their dullness and by the lack of buying of a good character.

The market today saw some excellent acquisition and there was a better tone to sentiment generally. There was a disposition on the part of many people to take profits and this caused occasional sharp recessions. On every downturn, however, there was good support and the market rallied and closed near the top values of the day.

The situation was helped by the fact that many weak holders have been eliminated. While the general market is still unsettled in many ways it is in a position to reflect a sharp rally if there should be good rains in the corn belt. The effect, no doubt, would be communicated to coppers. Easier money in the East had considerable effect in causing many people to take stocks.

London was a large buyer of stocks and if it had not been for profit-taking by early buyers it is likely that values would have scored a heavier upturn. The copper situation was strengthened by the disposition of selling agencies to advance prices for the red metal. Agencies that have been holding out for 12¾c are now asking 12¾c which has stimulated fresh interest among consumers. The prospects for a reduced output of the red metal are the primary cause of the increase in prices. This applies chiefly to electrolytic copper which is ⅛@¼c over recent quotations. Demand for shipment abroad is heavy. It is rumored that the price of copper will be advanced to 13c in the near future.

Trading here was moderate and fairly broad. Cactus sold at $2, Greene at $6.62½ to $7, Red Warrior at $2.25, $2.43¾ and $2.37½, Shattuck at $23.12½ to $23, Tamarack at $2.75, Butte & Superior at $1.12½, Calumet & Sonora at $14, Carman at 80c, Chief at $1.50, San Antonio at $6.25 and St. Mary's at 18c.

Amalgamated sold at $60.12½, $63.75 and down to $62.50, closing with sales at $63.62½. Butte Ballaklava sold at $12 to $11.12½, Greene at $6.62½ to $67.12½, Butte Coalition at $17.50 to $18, Steel common at $66.75, $68.87½ to $68.62½, Giroux at $6.37½ to $6.75 to $6.62½, North Butte at $23.37½ to $24.50 to $23.87½. LESS THAN 1,000 JOIN IN STRIKE

Contractors Say Chicago Building Walkout Has Fizzled Out.

Chicago, July 28.—Efforts to have the carpenters, electrical workers, bricklayers, plasterers, hoisting engineers and laborers join in the building trades strike were without success last night and contractors declare that the attempted general strike has fizzled. These unions which refuse to take part in the present war are the strongest numerically in the Chicago building industry. It is said that less than 1,000 men have responded to the strike call.

WOMEN PRISONERS IN JAPAN.

It is difficult to associate the lighthearted, childlike Japanese women with the dark, forbidding and depressing side of life suggested by prison, but even in the land of the rising sun crime and the punishment of it have to be reckoned with; and the question of reforming women cvriminals is a prominent one in Japan just now.

Penology has made rapid advances there of recent years because the Japanese have the capacity of assimilating the best methods of other countries in every subject they seriously consider. They realize that the prevention of crime is even more important than its cure, writes Elizabeth Sloan Chesser in the Guardian, and the drift of their legislation is toward nipping crime in the bud. They have grasped the fundamental principle that much crime is due to adverse social conditions, and their idea is to lessen temptations to crime by improving the social and economic state of the people and by probationary methods.

With regard to their treatment of women and girls sentenced to prison for such crimes as theft, drunkenness, arson (a very common and serious crime in Japan, where the tiny wooden houses blaze and burn in a few minutes, and fire spreads quickly from house to house) reformatory methods are rapidly being employed all over the country. When I visited Ichigaya, one of the chief prisons for women in Japan, I was very much struck by the humane and curative system that has been organized of recent years. The first impression of the prison contrasts markedly with one's idea of a prison in this country.

There are no massive buildings and glass windows with iron bars, no bare stone floors, no long corridors and tiny cells where the prisoners spend long hours in solitary confinement. The buildings surround a central courtyard, and are built of wooden planks or standards, cage fashion, so that the prisoners are living an open air life day and night. The floors are covered with corn-colored matting, and the woodwork is polished till every grain is visible. The prisoners wear pink crepe kimonos, which contrast with their ivory faces and gleaming hair.

We were taken to one large room where three rows of pink-clad figures were squatting Japanese fashion on pink cushions on the floor. They greeted us with shy smiles and soft murmurs of "Ohayo," the Japanese "Good day," while they simultaneously bowed their blue black heads to the ground. Politeness is one of the chief virtues in Japan, and in the prisons special lessons are given in manners and deportment, and classes are even held to teach the art of tea serving, which is an important ceremony with the Japanese. The idea is that whatever raises the self-respect of the prisoner, whatever improves her behavior and manners, aids her reformation. The teaching is very comprehensive. Lessons are given in weaving, dressmaking and sewing, and we saw some exquisite embroideries made in the prison and artistic garments cut kimono fashion.

The prisoners work in sheds all day, so that the cells are practically sleeping apartments, and it has been found that working in association under official control makes for reform and improvement of mental and physical health. Prison in Japan is an educational agency and the women work and are paid wages for what they do. Prizes and decorative awards are also given as an incentive to good work and conduct.

The Japanese of today could teach us a great deal in the matter of penology. They allow their prisoners more liberty, they show a more sympathetic interest in their welfare than we do. Everything is done to teach them industry and morality. As their behavior improves they are given better food and various privileges. Everything and every prisoner is scrupulously clean.

We visited the bathroom, which contained about fifty quaint little wooden tubs measuring 2 by 4 feet. These are not for washing purposes, but are a much appreciated luxury. A Japanese washes before entering a bath, and everybody has heard of the custom of the country which makes bathing a regular household ceremony partaken of in order of precedence. Every prisoner has to wash three times a day and has a hot bath three times a week in Japan. When the prisoners have served their sentences arrangements are made by the state for providing them with remunerative work on discharge.

AN OBSTACLE TO SUCCESS.

Senator Elkins, deploring at a dinner in Washington the dishonest methods of one type of business man, said with a smile:

"It all brings back to me a dialogue I once heard in a Southern school.

"'Children,' said the teacher, 'be diligent and steadfast, and you will succeed. Take the case of George Washington, whose birthday we are soon to celebrate. Do you remember my telling you of the great difficulty George Washington had to contend against?'

"'Yes, ma'am,' said a little boy. 'He couldn't tell a lie.'"

OPENED CONVENTION OF STATE DEMOCRATS

FRANK A. DAY,
Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION

of Duluth and W. A. Blanchard of Anoka to serve on this committee.

The recess lasted forty minutes, after which Chairman Hammond read the list of committee selections. The committee retired to meet at the Radisson hotel and a recess was taken until 2:30.

There was a lively debate over Senator Works' motion that the convention should recess until 2:30 and that the resolutions committee's report should precede the nomination of candidates. On a viva voce vote on the latter feature the chair was undetermined and a rising vote was demanded and taken. St. Louis county's delegation and practically all of the Eighth district delegates voted in the negative. There were 635 yeas counted by the chair. When the negatives stood he could count but 570 and the proposition was declared adopted.

The committee on credentials was instructed to report at 2:30 o'clock. It was announced that ex-Governor Dunn of Missouri was in the city and the committee was appointed to escort him before the convention.

BIG JOB FOR FREEMASONS.

The Suggestion to Rebuild Solomon's Temple.

The suggestion coming not long ago from Boston that the Free Masons of the world should unite in rebuilding the temple of Solomon at Jerusalem moves the illustrated London News to wonder whether the promoters of the scheme have counted the cost.

Of course, the interest of the Masons is due to the belief that their order was founded by King Solomon and that he was its first grand master. But that claim would perhaps not seem very weighty to the Moslems, to whom the site of the great temple now belongs.

It is now occupied by the Harem-Esh-Shereef, "the noble sanctuary." To the Moslem this place is only less sacred than Mecca and Medina, for it is believed to cover the rock which is regarded by them as the center of the earth, the spot from which Mahomet started when he visited heaven.

Aside from the difficulty of persuading the Moslem world to yield one of its most sacred spots to the Boston Free Masons, there would seem to be something too stupendous even for bean-fed modern Americans in building another Solomon's temple. Just by way of showing what the suggestion involves, it may be remarked that Solomon had 30,000 men out cutting timber for his new church.

They were divided into three shifts. Ten thousand went to Mount Lebanon for one month and were two months at home. There were 70,000 men who carried the stones and there were 80,000 stone cutters in the mountains. These men had 3,300 foremen. Stone cutters quarried enormous blocks, several cubits each way, for the foundations, and fitted them together before they were taken to Jerusalem. In that work they were aided by workmen sent by Hiram, king of Tyre.

The temple was divided into two portions—the main building, "the house of God," and the subsidiary buildings by which it was surrounded. The main building was rectangular in shape—60 cubits long, 20 cubits broad and 30 cubits high; taking the cubit at 18 inches, 90 feet ,30 feet and 45 feet, respectively. The walls of the first story were between 9 and 10 feet thick; those of the second story 7½ feet, of the third story 7½ feet and of the fourth story, 6 feet.

On three sides, north, west and south, the Temple was surrounded by a side building in three stories containing side chambers. The height of each story from floor to ceiling was 7½ feet. The number of side chambers is given by Ezekiel as thirty or thirty-three for each story. They were small, used for the storage of Temple furniture, etc. The Temple was surrounded by a court—the inner court. This was surrounded by a wall of three courses of hewn stone surmounted by a course of cedar beams. The entire citadel was enclosed by the great court. In front of the Temple stood the two pillars made by Hiram of Tyre and called Jachin (meaning "to establish") and Boaz ("in strength."). They were about thirty-five feet high, hollow and of brass four fingers thick.

Round about them was network interwoven with small palms made of brass, to which were hung 300 pomegranates in two rows. They were made hollow that they might be used as receptacles for documents, etc. Such columns were quite common in the temples of Baal.

Near the columns was the Molten Sea, so named on account of its size. It was fifteen feet in diameter and just half as high. It was said to have been capable of containing 2,000 "baths" or 16,160 gallons. It was made of brass or copper captured by David from Tibhath and Chun, cities of Hadarezar, king of Zobah. The brim was wrought "like the brim of a cup with flowers of lilies," that is, curved outward like a lily or a lotus flower. It stood on twelve oxen over life sized, three turned to each corner of the heavens and all looking outward. It was a hand breadth thick, about four inches. How the "sea" was filled or emptied is not stated.

There were ten lavers, quadrangular in shape, supported on wheeled wagons six feet long, six feet broad, and four and one-half feet high. The lavers were used for the water with which the entrails of the beasts used for burnt offerings were cleaned, and also their feet. The lavers on the wagons came nearly up to the level of the great brazen altar. In the forecourt—due east from the temple entrance—stood the great altar of burnt offering. It was made of brass, was thirty feet long, thirty feet broad and fifteen feet high. To the service of the altar belonged a great many utensils of brass.

It is stated in Chronicles that the whole temple was overlaid with gold. The quantity of gold for the most holy house—the oracle—was 600 talents. If the same system was adopted in the outer part 2,700 talents must have been required. It is difficult to estimate the value of the gold, for the Babylonian gold talent was worth 6,150 pounds if "heavy," and 3,075 pounds if "light." If "heavy," the gold used in the oracle was worth 3,690,000 pounds; and that in the other part of the temple, 16,605,000 pounds. The value of the whole of the gold used in the temple, the thickness of the gold on the walnscoting, and the value of the precious stones used are unknown.

The golden ornaments included the great candlestick with seven lights, symbols of the divine presence; seven being the number of perfection. Ten reduced copies of this candlestick were made and ranged on each side of the altar of incense. Besides these there were the ark, to hold the tables of the law, the table for the shewbread, candlesticks, censers, tongs, snuffers, knives, extinguishers, trays, vases and other utensils for trimming and making the lights and fires, in number unknown; also, basins, spoons, censers, entry for the house, inner doors of the most holy place, and the doors of the house of the temple.

There were a great number of tables. One was large and made of gold, and on it were set the loaves of God. There were 10,000 others that resembled this, for the vials and cups. Those of gold were 20,000, and those of silver 40,000. There were 10,000 candlesticks, according to the command of Moses, one of which was dedicated for the temple that it might burn in the daytime.

There were 60,000 gold basins, 120,000 silver ones, 20,000 gold censers, 80,000 pouring vessels—in short, there was enough of an establishment to keep Boston hustling for some time to come.

WORK OF A SCENE PAINTER.

The theatrical scene painter often works in the playhouse itself, where you will find him on a platform at the top of a flight of iron stairs at the back of the stage. This platform extends across the whole width of the rear wall and is known as the paint bridge.

In the center of it is a table about twelve feet long and three feet wide, in some cases covered with thick plate glass. Along its edge is a row of earthen pots about four inches in diameter filled with different colored paints. The scenic artist, however, does not use "paint," he always says "color." This table is his palette.

He must have vast spaces for his work, as the great sheets must hang at full length. For this reason the rear of a theater stage, though bleak, dusty and uninviting, is a commodious place. On both sides of the paint bridge you will find various canvases of different sizes. Here will be an immense sheet cut to the dimensions of a back drop, and on the other side of the bridge you will find smaller canvases.

These are mounted on a small frame and suspended by ropes worked by means of pulleys and windlasses, so that each may be raised or lowered as the artist wishes. Back of the paint bridge is the supply room, where paint and other materials are kept in wholesale quantities.

Here, too, the little models are made that form so important a part of the scenic artist's work. The building of an original stage setting is a matter of much thought and considerable time. In the first place, says the Green Book, the artist reads the manuscript of the play to be presented, or else he receives ideas from the author or manager as to what is wanted.

There is a great difference in authors—also managers. Some know to the last tack in the carpet just the way the scene must be built. Others have only a vague idea and leave most of the work to the artist's imagination. Usually the artist and the manager and the stage carpenter get together and map it out.

Then the artist makes a detailed drawing on cardboard of each scene, and this is carefully painted in water colors. If the scene is an interior, the most minute details of the furnishings are shown. Suppose, for instance, it is the interior of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Then the old fashioned bed with the patchwork quilt is shown, and the old rug carpet is on the floor. Even the little fireplace with its burning logs is there—the fire in which is represented by red isinglass.

The amount of patience and time that are expended on some of these little models is amazing. If, for instance, in the foreground of a rural scene is shown an old vine grown tree even the raised irregularities in the bark are depicted and the tiny flowers upon the vines are shown. An elaborate model of a scene nicely adjusted to the business of the play, to the construction of the state, to the mechanical arrangements of the scene with its mathematical perspective, and the ornamental detail is the labor of about a week.

When it is finished the manager looks it over, and if he is satisfied with it he can buy it outright for $50 and have some one else make up the scenery, or he can negotiate with the artist who made it to complete the setting of the play.

Each piece of scenery has a technical name. The canvas that forms the background is called the back drop. The isolated partitions that are set one back of the other at the side of the stage are the wings. Then there are the slings and the double leg drops. That is, if you see a tree trunk at one side of the stage with its branches spreading across the stage it is known as a single leg drop; but if the canvas reaches not only across the stage but spreads to the floor on both sides it is known as a double leg drop. The sky, ceiling and overhanging foliage are the borders.

If a scene painter is employed exclusively by one theater, he is assisted by the stage carpenter and the property man. This is the case in the stock houses that are obliged to keep one or two artists busy preparing for a change of scene every week; but in many instances the scenic artist is a free lance who uses the theater merely as a convenient place, and who contracts for work with any manager who wants it. In that event, though he bids on the entire production and signs the contract for it, the carpentering and building are done by his business partners or assistants.

In these days scene painting has become a business and many artists have severed themselves from theaters and theatrical managers and have established factories that are operated on exactly the same basis as are other manufacturing establishments. Some of them send out salesmen with little model stages and a number of books filled with photographs of act drops and other scenes from which the theatrical managers all over the country can select.

In this way the manufacturer can copy a design many times and sell at a lower price than he would have to ask for original work. He argues that a theater in Seattle is just as well off for having a curtain exactly like one in New Orleans and Detroit, and the managers agree with him.

"There is no limit to the study required for the work," says one of the guild. "Every country on the globe is at one time or another depicted, and every period in the world's history may be called on for material. Every new thing that is invented gets to the stage, and we have to look it up and see how it is made, so that we can copy it."

ARMS AND THE TRUST PRESIDENT.

Richard Harding Davis, at a playwright's dinner in New York, ridiculed the pretensions of certain snobbish American families to be descended from Charlemagne, William the Conqueror, Richard Coeur de Lion and so forth.

"You see," said Mr. Davis, "proofs of such descent are very easily obtained. A herald, suitably remunerated, will trace a man back to the pre-Adamite kings, just leaving a slight gap to indicate, you know, the flood.

"Once a millionaire trust president went to a herald for a coat of arms. He knew none of his ancestors, nor had he any means of tracing them.

"'Oh, we'll arrive at something yet,' the undiscouraged herald said. 'Tell me, now, if you have ever performed any signal or heroic feat on your own account.'

"'Well,' said the millionaire, 'I was once in jail, and I escaped by sawing the bars of a fourth-story window.'

"'And how did you get down from that great height?' the herald asked.

"'Well, there was a lofty statue of George Washington in front of the window, and I tied a rope to that, and slid down.'

"'Good!' cried the herald. 'Lineally descended from George Washington! We'll give you Washington's arms, of course.'"

TICKET THREE TWENTY-ONE

How a Quick-Witted Con Man Got Out of a Tight Place.

SPEAKING of tight places, Wilson, one's cleverness at ducking holds him in good stead. It's ingenuity. The right thing at the right time. The foregoing philosophy came from the lips of Dan Berger, now secretary and advance press agent for the Pocahontas Mining company, says the New York Telegraph. He had come to New York from Canada to dispose of some certificates of the greatest paying dividend stock that ever struck the street.

By chance in a hotel corridor he ran across an old-time chum in Jim Wilson, now a drummer for a leading Western furniture house. It is true that Berger's occupation was not as close to the legitimate commercial lines as his friend Wilson's, but then Dan since young manhood was ever ready to promote some pet scheme of his own. Like many of his type, he was original if not always practical. Wilson had related a few occurrences in his calling as a salesman, laying stress on his ability in dodging some traps and pitfalls that he declared in many instances were purposely set for him. Dan in turn retaliated with the following:

"The fall of '88 in the city of Savannah, ebb tide, and very close to low wa'er mark was the condition of my finances. Along with three other young men I had journeyed from New York as an itinerant letterer. In our possession was a gilt letter which we had obtained at the wholesale figure—4 cents. We got 25 cents apiece for placing each letter none-too-wise small dealers. Each one of us carried a beveler, some cement and a supply of the letters. We were not wont to tarry too long in any town as the washing of the windows was the immediate cause of part or all of the letter to become effaced.

"At the outset, as Dame Fortune most always plies, our lettering work bid fair to become a veritable bonanza, but after a few weeks, in the vernacular language of horse racing, it stopped to a walk. For two days preceding our landing in Savannah business was practically at a standstill. Three-fourths of the dealers refused point-blank to invest, and the balance were suspicious of the durability of our letter.

"My three associates turned about face and headed back to New York. Not so with me. I decided to remain and work out my salvation in a place where the air is more balmy in the fall than New York, and I did.

"Getting my hands on one of the latest published city directories I gathered a list of some 600 names and addresses, composed of people in just ordinary circumstances and a goodly sprinkling of the codfish aristocracy. The colored population was also represented in my enrollment. In a neat envelope bearing no return address I forwarded to each person on my list the following circular:

"'A raffle for a $50 gold piece to be drawn at McCadden's hall, Thursday, Oct. 1. Tickets $1. By money order or I will call personally.

Daniel Berger,
110 Mt. Carmel avenue.'

"Did I sell them? Well, I guess I did. The colored portion of my correspondents rallied to a man. In fact, it astounded me to see how many replied and inclosed the dollar for a ticket, while many others wrote, asking me to call. To those who requested a personal visit I gave the assurance that the prize had already been placed in the hands of the proprietor of the hall where the raffle was to take place, an argument which seemed to meet all demands, and the money was soon forthcoming.

"The only assistant I had in my work was a red-headed youth of 17 years. He went to the postoffice and procured my mail in advance of the postman's routine delivery. He would then slit the envelopes, under my supervision, and also attend to the few errands which I found necessary. Although the lad was utterly devoid of elementary schooling he was attentive and quick witted. I paid him a dollar at the end of each day, and his gratitude seemed boundless. I think it was the first time he had ever had anything like that come his way.

"Well, on the fourth or fifth morning after the mailing of the circulars my raffle scheme received what I at first believed to be a severe body blow. It was in the form of a letter from the superintendent of police, William S. O'Brien, stating that I should call at his office as soon after receiving his missive as possible. Of course, I readily conceived it was in reference to my raffle, he, I presumed, having been made acquainted with the fact by the postal authorities, who are always on the alert, as you know, for lottery suspects and things of that sort.

"If called as directed, and after a few brief preliminaries was seated in a chair face to face with the superintendent. He was a gruff, but sharp-witted Irishman, weighing in the neighborhood of 250 pounds.

"'Who's at the head of this game, Mr. Berger?'

"'Why, I am the originator and the only one that's interested,' I answered.

"'Been jumping from state to state, I suppose, with this game, eh?' he queried. I smiled, inwardly, as I recalled very quickly the problem which prompted me to start the raffle. Then I assured him: 'No, this is my first experience in this line.'

"'Well, we'll see what's in it any way,' said he, and taking from the upper drawer of a roll-top desk a large envelope he withdrew from it a paper, evidently same to me. It was a summons to appear in court on Oct. 4 to answer to the charge of aiding and abetting a gambling scheme.

"'You wouldn't mind if I asked you your evidence for this summons, superintendent?' said I.

"'Evidence? Certainly. Evidence enough for us,' and he again sought the large envelope from which came my summons. His fingers now held one of my tickets for the raffle. 'I guess this is quite sufficient evidence, isn't it?' he replied, each word ascending until the last uttered just barely fell in range of a screech. He waved the ticket in the air for a moment and then deposited it again in the envelope. For a second only it had been able to see the number, and it was 321.

'On the street car back to the boarding house I referred to my memorandum book, and opposite ticket 321 was the name of one Miss Anna Woodford. Great idea, the superintendent's to obtain one of my tickets.

"However, the night came around for the $50 gold piece to be raffled. A few in addition to the 400 holding tickets had filled the hall. Realizing my affair was going to be carried out on honest grounds, quite a few purchased tickets after they had assembled. I, myself, was alone on the platform with a table as my only setting. Upon the table lay a small flour sack containing all the coupons. Advancing to the front of the platform I made it known to my audience that not myself but any one in the audience chosen by me would do the drawing of the fortunate coupon.

"'There's a red-headed boy,' I jokingly remarked. 'He'll bring good luck to some one. Step up here, my young fellow, just for a moment.' The youth with the fiery red hair came on the platform and I blindfolded him with a pocket handkerchief. Giving the bag containing the coupons a few good turns I moved him over to the table and bade him pick out one, and only one, of the coupons from the bag. He did so. I announced the lucky number, and advised if the holder was not in the hall at present he or she might obtain the gold piece by calling on the proprietor, in whose possession it would be held until claimed. The crowd filed out and my raffle I adjudged a howling success.

"'And who won the money?' Wilson asked quickly.

"'Oh, yes; ha, ha! I nearly forgot that. Why, Ticket 321.'

Wilson's face beamed with laughter as he asked: 'And your court proceedings?'

"I appeared in court and the case was thrown out for lack of evidence.'

PIES FOR PROFIT.

How Improved Methods Solved the Problem of Bakers.

Not long ago the bakers of this country had a convention at which the subject of one of the many edifying papers read was "Pie Making for Profit." It was delivered by no less a personage than the president of the Bakers' association—for the simple reason that he couldn't get anybody else to do it.

He declared that he had sen an urgent invitation to pretty nearly all the pie bakers in the United States to tackle the subject, but every one of them had replied that as he didn't know how to make a profit at the pie baking he must respectfully decline the invitation.

President Hubig—that is his name—thereupon decided to find a profit in pies somewhere. He started his hunt in the East, but was disappointed. He found pies made there as they were fifteen years ago.

"Then," said he to the bakers, according to the Baker's Weekly, "we came to a modern bakery in the West. There we saw machines that wash 2,500 plates in a jiffy, sterilize and dry them before sending them down to be used again. Clean, white gowned women are paring, slicing and quartering ripe apples by machinery. Two women pare as high as twelve to fourteen bushels a day, sometimes twenty bushels, which under the old method would take twelve or fifteen women.

"Further along we see shining copper kettles heated by steam from the boilers to stew the fruit. At the first bakery they did not stew it and then add water, 50 per cent as much water as fruit. They take at least 75 per cent as much sugar as fruit, and in this way they cannot help make money.

"Next we go into the sifting room and flour blending room. This is all done by machinery, of course. From there we go into the bake shop. You see moving machinery there, continually moving machinery, with pies on every cup passed before, the bakers simply directing the efforts of the machines to make these pies.

"Every baker gowned in white, white cap, white coat and white trousers, absolutely clean. The place was well lighted—you could see to read a newspaper in any corner. The floors were swept and scrubbed clean, and everything as bright and clean as it possibly could be. The sanitary conditions were absolutely perfect.

"They were making about thirty-one pies a minute. The proprietor told me that to make the same number of pies before he had these machines would have required from eight to 100 bakers, and every one of them would have to be an expert at rolling, as all the rolling was necessarily done by hand. He said it would take something like sixteen or eighteen men to turn out one-tenth as many pies as they were making then.

"There is one machine there about five feet long that the proprietor told me put eighteen men that formerly trimmed off pies out of work. I asked him how much he paid these men, and he said $14 a week. We pass from the manufacturing end of this shop to the baking end, where we find a rotary oven that one man with experience can operate.

"These ovens have a capacity of 1,000 pies an hour. The rotary oven of the newer type, compared with the old patent oven, has four times the capacity. We passed to the shipping room, where the pies are pushed upon trucks and distributed. Two men handle at least 30,000 pies every night, distributing them for the wagons.

"We go from there to see the toilet rooms and dressing rooms for the employes. Everything is white enamel. Every baker, every driver, every employe of the firm has his own double locker, one for his street clothes and the other for his working clothes. They have their shower baths, tub baths and everything necessary. The proprietor tells me his place is always open for visitors who will be shown through by a guide."

USEFUL ALTHOUGH DISAGREEABLE.

Youth's Companion: "Now that the Tompkinses have moved," remarked Mrs. Harkins, as she poured Mr. Harkins his second cup of coffee, "I suppose we can count upon having some peace and quiet in the neighborhood. I'm really sorry to say it, but I was glad to see the last of the moving van."

"Why so?" asked Mr. Harkins, presently; and his wife looked at him with an expression that said plainly enough that she regarded the question as an affectation.

"Mr. Tompkins was so cantankerous!" she explained, promptly. "I always felt as if he was watching us constantly, just to catch us doing something that he might consider objectionable."

"I don't doubt but what he was," agreed her husband. "I believe it was Tompkins who made such a fuss over the Smith graphophone, wasn't it?"

"Yes. They played the thing all day and half the night. It was like living next door to a permanent circus."

"I remember," said Mr. Harkins, reminiscently. "And then there was the rusty ventilator on Brainard's stable. How it did squeek! Tompkins was the chap who finally made them oil it, wasn't he?"

"Nobody else could have made them oil it," said Mrs. Harkins. "You wouldn't even expostulate."

"No. I hate to expostulate. And then there was that mournful dog just round the corner. How he used to howl at night! What has become of him, I wonder."

"Mr. Tompkins went to the police about it," replied his wife, promptly. "And they made himself disagreeable, as usual—and the dog stopped howling. Then there was that gang of boys who used to play ball in the street—"

Mrs. Harkins laid down her knife and fork.

"I know what you mean," she said, "but I never did like that man Tompkins."

"Neither did I, my dear," said her husband, with a sigh, "but for all that I can't help wondering if this neighborhood didn't get considerable benefit from him."

WHY MARY LEFT THE BROWNS.

Rochester Herald: Herbert Spencer and Fleta Jan Brown, who in private life is Mrs. Spencer, have resolved never to discuss their private affairs before their servant again. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer are the writers of "Pansies Mean Thoughts and Thoughts Mean You," one of the big ballad successes of the present season, and as they are both greatly interested in this song they are prone to talk a great deal about it.

Recently Mr. Spencer added a window box to the furnishings of their apartment, and through sentiment planted pansies in it. Mary, the cook, helped her to do the planting and was greatly interested in it. However, Mary did not know that Mr. and Mrs. Brown were the authors of the "pansy" song.

At the dinner table the other night the Spencers were planning out what they would do with the "pansy" money (meaning their royalties on the song). The cook was an attentive listener to the conversation.

The following Saturday, after receiving her pay, she informed Mrs. Spencer that she was going to leave.

"Why, what on earth is the trouble, Mary?" asked Mrs. Spencer. "Haven't we treated you good?"

"Oh, yes," replied the servant, "ol can't complain on thot schore."

"Then whatever is the trouble?"

"Ol heard ye tellin' the boss the other evening thot ye was depinding on thot little box av pansies in the windy for yer income the rist av the year, an' ol'm afraid yez can't afford to pay me me wages on that skimpy flower garden!"

SAVING THE SITUATION.

Dr. Hilary Little Laycock of Wheeling, at the recent diocesan convention in New York, said of a certain resolution:

"It was, perhaps, unintelligible, like the Wheeling man's prayer. This man, praying in meeting for a brother who lay very ill, cried:

"'O, Lord, restore unto us our brother, if it doth not interfere with Thy perquisites.'

"The situation was saved by a deacon who shouted:

"'Hallelujah, the Lord knows what he means!'"

MILLER GETS BIG VERDICT

Jury Decides That Wife's Affections Were Worth $15,000 to Him.

Verdict Is One of Largest Ever Returned in Local Courts.

A jury in the district court yesterday afternoon returned a verdict for $15,000 in favor of David A. Miller, who sued Isaac, Henry and John Helstein, Robert Ashinsky, Joseph Fox and Morris Harley for the alienation of his wife's affections.

Miller sued for $15,250 and the verdict fell just $250 short of being the full amount. The plaintiff in the action was represented by Attorney Alexander Marshall and the defendants were represented by Charles Baldwin and Victor Power.

The trial has been going on for two weeks past before Judge Dibell of the district court.

Miller claimed that he was lured to a room in the Clarendon hotel by one, Mamie Marsh, who was in the employ of the defendants. He claimed that she got him there on a pretense of selling him jewelry. He was arrested and confined in jail on a statutory charge. He claimed that the conspiracy was formed so as to lower him in the eyes of his wife so that she could be prevailed upon to marry Joseph Fox.

For the humiliation he sought damages in the district court.

LUMBER CONCERNS HAD HEAVY LOSSES

Fires North of Eau Claire Especially Hard on Two Outfits.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Both the Northwestern Lumber company and the John S. Owen Lumber company of this city are losers as the result of the forest fires which have raged during the past two weeks on and in the vicinity of their timber lands, north of here.

The Northwestern Lumber company lost some 2,000,000 feet of logs and 200 cords of bark, and the loss in these alone will reach $25,000 or more, and it is feared that the damage to the standing timber will bring the total loss up to $75,000 or even to $100,000. The company has a man at work looking up the damage to the standing timber, but a report thereon is not expected till early fall.

The loss sustained by the John S. Owen Lumber company, as a result of the forest fires will be considerable, according to a report from Chippewa Falls. It is reported from there that the John S. Owen Lumber company lost some 800 cords of tan bark, much valuable standing timber and a quantity of logs by fire. A local representative of the concern says that he does not think that the damage will be as great as first reported.

ENGINEER'S TIME WASTED

Immense Number of Useless Specifications Are Called For.

Mayor Sees in System an Argument for Commission Government.

Mayor Cullum believes that the vast amount of unnecessary work which has been put upon the city engineering department is a further argument for the commission plan of government.

In a communication to the city council last Monday the mayor pointed out that last year the engineering department superintended work which cost $356,000 in round figures. But the department was required to make plans and specifications for work estimated at over $2,000,000.

This causes a considerable waste of money and energy. While the men in the office and the field staff should be busy every moment upon construction work actually in progress, they have to take time planning work which cannot be completed for years to come.

As a result the construction suffers. An inspector cannot be kept on the important jobs continually. This gives contractors who are inclined to be dishonest a wide chance to cheat the city. They could put in inferior materials, skimp here and there, and leave imperfections which would not be discovered until too late.

The council is largely, if not almost entirely, responsible for the extra work. Many citizens go to their representative in the council to ask if a certain improvement cannot be made. "I'll see what I can do,' answers the city father.

His "seeing" is securing the passage of a resolution by the council calling upon the engineer to prepare the plans and specifications. The alderman may realize that the improvement may or may not be necessary, but in the past this doesn't seem to have made any difference. He called for the plans whether or not he knew that the work couldn't actually be done for years to come.

But he had a good story to tell the voter. Asked why he didn't get the improvement he could tell him that he had done all in his power. He had secured the plans and the necessary figures. What more could the voter expect? It was now in the hands of the engineer and if nothing was done, somebody else, and not he, was to blame.

The mayor requested the council not to call for plans and specifications unless the work was needed and very likely to be done.

He believes that under another form of government the different sections will not be so insistent as they will not be able to appeal directly to a man from their own ward. He also is of the opinion that the commission would refuse to order such plans unless they were likely to be needed in a reasonable time.

ONLY NINE CAN'T SWIM

Out of 250 Duluth Boys 241 Have Learned the Art.

Free Swimming Lessons at Y. M. C. A. Will Close With Water Meet.

The free swimming lessons that have been given to the boys of the city by the Young Men's Christian association will come to a close tomorrow and plans have been made for an enthusiastic finish.

There have been over 250 boys at the pool each morning, and this morning there were only nine who had not learned the art. For the benefit of those who have not learned up to this time, the pool will be opened an hour earlier at 8 o'clock and four of the secretaries will be on hand to give special lessons. No boy who knows how to swim will be admitted until 9 o'clock. At 9:30 the doors will be closed the the fun will commence. Every boy who has learned to swim during the month will be tried out. Those who swim sixty feet, forty feet and twenty feet will receive a diploma stating that they have passed one of these tests. Following this there will be contests in swimming, diving, floating, trick dives, fancy dives, and aquatic games. The opening of the pool to the boys of the city has proved successful, and the association has rendered a service that may mean the saving of many lives during the coming years.

The regular swimming days for members of the boys' department will continue as usual, Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock. In addition to this there is a weekly swim at Park Point every Thursday at 2 o'clock. The boys leave from the boys' building. Special instruction is given on these trips to the boys who are learning to swim.

At the camp to be held this year at Deerwood, one of the prizes will be given to the first boy who learns after his arrival at camp, and another will be given to the boy who becomes most efficient during his stay at camp.

BIG GERMAN BANK FOUND INSOLVENT

Niederdeutsch Concern Is Wrecked By Excessive Speculation.

Dortmund, Germany, July 28. — The list of bank failures in Germany through excessive speculative operations has received a striking addition in the insolvency of the Niederdeutsche bank, against which bankruptcy proceedings were begun today.

This action was preceded by the arrest of Herr Ohm, one of the directors and the chief manager of the bank, who came to grief through his attempts to found numerous industrial companies, which were inadequately capitalized.

The liabilities of the bank are placed at $12,500,000, while its capital is $2,000,000.

It is stated that the depositors will lose the greater part of their money, and the members of the board nearly the whole of their private fortunes. It is reported that Ohm owes the bank a huge sum, and it is understood that other arrests are impending.

Awful Slump in Stock.

Berlin, July 28.—The shares of the Niederdeutsche Bank of Dortmund, the doors of which are closed pending an investigation of its affairs, sold on the bourse July 2 at 113.90 marks. Today they are quoted at 6.50 marks. The Imperial Bank of Germany holds only 650,000 marks of the Niederdeutsche paper.

A BERRY PATCH AND AN IDEA.

Fruit Trade Two College Girls Built Up.

"We cleared something over $150 last summer by selling berries and small fruits and expect to make a good deal more this year," declared the daughter of a New England farmer who is paying her way through college. "By we I mean myself and my chum, who is from the West but comes home with me in the summer.

"We began the business last year by gathering and selling my father's crop of berries and small fruits on commission. We soon had so many orders that we began to take the crop of other farmers in the neighborhood.

"The secret of our success was in having good fruit and cleanliness. Besides picking over the fruit to make sure that only that which was sound and ripe got into our baskets we covered each basket with clean cheesecloth to keep out the dust. This was an idea of my chum's. We were both on the lookout for something to do that would enable us to earn money and after talking the matter over we spoke to my father about it.

"He wasn't so sure about people being willing to pay more for clean fruit but he thought they would prefer it when it could be had at the market price. He proposed to turn his patch of strawberries, which were just beginning to ripen, over to us and let us try out our idea. We were to have the use of a horse and wagon, but were to do all the picking and selling ourselves, deducting a commission for our work.

"Some of our friends thought that it would be a disgrace for us as college women to be seen selling berries in the streets of the town near my father's farm. They suggested that we hire men or boys to do the selling while we devoted ourselves to gathering the fruit.

"My friend is a pretty independent girl, and she decided the question by saying that if I was ashamed to be seen driving a well kept horse and wagon with a load of clean berries she was not. She would be ashamed only if the horse showed lack of care and the berries were not up to our guarantee.

"My father and mother said it was a point we must settle for ourselves, though the latter remarked that she couldn't understand why having a college education should unfit us for doing any honest work. The result of it all was that both of us went to sell the fruit that first morning.

"Acting on my father's advice we were up before the birds, loaded our wagon and reached town soon after the milk wagons. We began in the best residential districts, planning to take all the fruit we couldn't sell retail to the fruit stores. We acted just about as a man usually does when selling fruits and vegetables. One of us rang the bell at the kitchen entrance and offered our berries for sale.

"That first load sold so rapidly that we were on our wagon jogging back to the farm when we met the earliest of our rivals coming in. Besides having sold every berry we had taken orders from almost every house for berries to be delivered the following morning.

"The third day found us with more orders than my father's berry patch could supply. When we approached our next neighbor and asked him to sell us enough berries to make up the deficiency he replied that we either had to take the entire picking for that day or go elsewhere. He also named a price that was very little below the market price for berries delivered in town.

"Feeling that we would risk too much at these terms, we tried to get him to let us have the berries on commission. He wouldn't budge. If we wanted the berries we must take them at his price or not at all. Then my chum demanded an option on his berry patch for the balance of the season. She said she did this in a spirit of contrariness, though it afterward proved a good business deal for us.

"The berries were unusually fine in size, color and flavor and we readily got 2 cents a quart more for them than we had expected. The two patches gave us more than we could haul on one wagon. This was not easy at that season of the year.

"As a last resort we put an advertisement in the paper offering to care for a horse during the summer free of charge provided the owner agreed that it should make one trip to town and back six days in the week. The next day brought us three answers and two days later we rode into town, each driving her own wagon piled high with crates of berries, each basket of which was covered with a clean bit of cheesecloth.

"Having regular customers saved us considerable in buying baskets and cheesecloth. In many places the cooks were considerate enough to wash the cloths and mark their baskets.

"When the berry crop was over it seemed entirely natural for us to continue our business with other fruits. Being just as careful to see that each piece was up to the mark and well protected from dust and dirt, our good luck in selling continued.

"This year we have instituted the use of tissue paper instead of cheesecloth for covering our fruit baskets. We still use baskets marked with the names of our regular customers and find that with few exceptions they like the plan.

"It is impossible for us to do all the berry picking, though we make a point to do as much as we can. We employ women when it is possible to get them. When they can't be had we are forced to take children. We much prefer girls, as they are both more reliable and better pickers than boys, as a rule.

"We made a better beginning this season because of our last year's experience. We made a trip out into the country a short time before college closed, for the purpose of looking at the berry patches in our neighborhood and getting an option on them. Knowing about what the demand would be, we engaged to take two horses instead of one.

"We told our experience to friends at college and only a few days ago received a letter from two sisters whose home is near a city in Virginia. They wrote that they had been following our lead and expected to clear fully $100 each before the end of the season."

BAY SHORE HORSE SHOW ONE OF THE SOCIAL AND SPORTING SUCCESSES OF SEASON

REGINALD VANDERBILT.

C. W. WATSON.

C. W. Watson has distinguished himself at the Bay Shore horse show. So has Reginald Vanderbilt. Both have made many cup winnings. There have been many women exhibitors too—Helle Beach Bain, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Jay Carlisle, Miss Bryce, Miss Dutton. It has been socially and from a sporting point of view, one of the most successful of the out-of-door horse shows this summer.

FINICKY FERGUSON.

Lieut. Paul W. Beck, after his experiments at bomb-dropping from an aeroplane in this city, said:

"My experiments were, for a beginning, very satisfactory. The soldier who still after these experiments, will have nothing to do with aeroplanes, is, really, as finicky as Charles Ferguson.

"Finicky Ferguson they called him, and no wonder. Once he proposed to a beautiful girl, the daughter of a millionaire. She accepted him. He frowned dubiously at this and said:

"'I have neither family nor income, darling. Will your father consent to our marriage?'

"'Oh, I'm sure he will,' she murmured, laying her head on his breast.

"'Would he buy us a house, do you think?'

"'Yes, love, and furnish it,' she answered.

"'I wonder if he'd take me in the firm?'

"'I know it.'

"And she clasped his neck more ardently, but he took hold of her wrists and freed himself from her soft embrace.

"'I can never marry you,' said Finicky Ferguson. 'Your father is too willing to get you off his hands.'"

WILD BIRDS AS DECOYS.

Missouri Hunters' Method of Luring Game Within Gunshot.

Kansas City Star: Ducks and geese, quietly swimming and feeding among the sedges that line the still reaches of shallow Missouri river water near Rusville, Mo., present an alluring invitation of seeming safety and companionship for their feathered relatives flying along the stream toward the South in the late fall and winter or returning North a few months later. They descend to feed with the birds already in possession. Shots are heard. Some of the birds fly away, but others remain fluttering in the water, and two huntsmen from their blind speedily collect the quarry.

The astute hunters who tired of wooden decoys a year or more ago and decided to improve upon the best work of the manufacturers by using living decoys are Fred Fenton and O. C. Jones of Rushville. In shooting game it had been their practice to kill the crippled birds that they brought down, but one day they shot a gander through the wing, and its injuries were so slight that they resolved to preserve it. They wondered if it would not be possible to use the gander, which was unable to fly, as a live decoy. They pressed him into service a few days later.

"I think he drew all the geese in the state," said Fenton. One result of the first day's shooting was the acquisition of a crippled goose. They were mated, and now they have 122 wild geese in captivity. Ducks were obtained in the same manner. When Fenton and Jones shoot they usually use about four geese of the ordinary wild variety, two brant and twenty ducks. The star performer among the geese is a California pow-wow.

"He starts making a noise almost before we can see the geese and keeps it up until they are clear out of sight," Fenton said. "I have seen geese fly away past him and then swing around and come down."

Using their live decoys, the men shot 728 ducks in November. Their bag of geese numbered only six, all of which were got Nov. 3. Spring is a better time for shooting geese, they say.

"The geese feed on the prairies in the fall and strike the river about dusk, heading for the south. It's too late then to catch them. When they come back in the spring, though, they're generally flying in better light." That is the way Jones explains the seeming failure of the live aid to the hunters.

The ducks and geese are "anchored" by small weights on long lines. The cords have snap hooks, which fasten into rings attached to straps about the birds' legs. Fenton and Jones have a gasoline launch, and when they start out for the day they carry a crate of birds, each with its leather leg strap. It is the work of only a moment to take them from the coop, snap a weighted line to each ring and set the birds adrift. Not all of them have to be tied out. The ducks and geese are fastened, but generally it is not necessary to adopt the same means with the drakes or ganders, which swim about near at hand. The ducks are half breeds, crosses between malards and domestic ducks.

All the birds are fed regularly on shore, and when a day's shooting is finished the drakes and ganders swim willing back to the shack where they have learned to expect their daily apportionments of grain.

LIPTON'S AMERICAN DEBUT.

"During the early part of my business career," says Sir Thomas Lipton in the October Strand Magazine, "I became imbued with the idea that it was possible to prosper quickly in America, and at the age of 16 I left home and started for the United States.

"I had not dared tell my father and mother, so they only knew of the great step I had taken when I had gone. Had it not been for the kindness of my fellow passengers my journey would have been very miserable, and once or twice, I confess, I lost heart.

"I had no money or any one to go to when I landed in New York, and before we landed I cudgelled my brains as to what I was to do. As the steamer drew alongside the pier I took up my few belongings and rushed away to the nearest hotel before any one else had left the vessel.

"As it seemed a clean, well kept place, I asked to see the proprietor, and told him that I could get him forty patrons provided he would board and lodge me for a month. To this he consented. I made my way back instantly to the boat and was just in time to catch my fellow passengers and persuade them to go to this hotel, where I assured them they would get excellent accommodation; and they did.

"I think I owe much of my later success to advertising. I always tried to get hold of some new method. To attract attention I used to post cartoons in my shop window. In later years, when my business had spread, on one occasion I engaged an aeronaut to throw out from his car 10,000 telegraph messages addressed to one of my shops. I offered prizes to the first twenty people who arrived with a message, and the finders coming from all parts of the city, much popular interest resulted.

"Advertisements sometimes, as I have found, results most unexpectedly and from untoward conditions. About 6 o'clock one morning while in Ireland I was awakened by the telephone bell ringing in my bedroom. Springing out of bed I soon learned that a fire had broken out at my Newbry branch.

"On arrival at the scene of the fire I found nothing could be saved, so I immediately telegraphed to my Dublin and Belfast stores and ordered a fresh stock of provisions to be sent by passenger trains. Meanwhile I found another shop close by and at the usual hour the following morning I had the new premises in full working order. There was more business done at the second shop than at the first. The fire, it appeared, had drawn public attention to us and our smartness in opening another shop so quickly was practically appreciated."

If, through some special gift of business clairvoyancy, you could estimate the number of people who during last week should have patronized your store, but who were influenced by the other store's advertising to go there instead, you'd have insomnia.

CLOSES AT LOW POINT

Wheat Declines on Good Thrashing Returns From Northwest.

Flax Dull But Firm, Closing Slightly Higher Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 28.—Wheat declined today on reports of good yields from regions in the Northwest where threshing is in progress, chiefly Southern Minnesota, weaker cash markets, the influence of hedging sales elsewhere, the new winter crop movement and lower cables. After the hard spot at noon values declined and closed near the day's low points.

July wheat lost 1c, September, ¾c; December, ¾c; and May, ⅝c.

Flax was dull with a firm undertone. July closed unchanged, September gained 2c, October 1½c, November 1½c and December was unchanged.

Cash wheat closed 1c over July. Milis paid 4c over and the demand was slow. Oats lost 1¼c, rye and barley were unchanged and durum lost 1c.

Wheat values opened easy on lower cables and declined until toward noon when shorts covered and the market hardened. About 100,000 bu of Durum wheat were loaded here yesterday for export. No wheat was put into carriers today. Reports from Canada and the Northwest were more favorable and the belief that early estimates of the Northwestern wheat crop were exaggerated contributed to the weakness of the market. Scattered rains in Iowa and a few showers elsewhere in the Southwest caused corn values to decline and wheat was soft in sympathy.

Toward the close wheat showed some strength, but it has been noticeable that the rallies have been unsustained and have not developed consistent buying support. With values declining the country, which is heavily long, is in danger of getting knocked out of its wheat. A feature which is in the favor of the country holder is the fact that he is heavily margined.

The market feels the effect of increased hedging sales in the Minneapolis, Southwestern and Chicago markets. This pressure has made rallies exceedingly feeble. The outside trade is peer and the foreign markets have displayed the strength that was expected of them. The bulls believe the effect of the winter wheat movement will soon pass and they favor picking up wheat on the declining market caused by the new crop movement.

The weather in the Northwest was generally favorable. Temperatures were not excessively hot and a few reports of heavy yields in Southern Minnesota and near Watertown in South Dakota dissipated to some extent the ultra bullish feeling that has possessed some of the professionals. The country is long on everything but corn and it is now trying industriously to kill that crop. The country thinks oats is headed for 50 cents and it cannot see more than half a crop of barley.

Flax is a peculiar proposition as only about 50 per cent of the crop is sufficiently advanced to warrant an intelligent commentary upon its outlook. The Northwestern farmer appears to be cutting down his old flax acreage. In Minnesota the acreage holds steady because the farmers plant crops in rotation and practice diversified farming. In North Dakota, however, the farmer specializes in a certain grain to the abandonment of other grains and stock.

If flax makes a fair crop this year and the farmer gets unusually high prices for it he will be influenced in maintaining his acreage or increasing it, but if the flax yield is below expectations and prices hold to the levels that farmers expect, a further reduction in old acreage may be looked for next year. The increase in North and South Dakota acreage has been due chiefly to the opening up of new lands but with new land getting smaller in extent and a reduction in the old acreage occuring yearly the situation is becoming serious.

Linseed oil is selling around 80 cents instead of between 35c and 40c but talk of reducing or abolishing the tariff on Canadian and Argentine flax immediately produces a roar of protest from the Northwestern farmer who no longer will or can supply a sufficient amount of flaxseed to meet domestic requirements.

The Flour Situation.

Buyers of flour are beginning to entertain considerable apprehension about the flour situation. Their attitude is indicated by the more numerous and frequent inquiries made of millers' representatives as to the prospects of placing contracts. Bids have been raised materially but millers' selling limits have advanced much more rapidly than buyers' bids. There is still a wide difference between the two, thus checking business of considerable proportions.

Buyers were not prepared for such a radical advance in wheat as recently took place. They have held aloof believing that a break would come. They think the present recession was inevitable and they believe the bottom has not been reached. Very little business in new winter wheat flour has been booked this season, almost next to nothing has been done in springs, either new or old, for several weeks. Distributors and bakers are not heavily stocked, in a majority of instances their supplies are sufficiently low to cause alarm if the market should rally and renew its advance. Some people feared that purchases had been delayed too long although the decline in values removed much of this fear. Even at current mill prices the trade is not disposed to buy far ahead. Orders for prompt shipment to meet current necessities are being placed to the best advantage.

Trading in spring wheat patents is practically at a standstill for the present and will be until buyers and sellers are more certain of their position. Mills have advanced prices rapidly until the point is reached where limits are almost prohibitive of business, so far as mills are concerned. There is considerable competition among Northwestern millers in selling their brands and the fact that a few of the prices quoted are comparatively low is probably because some millers are getting rid of their old wheat.

Kansas flour is much higher than prices quoted earlier in the season. There has not been heavy buying of Kansas hard wheat patents. Buyers have not operated ahead of their requirements. Kansas millers are slow to name prices for immediate shipment as the uncertainty in the Northwest makes it impossible for millers to form an estimate of how great a demand may be made upon their supplies. If Kansas millers maintain the quality of their product it appears that they have a better opportunity for securing business in the territory where Northwestern and Southwestern millers come into competition than they have had in some time. The extreme prices for fancy patents are about $1 lower than the wood price quoted by leading Northwestern millers for first patent, a discount which should be of advantage to the Kansas miller in securing orders early in the season. Buyers are not dealing extensively in soft winter wheat flour.

Export business in flour is out of the question and seems impossible.

MARKET GOSSIP

Van Dusen-Harrington said: "Weather conditions in the three Northwest states since our last report have caused no material change in the prospective out-turn of small grain, excepting possibly as to flax, forage crops and possibly late-seeded wheat in North Dakota.

"North Dakota promises a wheat crop of not to exceed 40 per cent of last year's and will have very little commercial barley or oats. Indications are for half of last year's flax crop.

"Minnesota promises a very bountiful harvest in the central and southern portions of that state. Spring wheat in that section is expected to yield from 20-35, barley 30-40 and oats 40-60 bu per acre. Northwestern Minnesota crop conditions show no material change from a week ago. The state as a whole promises a fair crop.

"The eastern portion of South Dakota indicates a yield as large as a year ago, but Brown and Spink counties, the banner wheat-producing counties of that state, are very badly hurt and promise not to exceed one half a crop. Kingston, Faulk, Potter and other counties promise not to exceed two thirds of last year's wheat production.

"Flax in South Dakota promises good to fair and corn in the three states continues to look extra well.

"The three states as a whole promise a wheat crop not to exceed 60-65 per cent of last year."

Yesterday's Chicago Tribune: Millers are holding off temporarily in buying wheat owing to the uncertainty in regard to the July future. Considerable wheat has been sold ahead for August and September shipment, but not much of any business based on July price is expected.

There is no object for the mills to take wheat on the present basis. The country continues to sell quite freely and aggregate purchases were again liberal yesterday. Prices paid were relatively just about the same as recently.

Duluth reported a brisk demand for No. 1 northern at higher premiums, but there was a big run of winter to Minneapolis and millers were not anxious buyers. Only the choicest wheat was wanted, low grades being a drug. Southwest markets were firm. Farmers in Illinois and Indiana were especially free sellers.

A special dispatch to The Herald from Minneapolis says: S. B. Quale, vice president of the Tollman Investment company of Willmar, who is interested in five country banks in North Dakota, says the prospects for wheat in North Dakota have improved recently. Flax, he declares, will make a fair yield. At Young American, N. D., a thrashing report gave the returns at 32½ bu to the acre. Watertown, S. D., sent word of 15 bu per acre. Barley there will make from 20 to 35 bu per acre and oats from 30 to 40 bu. West of Watertown the country has been dry and the yields will be smaller.

A Winnipeg dispatch to The Herald: "Canadian Pacific reports indicate that the outlook in the three provinces has improved greatly in the last few days. The general crop condition is much better than earlier reports indicated."

Broomhall cabled: Wheat showed some steadiness at opening with values ½d to ¼d higher and following opening there was further advances of ⅜d to ½d except July which remained unchanged. This support was due to steadiness in Chicago, less pressure of Danubian offerings, continued unfavorable harvesting weather in United Kingdom and strength in country markets as well as good buying by France. During morning market developed an easier undertone due largely to dullness. Pressure was further encouraged by cheaper Indian offerings and later reports of more favorable weather in France? At midday market was easier ¼d lower than opening and unchanged to ⅛d lower than yesterday.

Corn steady at start and unchanged, influenced by strength in America. Later there was decline of ⅜d due to heavy Plate offerings and forecast of heavy shipments this week. Argentine weather in South is favorable and sowing of wheat progressing favorably. Corn is being heavily offered. Drought still continues in North, but it is not serious. loweria etaoin shrdlu cmfwyp vbgkqaa

Forecast: Minnesota and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday, cooler tonight. Iowa—Thunder showers tonight or Friday, cooler in west and central portions tonight. North Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday, not much change in temperatures. Nebraska—Partly cloudy, cooler tonight with probably showers in southeast; Friday fair. Kansas—Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; cooler tonight and in southeast Friday.

The Northwestern Miller says: The crop situation in the Northwest has changed very little in the last week. Conditions for filling of wheat were more favorable in that the temperature has been cooler, and considerable rain fell on Friday and Saturday. A good many men in the trade believe they have observed improvement in the last week as to prospective yield, while others see no change, unless it be for the worse. Estimates of the wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakotas usually range between 140,000,000bu and 150,000,000 bu. Occasionally a man is found who says 160,000,000 bu. Wheat cutting is well under way in Southern Minnesota and South Dakota and has been started in the southern part of North Dakota. The grain is ripening very fast, and harvest will progress rapidly from now on.

Foreign markets closed: Liverpool wheat, ¼c lower; corn, 1⅛c lower. Berlin, 1c lower. Budapest, ⅜c higher. Antwerp, ⅝c lower.

Price current said: Generally favorable weather for crops and farming operations. No occasion to change previous conclusions as to the general condition of winter wheat. Thrashing returns satisfactory. Harvesting spring wheat commenced. Yield favorable as could be expected considering climatic conditions during the earlier life of the plant. Corn advanced greatly in growth. Most of area of excellent promise. Harvesting of oats advancing and general outlook very favorable for good crop.

The strength in Winnipeg July occasioned some comment. It gained 1c and was about the only option in any market that displayed vigor.

Winnipeg wired: Fine weather has continued with moderate temperatures. Cooler conditions are threatening. Some very light and very scattered showers have occurred. Forecast: Manitoba fine, with a little lower temperature. Saskatchewan and Alberta fair and comparatively cool, with a few scattered showers.

Plato and New Ulm wired that early thrashing shows yield 25 to 33 bu per acre and wheat weighs 60 to 63 lb. Minneapolis wired: 15 to 25 bu per acre yields around Minno and Scotland. S. D. Harvest is on in best sections of Northwest.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Turns Heavy on Reports From Thrashing.

Chicago, July 28.—Authoritative declarations that the threshing returns of winter wheat are satisfactory as a whole and that the yield of spring wheat so far had been as favorable as could be expected considering climatic conditions during the earlier life of the plant, had the effect of making the tone of the market heavy today. Trade was slow. Pit speculators were selling, and there was only scattered commission buying. Closing of flour mills because of accumulation of unsold stock had a depressing tendency. Reports of improved weather in France and Argentina were also considered bearish factors. Prices opened ⅝c lower to ⅛c higher, the latter for July. September started unchanged to a shade up at $1.01⅛ to $1.01¼, and declined to $1.03⅝c.

Further weakness was manifested, the result largely of primary receipts being heavy. Indications for a smaller run of wheat from now on lead to an upward turn which, however, was only temporary. The close was steady with September at $1.03⅝ to $1.03¾, a net loss of ⅜c to ½@⅝c.

Cooler weather and rains in a large portion of the corn belt weakened quotations for that grain. Official predictions were that the heat would be gradually broken in the Trans-Mississippi region during the next thirty-six hours. The market opened a shade to ¾c down, with September 65⅛c to 65⅜c, a loss of ⅜c to ⅝c. There was a further decline to 64⅞c.

There was quite a rush to unload by local longs on reports of rains and cooler weather west. The close, however, was steady at 63½c to 63⅝c, a net decline of 2⅛c to 2¼c.

Hedging conditions helped to make oats weak. September started ⅛@¼c to ⅜@⅝c off at 38⅜c to 38½c, touched 38½@⅝c, and fell to 38⅛c.

Provisions dropped because of a large run of hogs. Opening figures were unchanged to 22½c down, the September option selling at $21.95 to $22.00 for pork, $11.82½ to $11.85 for lard and $11.62½ for ribs. Additional losses were suffered.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Easier Although Very Stubborn Tone Prevails.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 28.—The market was easier today, although a very stubborn tone prevailed, when it is considered that there was heavy selling by some of the leading local interests. The absence of any good cash demand and favorable thrashing reports from Southern Minnesota tended to encourage bears. July closed ⅞c lower than yesterday, September ⅞@1c lower and December ⅞c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 490,000 bu for five days. Minneapolis today received 139 cars of wheat against 105 cars a year ago, Duluth 45 cars against 35 cars and Winnipeg 117 against 37. July opened $1.22½; high, $1.23; low, $1.22; close, $1.22. September opened $1.13¼; high, $1.13½; low, $1.12¾; close, $1.12⅝-1.12½. December opened $1.11⅜; high, $1.11½; low, $1.10⅜; close $1.10⅝.

Cash wheat was demoralized on account of the liberal offerings and the continued indifferent demand. Premiums were easier and in a wide range. No 1 northern sold for 6½@12c above the September, the majority going for 3@11c above. Closing cash prices: No. 1 northern, $1.22; to arrive, $1.17½; No. 2 northern, $1.18@1.19; to arrive, $1.14½. No. 3 wheat, $1.15@1.17; No. 3 yellow corn, 62@63c; No. 3 white oats, 42@43c. No. 2 rye, 72@74c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 11,819 tons. No quotable difference. Market strong and active. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $20.00@20.50.

Prices on flour lowered again today on account of the decline in futures and cash premiums. Demand showed some slight improvement and shipments continued. Shipments, 48,392 bbl. First patents in wood, f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.80@6.00; second patents $5.60@5.80; first clears, $4.45@4.55; second clears, $3.20@3.50.

RECOVERY OF STOCKS

Further Rebound From Excessive Depression of Tuesday's Prices.

Close Is Strong at About Best Figures of the Day.

New York, July 28.—Prices of stocks bounded upwards again with the opening of the market today, gains running from 1 to 2 points over last night for practically all of the active issues. The rise in Denver & Rio Grande preferred reached 2½ and Canadian Pacific 2¼. Very heavy blocks changed hands in United States Steel, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper and the quotations for those stocks showed a spread of a substantial fraction.

The extent of the opening advance coming after the sharp rise of yesterday invited heavy realizing sales. The reaction was slight and enormous buying orders flowed into the market at rising prices. St. Louis-Southwestern preferred jumped 4½, Rock Island preferred 3½, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 3⅜, Southern Pacific, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse Electric 3, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and Amalgamated Copper 2¾, United States Steel 2⅝ and Union Pacific, Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern preferred, Atchison, Norfolk & Western, Louisville & Nashville, American Car and National Lead, 2 to 2½.

After occasional pauses the market gathered force for fresh advances. Reports that embarrassed holdings had been taken over by syndicates alarmed shorts. The demand was large both for home and foreign accounts. Amalgamated Copper had risen 4¼ before noon, Southern Pacific 4, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Reading and American Locomotive 3½, and Great Northern preferred, St. Paul, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Soo, St. Louis Southwestern and United States Steel 3 or more. Bonds were firm.

The market more than held its gain during the noon hour on a diminished volume of business. Canadian Pacific increased its gain to 4¼ over yesterday's close, and Chesapeake & Ohio was up 4, while Colorado & Southern showed an advance of 6. American Smelting, Atlantic Coast Line and Great Northern certificates advanced 3, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 4¾ and United States Rubber 4¼. There were some recessions from the high level at 1 o'clock.

The demand died down and prices slipped back to 1½ on dull tradings. Offerings almost ceased at the lower prices. The advance in Canadian Pacific was extended to 5¼.

The market closed strong and quiet. Prices rose to the best again in the final hour after a period of dullness. Union Pacific then rose 4; General Electric 3½, and Illinois Central 3¼; Lackawanna sold at an advance of 20. There was a renewal of profit-taking sales on the latest advance which was again absorbed at another advance.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.
